“Just As I Am” A Unique Memoir by Roy W. Lilley is now available through Amazon Books. In his introduction Chuck Schroeder, a cattle industry leader who during his career has been the CEO of both the National Cattlemen’s Beef Association and the National Cowboy and Western Heritage Museum in Oklahoma City, wrote “This is the story of an uncommon man whose character was formed in challenging times and exercised through the twisting trails of his life”. Lilley was born in Fort Collins, Colorado on May 14, 1930 and lived the first ten years of his life on the Table Mountain Ranch in Virginia Dale, Colorado. He graduated from Cache La Poudre High school in Laporte, Colorado in 1948 and Colorado State University in 1952. He was serving as a Supply Sergeant in the Field Artillery in Korea when the war there ended. He competed successfully in both college and professional rodeos winning the saddle bronc riding at the Larimer County Fair in Loveland, Colorado in 1952 and the bull riding at the finals of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo in Portland, Oregon that same year. In 1954 Lilley was discharged from the army and followed the professional Rodeo circuit for two years. In 1956 he began a forty five year career in Cattle Association work when he was hired as Assistant Executive Secretary of the American National Cattlemen’s Association (predecessor to the NCBA). Lilley concluded his career after seventeen years with the Nebraska Stock Growers Association. Lilley and his wife, Donice, have lived in the Fort Collins area for the past ten years.

HALF EMPTY OR HALF FULL

article by Mark Eaton

Is the cup half empty or half full? There are those who pride themselves in being positive. They choose to see the cup as half-full. They are the cheerful, hopeful and upbeat. And smiling. They always smile. They stay positive.

Others pride themselves in opposing the positive crowd and choose to see the cup as half-empty. We call these folks the negative ones. They tend to be grumpy and critical. Un-happy and melancholy.

Both are usually convinced their view on the world is right. This is especially true with the half-full crowd. These people know they have the right perspective. They are convinced the rest of us need to see the world their way. They tend to insist, through seminars and cheerleading style exhortations, that we all be positive. It's the only way to live, they say. Some even go so far as to assert this is the primary teaching of Scripture. They tend to look down in pity at the melancholy half-empty tribe.

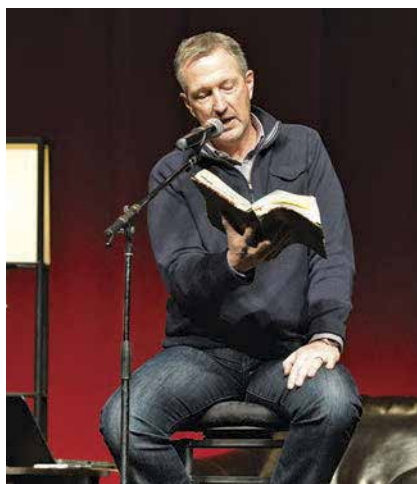

Not to be outdone, our friends with half-empty cups can be quite stubborn in their stance as well. They know the world is a cruel and heartless place. They see themselves as the honest ones among us and can even sneer at the simple-minded, naïve, half-full throng. They can be smug in their own way and chuckle at the dumb happy ones. They regularly insist the cup is cracked and soon will be empty. Sometimes to their great joy. Many of this camp are addicted to the power in their pessimism.

Now I'll grant you, smart reader, I am over simplifying and generalizing these two camps. My point is actually very unimaginative.

The cup is both. It is indeed half-full, and also very much half-empty.

How many smiling, upbeat, rich, and 'happy' Hollywood types have been in and out of rehab? How many have firmly believed they will win the short round if they stay positive. Maybe the half-full philosophy is lacking a little something.

The half-empty viewpoint has it's own causalities. The depression rates sore in the US. Social and the mainline news media is loaded with critical and destructive narratives intending to create dis-trust and dis-content. The grumpy grandpa has become a cliché', as has the image of a bitter old woman. Maybe the cup-half-empty horde is not as right as they imagine themselves to be.

Is it possible to hit a sweet spot? I think so. Allow me to offer a couple of ideas.

1. Be a Truth-Teller.

Be honest with ourselves about ourselves first, others second and then the world at large. Face the reality of the reality. See it like it is. There is terrible pain in the world, and in the same moment, there is tremendous joy.

2. Learn to Discern.

We must decide what to do with the 'truth' we see. Share it? Ask forgiveness? Reflect on it? Get others input? Ones cup may be half-full, but it may be half-full of sour milk. A half-empty cup could be a way to punish ones spouse by playing the grump for 2 hours on Saturday morning. Learn to see the truth of what is going on in our head and heart. Learn to discern what it does for us and how it serves us.

3. Hold onto Hope.

Do not hold onto the half-full or half-empty thinking. The liquid in the cup can go away as fast as the air. Cracked cups leak and vapor is gone with the slightest breeze. Hope is the only thing that keeps either camp going. Remember also that hope is good only if it is hope in something real. False hope is just that.

4. Find Faith.

Here is something real to hope in: God.

Develop a faith knowing that God exists and that He is up to something good. He is working redemption and reconciliation into the fabric of humans. He is at work, in and through us, to show Himself to the cosmos. He is so powerful that He uses even sour liquid, cracked cups and vapor.

5. Journey toward Joy.

If at ones deepest levels, there is not an abiding sense of joy, I suggest one shift their world view. Happiness can be stolen. Joy can't be.

6. Lead with Love.

Regardless of your cup, move toward others in love and kindness. Be a discerning truth-teller. Be hopeful, faithful, joyful and loving. Some days are easy, some seasons are hard. Forget about the cup. Hold on to Christ.

1 Corinthians 13:13: Now these remain: faith, hope and love. But the greatest of these is love.

The Rodeo News has been on the road this past month - International Finals Youth Rodeo, National Little Britches Finals, National High School Finals, Cheyenne Frontier Days, Ft. Worth for the Clown Reunion, and then to the ProRodeo Hall of Fame for the induction. Rodeo is such an incredible family sport – the stories, the camaraderie, the milestones for the young and the old – the memories that will be cherished for a lifetime. One plane trip and several thousand miles in the car – July is in the books and now it's August and we will be heading out to cover the rest of the story!

It's time to sit back and enjoy the Rodeo News – I could not do the traveling I do without the grace of God or the team from designers to sales to the office manager – I know that two on the team are my daughters and I am very proud that they chose to work with me in this incredible journey. The three very talented graphic designers - Maya, Justin, and Abigail, spend hours gathering the information from the secretaries and laying out the pages. The other part of the team is the pool of writers and photographers that spend endless hours tracking down the stories and photos that you see on these pages. One of those writers, Lily Weinacht, has just finished her 1,000th story for Rodeo News. I met her through her mother, who attended Bible Study Fellowship with me for a few years ... many years ago. We have remained friends and her daughter joined the team before she even graduated from high school. Congratulations Lily on making that milestone!!! Another writer, Ruth Nicolaus, is busy on the rodeo road herself – providing the publicity and media relations from Kansas, Nebraska, Oregon, to California.

NLBRA QUEEN

Catherine Odgers

story by Siri Stevens

Catherine Odgers is not new to queen pageants. "This is my sixth contest and my fourth national contest," said the 18 year old from Ely, Nevada. With a population less than 10,000, Catherine had to travel for her competitions. Her first experience at a queen pageant was in a town 30 minutes from her hometown. "It's called the Lund Pioneer Days, and it is a weekend long ranch rodeo where the town comes together to remember their roots," she said. She got first runner up at that competition. Her second pageant was for Nevada High School Rodeo Association and she won that one. She held that title for two years and competed at the National level. This was her second attempt to represent National Little Britches. "I fell in love with the National Little Britches pageant more after that competition – it's such a fun experience – the competition is unlike any others – you compete with girls from the age of 5 – 18 and if you win, you get to represent such a great association." The pageant for National Little Britches included modeling, speech, impromptu questions, horse reining and cow work pattern on drawn horses that the stock contractors provide; interview and a test. "The hardest question I had to answer was the political question – I was asked if I believe President Trump's reversal on his immigration policy was helpful or hurtful to the United States."

Catherine started competing in the National Little Britches in 2014, entering barrels, poles, breakaway, goat tying, and trail course. She qualified in all four for the 2018 Finals but chose to compete in only the trail course. "I wanted to focus on queening – I realize it's a job and I wanted to be there to help however I could."

Her parents; Connie and Chuck, moved their family to Ely from Las Vegas, Nevada, in 2011 to pursue their dream of living the Western lifestyle. They purchased a ranch and Connie works at the local elementary school and Chuck is the city attorney. "We moved from Las Vegas, because we wanted to be surrounded by the great outdoors."

Catherine has been riding for ten years.

"Growing up my father instilled in us the Western way of life and we got into it when my brother (Cody) wanted to ride bulls. When he got injured at age 11 he couldn't ride anymore, but we got on horses and got a rope thrown in our hands and we found our true passion." She has four older brothers, CJ is 34, Chris is 30, Cody is 23, and Chase is 22.

"My platform is to encourage girls to think about rodeo queening in a different light. I want to educate girls on what a rodeo queen is and what her job is."

Catherine won seven out of the ten categories. She plans to attend the traditional events that the NLBRA queen attends, as well as several that "are outside the box, like AQHA, Reined Cowhorse shows, and other events to continue to expand the exposure for rodeo." She is excited to work with Addie Mae and Skylee. "Addie Mae and I rodeo together and Skylee is such a fireball. She is very interesting and I'm looking forward to the fun trips and adventures the three of us will have."

When she grows up, her dream job is to be in the marketing department of the PRCA. "It would be so much fun to promote the sport of rodeo beyond my queening career." She graduated from high school and plans to attend University of Northern Colorado in Greeley, Colorado. She will be dual majoring in Theatre Design and Technology and Business Marketing. 📺

NLBRA PRINCESS

Addie Mae Quarnberg

story by Siri Stevens

Addie Mae Quarnberg is used to the queen life. “I like that we can promote the sport of rodeo and in a different way than just rodeo. We can bring people in that don’t know much about it as well as the people that do know about it, we can bring them more into it.” Her career started when she was two in the local Salina Rodeo Pageant. She was the Little Wrangler Princess two years ago and grew up with older sisters (Ashlie, and JaKel) that queened. Addie admits she was a little bit nervous, “it was my first year going into the junior level queening and there were more advanced girls than me there.” The hardest question she was asked was actually a trick question. How long does the bulls horn have to be – there’s not a length to the horn. “I told the judges I would make sure I knew that one.”

She and her sisters have competed in rodeo following after their parents – dad, Kelly, was a rough stock rider and mom, Jennifer, was a barrel racer. None of her brothers, Quade, Quinn, or Kade, compete. She has been competing in little britches for five years and enters all the events but breakaway and team roping, something she has set as a goal for 2019. “My dad and I practice every night with my sister - it’s hard throwing it where it’s more likely to lay on it and letting lay to make it pay,” she said. “Dad’s more chill with our rodeo events and when we do something wrong he helps us instead of telling us what we did wrong. My mom is a rodeo secretary; she secretaries all the Black Hawk rodeos - so most likely she’s in the office on the computer.”

Her equine partners in rodeo are two mares, Ice and Moon. “Ice is my barrel and pole horse; we share the same birthday, May 26. My 4H horse, Moon, is my trail and goat horse. We didn’t go out in goats this year because she wasn’t quite finished yet. Hopefully she will be my breakaway horse next year.”

Along with rodeo, Addie tumbles, dances, plays softball. “I hope to add soccer and track to my career in high school.” The sixth grader likes math best. “It’s my best subject and there’s multiple ways to get to the answer; I can always learn more.” She isn’t as fond of writing. “I don’t like to write essays – that’s the worst. It’s the grammar part.”

When she’s not practicing, she plays with her mom and JaKel’s hair and rides her bike.

Her dream is to be Miss Rodeo America. “I’m going to work hard, go to all the queen competitions I can to prepare for the competition and try out for Miss Rodeo Utah.” After that she wants to be a teacher and a hair stylist.

LITTLE WRANGLER PRINCESS

Skylée Millett

Skylée Millett is the 2018 Little Wrangler Princess. "I get to represent the association and I'm very excited about that," said the 8 year old from Chester, Utah. "Chester is a quiet place, away from a lot of people so I can ride my horses anytime I want because they are in my back yard." This is her second try at the title, last year she was first runner up. She learned this past year to never get too nervous. "You think about something else and focus on that." One of the questions she was asked this year is who she would take with her if she was invisible for a day. "I said my family and the judges because they were good judges. They were really nice to me."

She enjoys being part of the National Little Britches. "You can always make new friends, even if you are in a different state," she said. Skylée has been riding horses for five years and competes in barrels, poles, goats, and flags. Her favorite is pole bending. "It's easy for me and my horse, Jack," she said of the 13-year-old gelding. "I've been riding him forever – we raised him and I got second place overall in poles on him at Nationals."

Skylée spends her free time training ponies. "It's fun and it's something I can do with my brother." She also plays softball, flag football, tumbling and parkour – which is jumping and doing flips over objects.

Skylée wants to be a horse trainer and a veterinarian. She has 10 horses, not including her pony, and she practices them five times a week. Her mom (Kami), brother (Cameron – 22), brother (Jacob – 13), little sister (Abbigayle – 5), and dad (Nathan) ride the rest.

Both her brother and sister compete in rodeo – Abbigayle is just learning how to ride, but Jacob went to Nationals this year as well. He made the finals in bareback steer, saddle bronc steer, bull riding, goat tying, flag race, team roping, ribbon roping, and breakaway roping. "He did good," said Skylée. "He came home winning 8 buckles."

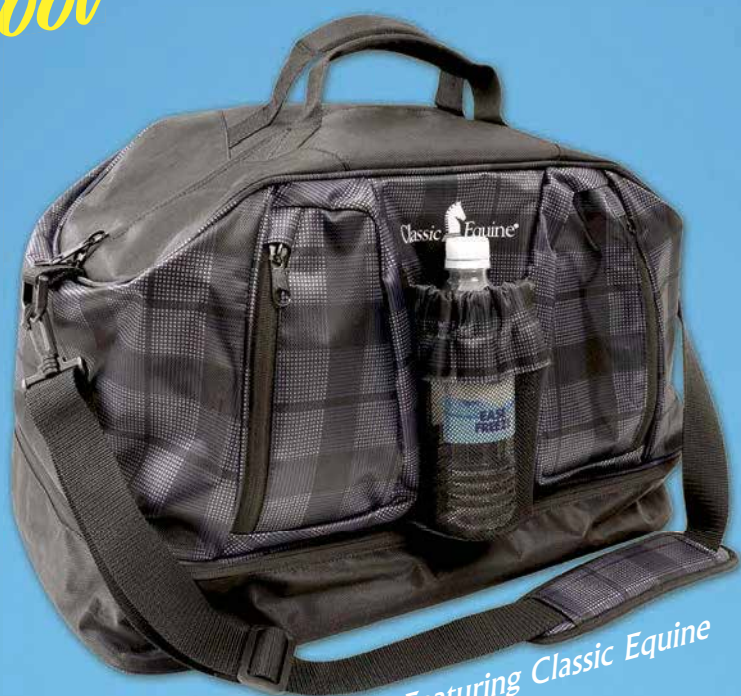

As part of her new role as Little Wrangler Princess, she will be going to the Las Vegas, to the NFR, Colorado, and many other places. She loves to meet new people and go new places. Skylée is going into third grade and likes the dual immersion program that she is in, where she learns in both english and Spanish.

Her advice to all the readers is to keep trying and never quit.

Back When They Bucked with BUDDY COCKRELL

story by Ruth Nicolaus

Buddy at Derby, Australia. This was the last rodeo he competed in in Australia and he took home the All Around Cowboy title and saddle. - Courtesy of the family

Buddy Cockrell got to do a wide variety of things throughout his life. The Texas-born cowboy competed in high school and college rodeo, played college and professional football, owned ranches in Australia and Brazil and a gold mine in Costa Rica. He was born in 1934 and raised by his mother, Alice Gray Cockrell, and maternal grandparents, O.H. and May Etta Ingram east of Pampa, Texas, on a farm and ranch.

His granddad started him cowboying and working when he was six years old, and Buddy learned to rope from Perry Franks, a hired hand on the OK Ranch where they lived, a well-known Texas roper and Turtles Cowboy Association member.

Buddy learned to steer wrestle in an unusual way. His uncle had horned purebred Hereford cows, and there was a cattle trail on the place, not far from the house. On horseback, Buddy would run a Hereford down the fence line, diving off his horse and onto the cow. He wasn't usually able to throw the cow, but it gave him the chance to learn how to plant his feet, slide and get an arm hold.

ning the steer wrestling. He competed in pro rodeos that summer, winning some and losing some. "I won more than I lost, or I couldn't have kept going," he said. "Money was tight at home and I needed all I could bank for college."

Buddy was in the field when Pop Ivy, one of the Oklahoma Sooner football coaches, visited. "I was out on the tractor plowing late one evening when a man stopped by. He had come to recruit me and offered me a scholarship," Cockrell said. "It was better than driving a tractor, so I agreed."

He played two years at Oklahoma University, under the tutelage of Bud Wilkerson and

[He's a giant of a man, and not only in stature but in personality. He's larger than life but he's soft-spoken.]

One day, one of the cows' horns broke, and his granddad asked how it happened. Buddy never said a word, and no one found out. And when he began steer wrestling the real way, with a hazer, "he said he never knew how easy it was," his wife Geneva said.

Each morning, he and his older brother Lee would milk before school, get on the bus and ride twelve miles. They attended a one room school till they got to junior high, where Buddy's height and size gave him an advantage in sports. He was a natural athlete, lettering in the shot put, basketball, and football, and playing defensive end and offensive tackle in football.

In 1953, the year he graduated, he played on the Pampa High School basketball team, which was state champs. He was the regional heavy weight Golden Glove boxing winner and was chosen to be on the National High School All American Football team. He was also competing in rodeos by then, match roping other cowboys and winning. Buddy sharpened his roping and steer tripping skills by gathering and branding calves and doctoring for screw worms.

The summer after high school graduation, he competed in the Texas High School Finals Rodeo and won the boys' all-around saddle by placing in the calf roping and win-as part of the team's 47 game winning streak. He didn't rodeo, as Wilkerson didn't want him to. Then Hardin Simmons University's coach Sammy Baugh came calling. He offered Buddy a football and rodeo scholarship, so he transferred, doing both sports at Hardin Simmons and earning a business degree with a minor in economics. He competed once at the College National Finals Rodeo.

After college, Buddy headed back to Pampa to work on the family farm. But football wasn't over for him. Pop Ivy had moved on to coach with the Saskatchewan Rough Riders, and he called Buddy, asking him to play for them. Buddy drove to Canada and signed a one year contract. When he got home, he found out he had been selected by the Cleveland Browns in the twenty-eighth round of the draft. But he stuck with his word and spent a year playing ball in Canada.

The next year, he went to Cleveland to play for the Browns. But during a scrimmage before the season started, he was blindsided by one of his own players, injuring his right knee. It required surgery, and Buddy never played for the Browns. He worked hard to rehabilitate the knee.

By this time, Sammy Baugh, his college coach, was coaching the New York Titans.

He called Buddy and wanted him to come to New York. Buddy spent three years with the Titans (they became the Jets in 1962). The Denver Broncos asked him to play, but by then his knees were bad and he quit football.

Buddy returned home to rodeo and farm. He roped calves and steer wrestled, often traveling with his brother Lee, who was a calf roper. He competed close to home and added steer roping to his repertoire. His best season was in 1977, when he was the PRCA season champion steer roper. There were three years (1976-1978) when two champions were awarded in each event. World championships were determined by the highest amount of money won at the NSFR. Season champs were awarded based on total season earnings. Buddy earned $11,386 that year; Guy Allen, ninth during the regular season, won the world title with earnings of $2,585 from the NSFR.

He and his brother never drank; they had seen the effects of alcohol on their father. But that didn't stop Buddy from having a good time. Good friend and fellow steer roper Howard Haythorn remembers that Lee and Buddy would get one room with one bed while rodeoing. Lee would take care of horses, eat a good solid meal and go to bed. Buddy would be gone all night, having a good time and coming in when Lee was getting up. "Lee would get more sleep but I had more fun," Buddy laughed.

Wherever Buddy went, fun and good times followed. He wasn't scared of anything. His wife Geneva relates a tale of when he, Larry Nolan, Tom Henry, and Tuffy Thompson were headed to a steer roping in Nebraska. Their pickup died and there was no way to start it. Buddy said, "If I can get that big horse out of the trailer, I promise you I can pull this pickup and you can jump it.” Nobody believed him, but Buddy hooked his horse to the pickup, got it to move, and the pickup started.

That same trip, the four of them were at their destination, where they ate supper and checked into a hotel. Two women in the bar decided to follow them to the hotel. Buddy and Tuffy were upstairs in their hotel room, with Larry and Tom on the first floor. All of a sudden, they heard a bang and glass flying. The women had accidentally driven their car into the wall, at Larry and Tom’s room. Buddy said, plant in Plainview, Texas.

In 1980, one of Buddy’s biggest adventures began. He flew to Australia to buy carrier airplanes. While he was there, he looked up an old rodeo friend, Carey Crutcher. Crutcher convinced him to buy a ranch (called a station in Australia) and Buddy was in the cattle business Down Under. The Blina Station was 640,000 acres with approximately 12,000 head of cattle. It was 100 miles from the closest town, Derby, and Buddy stayed six months of the year, while his son, Dan worked at the ranch year round.

While he was in Australia, he attended

he was in flight, he asked the attendant to loosen it, cutting off over half of it to relieve the pressure. “He’s had some wild wrecks,” his wife Geneva said.

Buddy’s business ventures didn’t end in Australia. He, along with partners, briefly owned a gold mine in Costa Rica and a ranch in Brazil.

He didn’t ever touch alcohol, but he loved his Coca-Cola. He kept a cooler of it in the back of his pickup, and often drank 42 oz. a day.

He was an excellent horseman, Howard said, and his daughter Amy was too. “She was a good hand.” He knew good horseflesh, his wife Geneva said. “He has a super, super eye for a good horse,” although he hasn’t ridden for three years.

Buddy and his first wife, Joyce Moyer, had three children: Mel, Dan and Amy. He met his second wife, Geneva, in 2000, and together they have five children, nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Amy and her husband Kyle Best ranch near Douglas, Ariz. Dan and his wife Drucy ranch at Higgins, Texas, and Mel lives at Amarillo. Geneva has two sons: Ty and his wife Kimberly Harris and Krece Harris, all of Decatur, Texas.

At age 83, Buddy has Myasthenia gravis, a neuromuscular disease that weakens the skeletal muscles, causing difficulty in swallowing, walking and talking, and double vision. He got bucked off a horse three years ago, and since then, his health has declined.

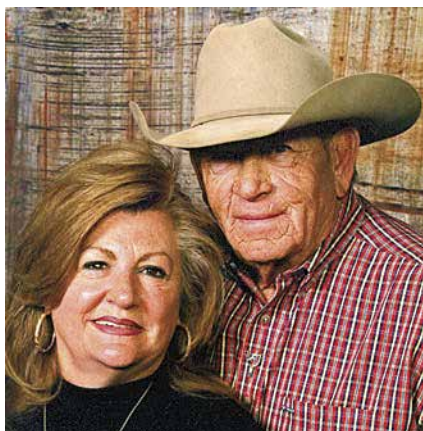

But Buddy has always met life’s challenges with a smile, ready to tackle them. “He lives life to the fullest extent,” Geneva said. “He’s been very blessed, and he’s always thought he was bulletproof.” He doesn’t worry about things. “He’s led a very carefree life. I worry and get grayer and grayer, and he says, why worry about it? Things will work out if they’re supposed to.”

Howard Haythorn loves his old friend. “He’s a giant of a man, and not only in stature but in personality. He’s larger than life but he’s soft-spoken. He’s a lot of fun to be around.”

Buddy is a 2010 inductee into the Texas Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame and a 2014 Texas Cowboy Hall of Fame member.

He’s had a life that he would never have guessed, said his wife Geneva. “I don’t think he could have even dreamt up what would happen. He’s always been the kind, when he saw an opportunity that he was going to rise to the challenge.”

“I’ve been blessed,” Buddy said. Life “has been good to me.” 🐾 and competed in rodeos, introducing team roping to the Australians, supplying timed event cattle for them, and winning an all-around saddle at his last rodeo in the country.

He loved working at the station. The cattle were wild, some of them never having seen humans, and they would catch the bulls by roping them, tying them to the massive trees in the outback, and winching the animal into trailers. Then they were hauled back and put with the herd in the corral. One of Buddy’s worst injuries came when roping a bull. The bulls had been mustered and hauled into the corral. When Buddy roped one, it took off over a feed trough, catching the rope around his leg and breaking it. The bone was sticking through the skin, when Dan, his son, put him in the back of the pickup and drove him to Derby. There, doctors wrapped it, readying it for a flight to Perth for surgery. Buddy insisted that it was wrapped too tightly, but the doctor didn’t listen. When

“what’s going on?” and Tom’s reply was, “girls, if we’d have known you were coming, we’d have opened the door for you.”

After his football career, Buddy had several businesses. In 1971, he built a 25,000 head cattle feed lot east of Pampa, selling it seventeen years later. He and two other men built a 10,000 head hog operation outside Lefors, Texas, selling their hogs to Jimmy Dean’s processing

2018 NLBFR All-Around Champions

stories by Lily Weinacht

Jacey Thompson from Yoder, Wyoming, concluded her final season in the NLBRA on a high note, winning the 2018 NLBRA Senior Girl World All-Around and Goat Tying Champion titles, along with the finals all-around and reserve champion in the breakaway roping. "Since I was a freshman in college, I didn't go to very many Little Britches rodeos, and I just took all my young horses, so I was very low in points," 19-year-old Jacey explains. "When I went to Nationals, I knew if I wanted to win the world I would really have to dominate that weekend, and I did that. It really did take a lot of planning, between getting to rodeos, practicing, and staying on top of my education."

Jacey competed in all of the senior girls events at the NLBFR, team roping and ribbon roping with Teegan Leno from Sheridan, Wyoming, and she ventured into Oklahoma City for shopping and a trip to Frontier Park in between performances and jackpots. "I was up in every single performance and in two of those I was up in two events, but I pretty much do everything on my own now," explains Jacey. "My mom and dad, Shelly and Thorpe Thompson, help me more than I can ever thank them for. Dad roped a lot until us kids came along, and now he lets us live our dream. I am one of eight kids, so Little Britches is an association that all my siblings can compete in together—it's nice to go somewhere and be together," she adds.

Driving out to the NLBFR required two trailers for the Thompson's 11 horses. Jacey drove their smaller trailer while her mom drove the semi, and each of the horses that went to the finals has been trained by Jacey in some way. She primarily trains horses for her family, but also takes in a few outside horses. Bella, Ruby, and Dunny are Jacey's main horses, and her good barrel horse, Fancy, should be recovered from a broken splint bone in time to run at college rodeos this season.

"Going to all these big rodeos really helps you handle pressure, and when things aren't going well, to take a deep breath and go on. Little Britches Nationals has helped me in a lot of ways," says Jacey who is a sophomore at Torrington College. She is studying Ag. business, but plans to go into horse chiropractic and equine massage therapy. "My goal this year is to win the all-around in the Central Rocky Mountain Region, and go to the CNFR in goats and breakaway for sure. I didn't do very good at the CNFR this year and I want to go back and show them what I can do. And I would really like to go pro rodeo someday. I'd like to thank my family and friends, Bloomer Trailer, Rock and Roll Cowgirl, and Frontier Rodeo Company for their support." 🐾

Senior Boy World All-Around Champion Allen Morse

“God blessed me that week,” says Allen Morse, who left his third and final NLBFR as the 2018 NLBRA Senior Boy World All-Around Champion. The 19-year-old from Dawson Springs, Kentucky, joined the association in 2016 after seeing Little Britches on RFD-TV and learning the finals were just a few states over in Oklahoma. He won Rookie of the Year that season and entered the NLBFR this July sitting eighth in the world all-around standings. “After I threw my steer in the short round, they said I had the finals (all-around) locked up, and after the ribbon roping was when I locked up the world.” Allen qualified in all four of his events - tie-down roping, steer wrestling, team roping, and ribbon roping, which he and ribbon runner Fisher Trowbridge from Dyersburg, Tennessee, won the world in. They met while roping at Joe Beaver’s house and started competing together halfway through the season.

“With Little Britches, I like that you can rodeo all over the world and your points can go anywhere. It’s a lot different from high school where you have to stay in the same area every weekend,” says Allen. “In a way, it sets you up for the pros more because you travel more. I have friends from Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Illinois, Alabama, and I’ve been rodeoing with them all year long. I enjoy rodeo and just being around new people you meet every place you go. It’s really all I’ve ever known. My parents, Brad and Melanie Morse, haul with me most of the time, or the Daughertys, who live 30 minutes from me. We went to some college rodeos together last year.”

Allen rodeoed on the Northwest Mississippi Community College team last year, and he’s currently studying business management at Hopkinsville Community College. His goal is to start his own business, or work for a company like Cactus Saddlery or Heel-O-Matic. The rest of his time goes to riding horses and practicing. Yellow, the 15-year-old gelding Allen purchased through Joe Beaver just two weeks before the NLBFR, helped him win the world title, along with his 14-year-old mare, Honey, whom he rode in the ribbon roping and tie-down roping.

“I have team roping, calf roping, and bulldogging steers, and I practice three to four hours a day in the afternoon. Joe Beaver has helped me a lot—he helped me find my steer wrestling horse. My dad has helped me a whole lot, and in team roping, I watch a bunch of videos and figure it out, like Caleb Driggers team roping or videos of Joe Beaver or Cody Ohl.

“Right now, I’m waiting to see if I get invited to the Junior Ironman and preparing for that if I’m invited, and I’ll hopefully enter the IPRA after that. My next goal is winning the Junior Ironman, and I’d like to make the college (CNFR) finals the 2019/2020 season.”

Junior Girl World All-Around Champion Haiden Thompson

Yoder, Wyoming, was represented by five of the eight members of the Thompson family at the NLBFR this year, including 14-year-old Haiden Thompson. Haiden, who competes in all of the junior girl events, was crowned Junior Girl World All-Around Champion for the second consecutive year, along with winning the world in trail course. She also finished 6th in the world in breakaway roping and 4th in the world in goat tying, both of which are favorite events. “I wasn’t really sure I was going to win the all-around—I thought I was third because two other girls had a pretty good weekend,” says Haiden. “When they announced it I was pretty surprised.”

Also a multiple-time NLBRA world champion in events ranging from goat tying to barrel racing over the last seven years, Haiden says her world all-around saddles are her favorites. “They’re Scott Thomas saddles, and between Scott Thomas and Tod Slone, those are my favorites. It takes a lot of work when we’re up at Nationals and competing in every performance. I mainly just try to focus on one event at a time, and

I get lots of help from my older sister Jacey and my mom and dad, Shelly and Thorpe Thompson. I couldn’t do it without them.”

Also part of the NLBFR team were Haiden’s team roping partner, Landry Haugen, from Sturgis, South Dakota, and her ribbon roping partner and younger sister, Hadley. Their older sister Jacey also competed at the finals and won Senior Girl World All-Around Champion, and their younger brothers Tiegen and Turek competed as well. The family and their 11 horses and 2 horse trailers was able to camp in a friend’s backyard at the Lazy E facility for the week, and Haiden competed in all of the goat tying jackpots and one of the breakaway jackpots.

Her horses, Frosty, Ruby, Scooby, and Daquari, all traveled to Oklahoma with her, and Haiden ties goats and ropes the dummy every day at home, along with exercising horses. “I look up to my older sister Jacey because she works harder than anyone, and I want to be like her when I grow up,” says Haiden. “I also want to thank my sponsors, Rock and Roll Cowgirl, and Frontier Rodeo Company.”

Following in her older sister’s boot prints, Haiden, who is homeschooled, starts high school rodeo this fall and moves into the senior girls division of the NLBRA, while she spent the summer competing at fairs and amateur rodeos. She qualified for the NJHFR for the third time this summer as well and finished in the top 20 in pole bending. “I want to qualify for the high school national finals and hopefully bring home some world titles there, and the same for Little Britches,” says Haiden. Her advice to other rodeo athletes? “Work hard, practice hard, and if you have a dream, follow it until it’s accomplished.”

Junior Boy World All-Around Champion Connor Griffith

Connor Griffith from Skullbone, Tennessee, qualified for the 2018 NLBFR in all eight of the junior boys events and advanced to the short round in six of them. The 14-year-old finished his rookie season as the NLBRA Junior Boy World All-Around Champion, while he won the all-around and five of his events in the Western Kentucky Little Britches Association. “They just started that franchise, and we thought it would be cool to go to their rodeos,” says Connor. “We’d never been to Little Britches and people said Nationals was really neat. It was so much fun!”

With eight events, Connor was up in every performance and navigated his schedule with the help of the arena directors; his mom, Christina Griffith; and several friends. “I had to take my time and not be rushed and stay focused. Everything worked out. It’s just cool going to Nationals and getting to meet a lot of new people. It’s a good feeling when you work hard and those hot, sweaty days pay off and you win a title. ‘Try your hardest and don’t give up,’ is what I always try to think of.”

Connor tried his hardest in every event, from ribbon roping with Hudson Bolton and heeling for Will Jones, to his favorite events of bareback riding and tie-down roping. “In bareback, you get pumped up, and you have to be as strong as you can and spur hard, and it takes technique. I really love roping, and it’s a very adrenaline-running fast event. I go to a guy, Zach Hall, who helps me with my horse and my roping, and another guy that helps me with my bareback and roping is Dwayne Dowdy. They’re some of my biggest supporters.”

NLBRA Little Wrangler Pole Bending & All-Around World Champion Gage Hudson

Gage Hudson from Eutaw, Alabama, experienced his first NLBFR in July and the excitement of winning not one but two world titles. The 8-year-old competed in all four of his Little Wrangler events and was named the 2018 NLBRA Little Wrangler Pole Bending and All-Around World Champion. “The all-around was a really big surprise for us, and the finals all-around was another huge surprise,” says Angela Hudson, Gage’s mom. Gage had no idea he’d won the second world title until he was awarded his saddle, made possible thanks to the solid flag runs he put down every round. He had just switched flag horses five rodeos before the finals and was still adjusting with his horse, but they clicked inside the Lazy E Arena.

“I like rodeo because it’s very fun, and I like the scholarship money and the prizes,” says Gage, who started rodeoing in the NLBRA in 2015 when the Alabama Little Britches Rodeo Association was formed. “I look up to my mom—she helps me focus and tells me some things that I need to know to make my runs better.” He qualified for the NLBFR last year as well, but his family decided he would be better prepared for the competition after another year. Before they left for Guthrie, Oklahoma, the Hudsons were in Fort Worth, Texas, at the APHA World Show, where Gage won his barrel racing, pole bending, and stake racing classes.

After Fort Worth, Gage and his horses, Sam Cardinale “Sam” and A Sharper Cardinale “Sharpie,” had a week between finals to rest up. Sam, 12, is Gage’s goat tying and flag racing horse, and Sharpie, 11, is his mount in the pole bending and barrel racing. “They are brother and sister, and my mom raised them and trained them,” Gage explains. “They always help me do good. I give them treats when they do good, and breaks.” He practices several times a week with his parents, Billy and Angela Hudson, and also works with his ponies, whom he competes with in speed events and shows in halter classes. “I’ll start 4-H next year, and I do horse shows and the NBHA. I train ponies for myself and I hope they can help other people when I sell them.”

His equine support comes primarily from two horses, Ima and Bay. “I’ve had Ima for six months and I’m still getting the feel for her, but she’s one of the main reasons that I’m able to rope because she puts me in my spot. Bay can do anything. When I got him, he was just a calf roping and team roping horse, and I just started doing other things on him and he got the rhythm.” Connor also owns 40 head of bucking horses for his business, Skullbone Buckers. They range from full-size broncs he takes to IPRA rodeos to ponies for miniature bronc ridings, and he puts on his rodeos as well.

Connor’s skills have also taken him to the 2017 Junior NFR, where he competed in the bareback and saddle bronc riding, and the NJHFR the past three years. This season he finished 6th in the world in bareback riding and 11th in the world in goat tying, while he just completed his term as the 2017/2018 NHSRA Junior High Division Vice President. He plans to run for another student officer position in high school, and is excited to start high school rodeoing this fall, along with entering the senior boy division of Little Britches. “When I get out of high school, my goal is to make it to the NFR, and after I retire, I want to be a stock contractor and a rodeo announcer.”

Gage Hudson

In his free time, Gage, who is home-schooled, also enjoys riding his bike and helping his parents on their farm. They run a training barn and a rodeo company as well. Swapping out his NLBRA buckles so he can wear them all over time, Gage plans to continue rodeoing and adding to his collection. “I want to get better in goats,” he finishes, “and make the short-go at Nationals next year.”

2019 NLBRA Junior Ironman Qualifiers

The 2018 rodeo season was as hot as the National Finals this July as senior boys from coast to coast steer wrestled, roped and tied down to earn a spot in the top 10 for consideration to the 2019 event. After the National Little Britches Finals ended, the Junior Ironman committee had the tough task of reviewing the impressive showing of All Around skill. With the contestant names hidden, the team reviewed the strengths and weaknesses of the top 20 in the NLBRA standings not only for the year but also their performance during the NLBFR. Narrowing the field to 10 and names revealed, consideration was also taken into the size of the rodeos, and number of contestants versus the placings. Ultimately, recommending to the board of directors 5 athletes that would join the 5 selected by the Lazy E. One of the goals of this team was to dig deep and send the strongest group to best serve the mission of this elite competition. "Our philosophy behind the Jr. Ironman is to connect the sport's top high school competitors with the Pro champions of today. They will know there is true potential to be competitive in more than one event," says Dan Wall, General Manager at the Lazy E. The final criteria they narrowed it up to what they felt like were the most well rounded group of young men, that had the best chance to accumulate points in all

THE NUNEZ FAMILY

article by Michele Toberer

The Nunez family has every intention of making a trip to the Josey Ranch an annual affair, as they have for the past three years. Jenny and Heath are happy to make the four-hour drive from their home in Grand Lake, Louisiana, so their daughters Ava, 11, and Emma, 8, can participate. “Before we left the last clinic, we already signed up and paid for the roping clinic next year.” Ava attended her first barrel clinic at the Josey Ranch, when she was 8, but even as one of the youngest riders in the clinic she soaked in all the knowledge surrounding her. Jenny described, “The instructors are amazing and have a great way of communicating with each of the kids in their own way with hands-on, and one-on-one instruction.” Both sisters took part in the clinics the following year; while Ava was in the roping clinic, 6-year-old Emma, was in the barrel racing clinic. Last year, both girls attended the roping clinic. “It’s such a family-oriented place and a wonderful clinic to take kids or anyone to.”

Ava enjoys all the wonderful people at the clinics, and the speeches Martha shares made quite an impression on her, “I want to be like Martha Josey one day.” Ava has already taken much of what she’s learned from Martha and the Josey Ranch instructors and turned it into success in the arena. She recently made a clean sweep at the National Finals Little Britches Rodeo in barrel racing. Ava was 1st in the barrel racing average, 1st in the short-go with a 14.1 second run, and took home the Junior Division 2018 World Champion NLBRA Barrel Racer title. Ava also won the short-go in pole bending, finishing in 6th place overall in the world. It was Ava’s third year competing at the National Little Britches Finals Rodeo, and Jenny said she saw so much growth in her daughter. “Last year she was in position to win a world title, but her nerves got to her. This year she was an entirely different kid, she had faith and remained focused in a very high-pressure competition.” Ava credits the Josey Ranch for much of her success, “At Josey Ranch I learned so much, they teach you about the basics and the mental part of competing.” This was Emma’s 2nd year at the finals, and she placed 7th in the 2nd round of the Wrangler division pole bending on her favorite horse, a 16-year old sorrel gelding she calls Cowboy Boots.

Jenny, once an elementary teacher for 15 years, stopped teaching 3 years ago to focus on being a rodeo and school mom.

She also helps Heath in the office of his family-owned telecommunications business. With both girls competing in the NLBRA in multiple events, traveling to rodeos is quite a family commitment. A typical rodeo requires the family to travel with two trucks and trailers to bring the family and herd of 6 horses they need to compete on. Jenny pulls a 3-horse bumper pull trailer, while Heath hauls their 4-horse living quarter trailer, and they arrive at the rodeos where Ava competes in breakaway roping, barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying, trail course and ribbon roping; and Emma competes in pole bending, barrel racing, goat tying and flag race. “It’s very hard and a lot of work, but definitely worth it for the girls to be able to compete in all those events.” The horse that Ava has ridden the past two years for barrel racing, and that carried her to a world champion title, is a 17-year-old sorrel gelding with a flaxen mane and tail, named Spanky. He once belonged to Heath’s younger sister, Rebecca Aucoin, who rode him while she competed in high school and amateur rodeos. Once Ava’s Aunt Becca stopped competing a few years ago, Spanky enjoyed time in the pasture while Ava was growing and preparing as a rider to handle the strong and talented horse. “My Aunt Becca helped me with riding him, she told me that I had to pick-up on him and couldn’t be lazy or he’d go knock all three barrels.” Ava was happy to reward Spanky after his good runs at the finals, “Spanky is the sweetest horse and he loves people food, his favorite is marshmallows, so after his good runs I give him two marshmallows.”

At home, the girls work hard to prepare for such big competitions. They attend St. Margaret’s Catholic School in Lake Charles, where Ava will be a 6th grader, and Emma a 3rd grader in the fall. Last year, Ava was chosen as Student of the Year, after an intensive interview and judging process. Every night after school, the girls practice at their arena, and twice each week they are grateful to practice under the direction of trainer, Bobby Labby.

The Nunez family makes sure that before school or rodeo, God is first in their lives. Jenny explained, “If we can teach our kids anything, it’s faith first. Before we step out of the camper at rodeos, we pray as a family and put it all in God’s hands, because He is the one in control. No matter how the runs go, we are so thankful and blessed, and always grateful for all that we have.”

Meet the Member Graysun Tice

story by Lily Weinacht

Graysun Tice from Hamburg, Arkansas, secured her first qualification to the Jr. NFR after winning the senior division at the KK Run for Vegas qualifier in Texarkana, Arkansas. Held in early June, the qualifier was hosted by the Running WJ Barrel Race, and Graysun and her mare Kan Perk Three "BB" ran a 14.673 to win it. Graysun competed in the KK Run for Vegas qualifier in Marshall, Texas, two months earlier and finished in fourth place, but felt extra confident going into the Texarkana race. "Our trainer, James Barnes, was there, and he keeps me really calm," says Graysun. "I really didn't know how fast I'd ran because the third barrel kind of scared me, but on the way out, I heard my mom and my friend's mom screaming, so I had a pretty good idea. BB almost blew off at the third barrel, and if I hadn't held her up, I don't think we would've won it."

Graysun entered the horse world through western pleasure, which her mom competed in, but the family sold all their western pleasure horses and switched to barrel racing when Graysun and her older sister, Janna, discovered their need for speed. "I love the adrenaline rush, and I like seeing all the hard work pay off," Graysun explains. "We're slowly getting into rodeo. I'm interested in the IPRA, and when I get older, I want to try for the NFR. Barrel racing is just something that I love to do and I have a passion for."

Each time Graysun accomplishes a goal, she sets a new one. Since qualifying for the Jr. NFR, her latest goal is to win the All American Youth Barrel Race's Mega Barrel Race held in August in Jackson, Mississippi, and to qualify for The American. "I like the Jackson, Mississippi, arena the most. I usually go there for the All American Youth Barrel Race, which I would've run the fastest time at this past month, but I knocked over the second barrel," says Graysun. "My mom motivates me a lot and reminds me of the gift that I have, and that I have every reason to make it as far as I do."

In between barrel races, Graysun often rides four days a week, exercising her horses in the pasture and going to work with her trainer. Her 8-year-old mare, BB, ran barrels with Janna before Graysun started riding her. "She's calm—sometimes it's annoying how calm she is, and she's very level-headed and loves her job. We bought her thinking she would be a normal 2D horse for around the house and jackpots, and she just kept getting faster and faster. I also have a 4-year-old and a 5-year-old I'm working with. I want to get my 4-year-old, Dora, to where she's running good. James is helping me with them." The Tice family also has several cats and dogs, along with a donkey that used to keep one of their horses company while they were traveling.

Graysun often travels to barrel races with her parents, John and Teresa Tice, and her sister, who is a freshman on the University of Arkansas at Monticello rodeo team. "I usually listen to music the whole way when we're driving. I like rap—it gets me energized for competing. I also watch videos on trainingbarrelhorses.com, and my dad videos my runs for me," says Graysun, who will be an eighth-grader at Trinity Christian School this fall. "We're hoping to try the IPRA out this year and really dive into it next year, and when I turn 18, I want to win rookie of the year and make it to the NFR." 📺

EXPERIENCING CHANGE

article by C.J. Aragon

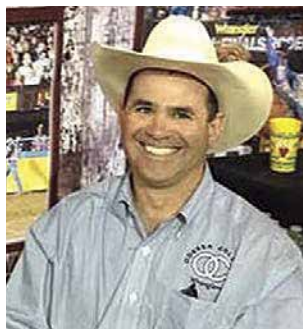

This is the time of year when many students are experiencing some of the biggest changes of their lives. Going off to college for the first time. Living away from home for the first time. Relocating to a different home town. Starting a new job. The list could go on and on. We all have many changes we will experience during our life.

I have watched change be a good thing for some and a terrible thing for others. Most of the time the change itself was not the most difficult part to get through. The most difficult part about change is the uncertainty that we will all face. Everyone reacts differently to uncertainty...

As you go through life, the biggest struggle that change presents to anyone is it simply interferes with your existing comfort level. I really do believe that it is that simple. We become complacent in our daily routine and therefore change is an inconvenience.

We choose to make change complicated by our reaction to change. If we approach changes with a positive mindset, you will generally have a positive experience. When you approach change with a negative attitude it is almost impossible to have a positive result. Our reactions, either positive or negative, will more than likely determine the outcome.

We are all going to face our share of changes in our lifetime. Many changes will be by our choice, many others will not be by our choice. I understand that all of our experiences with changes will not be the same, but we can all control one thing—our attitude.

The most successful people I know in business and in sports have all been through many changes. Many have been on rock bottom and on top of the proverbial mountain on their journey. Through all of the changes and difficulties that life has thrown at them they approach everything with a positive attitude.

[The most successful people I know in business and in sports have all been through many changes.]

The positive attitude during times of difficulty and change is what makes them successful. 🐾

Meet the Member Madison Richmann

story by Lily Weinacht

“It’s fun to see all your friends at the rodeo and to compete with them, and I just love the rodeos in general,” says Madison Richmann. The 13-year-old CJHSRA member from Keenesburg, Colorado, made her debut at the NJHFR this summer in pole bending and finished 11th in the nation in the breakaway roping. “It was a great experience. In the pole bending, I had some room for improvement, but there’s always next year. I learned that all of the rodeo kids all across the country all care for each other and are friends at the end of the day. I knew everyone there from Colorado, and we met some people from Hawaii.” Madison also won the contestant talent show at the NJHFR, singing One Republic’s song “Counting Stars” while playing her guitar. She returned home with a $250 scholarship, Cinch certificate, and the determination to qualify again next season.

Rodeo started with Madison’s parents, Justin and Shawnda Richmann, who still compete, while Madison and her 9-year-old brother, Rylan, both jumped into the family tradition as soon as they could ride a horse. The whole family competes in the Circle A Family Rodeos in Keenesburg, and Madison and her mom enter True West Productions barrel races. Along with pole bending and breakaway roping, Madison competes in goat tying and barrel racing at junior high rodeos, and she’s adding ribbon roping and team roping to her résumé this season. “Barrel racing is my favorite because of the horse I ride. Our good friend Wendy Hoefer-Chambers is letting me ride her horse Celie. She’s just fun to be around—I’ve been riding her about a year and a half. In the pole bending, I ride a white pony named Sparkle—she was also trained by Wendy—and in breakaway I ride my brother’s horse Jessie.”

Whenever Madison and her horses compete, she does so in style, wearing Cruel Girl and Cinch jeans and shirts since she started modeling for the company several years ago. Rylan also models for Cinch, and the brother and sister enjoy going on photo shoots, while Madison was even a fitting model for one of Cruel Girl’s jeans. Madison also wears her Cruel Girl jeans while showing her Suffolk/Hampshire sheep at the Southeast Weld County Fair every summer. “I like being at the fair with everybody, and I’m competitive, so all the competitions are really fun. I’ve won showmanship twice and my lambs were second in my class last year,” she explains. “We also have dogs, cats, cows, and a goat. Our whole family goes out and does chores every morning and evening, and it’s fun to go out and work with the lambs.”

Madison also does performing arts in 4-H playing guitar and singing, and enjoys writing her own songs. “I had a good barrel horse get hurt and had to put her down, and I wrote a song about that called ‘Forever Free,’ and it won at 4-H. I’d like to learn as many instruments as I can—I want to be a singer and songwriter. I’ve liked Taylor Swift ever since I was really little, and George Strait.” She takes guitar lessons throughout the year, and Madison also likes to play basketball at Cardinal Community Academy in Keenesburg, where she’s starting eighth grade this fall.

“I want to try to make it to Nationals again this coming year, and I want to try to make it in more than two events,” Madison finishes. “I’m starting ribbon roping and team roping, so I want to keep getting better at that.”

Meet the Member Keenan Hayes

story by Lily Weinacht

Keenan Hayes of Hayden, Colorado, is the 2018 NHSRA Rookie All Around Champion, Reserve All Around Champion, and Reserve World Champion Bareback Rider. A rookie in the CSHSRA this last season, he spurred his way to second place on the leader board after tying for 1st in the first round and placing 2nd in the second round, while he was 4th in the short round at Nationals. The 15-year-old also qualified in the saddle bronc riding and finished fifth in the average in bull riding. "I really like the atmosphere at Nationals, and all the people that are there and how big of a rodeo it is," says Keenan, who was the NJHFR World Bareback Steer Riding Champion in 2016. A third-generation bareback rider, Keenan also competed in chute dogging in junior high, but decided to focus on the rough-stock side of the arena in high school. "I like bareback riding the most, and bull riding is pretty close. Saddle bronc is a love hate relationship," Keenan jokes. "I just like getting in timing with broncs and drawing a big horse. There so much more going on than in bull riding, so it keeps you busy the whole time. If you're on a good horse, you can focus on perfecting what you're doing, and you just feel so good."

Along with the NHSFR, Keenan has drawn horses at the Junior NFR every year since it started in 2016, when he won reserve champion in the saddle bronc riding. Last year, he won the all-around. This is also Keenan's second season competing in the CPRA, where he's sitting in the top three in bareback riding and bull riding, and second in the all-around standings. "Right now, what's really motivating is, in the CPRA, being the youngest bareback rider or bull rider, and being high up in the standings—trying to beat some of the older guys."

Keenan met one of the men who inspire him, Casey Coletti, at a rodeo school in Craig, Colorado, several years ago, and he also looks up to Jake Booco, who has helped him in bull riding, and Steven Peebles. "I met Steven this summer at a weekly rodeo in Snowmass, and he watched me ride and came over and talked with me and he's been helping me out ever since. He tells me what I need to work on, and if I need any equipment, he'll probably have it. I have my own practice horses and bulls, and I can find somebody with a practice pen I can haul over to." He's also supported by his parents, Donnie and Jackie Hayes, and his sister Kaitlynn, who is a freshman on the Garden City Community College rodeo team.

Keenan operated a stock contracting business, Rocky Mountain Mini Broncs, for several years, putting on mini bronc ridings at local rodeos and fairs. Since his rodeo career has picked up in high school, however, Keenan decided to sell out, but still plans on becoming a stock contractor when he retires from rodeo. He also enjoys playing running back and linebacker for the Hayden Tigers, and is starting his sophomore year at Hayden High School. "I'm taking a college welding class, so I'll work on TIG welding, and then doing certifications the second semester. I just bought a Capri Camper, so I need to put a luggage rack on the hitch, and when I'm home, I'm working on restoring an old semi truck."

"For short-term goals, I'm really going to focus on making it to the Junior NFR. I'm going to try to win that this year, and next year I'm going to work at winning the IFYR and Nationals." 📺

Donny Proffit

story by Lily Weinacht

Donny Proffit is one of the three bareback riders in the WHSRA, and the 17-year-old from Diamondville, Wyoming, finished 8th in the nation after competing in his first NHSFR. “I probably could have gone at my first two horses a little more, but on my last one in the short round I thought I did the best I could,” says Donny, who also competes in bull riding. “It’s easier for me to get bareback horses rode, and what’s challenging is making that good ride and getting those spur licks in. It’s super cool to feel those spurs start to roll. And there’s nothing better than riding a bull. The adrenaline and knowing you just made a good ride is awesome.”

[“I placed 8th this year at Nationals and I’d like to go ahead and win it next year. I want to qualify in bull riding for Nationals too, and eventually I want to make a living at rodeo.”]

Donny, who entered the rodeo world through mutton busting when he was 2, has been riding bulls the longest. His dad, Clint Proffit, rode bareback horses, and inspired Donny to do the same. “I don’t know if I would have done it if he hadn’t wanted me to,” says Donny.

“When I was younger, he’d take me to rodeos and pay for my entry fees, and my mom, Veronica Proffit, helps me pay for fees. I usually travel with friends, and my parents were out for my performances at Nationals, and so was the rest of my family. It was pretty cool.”

Several of Donny’s rodeo buddies—Dylan Grant, Wyatt Phelps, and Rigen Myers—qualified for the NHSFR as well. They enjoyed spending extra time together and going to dances, while Donny went home on his day off to help his dad on their ranch. “Everyone just tries to do the best that they can, and at the end of the day, you’re traveling partners. You hope they do good, and you pull their rigging or rope, or spot them, and try to give them the help that they need. We usually help each other critique on the way home, and I’ll video for them. It’s always been a dream of mine to rodeo professionally and make a living at it, so that’s just part of it—you have to put in the sacrifice and hard work.”

During the week, Donny rides colts, both for his family and several clients, and practices on the bucking barrel or spur board. He goes up to Jackson to ride Buskin Wilson’s bulls occasionally, and Donny is also building his skills as a farrier, working alongside his dad. “I started helping him with finishing them, and I just started shoeing last year. There’s always going to be a need for a shoer.” Donny and his family also enjoy riding and checking cows. He has a younger brother and sister, Sorrel and Roanie Proffit, and two older brothers, Jet Proffit and Dustin Kruckenburg. They all like to ride, and Donny’s main horse, Bay Boy, is a 10-year-old gelding he trained from the ground up in the last year. “He’s turned out to be a pretty good horse, and he covers a lot of country. He’s one of the first horses I followed all the way up. We mostly do pleasure riding, and I’ll jump in my English saddle and ride around for balance.”

A senior at Kemmerer High School, Donny is a three-time state champion in wrestling, and went undefeated last year. He also plays running back and linebacker on his school’s football team, and plans to rodeo in college. “My rodeo goal is getting consistent,” he finishes. “I placed 8th this year at Nationals and I’d like to go ahead and win it next year. I want to qualify in bull riding for Nationals too, and eventually I want to make a living at rodeo.” 📺

Meet the Member Cash Wilson

story by Lily Weinacht

Cash Wilson's aim was to finish in the top three in saddle bronc riding at the NHSFR. It's still sinking in for the 17-year-old from Wall, South Dakota, that he's the 2018 NHSRA Saddle Bronc Riding Champion. "The season couldn't have gone any better. We had four regional rodeos on two weekends and I won all four of them, and I won every round at state finals," says Cash, who took home his second consecutive state title. "All three rounds at Nationals I did pretty well too, so I can't complain at all. I drew pretty good horses." Last year, Cash finished 5th in the nation in saddle bronc riding, and he tapped even deeper into his skills this season, scoring an 81 with his short-go ride at Nationals. "You're only as good as your last ride. You can get better on every horse. I want to make it to the NFR someday, so that's what I strive for and keep working for."

Prior to the NHSFR, Cash finished 6th in the saddle bronc average at the IFYR and 3rd in the average at the NLBRA finals, even though he left before the short-go for Wyoming. The emotions of those two weeks were even deeper for Cash. He rode for his best friend Pedro James Dennis, who passed away in late June. "We went to his funeral and the next day we went to Shawnee and the Little Britches finals. One of my other friends was using his bronc rein, and I wore a patch on my shirt that said PJD. It was really emotional. There were a lot of bad things going on right before Nationals, and to have this title and do it for his family—there were definitely a lot of special people watching out for me that week."

Mike Heathershaw, Cash's uncle, is another influential figure in his roughstock career, helping Cash start riding, and traveling with him and Cash's mom, Ronda Wilson, to rodeos. "He's letting me experience it on my own now at amateur rodeos and learn from other people—you take a little bit from everyone you see," explains Cash. "He has two younger boys, Matthew and Malcolm, so he likes helping us and teaching us to ride broncs. I look up to all those good bronc riders like Billy Etbauer, Robert Etbauer, Louie Brunson, and J.J. Elshere, who's helped me quite a bit. I've wanted to be a bronc rider since I was little."

Cash also competes in tie-down roping and team roping, heeling for Trista Reinert. The friends came close to the short-go at state finals, and plan to rope together for another season. Cash and his friend Dylan Schofield, an SDHSRA alumni, compete in SDRA rodeos together, along with Jacob Kammerer. He also enters 4-H rodeos, which Cash won in the saddle bronc riding at state finals last year, and the NHSRA World Champion saddle puts his saddle count up to five.

A senior at Wall High School, Cash returns to school in late August but is already in the middle of football practice with the Wall Eagles. He plays wide receiver and outside linebacker, and also enjoys track and basketball. "We won state in the medley relay, and I got 5th in the open 400. We broke three school records this year," says Cash. He also enjoys boating and going to watch rodeos, but his favorite seat in the house is on a bronc. "Next year, I'd like to do the same thing at Nationals and maybe get my permit. I want to go to some PRCA rodeos and try my luck at that, and I'm definitely going to college rodeo." 📱

Meet the Member Emma Warren

story by Ruth Nicolaus

Emma Warren loves to rodeo, and she loves to bake. The Thedford cowgirl is a member of the Nebraska Junior High School Rodeo Association, competing in the goat tying and breakaway roping. Of her two events, goat tying is the one she is best at.

But she's also good at making Black Forest Chocolate Cake from her great-grandma's recipe. It's so good she gets requests to make it for potlucks at church and other community gatherings, and she loves it as a layer cake with her mom's chocolate frosting. Emma's specialties are desserts, like brownies and white chocolate cookies with butterscotch chips, but she's also good at meals. Oftentimes, she'll cook the evening meal for the family, making pizza and runzas, both from scratch.

She rides two horses for her events. Belle, a red roan, is her goat tying horse, and Dale, a sorrel, is her breakaway horse. Belle, who is ten years old, is a good halter horse. "She can't turn real well, but as long as you keep her in a straight line, she's really good," Emma said. Emma shares Dale with her older sister; both girls ride her for the breakaway. Emma loves Dale because "she's a cool little horse," but Dale does not like to be tied up. She'll break the halter as she pulls back.

Emma just finished her eighth grade year. She is homeschooled, and she loves studying science and history, especially American history and World War II. Her great-grandfather was part of the U.S. military who stormed Normandy Beach for the largest amphibious invasion in history on June 6, 1944.

In addition to helping out in the kitchen, she loves to help around the ranch. Her dad has her pairing out cows and calves in the spring, moving bulls and cows in the summer, checking windmills, and even taking the 10 pm shift for checking heifers during calving season. She also loves to wrestle calves at brandings.

[Emma is the reserve champion in the goat tying after this year's state finals, and she represented Nebraska at the National Junior High School Finals Rodeo in June.]

The most fun Emma has had on a trip was when the family has visited Disney World. Her favorite part of Disney World was Kringla Bakeri Og Kafe, the Norwegian cuisine café at Epcot. She loved the desserts.

Emma's favorite meal her mom makes is chicken fried steak; her favorite beverage is iced tea, and her favorite snack is a Ghirardelli dark chocolate sea salt bar.

She hasn't quite decided what she'd like to do when she grows up. She loves building things and baking, so her path may follow those two interests.

The Warren family has three dogs: Daisy and Missy, both Great Pyrenees and a doxiepoo named Scout.

Emma is the reserve champion in the goat tying after this year's state finals, and she represented Nebraska at the National Junior High School Finals Rodeo in June.

She has an older sister, Raesha, who is seventeen, and a younger sister, Ella, who is nine. She is the daughter of Nat and Mindy Warren. 🐾

Meet the Member Bayli Bilby

story by Ruth Nicolaus

Bayli Bilby is the 2018 Nebraska High School Rodeo Association cutting champion.

The seventeen-year-old cowgirl had a good year. In the fall, she won either first or second place at nearly every rodeo she went to. The spring season started slower, and she put a lot of pressure on herself to do well. But as she relaxed and got back into the groove, her mojo returned and she started placing again.

Bayli, who lives northeast of Chadron, Neb., is homeschooled and will be a senior in high school this fall. She enjoys math class. Helping out on the family ranch and riding horses fills up her extra time.

She is her dad's right hand man, helping with nearly every job around their ranch: feeding, checking, watering and doctoring cattle, and putting out salt and mineral. This summer, she was in the hayfield, windrowing and raking hay and moving and stacking bales. She knows the value of a hard day's work, and is willing to do it, even "when there's a lot of work to do, it's not much fun." Spending so much time with her dad on the ranch has its benefits, though. "My dad and I have a really good relationship," she said.

For the cutting, Bayli rides a six-year-old sorrel mare named Reyn (pronounced "rain"). The mare, out of High Brow CD and a daughter of Dual Pep, has a personality that she has learned to handle. "We have an understanding," Bayli laughed. "She doesn't exactly love people and she's not a horse that loves to be loved on." Bayli is very affectionate with her horses, but not with Reyn. "She likes to do her job, she likes breakfast, and grain.

Bayli Bilby - Sandall Photography

I can't smother her with affection. You have to let her do her thing, feed her, water her, scratch her belly every once in a while, and you're golden in her book."

But Reyn's ability in the cutting arena makes Bayli's world go 'round. "She loves her job. She's taught me a lot and gotten me so far. She loves to work cows. You can see it when she cuts. She loves her job."

Bayli was introduced to cutting in Arizona while spending some time there with her dad, who goes there in the winter to rope. She loves every part of cutting. "I love the horses," she said. "I love how broke they are. I love the people in the industry. The combination of it all makes cutting what it is."

A former member of the National Cutting Horse Association, she plans on buying her membership again and get back into showing this fall.

Even though Reyn isn't affectionate, Bayli showers her with anything a horse might need. "My poor mare has ten pairs of boots and every polo wrap pattern on the market. Head stalls, bits, reins, pads, everything you can buy for a horse."

Horse items are her weakness. "I'll see something and say, 'Reyn needs that.' I can't walk through a trade show without buying something for my mare."

As for Bayli, the best meal her mom makes is spaghetti. Her favorite dessert is making cookie sandwiches with vanilla wafers and Nutella in the middle, and her favorite beverage, hands down, is pink lemonade. She loved the vacation her family took to California and the ocean a few years ago, but also loves going to Arizona and working with cutting trainers there.

After high school, she plans on entering the cutting world full time. She'd like to intern with a cutting trainer and someday train horses herself.

She credits her trainers, her friends, and especially her family for the support she's gotten throughout her rodeo career.

She is the daughter of Bert and Dawn Bilby; she has two older sisters, Roni, and Jamie, and a younger brother, Trace. She also has three nieces and two nephews, and loves being their aunt. 📺

JUNE E. HOLEMAN

June 11, 1943 - August 3, 2018

[Remembering Those We Lost]

June E. Holeman age 75 died August 3, 2018, at the Bryan LGH-East Hospital in Lincoln, Nebraska.

June E. Holeman was born on June 11, 1943, to Leland H. and Evelyn M. (Bristol) Leach.

June was raised on the ranch west of Arcadia and received her education at Spring Creek Rural School and Arcadia High School. She never lived more than a mile from the home place which she was raised on.

Her passion for horses started at an early age. When she was three she rode her horse to town to get an ice cream cone. Boy was her brother Laddie in trouble.

June married the love of her life, Donnie. To this union were born two daughters and a son. They logged many countless miles as a rodeo team, Don roping calves and June competing in barrel racing.

June was very proud of her children and grandchildren's accomplishments as they pursued their future lives.

She was a homemaker with a passion for cooking, gardening, and canning, especially dill pickles! June and Don enjoyed family gatherings and always had their cooler full of homemade goodies. When anyone came to the family home, they were always welcome, and June could whip up a meal quite quickly!

June won numerous NCRA, NSRA, and M-SRA championships during her rodeo reign from the 1960s to 2018. After her children graduated, she pursued the GRA, which later became the WPRA. She won several Prairie Circuit Championships, qualified for the NFR in 2005 on Sparky Impression, and qualified for the first RFD TV's "The American" rodeo on a home raised and trained super horse "Tallboy"! June also won many championships in the NBHA, the BBR, and the NE-4d associations, along with many other associations.

June was known for her presence in the local sale barns speculating on roping calves for the purpose of training many successful calf horses with her husband! In the early years, she was seen reading a book while her Daddy slept thru some of those sales!

During the last few years, June had been mentoring some of the next generation of rodeo stars! Her goals never stopped and just a few short weeks ago she was making plans to ride that new up and coming star at the Cheyenne Frontier Days next year!

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, August 7, 2018, at 10:30 AM at the Arcadia High School. Burial was in the Lee Park Cemetery near Arcadia. Memorials are suggested to the Arcadia Fire and Rescue. Govier Brothers Mortuary is in charge of the arrangements. Online condolences may be left at www.govierbrothers.com

Survivors include her Loving Supporting Husband, Donnell of Arcadia, her son Donnell (Lacy) Holeman of Carpenter, WY, her daughter Teresa (Steve) McCormick of Lewellen, NE, her son-in-law Gene (Chari) Mohr of Kimball, NE, four grandchildren; Abby L. Ford, Blake McCormick, Justin Mohr and Jaden Mohr, a sister-in-law Arlene Leach of Arcadia, and a brother-in-law Willy Dalby of North Carolina.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her daughter Tammy, a brother, and a sister. 🇺🇸

Meet the Contractor Hollenbeck Rodeo Company

story by Lindsay King

The dynasty of the Hollenbeck name in rodeo has been fifty years in the making. Hollenbeck Rodeo Company out of Winner, South Dakota, celebrates their 50th anniversary of operation in 2018. It began in 1968 as H&S Rodeo Company by Vincent Hollenbeck, his son Squeek and close family friend Roy Sell. The produced about 20 rodeos throughout the summer months. In 1990, Vince and Roy retired allowing Squeek and his wife Maureen to take over the company, spurring the name change. "Back when it was H&S, Vincent, Squeek and Roy just bought their stock: horses, bulls, steers and calves. The horses came from sale barns and friends who had spoiled saddle horses that wanted to buck," Maureen said.

Some of their first bulls started out as roping calves. The best cross they ever had was a Hereford cow with a brahma bull. It did not take the Hollenbeck's long to get into the "Born to Buck" breeding program and champions started hitting the ground. "We have sold several horses to Joe Simon of Dakota Rodeo and he has taken them into the PRCA. Two of those horses have gone to the NFR the last couple of years." One bronc straight off the Hollenbeck ranch is Bar Tender. "Cody DeMoss won the American on him this year, they also won Sheridan on him too.

He is an outstanding horse, cowboys have won just about every rodeo on him that he has been to lately." War Rock is another Hollenbeck original making a splash in the PRCA.

["It has always been a family affair and still is today. It extends beyond our immediate family though. There are nieces, nephews, cousins, all kinds who help us keep the company running."]

Several of the horses Squeek and Maureen are hauling now are replicates of the genetics War Rock and Bar Tender carry. "Those horses have won bareback and saddle bronc horse of the year in the M-SRA. Tokyo was Bareback Horse of the Year in the SDRA just last year and our ranch-raised bull, Stocking Stuffer, was the M-SRA Bull of the Year in 2016 and again in 2017." These winning genetics are all made possible by the hands of five generations of Hollenbeck rodeo enthusiasts.

In the early years, Squeek's brother Lonnie was the flanker. Vince was the chute boss while Squeek and Roy were the pickup men and it has since moved through nephews Brad Hollenbeck and Randy Steinke, then to Scott and cousin Craig Hollenbeck. Now the angels of the arena are Cody Hollenbeck and Kris Schenefeld. "It has always been a family affair and still is today. It extends beyond our immediate family though. There are nieces, nephews, cousins, all kinds who help us keep the company running."

On July 13, the Hollenbecks celebrated 50 years, not only of their company but also the rodeo that has been there since the very beginning. "The Tripp County 4-H Rodeo is the longest running 4-H rodeo in the state of South Dakota. They started when we did and we have been with them ever since, so we celebrated together." This was easily a highlight for Maureen and Squeek, but they also produced their favorite rodeo in Clearwater, Nebraska, for the 40th year. "Everything is special about Clearwater, they have an outstanding committee and their hospitality is like no other. They bring a huge crowd and have been named rodeo of the year multiple times."

The Hollenbeck's are on the rodeo committee for their hometown rodeo in Winner, but would definitely agree going out of town to produce a rodeo is much easier. "We love all of the rodeos we do though, or else we would not still be producing rodeos." Multiple awards for stock contractor of the year and pickup men of the year have been bestowed upon the Hollenbeck clan by the M-SRA. However, they also produce rodeos for the SDRA, NSRA, NRCA, the Minnesota Rodeo Association as well as high school and 4-H rodeo. 📺

McKenna Coronado

Champion All-Around Cowgirl & Champion Girls Cutter

Mckenna Coronado, a southern Utah cowgirl, qualified for the National High School Finals Rodeo in the cutting, pole bending, barrel racing, and breakaway roping. In the first round she finished third in the barrel racing, first in the cutting, and seventh in the pole bending. The second round finished her second in the cutting and sixth in the pole bending. Her overall performance had her sitting pretty in the girls all around going into the short go. In preparation for the finals, McKenna worked with her trainers to get both her and her horses in prime condition. Though her mom just wanted McKenna to have fun, she knew she wanted to walk away from nationals with a title. Last year she fell a little bit short of the all-around title, but this year she came prepared to win. McKenna thrives on pressure and a high level of competition, and after a good first round the pressure helped her keep pushing herself and her horses. She says she couldn't have asked for more from her horses and is grateful for them and all the people who helped her prepare and perform. When the finals came to a close, McKenna was the 2018 World Champion High School Rodeo Girls Cutter and World Champion High School Rodeo All-Around Cowgirl.

Looking back on the finals, she is still excited by her wins. Being able to hold a national title has always been a goal of hers and being able to share the moment with her friends and family was a dream come true. McKenna's parents, Mike and Becky, have been cutters for as long as she can remember. She has been cutter herself since she was only four years old, and started competing in other rodeo events about halfway through her seventh grade year. She now competes in the breakaway roping, pole bending, barrel racing, team roping, and girls cutting.

McKenna has three brothers, Dason, Kagen, and Kanden. They live in Kanarraville, Utah, a small town near Cedar City. They are close to the mountains, and like to spend time together hunting, boating, trail riding, and rodeoing. In the future, McKenna would like to become a veterinarian and have a family.

Rodeo has taught her never to give up and to push through the hard times. It has helped her break out of her shell and meet new people. Rodeoing against other Utah athletes has challenged her to always compete at the top of her game. She knows that after a bad run or rodeo, her fellow competitors will cheer her on and help her recover. McKenna knows that rodeo is about more than winning, and winning is about more than a title. 📺

Erryn Hodson

Champion Goat Tyer

Erryn Hodson, a twin from Hooper, Utah, qualified for the finals in the goat tying. Before nationals she worked hard, practicing every night and working on the fundamentals of goat tying. She was aiming for the short-go and knew she had to be on the top of her game. She is grateful for her twin sister Emma who has helped push her and mentally prepare her for the pressure of competition. She would also like to thank the other Utah goat tying competitors for pushing her to compete. She enjoyed the time she spent at nationals with her family and friends at the trade show and rodeo. She finished ninth in the first round, second in the second go, and fifth in the short go. When the scores were settled, she walked away the 2018 World Champion High School Rodeo Goat Tyer.

Looking back to the finals, Erryn feels grateful and blessed for her win. She knows how rare it is to come home with a national title, and has been humbled by her experience. She would advise rodeo athletes to never give up. With hard work and dedication, lows and hard times can become learning experiences. She would also encourage them to surround themselves with positive people and have a good attitude.

Their mom and dad, Karen and Brad, are the proud parents of five girls. Twenty-four-year-old Jessie, twenty-two-year-old Megan, the 17-year-old twins Emma and Erryn, and Kenna who is 7. Both parents rodeoed, as did the older sisters, so it was only natural for Erryn to join in the tradition. Erryn's favorite part of the sport, aside from actual competing, is being able to meet new people. Especially at nationals, contestants have the ability to reunite with friends and competitors from all over, heightening the air of competition. At the finals, Utah bands together to support its own. In Utah, competitors become one big rodeo family, always supporting each other and having one another's backs.

The competitive nature of Utah athletes may have contributed to Erryn's ability to stand up to pressure. The top fifteen goat tying competitors all push one another all year long, so when Erryn was preparing for the short go, she was ready for the pressure. Thanks to the constant need to be on the top of her game, Erryn's nerves didn't bother her.

Soon, Erryn will be graduating from cosmetology school. She will be attending Weber State University where she will rodeo and study for her business degree. Utah High School Rodeo certainly won't be the same without Erryn Hodson. 📷

Amanda Butler

Champion Barrel Racer

Amanda Butler, a Payson, Utah, cowgirl and Utah High School Rodeo Association Student President, qualified for the national finals in barrel racing. A good deal of her preparation for nationals was mental, getting in the right mindset to compete. She worked with different trainers and friends to get her and her horses in tip top shape. She came with a goal to finish better than she did last year and hoped to finish in the top ten. She enjoys the atmosphere of nationals and how much team Utah bands together. She loved shopping at the trade show and meeting contestants from all over. This year, it was Amanda's consistency that set her apart from the rest of the contestants. Getting consistently faster, she finished 13th in the first round, 3rd in the second round, and 2nd in the short go. When all was said and done, she was the World Champion High School Rodeo Barrel Racer.

Looking back at the finals, Amanda still feels like the whole thing is surreal. She has always set her sights high, but never quite let herself think she could go that far. Winning on that level was just another reminder for her to keep going and never give up because you never really know how far you can go.

Amanda is the third of four children. Her parents are Mark and Kimberly Butler, and their other children are Andrew, Lauren, and Josie. Now that the oldest two are married, they don't get to spend as much time together, but they still try to have family dinner all together every Sunday. It was not too long ago when they attended the Strawberry Days Rodeo together and decided that they wanted to try their hand at the sport.

Amanda competes in barrel racing, pole bending, breakaway roping, and girls cutting. In the upcoming rodeo year, she would like to qualify for nationals in the barrel racing as well as one of her other events. Her favorite part of the sport is the sheer adrenaline, even when watching. She loves being apart of the tightly-knit Utah rodeo team and friendly environment. Rodeo has taught Amanda dedication and responsibility. Being able to dedicate time and effort is crucial if you want to be successful.

Eventually, Amanda would like to attend Utah Valley University and become a high school art teacher. She has always enjoyed the class, has a passion for art, and loves using her creativity. 📷

Meet the Member Ky Cowley

story by Riata Cummings

Ky Cowley is a young rodeo athlete from Cedar Valley, Utah, a friendly and supportive community. He recently completed his eighth grade year at Frontier Middle School. He has a younger sister Addie, and their parents are Jade and Amanda Cowley. As a family they spend a lot of time on the rodeo road. Ky considers all of his hard working family members his heroes. In fact, family tradition is part of the reason Ky now participates in the fast-paced sport. His father, uncles, and even grandfather were all ropers and rodeo contestants, and Ky started competing when he was only eight.

[So far, he has qualified for the state finals every year and finished in the top three at nearly every qualifying rodeo.]

Today, Ky is a successful team roper. The header enjoys the event because it is a team effort and each contestant has to pull their own weight. He loves the pressure of competing and the adrenaline and satisfaction from a good run. Ky knows that the sport of rodeo is demanding and competitive and, unlike some sports, consumes your life. The lifestyle and constant effort required to be the best is something that can only come with a lot of self motivation. He knows that nobody else's work will make you a winner, only your own determination and willingness to put in the hours will put you at the top of the leaderboard.

Rodeo has taught Ky to have a strong work ethic, to be responsible, and to set and work toward goals. So far, he has qualified for the state finals every year and finished in the top three at nearly every qualifying rodeo. Ky makes a habit of setting large goals but breaking them down into steps and requirements so he constantly has something to work on. As he moves on to high school rodeo, he has set a goal to finish in the top ten. He is excited for a new level of competition and knows that it will help him rope more aggressively.

Ky competes on a horse named Chip, who was given to him by his uncle Rhett. The horse is a rodeo veteran and has been to many of the biggest shows in the sport. His back up horse is Radar, who is less experienced but still a good mount. Ky is also training a young horse named Booger and hopes to calf rope off him in the future.

The rodeo athlete practices everyday except for Sunday. He ropes the dummy, exercises his horses, and ropes every chance he gets. He remembers to go back to the basics and always works hard. If he could advise rookie rodeo athletes, he would tell them to practice hard, build confidence in themselves, and develop a winner's mindset. He knows that achievement is possible for all those who believe its possible. 📺

Meet the Member Britton Davis

story by Riata Cummings

Britton Davis is the thirteen-year-old son of Bryce and Mindy Davis. He has an older brother named Wyatt and a younger sister named Brylee. As a family, they spend a lot of time in the arena and on the rodeo road. They live in Spanish Fork, Utah, a pretty community with lots of rodeo people. This fall, Britton will be starting his eighth grade year at Spanish Fork Junior High.

[Like many other team ropers, Britton has some rituals and superstitions. Every time he ropes, he reminds himself that, "It feels good to rope two feet".]

He competes in the Utah Junior High School Rodeo Association as a team roper and breakaway roper. His favorite is team roping where he competes as a heeler. He enjoys the fun-loving atmosphere of rodeo where he can spend time with his friends and family. The heelers first year competing, he and his partner finished in the top five at state finals. This year his goals include finishing in the top ten in the team roping and to compete at the Silver State International Rodeo in the breakaway roping.

Britton competes on a horse named Popeye, a sixteen-year-old gelding who is a reliable and fun mount. Britton practices three times a week and the repetition helps him be at the top of his game. He is a competitive athlete out of the arena, too, and plays basketball and baseball. He considers rodeo to be his strength and hopes to one day be remembered as a great roper and professional cowboy.

He couldn't live without his supportive family, and believes that his parents are his greatest supporters. He looks up to his father, Bryce, who has taught him to rope and ride. Rodeo has taught Britton to always work hard and never give up. He knows that with enough try and effort, every goal is within reach. He would advise his fellow rodeo athletes to try their hardest and believe that they can succeed.

Like many other team ropers, Britton has some rituals and superstitions. Every time he ropes, he reminds himself that, "It feels good to rope two feet". Maybe it's that irreplaceable adrenaline or sense of accomplishment that keeps rodeo fans and athletes returning to the arena again and again. 🍷

Meet the Member Wyatt Austin

story by Lily Weinacht

Wyatt Austin from Queen Creek, Arizona, entered the rodeo world by way of the roping box but found his home in the roughstock chutes. The 18-year-old bull rider is the second generation of his family to rodeo, following after his dad, who competed in all three roughstock events. Wyatt entered his first junior rodeo in the breakaway roping when he was 9 and rode his first steer three years later. While the football field beckoned to him for several seasons, he returned to rodeo in eighth grade and started riding bulls. "I was just raised into rodeo. It's the adrenaline rush and the competition. You're riding a bull and anything and everything could happen—I just love that feeling," says Wyatt. "I'm motivated to better myself, and the support from my family helps out a lot. My mom and dad take me everywhere, and my grandma Barbara Anderson and my brothers all support me 100 percent."

The youngest of five brothers, Wyatt is the rodeo athlete of the family now, though his dad, Dax Austin, has competed in World Series team ropings over the years. Dax and Wyatt's mom, Tracy Austin, now travel with him to all of his rodeos, including going to watch the NHSFR, which Wyatt qualified for in June. He was sitting second in the AHSRA standings, just three points behind first place, but after riding his bull in the first round, he had a rough dismount and broke his leg. "They put a rod down my tibia," says Wyatt, who anticipates riding again in late August. In the meantime, he's working out, swimming, and running his stall cleaning business. "I clean quite a few stalls where I live—I've been doing that for probably four years and it's worked out pretty good."

In between jobs, Wyatt spends much of his time working out at the gym, especially lifting weights. "I try to push myself, and I listen to motivational speeches. I like Inky Johnson, and I listen to a lot of pastors. That's what motivates me in the gym." Wyatt also enjoys working with his colt, Chico, whom he purchased last year from a friend. "I'm planning to rope off of him, and he's working out pretty good. He's just two-and-a-half." He also helps care for the family's dogs, chickens, and pig, and enjoys living on the outskirts of Queen Creek where they have land for their animals.

Since graduating from Queen Creek High School this spring, Wyatt plans on competing in the PBR and PRCA once his leg is healed. This is also his third season competing in the GCPRA, and he's working on a third qualification to the GCPRA finals. "They have good stock, and they're rodeos are always run really good. I'd say Tucson is a favorite—I won that one year, so I look forward to that one." He also won the GCPRA rodeos in Globe, Verde Valley, and Willcox, Arizona, last year and finished second in the year-end standings, while he won Needles, California, this year. His travels have even taken him to Shawnee, Oklahoma, for the IFYR in 2017, and the 2017 Battle of the States bull riding held in Steamboat Springs, Colorado, which he won. "I'm planning to start going to pro rodeos and work my way up. I'd like to make it to the Turquoise Circuit Finals—that's one of my first goals—and of course my main goal is making it to the NFR." 🐾

Meet the Member Codi Reed

story by Lindsay King

Harsh northern New Mexico winters make Codi Reed's job of legging horses up in the spring for the NMJHSRA that much harder. The Aztec, New Mexico, cowgirl finds herself with only a few weeks before the first spring rodeo able to mount up. "It snows a lot up and the ground stays frozen, so it is hard to be able to ride everyday during the winter," said the 13-year-old. However, this does not deter Codi from competing in barrels, poles, breakaway roping and goat tying. "I also have some very special horses that I could not do this sport without. They are part of my family." With a need for a thrill and challenge, barrels and goat tying are her favorite events. "I love how fast paced barrels are, but I also like how you really have to work at goat tying. You cannot just get a horse that does it well, you have to work hard on your end also."

The daughter of Tami and Clay and sister Cami, 17, knows nothing but rodeo as all members of the family competed their whole lives. "My whole family supports my rodeo career, including my grandparents. My mom and grandpa, Ed Blancett, are always in the practice pen with me, pushing calves or just supporting me in general." The family ranch is a place where Codi enjoys unwinding, helping her granddad and great granddad, Richard and Ed Blancett, move and doctor cattle on the weekends.

Making the short go in both barrels and goats but just shy of a trip to nationals this year, Codi has set her bar much higher for next year and the future. "I plan to make it to the short go in all my events next year and to go to nationals in at least two of them. And one day I plan to be a national champion, competing at the NFR." Watching every round religiously for years, Codi got to experience it in person this past December. "My dad surprised us while we were at the trade show with tickets to the round. Seeing it in person makes it ten times cooler than it ever was just on tv." Other dreams from the screen include the Calgary Stampede, Rodeo Houston and Reno. Three rodeos Codi dreams of competing in one day.

The one rodeo she has grown up with is only 45 minutes from her house: the Durango Fiesta Days. "It is an amateur rodeo I have been competing at since I was little. It is a five-day rodeo the last week of July that everyone around here competes in. It is fun to go every single year." Traveling to new places to see familiar faces and build new friendships is what keeps Codi craving rodeo all winter long. "One of my best friends I met just this past October. Teagan Miller is from Artesia. I would not have met her if it was not for rodeo." The friendships in rodeo also led to one of her proudest accomplishments in the sport so far.

"I actually won a barrel round at one of the NMJHSA rodeos this year on a horse I borrowed. It was pretty exciting, I had never won a round until then." To top it off, Codi won the average in the poles at the Best of the Best last year. "That was pretty big. I ended up sixth in the average against the high school girls and then won against all the junior high girls. There were over 100 runners." Sometimes letting the nerves get the best of her, Codi has been known to turn purple before a run. "I get really bad nerves, so I just make sure I breathe before a run. I have no idea if I am breathing or not during a run because it is all happening so fast."

Meet the Member Roberto Galaz

story by Lindsay King

Breaking records is an annual occurrence for Roberto Galaz from Los Lunas, New Mexico, who holds four national titles in the light rifle shooting. The 17-year-old is also a competitor in the trap shooting. "We started rodeo in the roping pen and then realized there were shooting events. My dad brought us up in a shooting and hunting environment, so it made sense to start the shooting sports," said the high school senior. When Roberto started rodeo he was in the breakaway, ribbon roping and team roping. Now he mostly heads at jackpots.

A six-year veteran in the light rifle shooting, Roberto is going into his third season of trap shooting. He said it is his favorite event because "it is more exciting to see the targets that you are shooting at break in the air." Crediting his parents, Alex and Vikki Galaz, as his biggest influence, Roberto is thankful for his support system. "My dad grew up in rodeo and hunting. He brought me up in that life style. He showed me everything he knew and throughout the years we kept learning and getting better." Providing the moral support and encouragement is his mom, consistently reassuring Roberto to never give up and to keep setting goals for himself.

It was in 2015 when Roberto won his first national title in the eighth grade. "The year before I was the reserve champion, so it was exciting to win it all. It was a great accomplishment and a memorable place to see all my hard work pay off." Improving in shooting sport takes the same ingredients as any other rodeo event. However, the process and mindset is quite a bit different. "You have to control your breathing and adjust for different weather conditions, like wind. We shoot in the rain also." Wind affects the competitive athletes shooting at nationals every year." In 2015, Roberto marked the highest score ever recorded. He went back and broke his own record the next year. His record shots in both junior high and high school still stand today. "Winning at nationals this year was probably my proudest moment so far. Nobody has won it four years in a row. The excitement trajectory of the bullet more than anything else. "This year at nationals the wind was pushing 16 miles an hour while we were out on the range shooting. It is important to practice in those conditions if you want to get better."

Following the high school national finals around the Midwest is easily Roberto's favorite rodeo each year. The always humble marksman knows it's an accomplishment to even get to nationals. "You arrive at nationals and feel great about yourself. At times, there is a lot of pressure because there are a lot of real tough was just like the first time I won it."

Like any rodeo event, it all comes down to the mental game. The hardest part? Roberto said it is calming down his nerves, so he does not shake while he is shooting. He also shoots in 4-H and is in his Valencia High School FFA chapter where he competes in the ag mech contest. He hopes to one day shoot on a college team. Though he is undecided on what college he will compete for, he plans to pursue a degree in nurse anesthetist. "Basically, I want to be the person that knocks you out before you go into surgery. The people who actually give the medicine. I have a bunch of nurses in my family and this job caught my attention. It seems like something I would like to do."

Meet the Members Travis & Sarah Burgett

story by Lindsay King

Competing at the Keith Ward Arena play days in high school is what brought Travis and Sarah Burgett of Van Buren, Arkansas, together originally. Today, they still compete together but now have the added benefit of bringing their daughters, Gracyn, 12, and Lillie, 5, along with them. “Our oldest daughter runs in the junior barrels in the ARA. I wish the ACRA and CRRRA did that also, then she could have the chance to make the finals with us. It provides a great rodeo future for the little ones,” Sarah said. Members of the ACRA for the last five years, Sarah and Travis find their proudest moments are spent on the sidelines. “We watched Gracyn run my barrel mare Texas one night. She had never swung a leg over her before that night. We both ended up winning money that night,” she added.

Travis is the president and owner of Precision Metal Works, Inc. and Sarah runs the office. They sell, install, repair and maintain industrial spiral freezers in addition to working on a lot of food-grade stainless equipment. “Most of our work is for food manufacturing companies such as Nestle, Tyson and OK Foods. We can make pretty much anything out of metal,” Travis said. Flexibility in their work schedule allows the Burgetts time to rodeo almost every weekend and sometimes during the work week. They have set the goal of winning both the barrel racing and steer wrestling at the same rodeo, a feat that has evaded their grasp to date.

Travis is also working towards becoming the IPRA Rookie of the Year at the IFR in January. This season has proven a time of growth for Sarah as she did not pull a check until late June. “I have been hard on myself this year. A lot of winning a rodeo is overcoming the mind game. You have to trust yourself and your horse. You have to be able to ride to win at the end of the day,” Sarah said. Just last year Travis filled his PRCA permit to begin reaching for his professional dreams as a bull dogger. And Sarah recently won enough at the Rodeo of the Ozarks for her WPRA card. “Every barrel racer’s dream is to run at the NFR. June Holeman is my role model because she has never given up on her dreams and obviously believes that age is just a number. At the rate I am going, I may be 70 before I ever make the NFR, so she gives me hope,” Sarah joked.

As Travis climbs the ranks of professional rodeo, he keeps Luke Branquinho in the back of his mind. “Even though he is a multi-time world champion, it has never affected his personality. He is the same, down-to-earth person and never turns away a fan who wants a picture or an autograph,” Travis explained. Whenever Sarah gets the chance, she enjoys taking photos at rodeos. When she retires one day, she plans to spend more time developing her skill. Until then, she is still the official family paparazzi.

In late July, the Burgetts made the long drive to Cheyenne, where Travis took on the Daddy of Em All. “This rodeo was an amazing, unforgettable experience. It’s a 30-foot hand-pulled barrier; running fresh, untouched cattle. Until you run in Cheyenne, you will never understand what its like to run that fast to catch cattle,” Travis said. Blessed to travel down the rodeo road with family in the cab and reliable friends at the ready, Travis and Sarah are thankful for the opportunity to teach their girls life lessons first hand. “I love that our kids are growing up in this environment. They are learning that it takes hard work and responsibility to have these animals and be able to rodeo. Not only that, but they are also learning that being dependable and reliable are important qualities in life.” 📷

Meet the Member Clayton Moss

story by Lindsay King

His feet rack back in an upward motion along the neck of a bareback horse, this is Clayton Moss' favorite place to be in the world and the reason he rides. "I used to ride bulls, but my big brother Zach Hibler, 21, rides bareback horses in the PRCA. He helped me fall in love with it," said the 13-year-old, Wheeler, Texas, native. Riding sheep since he was little bitty, Clayton has wanted to rodeo and win a gold buckle ever since. Rodeo is a family sport for Clayton, his mom, Brandi Hibler, rodeoed in high school and his brother's Layton Hibler, 20, and Kyler Moss, 10, all ride rough stock of some kind.

The biggest influence in Clayton's rodeo life is Zach. His brother and rodeo coach, Zach is Clayton's favorite bareback rider of all time. "He teaches me how to work out for my event and we get on the spur board every day. He watches all my rides and tells me how to do better and then I watch his rides." Clayton also looks up to Jake Brown and Bill Tutor, who have helped him with his riding. "When Zach is on the road, Luke Schalla helps me out a lot. He used to pull my bull ropes when I rode them."

The friendly yet competitive environment of the OKJHSRA is what keeps Clayton coming back. "I like all the people, nobody is mean to anyone. Whenever you need a hand, there is a friend right there. The Texas association was just so big that I didn't know anybody. In Oklahoma, everybody knows your name." His favorite rodeo so far was the Border Bash with Kansas at the Lazy E. "I get to see some of the competition before nationals and it is fairly close to home so people can come and watch me. And it is just a nice place to compete."

In January, Clayton had a tough break on a bull. He got hung up and the bull stepped on his right ankle, breaking it in several places. "The first doctor said my toe was cracked and that's it but then a surgeon said my growth plate was cracked in my heel." Crutches for eight weeks and a boot for three, the doctors then cleared Clayton for rodeo and sports. "The day after that I got on bulls and ran track, I didn't really slow down at all. It was still hurting so we went to the doctor again and it was still broken in eight places." Clayton's ankle set him backwards in the overall standings, but he came back stronger than ever in Durant, winning the second round.

He managed to finish third at state, earning a place on his first national team. "My goal next year is to win state and to win at Guthrie again. I have only been on two really big horses, so I want to start getting on more of those." With most of his scores hovering in the 70s, Clayton is working towards scoring in the 80s this coming season. Though rodeo is his favorite sport, Clayton also wears a jersey for Wheeler ISD in track, basketball and football. "High jump is probably my favorite, I just like to get off the ground I guess. But this was my first year doing it and that was on a broken ankle, so I am not sure if I am good at it or not." Outside of roping at the house and rodeo, Clayton likes to hunt coons and ride colts with his grandpa, Lee Hibler. His niece, Laykin Rae, Layton's daughter, has a special place in Colten's heart, alongside his grandpa.

However, Clayton is most thankful for his mom, Brandi Hibler, "My mom is everything to me, she takes me to all my rodeos and is supportive of everything I do, she always finds a way to get me and my little brother Kyler down road to the next rodeo." 📷

Rush Hodges - Acentric Rodeo

Meet the Member Rush Hodges

story by Lindsay King

"I came into state fourth in the tie-down roping and I think the first round I was the most nervous I had ever been. I knew I was right there and the top eight guys going into state were within five points of each other so one roping could change everything," said Rush Hodges from Coweta, Oklahoma. "I just knew I needed to catch all three and get all the average points. To do that I just needed to be clean at the barrier." The 18-year-old started out mutton busting with a friend until he decided he did not like rough stock events, he picked up a rope and never looked back. "I am the first one to rope in my family. It is just one those deals that just happened and I fell in love with it." His twin sister Claire used to rodeo also but picked up a talent for volleyball and is headed to Northwestern Oklahoma State University.

Riding out a rodeo scholarship to Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College, Rush plans to pursue a degree in pre-engineering. "I have always been obsessed with building things. I have grown up welding, building barns, that sort of thing. I think mechanical engineering would be a more in-depth version of that." After two years in Miami, Oklahoma, Rush will transfer to Oklahoma State University to finish his engineering degree. "An engineering degree is not something to take lightly, you have to put a lot of time into it to be successful. I might have to take a break for a few years from rodeo. It is something that will stay in my heart forever because I love it."

Looking back to the day Rush got his first calf horse, Taz, was easily the best day of his life. "I was about 8 years old and I breakaway roped on him. We won a bunch of stuff at junior rodeos together." Rush thanks his parents, Chad and Cindy, for propelling his rodeo career forward. "They keep me motivated if I get lazy, they push me to keep my horses in shape and to keep practicing. If I get down on myself, they bring me back up. They are good motivators, they keep me sharp and focused." His dad grew up in the racing world, from motorcycles to drag racing. "Other than horses and rodeo, my next favorite thing would be fast cars. My dad and I go to the sprint car races all the time, which is basically NASCAR on dirt. I love fast cars and big trucks, all that."

A trip to nationals this year prevented Rush from competing at his favorite rodeo, Cavalcade. The largest amateur rodeo in the world draws a massive crowd, making it a fun rodeo to watch and compete at. "The score is really long; the calves are running strong and fast. It is simply a foot race to catch them." The future stars calf roping champion also took third at state, sending him on an inaugural trip to nationals. "I thought I would be nervous because I was expecting it to be the toughest rodeo of my life. I feel like I could have done better, but overall I am happy with how it came out." The calf roper captured seventh place at nationals in the average sending him into his freshman year on a high note.

"I will miss the competition of the OHSRA the most, it was my favorite part. I believe it is one of the most competitive states around. That was confirmed when I was at nationals." Luckily for Rush, the competitive nature of rodeo will be amped up to a new level in his college rodeo career. "I love the adrenaline of watching somebody else rope and tie in eight seconds and needing to do that and better. I just love the competition of rodeo." 🏆

Meet the Member Grace Gardiner

story by Lily Weinacht

Grace Gardiner from Ashland, Kansas, makes a goal chart each season, and this year she checked off every goal—academic and rodeo—including competing at an American qualifier and going to the NJHFR in barrel racing and pole bending. “Nationals was a great experience—I was overjoyed with it,” says the 13-year-old. “I knew I had the horse to do it. Ranger is an awesome horse, but we had just gotten him and that was my fourth run on him. When we crossed the finish line and I saw my time and everybody was screaming, it was awesome! It gave me a lot of confidence going into the next round. I just love the atmosphere of rodeo people so much—it’s different than any other sport I’ve been in. You’re competing against each other but you’re a team. I loved it there.”

Finishing 5th in the nation in the barrel racing was one of the greatest accomplishments of Grace’s rodeo career thus far, which she started when she was 5. She comes from a reined cow horse and roping background, but branched into barrel racing with the help of the Turner family. “Amy Turner and Cashen Turner have been the spark firing this whole deal with barrel racing. I can always go to them with a question about my run, and Cashen is like my older sister. Rosie Bradley used to own the horse I ran at Nationals. He’d had an injury the year before we got him, and she chose us to take care of him. She and CR Bradley and Cooper Bradley are amazing. My parents, Garth and Amanda Gardiner, of course are my biggest supporters and they have helped me throughout the whole process, and of course, God. I couldn’t have done that at Nationals without Him.”

Grace took two horses with her to Nationals, along with her best running boots for the ribbon roping with Mason Stueve. She ran Ranger in barrels, and Jay, whom she purchased from Jayme Flowers, in the pole bending. “I never really liked poles until I got him—he just feels like he’s flying every time I run him. I have a second barrel horse, Tag. He was owned by Micah Samples, and Tag helped me become the rider that I am.” Grace also rides her mare Angel in the breakaway roping, an event she’s coming to enjoy more since she recovered from a roping accident that injured her index finger. “My mom gave me my confidence back, and we’re coming to love it.”

Grace and her older brother Gage share a love of rodeo, and Gage qualified for the NHSFR in reined cow horse and cutting this year. He also enjoys musical theater and acting, and their older brother Greysen plays basketball and football. “My brothers have made me very strong throughout life, and very independent,” Grace says with a laugh. “I love playing basketball—it’s probably my favorite sport other than rodeo—and I like volleyball as well. I play at school, and I love singing—sometimes I sing at our Cowboy Church that we have at rodeos.”

Along with playing sports at Ashland Junior High School, where Grace is entering eighth grade, she loves her English class. “I love writing and reading, and I’ve been lucky to have an amazing teacher, Miss Vierthaler, who has helped me develop in my writing.” Grace checked off school goals her seventh grade year playing league volleyball and making the varsity basketball team. Her next set of rodeo goals revolve around qualifying for the NJHFR again. “I want to make it to Nationals in all my events, and become a better rider overall.”

Meet the Member Tylor Todd

story by Lily Weinacht

Tylor Todd from Rexford, Kansas, is the 2018 NHSRA All-Around Rookie Cowgirl. Already an experienced rider in the cutting and reined cow horse world, the 15-year-old joined the KHSRA last fall. She also competes in breakaway roping, and qualified for Nationals in reined cow horse and cutting, finishing 7th in the nation in cutting. “Winning the Rookie of the Year at Nationals was kind of a surprise for me since I only did the two events and other kids do four or five events,” says Tylor. “I was second in the cow horse and fourth in the cutting at state finals. Nationals was really fun, and I know next year I can do better and continue to strive forward in my events. I was really happy with how my horses worked, but I know I can always be better and get that extra half point.

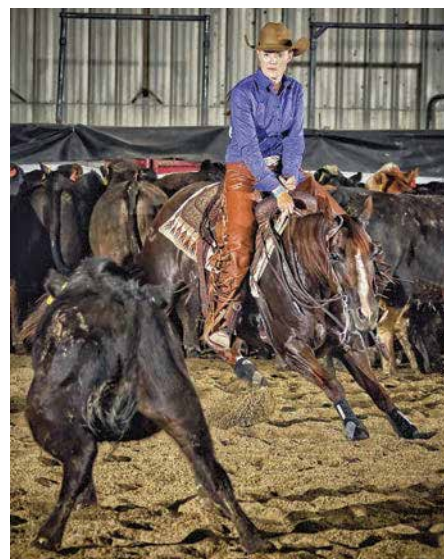

“My family really supports me a lot and my trainers keep me upbeat and they want me to do the best I can. Doing good every once in a while helps me to continue, but I think everyone telling me to do a good job is really motivational,” she adds. On their way home, Tylor and her parents, Jay and Brandy, and her siblings, Taylor and Tannor, stopped at the Flaming Gorge Reservoir in Utah and went cliff diving. Tylor has spent the rest of her summer competing in NRCHA and AQHA horse shows, as well as the Colorado Reined Cow Horse Association. Her older sister, Taylor, competes in some of the same cutting shows. “My sister has definitely been a role model to me because she did high school rodeo and she’s done pretty good, and she makes me want to be better. We have some friendly competition.

“My favorite is definitely the reined cow horse. I like that event because I’ve been at it for about eight years and it’s just my favorite to watch and compete in. I think going down the fence has definitely helped my roping, and the boxing has helped my cutting. My grandma and grandpa, Joan and Doug Todd, are like my professional video takers—they go to a lot of stuff and support me all the way. I also have a brother who’s 9, Tannor, and he is learning how to cut and do reined cow horse.”

Tylor works with her reined cow horse trainer, Darren Miller, and cutting trainer, James Davis, once a week, sometimes more often when she’s getting ready for a big show. “My cutting horse is Catt of Rey. I call her Curly and she is a little fireball—I have to lope her down for about two hours before I show her, but when I get her in there and dialed in, she’s usually pretty cowy. I’ve had her about a year, and it was about two weeks before Nationals when we finally clicked. That was pretty exciting. The reined cow horse I rode at Nationals was Smart Rem N Be, and he’s not the best reiner, but he’s really good down the fence.”

Tylor Todd at the 2018 NHSFR
- Acentric Rodeo

During the school year, Tylor plays basketball and performs at football and basketball games on Golden Plains High School’s dance team. “I’ll be a sophomore, and I like science—I’ll be in biology,” says Tylor. “I’m a combination of both about going back to school—I’m excited to see my friends but I’d rather keep horse showing all summer. I really want to be an AQHYA World Champion in the cow horse, and I want to win the youth division in the Snaffle Bit Futurity for the NRCHA. I’m doing another season of high school rodeo in the same events, and going back to Nationals is definitely another goal.”

Meet the Member Ty Pellam

by Shiley Blackwell

It's not often that a champion bareback rider fights bulls after he steps off his bronc, but for 25 year old Ty Pellam, he wouldn't have it any other way. The Fairland, Oklahoma cowboy grew up in California, where he started riding calves at junior rodeos and roping at jackpots. His family moved to southeast Oklahoma in 2007, and it was there that he found his passion for bucking horses and bull fighting.

"I honestly enjoy doing both of them—working the same rodeo and doing both. Heck, people say bareback riders are crazy, and people say that bull fighters are crazy, then they meet me and they're like 'oh wow, we don't know what to do with you,'" he laughs.

Ty's bareback riding career began at age 16 in his family's arena. "My dad worked every event in rodeo and I found one of his old riggings. I kept pestering him about it, so he put me on my rope horse and we flanked him in our arena. I fell in love with it."

At the time, Ty was competing in a winter series in the bulls and junior broncs. It wasn't long after getting on his first bronc that he decided to quit riding bulls and pursue bareback riding more intensely. His early efforts paid off as he went on to win the Oklahoma High School Rodeo Association reserve state championship in 2011 and state championship in 2012.

It was around that same time when Ty's passion for bull fighting began to emerge. "We were out in the practice pen and didn't have anyone to do it, so I just stepped out there and fell in love with it, and took off after that."

Ty Pellam - David Seymore

Since then, he's strived to balance bareback riding and bull fighting. He's done it in fashion, taking the Kansas Pro Rodeo Association Bareback Riding Championship in 2017, the same year he was selected to be a bull fighter at the finals. "I had a hectic finals and didn't have much time," he adds, "but I enjoyed doing it."

Ty has been a member of the KPRA since 2014, and was the Rough Stock Rookie of the Year that same year. He has also been on the association's board for the last year and a half. "It's a good group of people and they've got good horses to get on. For any young bareback riders out there who are trying to decide where to go, KPRA would be a great place to start."

When Ty isn't hopping on a bronc or bull fighting, you can catch him on the golf course. "I got hurt my freshman year while college rodeoing at Oklahoma Panhandle

State University, and had to take year and a half off. After I got out of my sling, they asked me to be on the college golf team, so I played for two years. I had never golfed before that, but by the end of those two years I loved it. I try to go golf as much as I can, even when I'm on the road." He adds that golfing, as well as books and blogs, help his mental game, which he believes is a crucial component of success.

Ty currently rodeos full time and has a small herd of cattle at his home in Oklahoma. He recently bought his PRCA card and has a goal to qualify for the Prairie Circuit Finals before pursuing his bull fighting career with more focus.

When the rodeo road gets tough, Ty focuses on his faith in God and his passion for helping fellow cowboys. "I'd like to be known as one of the greats someday," he adds. "There's just not a better feeling in the world than shooting a gap or making a pick and knowing that your buddy is walking away safe because of you." 🐾

Meet the Rodeo Team Tarleton State University

story by Merrill Ellis

In the late 60's and early 70's, Tarleton State University (TSU) in Stephenville, Texas rocked the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association world with three consecutive national women's team championships. They claimed these three team titles in 1969, 1970, and 1971. No other school has ever accomplished winning three national championships back-to-back.

The names of these cowgirls were not only synonymous in the collegiate ranks but in the Girls Professional Rodeo Association (GRA) and Women's Professional Rodeo Association (WPRA) as well. During this time, the GRA/WPRA had numerous sanctioned all girl rodeos and these women were fierce contenders in the timed events.

"Since we all had the competitive nature in the rodeo arena, we had it in the classroom as well. We knew that a college education was important and therefore we all sought out the opportunity when we had a chance," stated Vickie Higgins Emerson.

Every collegiate competitor named in this article went on to obtain their college degrees and have become teachers, principals, and business ladies. The list includes: Karen Walls, Angie Watts Averhoff, Sally Preston, Vickie Higgins Emerson, Connie Wilkinson Wood, Sharon Harrison Youngblood, and Martha Wright Jordan.

Competing for the purple and white under the motto, "A Winning Tradition", Tarleton's Rodeo teams have won six national championship titles, 19 individual national championships, and numerous NIRA Southwest Region titles since the program was established in 1947. In 2011-12, Tarleton boasted one of the largest rodeo teams in the NIRA with 115 card-holding student members.

Angie Watts Averhoff; the 1970 NIRA All Around Champion, still competes in team roping. In January 2009, she was tired of only seeing her rodeo friends at funerals. So, she devised a plan for getting "the girls" back together. Yearly, prior to the Fort Worth PRCA Rodeo Calf Roping Slack, she and about 100 cowgirls get together in the Fort Worth Stockyards for what is now known as "The Old Broad's Reunion".

"Normally, we have fifteen or more that were NIRA, GRA, or WPRA Champions. It is always fun to see who shows up at the event," stated Averhoff.

The TSU female Who's Who list of cowgirls and national championships include:

1969 NIRA National Champion Women's Team- Karen Walls, was Reserve Champion Barrel Racer, Angie Watts Averhoff was National Goat Tying Champion as well as the CNFR Goat Tying & All Around Champion. Sally Preston was the first ever Breakaway Roping National Champion and the Breakaway Champion at CNFR.

All of these women have been recognized at previous NIRA Alumni, Inc. Reunions and were inducted into the TSU Rodeo Hall of Fame in 2012. The 1969 championship team will be recognized at the 28th Annual NIRA Alumni, Inc. Reunion June 14-15 in Casper, Wyoming. This year's reunion will recognize all "9" champions.

Martha Wright Jordan recently joined the NIRA Alumni, Inc. as a board member. Jordan still competes in barrel racing and through her clinics she continues to teach students barrel racing and horsemanship techniques.

"Through the NIRA Alumni, Inc. scholarship program, it is one way that I can help give back to the NIRA and show students the importance of a college degree," stated Jordan.

At the 2018 College National Finals Rodeo (CNFR), Vickie Higgins Emerson's grandson, Kirby Blankenship was awarded the NIRA Alumni, Inc. Team Roping Rookie of the Year Scholarship.

Emerson was in attendance at the CNFR and stated, "It was so much fun to watch my grandson compete at the CNFR on the same level that I did when I was rodeoing in college."

In 2019, the NIRA Alumni, Inc. will award $30,000 in scholarships at the CNFR. To contribute to the NIRA Alumni, Inc. scholarship program, go to

Meet the Member Jill Hins

story by Lindsay King

Not many meet their husband on a private jet, even fewer get to fly a plane solo. For Huron, South Dakota, native Jill Hins, that is exactly the case. "I have always been a barrel racer. In the early years, my brother and his buddies were my traveling partners. Those were some good times. I met my husband Ron because of my brother. He was his pilot occasionally and I went along to watch my brother compete."

Ron and Jill met in 1977 and were married in 1981. "Up until four years ago, my husband was a private pilot. We traveled a lot as a family in the plane, so it made sense that I should know how to fly it if something ever happened to Ron." A ranching family, Jill and Ron run cattle and farm some hay on the side. "Ron is also a livestock dealer, but the ranch has been handed down through his family. We run a lot of cows, so we have quite a few calves in the spring. Working at the school is like a vacation from home for me sometimes."

Jill graduated from South Dakota State University in 1976 with a degree in elementary education. She has worked at Huron Middle School for the past seven years. "I have gone back and forth between teaching and being an aide in sixth, seventh and eighth grade. I am an academic interventionist this year. Mostly I help kids try and catch up to their peers. Some days are more interesting than others."

The mother of Tater and Lindsey, both in their thirties, Jill boasts three grandchildren: Charleigh, 8, Talley, 7, and Tatyn, 10 months. "When you leave college and start a family, you kind of get out of rodeo.

It was about four years ago that I found the NSPRA. It is truly something else to go out and compete at our age like this." A goat tier and barrel racer in college, Jill now only runs the clover leaf pattern.

["It is truly something else to go out and compete at our age like this."]

"I was fortunate enough to make the NSPRA finals in Las Vegas in 2014 and 2015, it was quite something to compete at. This spring I was lucky enough to win my ninth saddle in the United Barrel Racing Association." Five years ago, Jill won a saddle in her age division in the NBHA and all saddle winners were put in a drawing. "They drew my name and I won the use of a horse trailer for a year. It was kind of like driving a billboard around, but it was really neat."

Despite all this, her proudest rodeo moments come from the stands. "Ron and I brought both our kids up in rodeo. I remember being in Casper, Wyoming, for the CNFR when Tater came out in the billowing smoke as the bull riding champion. That was just one of those moments that took my breath away. It was my love of rodeo that I passed down to him that made it that much sweeter."

Her oldest granddaughter Charleigh, is now Jill's full-time traveling partner. "She goes to most barrel races and she holds her own. At 8 years old, she does not know how much she has accomplished already. It is phenomenal that rodeo has come full circle in my life and I get to compete alongside my granddaughter, not many people get that opportunity." Jill jokes that she is excited for when Charleigh can split the time behind the wheel in their travels. Outside of rodeo and ranching, spending time with her grandchildren is something Jill cherishes the most. She also likes to go for walks and read when she has the chance. Her rodeo goals for the year include making the NSPRA finals. "I would like to qualify for the finals because they are in Oklahoma and that is a lot closer to home and I don't have to go through the mountains. The best part about the NSPRA are the people, they are wonderfully helpful. It is like another family." 📺

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM THE BOX!

By Jerry Martin

Cowboy Connection Ministries!

I have had some horses that I wanted to make them calf roping horses but for what ever reason they didn't work out very well. But when I found a different event for them they excelled. If I would have forced that horse to continue doing something he didn't like or fit that horse would never reach his full potential. The same is true with mankind, people are full of gifts, talents and abilities. The sure way for us to find and realize those abilities and giftings is to allow the creator of heaven and earth to show us what they are. God only wants the best for us, don't be like that puppy chasing his tail. The Bible tells us in Proverbs 18:16, That a man's gift makes room for him and brings him before kings. Let me promise you this, there is no better place to be than what you were created to do. Trust God Today!

PRORODEO HALL OF FAME

Class of 2018

stories by Siri Stevens & PRCA

Kristie Peterson

WPRA Barrel Racer

Born October 10, 1955 Dayton, Ohio

Kristie Peterson's rise to stardom in the Women's Professional Rodeo Association started in 1989, when she was working as a captain at her local sheriff's department overseeing the jail and dispatchers but decided to try her hand at professional rodeo after earning titles in youth and amateur rodeo. Peterson jumped into the fray with a talented gelding she'd trained and brought through futurity competitions, a horse named French Flash Hawk, better known as Bozo.

Following on the heels of Charmayne James and her great horse, Scamper, Peterson and Bozo ended James' streak of 10 straight world titles, claiming the first of four WPRA world titles in 1994. She finished second in 1995 before rattling off three straight championships in 1996-98.

In addition to the four WPRA world titles, the Peterson-Bozo duo finished as reserve champion three times (1993, 1995, 1999), earned five consecutive National Finals Rodeo average titles (1994-98) and four Dodge National Circuit Finals Rodeo titles (1992, 1994-95, 1998). Together, the pair won nearly every major rodeo in the country, shining particularly bright when close to home at Denver, Colorado Springs, Colo., and Cheyenne, Wyo.

Peterson and Bozo placed in 20 consecutive rounds at the NFR in 1996 and 1997, a feat unmatched in history at the time of induction. Bozo retired from competition after winning Rodeo Houston for the third time in 2003 and Peterson soon followed, though she continued to ride and train horses. Peterson recorded $1,346,861 in career earnings, becoming the second WPRA cowgirl to cross $1 million.

She and her husband, Chuck live in Parker, Colorado. He was the driver, coach, and caretaker of Bozo his whole life. They invested their earnings in rodeo wisely and now spend their time with their children and grandchildren – 8 girls and one boy.

French Flash Hawk "Bozo" Livestock

With his big blazed face French Flash Hawk, known as Bozo, was one of the most recognized athletes in ProRodeo in his time, a champion in the arena who touched off a revolution in barrel racing bloodlines. "Bozo was an amazing animal, but it took Kristie's ability to respect Bozo's personality that made Bozo the champion he was," Elisabeth Hollmann said. "The fact they are being inducted at the same time is perfect because without the other one, neither of them would have had that career."

Peterson purchased Bozo as a 2 year old for $400 in 1989. Sharing the same bloodlines (Tiny Watch) as a horse she already had, Peterson took a chance on the horse. Peterson was working as a captain with the Elbert County Sheriff's department in Kiowa, Colorado. And chance she did – Bozo was a handful on the ground, but once in the saddle, he had the heart and try to take Kristie to four WPRA world titles, three reserve world titles (1993, 1995, 1999), five consecutive National Finals Rodeo average titles (1994-98) and four Dodge National Circuit Finals Rodeo titles (1992, 1994-95, 1998). In a feat unsurpassed at the time of induction, Peterson and Bozo went two years at the NFR without missing a check (1996-97). Bozo placed in 22 consecutive rounds from 1995-97, missed a check in the first round of 1998, then rattled off another 17 straight. Bozo was voted AQHA Horse of the Year five times (1995-99) and WPRA's Horse With the Most Heart four times (1995-98).

By the stallion Sun Frost out of Casey's Charm, Bozo's accuracy on the pattern had breeders seeking out his bloodlines. Two sons of Sun Frost, Frenchman's Guy and PC Frenchman's Hayday, have become household names. Peterson's daughter, Jordon Peterson Briggs, also rode Bozo during her early career and went on to qualify for the Wrangler NFR in 2009 on a blood relative of Bozo's, Frenchman's Jester.

Peterson retired the gelding not long after winning her third Rodeo Houston title in 2003.

On May 4, 2016, at the age of 29, Bozo died peacefully at their home in Texas. Chuck took care of him from the minute he came on the place until he passed. "Bozo was the first thing he saw in the morning and the last thing he saw at night," said Peterson. Bozo will be remembered for the heart and determination that enabled his remarkable achievements. 🏆

Billie McBride

WPRA Barrel Racer

Born March 4, 1927 in Copperas Cove, TX
Died May 10, 2017 in San Angelo, TX

Billie Hinson McBride first saw barrel racing at an open rodeo event in 1937 and decided at 10 years old that it was the path she wanted to travel. McBride was a charter member of the Girls Rodeo Association (GRA), formed in her hometown of San Angelo, Texas, just over a decade later.

McBride would become the first superstar of the association to compete nearly exclusively as a barrel racer. The GRA was formed by ladies who often competed in multiple events, including roping and roughstock. Though she briefly tried roping, McBride dominated the GRA's barrel racing in the late 1950s.

Picking up a reserve world championship in 1954, she went on the biggest streak of the young association's history, winning four straight world championships from 1955-58 on her mare Zombie. That set a record that stood for three decades, not broken until Charmayne James, won her fifth title in 1988. In 1955, McBride and Zombie made 99 runs and only knocked over one barrel.

McBride also jumped into leadership roles with the GRA, serving 13 years as director including holding the president, vice president and secretary positions.

In her role as president, McBride spearheaded an effort to get the GRA barrel race included with the newly formed National Finals Rodeo to be produced by the Rodeo Cowboys Association. Though that proved unsuccessful, McBride secured a spot for the ladies with the National Finals Steer Roping, providing the GRA's first season-ending championship event and paving the way for the barrels to make the jump into the NFR eight years later.

"What a wonderful day the Lord has made on behalf of my mother, and I want to sincerely thank everyone in the selection process for including her in this great group," said Alva Jean Meek, McBride's daughter. "Mother would be beyond thrilled, and she was excited to hear when the PRCA began inducting WPRA members last year. 🌟"

World Championships: 4 (1955-1958)

Speed Williams

Team Roper

Born December 14, 1967 in Jacksonville, FL

Ken "Speed" Williams was born and raised in Jacksonville, Fla. He started roping before he could walk, and by the time he was 14 he had a bank account full of winnings. Williams bought his PRCA card in 1988 and competed in the Southeastern Circuit calf roping and team roping, as a heeler. He won the 1995 Dodge National Circuit Finals All-Around title.

Williams made his first trip to the National Finals Rodeo in 1988 heeling for Casey Cox. After that experience, Williams went home and switched to heading. He believed there were more improvements to make to that side of the event. Williams credits hard work, lots of practice and discipline with his success. He is credited with starting a new style of swinging the rope in the box, and his style of catching lowered times and won money.

Williams partnered with Rich Skelton in 1997, and the rest is history. The pair won eight consecutive Team Roping World Titles. "I don't think there was any secret to our success," Williams said. "We came together at the same time and we had the same desires and we wanted to rodeo and that's what we did every day, but I never even dreamed that we would win eight gold buckles in a row." Although he and Skelton had never practiced together, Williams showed Skelton an whole new idea in the practice pen. "We switched from the same pen of cattle that he had to 20 350# muleys," said Williams. "That first time, Rich run 20 and never had a clean run. My theory is to make practice hard so when we get there, it's easy."

Williams, who qualified for the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo 15 times (1988, 1994, 1996-2008), is one of only six team ropers to make it to the NFR as both a header and a heeler. Williams has spent his time off the circuit helping other ropers with schools and online educational videos that number in the thousands. Now his goals are slightly different. "I want teach my kids to be good adults, and make enough to support my family," he said.

"I remember going to the high school finals and stopping in the ProRodeo Hall of Fame and I was blown away with the history of ProRodeo," Williams said. "It's a great honor to be inducted into the Hall of Fame. Rich and I had a fairytale career, and words don't really describe how I'm feeling. 🌟"

Rich Skelton

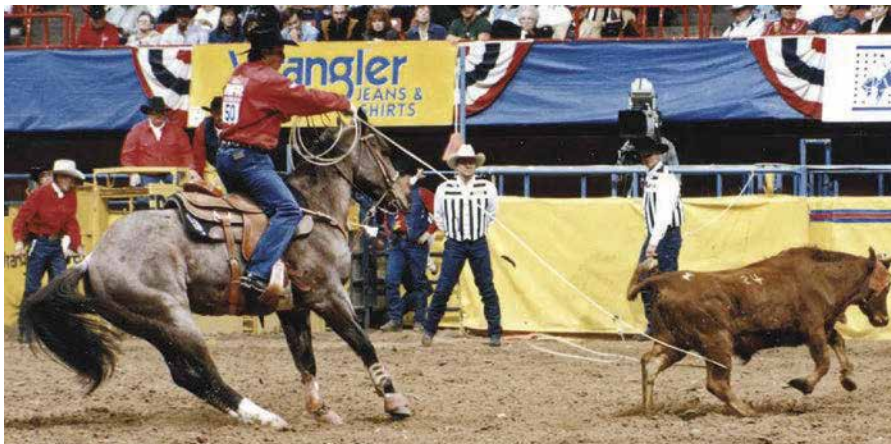

Team Roper

Born June 18, 1966 in Electra, TX

Rich Skelton bought his PRCA card in 1986 and at the time of his induction, he was still competing. He made his first National Finals Rodeo appearance in 1990 heeling for Tee Woolman. When Woolman decided to slow down in late 1997, Skelton joined with header Speed Williams. The duo went on to break or tie all team roping records in their nine-year partnership.

Skelton also competed as a calf and steer roper, finishing fourth in the All-Around race in 2000. He continued to place in the top 15 for the next seven years. Skelton has 22 NFR qualifications on his résumé (1990-2006, 2009-10, 2013-15) and a 2007 National Finals Steer Roping qualification.

Skelton credits part of his success to his horses, four-time PRCA/AQHA Heel Horse of the Year "Roany" and 2004 PRCA/AQHA Heel Horse of the Year Chili Dog.

below: Rich - Rodeo News

"This is cool, and I don't know when this will sink in," said Skelton. "I wanted to make the NFR and I wanted to win the world, and then things just kept going our way. When you look back at it, we had good horses, and everything was set up at that time and that's all we thought about and that's all we did was rope. To me, we had so much success because Speed changed to heading and started roping fast and I just tried to be consistent." 🏆

Deb Greenough

Bareback Rider

Born May 17, 1963 in Red Lodge, MT

It may seem like Deb Greenough was destined for rodeo greatness. He was born into the family of the "Riding Greenoughs" and named after World Champion Deb Copenhaver. Yet, Greenough credits a three-letter word for much of his success – try. He rodeoed through college and earned his PRCA card in 1986.

Greenough qualified for the National Finals Rodeo 13 consecutive years (1988-2000), tied with Joe Alexander for the fifth-most overall NFR qualifications in PRCA history. His 15 career NFR go-round wins at the NFR is also fifth most in his event. Greenough won a bareback riding NFR average title in 1992 and the world title in 1993.

Greenough was also known for his success within the Montana Circuit, where he won five circuit titles. At the time of his induction, Greenough remains tied for the most National Circuit Finals Rodeo wins among bareback riders with three career wins (1995-96, 1999).

"The biggest thing that comes to mind for me is this is just a true, neat, awesome feeling, and an honor," Greenough said. "I grew up watching Bill Smith, J.C. Bonine, Donnie Gay, Larry Peabody, just tons of people. I dreamed of one day rodeoing and going up and down the road and getting to the Finals and hopefully winning a world title. That was my passion. But, something like this comes (being inducted in the Pro-Rodeo Hall of Fame) and it is something I never even thought of as a kid. Now that it has happened, it is a thrill." 🏆

Leon Coffee

Contract Personnel

Born October 11, 1954 in Blanco, TX

Like Leon Coffee grew up around horses, rodeo, and football. He competed as a junior rodeo contestant in bull riding, bareback riding, steer wrestling, and calf roping. He joined the U.S. Army after high school and served for three years.

After encouragement from friend and bullfighter Michael Moore, Coffee began fighting bulls instead of riding them. His signature act of dancing in front of an angry bull earned him the nicknames “Disco Bullfighter” and “Boogie Man.” At the beginning of his career in the arena, Coffee would paint his entire face white as well as wear white gloves, nervous about his acceptance in the rodeo world. That didn’t last long; as a PRCA Gold Card Member and NFR barrel man, Coffee enjoyed a long and lively career in ProRodeo as one of only three cowboys to be both a barrel man and a bullfighter at the NFR.

Since 1973, the Texas cowboy fought bulls at the NFR twice (1979, 1984) and was a barrel man at the NFR in 1991, 1994 and 1997. Coffee won PRCA Clown of the Year in 1983 and was in the top three every year from 1984-2001. Coffee also worked at the first National Circuit

Finals Rodeo in 1987, the Texas Circuit Finals Rodeo (1980-82, 1992, 1996-97, 2003-04) and the Canadian Finals Rodeo twice (1985-86).

Coffee has worked on the movie sets of 8 Seconds, My Heroes Have Always Been Cowboys and Jericho (2000). He visits children’s hospitals and runs a small ranch in his off time.

“I enjoy putting smiles on faces, and my motto of life is God put me on Earth to do two things – make people happy and help people out, and I can do both in the arena,” Coffee said. 🐾

Walt Garrison

Notable

Born July 23, 1944 in Denton, TX

Walt Garrison was two types of cowboy, a fullback with the Dallas Cowboys and a ProRodeo competitor. Garrison grew up in Lewisville, Texas, where he spent his youth riding horses and steers. He competed in high school rodeo in bareback riding, bull riding, calf roping and steer wrestling.

Garrison took a scholarship to Oklahoma State University where he was a two-time All-Big Eight honoree. After completing his eligibility for football, he spent a year with the Oklahoma State rodeo team. Garrison was drafted in the fifth round by the Dallas Cowboys in 1966.

Garrison made sure that his Cowboys’ signing bonus included a two-horse trailer so he could still attend rodeos. Coach Tom Landry stopped Garrison from competing in nearby rodeos the night before a game by allowing him to follow the rodeo trail in the offseason. The highlight of Garrison’s rodeo career was placing fifth in the steer wrestling average at the 1974 Cheyenne (Wyo.) Frontier Days.

After a torn knee ligament that ended his nine-year football career, the Texas cowboy became instrumental in the U.S. Smokeless Tobacco and Winston sponsorships in ProRodeo and in the programs those sponsors provided – such as the Winston Scoreboard, sponsorships for individual cowboys and scholarships for college rodeo athletes.

Garrison went on to combine his stardom with football and rodeo to raise more than $4 million for multiple sclerosis with his Walt Garrison All Star Rodeos over the course of 20 years. His charitable involvement also included, at the time of his induction, serving on the board of directors for the Justin Cowboy Crisis Fund for over two decades.

“His first love was rodeo, no doubt, ever since he was really young,” said his son, Marty Garrison. “That’s what he would have done had he not played football in college and then got drafted by the Dallas Cowboys. His whole life, his love was rodeo.” 🐾

Billy Minick

Stock Contractor

Born January 10, 1939 in Fort Worth, TX

Billy Minick began his professional rodeo career in 1959, enlisting in the Rodeo Cowboys Association after winning titles in both high school and college. Minick qualified for the National Finals Rodeo as a bull rider in 1966. In 1968, Minick purchased the Harry Knight Rodeo Company from Knight and legendary entertainer Gene Autry. Gene gave Billy a piece of advice when he bought the company. "Don't be afraid to let them know you're having it. You can put them on – if you don't tell the people where you're at, it doesn't do any good." We use that today in managing Billy Bobs," said Minick.

The Billy Minick Rodeo Company produced top bucking stock, including the 1972 NFR top bucking horse Streamer and the 1973 NFR top bull Tiger. Tiger would also win Bull of the Year in 1974. Other famous stock in the Minick herd included bulls Mr. Bubbles and V61 and horses Lonesome, Crazy 1, and My Fair Lady.

Through the years, Minick helped to produce rodeos such as the Fort Worth (Texas) Stock Show and Rodeo, Rodeo Houston, the San Antonio Stock Show & Rodeo, the Santa Rosa Roundup (Vernon, Texas) and Cheyenne (Wyo.) Frontier Days.

His wife of 35 years, Pam, co-emceed the event, making the weekend even more special. "When they introduce you as the guy married to Pam, you live with it. She's the heartbeat of our business, (Billy Bobs

– the world's largest honkey tonk). We have more than 150 employees and she knows their names."

He was honored with the induction. "What's great – so many of my peers in the generation are in this hall – it makes you stop and think about it." The 79 year old only had one goal in mind for his life. "All I ever wanted to be was a cowboy." 🐾

Black Hills Roundup

Rodeo Committee

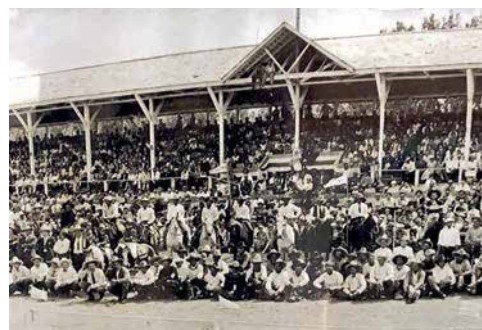

The Black Hills Roundup started when 15,000 people gathered in a field in Belle Fourche, S. D., to raise money for World War I in 1918. At the time, the population of Belle Fourche was 1,410. The next year marked the first time the rodeo took place.

The Black Hills Roundup is one of the oldest continuously held outdoor rodeos in the country. The rodeo has come a long way since its beginning as a ranch-style rodeo to the four-performance PRCA event with top-ranked cowboys and cowgirls.

The historic rodeo, which is 100 percent volunteer-run, also boasts that President Calvin Coolidge attended in 1927. The Black Hills Roundup is still one place where rodeo fans are treated to a live cowboy band. Large crowds continue to support the rodeo at the time of its induction, with an estimated 10,000-15,000 attending a parade during rodeo week in the town of about 6,000. That list includes more than 200 entrants to the parade.

"The board and committee put a lot of time and effort into it," said Black Hills Roundup Chairman, Clay Crago. "It's pretty special to us to see the recognition and get into the Hall of Fame." There were 36 people from the committee that came to enjoy the special weekend in Colorado Springs. "For our little town, which happens to be the geographical center for the United States, this gathering is a reunion for everyone to come back to town and celebrate." 🐾

With the 2018 class included, the ProRodeo Hall of Fame has enshrined 267 people, 34 animals and 29 rodeo committees

CHANGES IN TEAM ROPING

article by Dale Woodard

I have been roping in competition for over sixty years. I have seen a lot of changes in these years. Most of the changes are for the better. One of the drawbacks now is that they rope for more money and not just for the enjoyment of roping. In the old days it seemed like we roped to see if we could execute not just to see how much money we could win. When you win a pot now people say, "I heard you won a pot at such and such arena. How many teams did they have and how much money did it pay?" There are so many good changes that have happened in the team roping world to offset my opening heel box. When the steer was released this heel horse just flat ran away to the back end. When he got to the back end he made a left turn and ran back up the arena, all the while running wide open. Once the horse got back to the box the rider was able to regain control and get him stopped. My thought was, wow, that reminds me of the old days when guys would show up at the ropings on a bronc.

Another thing you don't see much of anymore is fist fighting at a roping. In the old days it was more of a common occurrence than it is today. But in Arizona this winter I did see a fist fight at a roping. These two guys were arguing and it was getting pretty heated. Finally one of them got down off of the fence and the fight was on. I was sitting on the fence just above where the action was taking place and I was holding on tight. God forbid that I would get so busy watching conversations and here are some of them.

One is that more ropers treat roping like a business. More ropers realize that drinking beer or hard liquor is counter-productive to performing at your highest level. No one that I know that is serious about getting better at roping drinks booze while they are practicing. Another is that the quality of horse flesh has improved. A friend of mine who is a rancher came to Arizona to visit me this past winter. After we had gone to about ten ropings he had an observation. He said of all of the horses we have seen at these ropings I only saw one horse kick up behind and none of them bucked. My comment was when you rope for as much money as they rope for here in Arizona, your horse better not buck, although I did see a horse run away with a heeler at one of these ropings. You could tell this horse was not happy in the

the fight that I would fall into the battle.

One of the combatants was sitting right next to me on the fence while they were arguing so I was picking up bits and pieces of the conversation from time to time. I could tell they were talking war so I didn't want to stick my nose into their business for obvious reasons. I just held my spot on the fence and listened. After the fight was over someone came up and asked me what these two men were fighting about. I told him they were fighting about what cowboys have been fighting about for years, money, horses and a woman. That my friends is something that has not changed over all of these years of my being involved in team roping and I doubt that it ever will. 🐾

*Thanks for the visit,
Dale*

Meet the Member

Wesley Aragon

by Naomi Loomis,
WSRRA Association Representative

You can't miss this cowboy from "The Cowboy State" LaGrange, Wyoming. He is a very aggressive ranch bronc rider and his get-it-done attitude is contagious. In fact, he is in the top 15 WSRRA Ranch Bronc Riders in the association and currently in sixth place in the Western States Ranch Rodeo Association Rookie race.

Wes, who has his eyes on a WSRRA Finals buckle, is hoping to become the 2018 WSRRA Rookie of the Year. "My goal for the 2018 year is to compete at the best of my ability and win Rookie of the year. But in the big scheme of it all is like to win a world title someday and help the WSRRA grow. I enjoy it when people ask me what the association is because it gives me a chance to broaden people's horizons and in courage others to gain more interest and maybe someday be involved."

Wes, his wife Alyssa and their three girls, Brylee(7),Aspyn (almost 2), and Emery (almost a month old) work on a ranch in LaGrange,Wy where they run a cow/calf operation and raise our calves to yearlings. Wes has been a cowboy all his life, growing up around cows and horses, helping dad, or helping friends and neighbors. He grew up on a ranch 30 miles north of Ordway, CO.

Wes hasn't also been in to bucking horse but a year ago, he got the wild hair.

Wes Aragon - Buffy Kelly Photography

"I got the idea to enter the amateur series in Hill City, South Dakota. I was riding saddle bronc and got a wild hair to give it a shot and instantly fell in love with it."

Being a rookie is exciting and also challenging and Wes has this to say about being a rookie, "Being a Rookie means that it's an opportunity for you to show everyone what you're about. First impressions are important. It's what everyone remembers and it's what sticks with them in years to come." Wes talked to me about being a rookie, "It has its moments where it can be intimidating, but it adds a certain amount of pressure to give you that push to help you improve over time. There are always things to change and improve upon but that comes with experience. You got to travel a lot and go the extra mile to compete at a higher level. I've had a lot of help from guys who have been to the finals and pointers along the way."

How does a rookie prepare for riding broncs? Wes tells me this; "besides getting on a lot of horses you should spend a lot of time in the saddle. The Wright Brothers once said "you gotta be a cowboy first before you can be a rodeo cowboy." I'm a firm believer in that. For me I spend a lot of time picturing that perfect ride. I watch a lot of videos of guys I'd like to ride like such as Justin Quint and Wesley Rosengreen. Even before I get on I focus on what I need to do to get as close to that perfect ride as possible."

Riding a ranch bronc is all about using your legs, your hands, and confidence. "In my opinion I think you have to incorporate both to ride broncs. Ask any bronc rider and they'll you "stay back and lift". If you can do that, you should be able to ride any horse. Your legs and feet with come later. Your legs have to stay loose and you need to be able to kick loose and stay in time with the horse. If you can do that you should be able to place on good horses and win on the best," says Wes.

Wes has been on the rodeo trail to figure out a few of his favorite ranch broncs. "Well this year isn't over and there's a lot of horses left to get on, but so far my favorite would have to be 94 Plain Jane of Bad Medicine, or 116 Petro of Derry Mayfield's. Both horses have a lot of drop and you can just sit back and let your feet fly. They're a lot of fun." Wes also have a bronc that he would like a rematch on, "I have my mind on #2 Blue Belle of Bad Medicine. I drew her at the 2018 Bronc Bash in Torrington, it started to be a really good ride, but then had some equipment failure. I've had my eye out for her ever since.”

Wes learned about the WSRAA when he was helping Wayne Larson with Bronc Bash in Torrington, Wyoming. “I got to watch the guys get on and it was then when I learned about the association and started following it more. I enjoy the WSRAA because of how large of an area it covers. It’s really neat to see guys from all over. It’s a close knit famil,” states Wes.

Wes explains five things that he takes on the rodeo trail. “Besides my saddle and gear bag, I always take a notebook. It helps me keep track of different horses I get on and to keep track of points I accumulate throughout the year. I drag along a cooler with food and after to help keep expenses down and I always make sure to have a bag of sunflower seeds with me,” he says.

Wes and I have the same opinion about ranch bronc riding. “If you’ve watched ranch bronc riding over the years, it has gained popularity whether it’s more contestants or spectators. People love watching wild rides and the elegance of bronc riding and Ranch Bronc riding is, in a whole, all of it. It’s become more popular and has gained more bronc riders thanks to more added prizes and money. It’s not just your everyday working cowboy anymore. It’s starting to carry itself in a more professional manner and I think that is its great virtue,” states Wes. The future of ranch bronc looks promising. “I think it’s going to keep growing. There’s a lot more guys that are starting out and are gonna give the top guys a run for their money. I think there’s gonna be more sponsors that are going to wanna take part and someday it’s going to be a class of its own,” he states.

Ranch bronc riding has a few challenges and Wes explains them, “For me the most challenging part is kicking loose. In order to score a lot of points you have to get your feet moving and be in time with the horse. Anyone can ride a bucking horse. However, there’s very few that can make it look good.”

Wes is looking forward to the Last Man Standing in Heppner, Oregon. “There’s going to be some of the top guys competing there along with some outstanding horses that will probably end up at the finals. Mix that win and a lot of points, added money and its gonna be the best of the best. Another one I’m excited for is the Ride a Horse, Feed a Cowboy in Hullett, WY. There’s going to be some really good powerful horses and it’s towards a good cause.”

Wes and I would like to add this, “It’s never too late to start. I hope to see more guys compete and more rodeos become involved in the WSRAA in coming years.”

Wes, on behalf of the WSRAA, good luck in the next coming months and we hope to see you at the 2018 WSRAA National Finals Rodeo in Winnemucca Nevada. 📷

Texas Bronc Rider's Association 2018 Finals Set for Last Weekend in September

story by Lori O'Harver

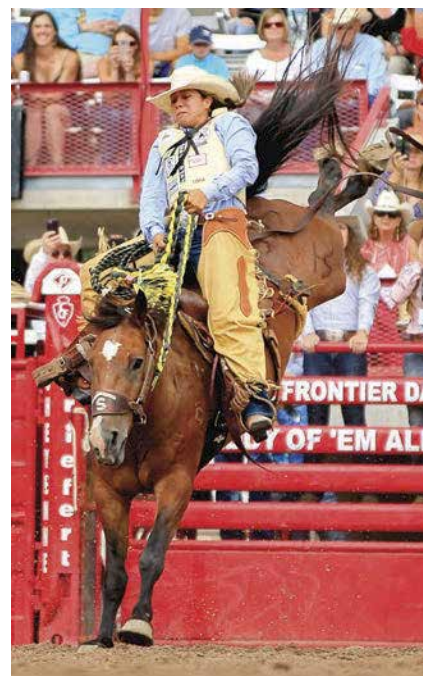

GLEN ROSE, Texas – “We’re thrilled to have the bronc riders back in town, but honestly? It’s the TBRA lady ranch bronc riders our community is most looking forward to having back. They’re just hard not to love,” said Kelly Harris of the Glen Rose Convention and Visitor’s Bureau.

The $20,000 added TBRA Finals III has expanded to three days; 7:30 p.m. performances on Friday and Saturday nights, September 28 and 29 and the 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, September 30. Bareback, saddle bronc, ranch bronc, ladies ranch bronc riding contests are a three head/average format. The $15,000 TBRA Scholarship Shoot Out is open to the world (members and non-members) and by invitation. Invitations are won by submitting a 500 word essay about yourself, your goals and commitment to the various sports of bronc riding nation. Contestant hopefuls should email essays to daryl@txbrncriders.com history, the venue is contestant, bucking horse and fan friendly. Surrounding events include the world famous Glen Rose Chili Cook-Off and concerts after each night performance.

“We’re proud and energized with the progress of the TBRA,” said Daryl McElroy, president, founder and visionary behind the association that provides more opportunity for contestants to hone their skills on their way to the pro’s, for contestants who need to stay a little closer to home to still have the opportunity to compete and for young bronc hands just learning their trades. “We have more visions we plan to bring to life as the association grows and we’re, of course, anxious to get those programs running, but looking back to the conversation between Michelle and myself that inspired us to get to work to start the TBRA, thanks to the support of great, visionary sponsors and partners who believed in the idea, we’ve come a long way. Having the opportunity to work with and meet so many great supporters of the bucking horse community has been an honor – one we are committed to doing justice to. We strive to make them proud to be involved with us.”

Road to Nationals

Follow 6 LHSRA members to the 2018 National High School Finals Rodeo

stories by Michele Toberer

Chris Ledoux once said, "It ain't the years boy, it's the miles," and miles on the road will definitely be what many of these Louisiana High School rodeo stars measure their summers by. Several of the LHSRA members have spent much of their time on the road this summer, and their light has been shining across the country at many major rodeo events between the LHSRA State Finals in Lake Charles, Louisiana and the National High School Rodeo Finals in Rock Springs, Wyoming. Louisiana has been represented well by these dedicated rodeo athletes and their families.

MACON MURPHY

Macon Murphy graduated from Central High School in Grand Cane, Louisiana just before the LHSRA state finals, and he is making the most of his time before beginning his studies in Ag Business at Panola College in Carthage, Texas once summer is over. Macon, the 2018 LHSRA Reserve Champion Tie-Down Roper, just ½ a point separating him and the champion, went home to practice roping calves in the evenings, after working for his father's fencing and haying business during the days. Macon not only works for his dad, KC; he also rides and trains horses for clients, so even as he practiced in the evenings, he worked on outside horses while the evenings were cool. After just a couple weeks at home, KC, Macon, and his 16-year-old sister Josie headed out for Gallup, New Mexico to compete at the Best of the Best Rodeo, one of the three largest youth rodeos of the summer. Macon and his dad switched off driving on the 17-hour trip, breaking up the travels by stopping for the night at a friend's in Canyon, Texas, giving his two horses, CP and Julian, a break from the trailer. All the miles traveled paid off in Gallup, as Macon won the 2018 Best of the Best Champion Tie-Down Roper title, bringing a saddle, certificates for Cinch jeans and shirts, an American Hat Co. cowboy hat, and about $4500 in cash back to the truck. They went straight back to Louisiana, using even his travels as practice for being a professional rodeo athlete one day. "You've got to be able to travel without stopping much and be used to not getting much sleep like the pros have to do." At home, they spent just a few days getting the horses and trailer ready to go again, this time with his mom, Julie joining them as they left for the Roy Cooper World Championship Jr. Calf Roping in Decatur, Texas. While at the Roy Cooper, Macon won 3rd in a round, also winning the fast time of the whole roping with a 7.4 second tie-down run. Later that night, Macon entered a UPR rodeo in Cooper, Texas and won 1st place and $2000 for roping his calf in 7.6 seconds. He and some friends went back to Roy Cooper's to practice after the rodeo, while his parents went on to Shawnee, Oklahoma to check his horses in for the IFYR. He traveled on to Shawnee the next morning, but luck of the draw wasn't with him at the IFYR. It was a 15-hour drive from Shawnee to Rock Springs, and Macon, KC and Julie shared time behind the wheel to get them there. Although he didn't have the success he hoped for in the NHSFR performances, he won a good amount of money at the high-stakes ropings that go on all week at the event.

GAVIN SOILEAU

Gavin Soileau, the 2018 LHSRA Champion Steer Wrestler, was not just satisfied with his win at the state level. Shortly after the state finals were over, he and his brother Grant, 16, left their Bunkie, Louisiana home and traveled 150 miles to Tom Carney's ranch in Bernice, Louisiana so that they could sharpen up their steer wrestling skills. After competing in several amateur rodeos and working on the basics at the Steer Wrestling 101 ranch, they left Bernice confident they were ready for the next competition they would attend. The boys and their father, Kent Soileau hauled two bulldogging horses and two haze horses traveling over 9-hours to Shawnee, Oklahoma to compete at the International Finals Youth Rodeo. Traveling on the road includes lots of sleep for the boys as Gavin and Kent switch driving while listening to old country songs. Luckily the boys like Johnny Cash as much as Kent does, so they don't have trouble picking a station. The IFYR proved to be a successful stop, as Gavin won a saddle, buckle, $3300, a year's supply of Cinch jeans and shirts, boots, a cowboy hat, and a Champion IFYR Steer Wrestling title. Grant made it to the short round in 4th place position but didn't have luck with his final steer. They spent 16-hours on the road, traveling caravan-style from Shawnee to Rock Springs, with 3 other rigs carrying friends headed the same way. After stopping a few times to walk horses and fix a couple tire blow-outs on one of the trailers, they made it to Rock Springs to check in for the NHSFR.

CLAY MCDANIEL

Graduating senior, Clay McDaniel and his partner Britt Buller were the 2018 LHSRA Reserve Champion Team Ropers after roping together for just this season. Clay, 18, spent four days a week practicing at Britt's arena in Kinder, Louisiana before leaving from his home in Deville, Louisiana to get to the USTRC roping in Guthrie, Oklahoma. Clay traveled with his mom, Shannon, who did most of the driving, and although he didn't have much luck in Guthrie, his luck turned back around once he arrived in Shawnee. Britt, 18, slept most of the 7-hours that his dad, Brad Buller, drove to Guthrie. While at the USTRC, Britt made some extra pocket cash, winning 3rd in the #13 and 3rd in the #12 jackpots. Clay and Britt traveled following each other's rigs for the next hour's drive to Shawnee, Oklahoma. At Shawnee, the team showed their stuff, roping their steers in 5.8, 5.9 and 6.6 seconds, securing the 2018 IFYR Reserve Champion Team Roping title. From Shawnee, Clay sent a horse and his truck back home with a friend; and his Aunt Lynn Waite pulled his horse and trailer with her truck on to Rock Springs. Britt and his dad followed along with them for the next 15-hour leg of the trip to the NHSFR. The boys did quite a bit of sleeping during this trip and only stopped if one texted the other that they were hungry, or to get the horses off the trailer for some water and exercise. Their main choices for stopping points were truck stops with grass or dirt areas to walk the horses.

BROOKLYN GUNTER

The Gunter family's road to national finals was all about "don't leave any man behind." Brooklyn Gunter, 17, will be starting her senior year at Sulphur High once her summer travels are complete. After finishing as the 3rd place pole bender at the LHSRA state finals on her bay mare Blaze, her sights were set on preparing for her trip to the IFYR and NHSFR this summer. She only had about 3-weeks after state finals to tune up Blaze, who she's been riding for 3 years, before, she joined her family of 8 in their motorhome to head west. Gabby Gunter, 15, is her younger sister and after missing part of the season due to an injury didn't qualify for the LHSRA state finals, but she was preparing her bay gelding, Dinero to compete at the IFYR. The girls, along with parents, Jason and Jessica, and sister Lexi, 19, Gabby, 15, William, 12, Presley, 9, Siena, 7, and Jesse, 6, pulled their trailer with the two horses, plus a friend's on their trip. They passed the time traveling to Shawnee, Oklahoma by playing Uno and Spoons, watching Netflix, and sleeping. Brooklyn shares driving responsibilities with her dad and takes it seriously, "I'm driving the big motorhome, pulling horses I love, and all of my family, it's a big responsibility, and much different than the Camaro I normally drive." Brooklyn's stop at the IFYR wasn't what she hoped for, but she was proud to watch her sister Gabby smoke three rounds in the poles, with a 19.5, 19.4 and 20.01, to win 2018 IFYR Pole Bending Championship. Gabby had a rough season trying to get with Dinero and was very grateful they came together at such a prominent competition. From Shawnee, they traveled along with three other families, taking nearly 24-hours getting there as they dealt with one complication after the next. One traveling partner's truck broke down, so they waited for him to buy a new truck rather than taking the time to fix his before moving on. Down the road, another traveling partner had a tire blowout on their trailer, followed by another blowout just 30-minutes later. The final rig traveling with them had mechanical trouble less than 2-hours before getting to Rock Springs. That group jumped in the Gunter's motorhome and they made it check-in at the NHSFR at 2:30a.m., just a few hours before check-in closed. The next day a few of the dads went back to repair the last vehicle and get it back to camp. They enjoyed many Cajun meals cooked by their dad Jason, including his specialty, Crawfish Etouffe, and shared with many. At the NHSFR Brooklyn was able to win the 1st round of pole bending with a 20.142, 2nd place in the 2nd round with a 19.952, and 3rd in the short round with a 20.008, finishing as the 2108 NHSFR Champion Pole Bender.

KAYLEE CORMIER

Kaylee Cormier graduated from Iowa High School, not long before winning the 2018 LHSRA Champion Goat Tyer title in her home town of Lake Charles, Louisiana, and she hasn't slowed down since. Not only did Kaylee spend quite a bit of time practicing, but she also competed in a 4-H State Cooking contest, winning 2nd place overall in the statewide competition with her Jasmine Rice and Shrimp recipe. She was glad to hit the road with her parents, Todd and Kasey, younger sister Karalee, and her grandma Charlene Carson. They left in their motorhome pulling a horse trailer with Rowdy, her breakaway horse and Benny, the LHSRA Horse of the Year that she uses for goat tying. The family drove 9-hours to get to Shawnee, where Kaylee competed in both breakaway roping and goat tying. Goat tying started off a bit shaky as she tied her first goat in 10.5 seconds, but she turned things around with a 7.2 in her 2nd round, and a 7.1 second short-go run that clinched the 2018 IFYR Champion Goat Tyer title. The family left for the drive to Rock Springs, which took about 20-hours, and passed the time listening to whatever country or oldie's rock radio stations they could get reception on. She and her dad's favorite song to sing along to was You and I, by Elise Testone. Food is something to look forward to on their trip because Kaylee's grandpa sent them off from Louisiana with three-weeks-worth of frozen meals prepared so that the family can easily thaw meals out to eat. Kaylee's favorite meals are her grandpa's Shrimp Etouffe, a cream-based sauce with vegetables and rice, and his special chuck roast. Every 4-5 hours, they find a stopping point with some grass and let the horses and the two practice goats out for some grazing and treats, making sure to exercise their legs. After arriving at Rock Springs, they set up their badminton net and ping-pong table so that they can enjoy time at camp. "My favorite thing about traveling is getting to see new places, meet new people and all the miles we get to travel together."

BAILEY MUDD

Bailey Mudd worked hard at the LHSRA state finals, coming in to finals in 7th place for her rookie season, but after catching every round and winning the finals average, she had secured a 3rd place finish and a spot on the national finals team going to Rock Springs, Wyoming, by the time it was over. The 14-year-old spent a few weeks practicing and preparing before she and her parents, Leslea and Bobby, along with her brother Bransyn, 8, and sister Marcie, 13, loaded up in the truck to haul her horse from Lake Charles, Louisiana to Decatur, Texas for the Roy Cooper roping. It was a caravan of approximate 10 rodeo rigs traveling that route together. Getting to Decatur was approximately a 4-hour drive, chauffeured by Bobby. While there, Bailey won the 15-and-Under Breakaway roping and won 2nd place in the 19-and-Under Breakaway roping, missing 1st by just a tenth of a second. They moved down the road to the IFYR, where Bailey roped her first calf in 3.9 seconds, but unfortunately missed her 2nd calf. From Shawnee, the caravan thinned down some as some turned back towards Louisiana and about 5 rigs now caravanned on to Rock

Springs. The family passed the time on this 15-hour leg of their trip by sleeping, talking and singing. They listen to a lot of 80's and 90's oldies and all join in to belt out the lyrics of "Don't Stop Believing," when it comes on. While traveling through Kansas, Bailey noticed a friend from Florida stranded on the side of the road, and they graciously loaded up Emily Turner's horse in their trailer, while Emily jumped in another truck in their pack, helping her get the rest of the way to Rock Springs. "It's scary to think that if we wouldn't have passed by, she may not have made it to nationals!" The group stopped at a 4-H arena in Lexington, Nebraska to break up the drive, and left the next morning after breakfast, finishing up the last 7-hours of their journey. "My favorite thing about the trip is all of the friends and family that came together and helped one another through it all;

families from Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Florida, Louisiana, all over, they check on each other and help any way they can." Although Bailey will be trying to catch up on some rest after the NHSFR, she won't have long because she'll be competing in Cody Ohl's World Junior Calf Roping Qualifier in Hamilton, Texas the first week of August, finishing the summer just in time to get back for her sophomore year at Grand Lake High School.

Meet the Member Angela Hudson

story by Michele Toberer

Angela Hudson is enjoying life as she runs her horse training business on the family land she grew up on and now calls Magnolia Farm. Angela grew up on the nearly 500-acre farm as the only child of Alton and Frances Johnson and stepped on to the path to her future as she received a horse for her 4th birthday. Angela spent her childhood on horses and dabbled in many disciplines showing at horse shows in every class possible. Angela entered her first rodeo when she was 15, and decided she wanted to focus more on barrel racing from then on. She has qualified for a rodeo finals almost every year since. "I'm grateful and thankful for all of the other disciplines I tried. It has helped me to be well-rounded, understand the mechanics of horses, and has tied in to my adult life, as I now give lessons and train horses."

After graduating from high school and college, Angela spent a year as Miss Rodeo Alabama in 2005, after winning both the interview and horsemanship portions of the competition. "I look back at the year I was Miss Rodeo Alabama and it was such a good experience." She dabbled in training and lessons throughout these years, but finally decided to make it a full-time business in 2008, "I bit the bullet and told myself 'I'm going to do this, I hope it works.' Of course I struggle like any entrepreneur, some months are great and some I squeak by, but it has been an incredible blessing." In 2008, Angela married Billy Hudson, who retired from the Army in 2013 and now works as a stock contractor for many SPRA and IPRA rodeos.

The SPRA was started in 2011, and Angela finished the year as the 2011 SPRA Champion Barrel Racer. Since then, she has been in the top 15 barrel racers of the association, qualifying for the SPRA season finals every year, but two "The SPRA has really grown over the past few years and it's always a tough barrel race. Their schedule allows me to stay closer to home or I can travel if I choose to. Currently, I'm in the top 5 and hope to stay close to that spot going in the finals in February. My main barrel horse, only finished horse, is an 11-year-old buckskin mare that I call Macy, registered AHH Mazing." Macy came to Angela on consignment, but after her husband rode her he talked her into purchasing the mare for herself. "She is fun to ride and makes it enjoyable for me, and at this point that is why I barrel race, because I thoroughly enjoy it."

Angela used to see how many rodeos she could enter each weekend, but her focus is now on her family and business, so she doesn't get to rodeo as much, which is just fine with her. The couple now focuses on their 8-year-old son Gage as he is starting to show and rodeo more. Angela won 6 APHA World Championships on a mare named Victoria Cardinale. "Gage has already outdone me and has 7 World Championships on two of her offspring, 12-year-old gelding, Sam Cardinale, and 11-year-old mare, A Sharper Cardinale."

Gage recently had lots of success at the NLBFR in Guthrie, Oklahoma, winning the NLBFR Little Wrangler Pole Bending Champion title, the all-around average at the finals and was named the 2018 NLBFR Champion Little Wrangler All-Around Cowboy. See his story on page 26. "I bred, raised, and trained those two horses, so to see my child be successful on them replaces any rodeo, any day."

Angela considers herself a self-taught rider and trainer, learning much of her techniques through trial and error. "Growing up I trained horses to make them work for me, but now my goal as a trainer is to make them work for everyone else." 🐾

Meet the Member Jacob Rounds

story by Lily Weinacht

Jacob Rounds from Saratoga Springs, New York, is sitting third in the APRA steer wrestling standings. The 24-year-old also team ropes, heading for Riggan Dailey, Shawn Quinn, or Jake Edwards, and enjoys both events equally. "I would say my talent level in team roping is probably higher right now—I've just grown up with a rope in my hand," says Jacob, who joined the APRA at 16 and won APRA Rookie of the Year Heeler. "My real dad was a bulldogger, and my uncle on my dad's side, so it's just bred into me. Darren Morgan hazes for me and I'm using Ty Rumford's bulldogging horse, so if he's around, we haze for each other.

"I can't really imagine what I'd be doing other than rodeoing. The only other thing I can think of is golf—I took the path of rodeo when I decided to rodeo in college and not do golf," Jacob explains. He started swinging a rope when he was 2 and went to AQHA Congress in elementary, about the time he started swinging a golf club. He played in the Junior Players Golf Academy and on his high school's golf team, and holds several records. But when Jacob came to a crossroads his senior year, the rodeo arena beckoned over the golf course. He competed on the Mesalands Community College rodeo team in New Mexico for four years and qualified for the CNFR in steer wrestling in 2015. Prior to that, he qualified for the NHSFR all four years times and competed there his junior and senior years in tie-down roping.

Jacob and Riggan Dailey team roped together in high school when Jacob heeled, but the friends switched ends when they roped together in college. They also backed into the box together at AFR 40. "Obviously, I look up to my mom, Jennifer Romriell, because she helped me get my horses, and I grew up going down the road with her and my step-dad. When I was younger, Roger Stockton and Carmine Nastri were 15 minutes away and both of them played a big part in my rodeoing all around. I also really looked up to Greg Bennet and Darren Morgan."

Also influential to Jacob's rodeo career are his horses. He rides a paint horse by the name of Paint, whom he trained up from a ranch horse eight years ago. "I've done pretty much everything on him and took him to college all four years, and I did three different events on him—both ends in team roping and then steer wrestling. I ride Ty Rumford's horse, Jade, in the bulldogging. Ty bought him in January and I started riding him at the end of May." Jacob ropes the dummy daily, and if his horses aren't scoring steers, they're helping Jacob's mom teach riding lessons. They make their home in the Adirondack Park in New York, just a few hours away from Painted Pony's rodeos in Lake Luzerne, New York, and Pond Hill in Castleton, Vermont. "We can go to four rodeos right here every single week," says Jacob, who shoes horses full time in between rodeos and also competes on the PRCA First Frontier Circuit. "I had a couple of rough weeks there before the Fourth, but ever since then it's been going pretty well in the steer wrestling and team roping. I'd like to get a year-end title. Next year I'm thinking about buying my IPRA card and trying to make the IFR, and trying to qualify for the RNCFR. I'd like to get one of both APRA year-end titles in my events for sure, and see where it goes from there." 📷

International Finals Youth Rodeo

Meet the Member Madison Outhier

story by Siri Stevens

Mike Outhier, four time International Finals Youth Rodeo All Around Cowboy (1993, 1994, 1995, 1996), is back at the IFYR with his daughter, Madison. Mike was inducted into the IFYR Hall of Fame in 2008, and this year he's not only helping his daughter, but he's helping behind the bucking chutes.

"I help a couple kids that I am helping out throughout the year in Texas," said the 40-year-old cowboy that competed in all three rough stock events as well as the calf roping. "It's great to be back— the IFYR was the biggest rodeo I'd ever been to my freshman year of high school. It's a prestigious event and to win it was great."

Mike competed from the age of 7 and got on a bronc just last year. Mike went to the International Finals Rodeo, winning the All Around in 1995, 1996 and 1997. He won the IFR bronc riding in 1997 and made the IFR in all three rough stock events as well as the calf roping. In 1995, he won all three titles. He made the National Finals Rodeo four years in the saddle bronc as well.

Mike was raised in Weatherford, Texas, and now lives in Utopia, Texas, where he raises and trains colts for his in-laws, Lou and Wanda Waters quarter horse operation – LA Waters Quarter Horses. He learned how to ride from his dad, Milburn Outhier, who trained the horse that Mike's daughter is competing on. Madi brought four horses to IFYR, her pole horse was ridden all four years by both of her dad's younger sisters at the IFYR at least 10 years ago. The 22-year-old is still running like he did years ago. Two of the horses they brought were raised and trained by her dad.

Madi came to her first IFYR when her dad was inducted.

"I was a baby – but I came back last year with my dad's mom to just watch and see the arena," said Madi. "I was excited to come this year. I'm entered in barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying and breakaway roping. I think it's awesome - I get to meet so many new people, especially at a rodeo like this. I love to travel with my friends at a young age. Traveling with your family keeps you close to them."

She has a younger brother, Ace, 10, who would rather fish and play basketball than rodeo.

Her mother, Kristy, the highest rated professional woman polo player in America, passed that passion along to her daughter.

"For polo, you ride an English saddle, running full speed, making contact with people, so it really helps with balance and horsemanship," said the straight A student. Madi loves math the best in school. "It comes easily to me, my grandpa is very good at math, and it got passed down."

She learned rodeo from her dad.

"He's really taught me how to be a humble winner and never take winning for granted. Just because you have a winning day doesn't mean you always will. He's been my only mentor in breakaway and I've had a bunch of success in that and I owe all of that to him."

Last year she won the Junior NFR in Vegas in the breakaway, also the Cody O'hl 15 and under and the Joe Beaver.

"I definitely thank my mom and dad – anywhere I want to go, they take me. Rodeo is a great family sport, we travel together and are together all summer long. A lot of families don't have that opportunity – we're on the road trying to keep getting better." 📷

Chase Thrasher

story by Lindsay Whelchel

Chasing cattle from the back of a horse is no doubt in the blood of one Tennessee cowboy, but it's also in his name. Chasen Thrasher who goes by Chase, comes from a family of timed-event cowboys.

He got his start growing up in Columbia, Tennessee.

"My dad and my grandad both rodeoed, and they both roped calves. Dad trained calf horses in AQHA when I was growing up. I just have kind of always been a part of it. It's always been the timed-eventing," he describes.

["My dad and my grandad both rodeoed, and they both roped calves. Dad trained calf horses in AQHA when I was growing up. I just have kind of always been a part of it. It's always been the timed-eventing,"]

Chase quickly moved through the ranks of high school rodeo, beginning his junior year and making nationals in the calf roping and steer wrestling where he won Rookie All-Around at State and then qualified for Nationals. His senior year, Chase won State in the steer wrestling and Reserve in the calf roping, and though he qualified for Nationals, he was already busy on the road in his rookie year in the International Professional Rodeo Association.

After high school Chase joined the rodeo team at UT Martin and studies farm and ranch management. If he isn't rodeoing full time, Chase would like to pursue a career training horses or managing a ranch. As far as rodeo goes, the 2017-2018 school year was a busy one, for Chase's freshman year. Outside of school work, he also qualified for his first International Finals Rodeo for the 2017 season which took place in Oklahoma City this past January, 2018.

"It was definitely probably the biggest stage I've roped on. The high school finals were a big stage, but there were 200 of us. [At the IFR] was [only] 15 of the best calf ropers there. I thought it was a lot tougher," Chase says.

The 2018 IPRA season is off to a strong start for Chase. He's leading the standings so far after a successful early start to the year with wins at the Lonestar winter rodeos such as Bowling Green, Kentucky. In recent months, he has been busy on his summer run in the IPRA.

Chase would like to thank his parents, Daryl and Tabby, and grandparents, Lane and Peggy, and the rest of his family for their support, as well as his fellow IPRA members, his hauling partners, the Matthews family and John Beckwith.

Keep your eye out for this young cowboy as he is on track for his second IFR qualification and possibly his first world championship. It will all be decided this coming January 18-19-20, 2019 at the Oklahoma State Fair Arena in Oklahoma City. 📱

Meet the Committee Yukon FFA Rodeo

story by Lindsay King

The options were either sell cookie dough or host a rodeo as a fundraiser for the Yukon Ag Booster Club in Yukon, Oklahoma.

Kicking off in 2000, the annual Yukon FFA Rodeo just celebrated its 18th year. The event supports local 4-H and FFA activities. "This is the biggest fundraiser of the year for our kids. This helps send them to state and national conventions and events throughout the entire year," said Sabrina Buller, longtime member of the parent's booster club. Buller has served on the rodeo committee for the past seven years. "This has become a staple event in the community. This is how we kick off the entire school year and say goodbye to summer," she said. Held August 3-4 this year, the rodeo brought fans of all ages from Yukon and the surrounding towns.

"We are less than 20 minutes from Oklahoma City and located right on Route 66. There is plenty to do around here before the rodeo starts." Of course once it does, more than 3,000 loyal fans fill up the stands between both performances. Contestants have the added benefit of the central location, making it easy to get to and from more than one rodeo each night. Though some of the kids of the booster club have competed in the past, most are behind the scenes. "They do everything from helping with the livestock at the rodeo to cleaning up the grounds, working concessions, selling programs, parking cars, they are involved in all aspects of the rodeo really," Sabrina described.

The stock have always been brought in by Rusty Morland of the Rockin' R Rodeo Company. Rusty was the brains behind the idea to hold a rodeo. "Rusty has been here from the very beginning. He suggested holding a rodeo and has been an amazing partner ever since. He is truly in it for the kids, which is what makes the rodeo what it is," Sabrina said. Every year the committee discusses places for improvement, a meeting Rusty contributes to and then helps implement the changes. "If he finds a hole in our show, he is always more than willing to seek out the best of the best in the industry so we can put on a good show for our community."

"The last few years we have had rodeo clown Mike "Goobie" Smith, he has been a hit. We could not ask for much better. The community really seems to enjoy him a lot." Another tradition in Yukon is the Sweethearts of the Rodeo, an Oklahoma-based equestrian drill team. Outside of the arena, kids can find entertainment before the show in the Corral Corner where they can brush up on their corn hole, ring toss, calf roping and much more. Rusty also brings sheep to the rodeo for the mut-ton busters looking for a bit of action on the arena floor.

["This is the biggest fundraiser of the year for our kids. This helps send them to state and national conventions and events throughout the entire year."]

Sabrina works for Work Force Oklahoma helping young adults find the job of their dreams. Her time with the booster club was her first opportunity to get her hands dirty in rodeo as more than just a spectator. "There have been a lot of good people before me who did an excellent job of training and preparing the next group of volunteers," she said. Though the turnover rates of parents and kids is high because of graduation and new members, there is never a shortage of helping hands. "We have a good core group of parents who have been involved with this long after their kids aged out of it. And then Rusty is an invaluable asset to the group. He'll drop just about anything to answer my questions and help out any way that he can."

This year's rodeo had radio station Hank FM broadcast live with the Hank Tank doing giveaways from the fairgrounds before the rodeo kicked off. For more information, visit <https://www.yukonffarodeo.com>

INGREDIENTS:

1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup Dutch process cocoa
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon sea salt
2 large eggs, room temperature
1/4 cup unsalted butter, melted and slightly cooled
1/4 cup canola, vegetable oil, or melted coconut oil
3/4 cup packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1-1/2 cups packed shredded zucchini
1 cup semisweet chocolate chips, divided

Chocolate Zucchini Bread

DIRECTIONS:

1. Preheat your oven to 350°F. Grease a 9-by-5-inch loaf pan with nonstick cooking spray and set aside.
2. In a medium bowl, whisk together the flour, cocoa powder, baking soda, and sea salt. Set aside.
3. In a large bowl, add the eggs, melted butter, oil, vanilla extract, and brown sugar. Stir until smooth. You might have a few small brown sugar clumps and that is fine.

4. Stir the dry ingredients into the wet ingredients, don't overmix. Stir in the shredded zucchini until just combined. Stir in 3/4 cup of the chocolate chips.

5. Pour batter into prepared pan. Sprinkle the remaining 1/4 cup of chocolate chips over the top of the bread. Bake for 50-60 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted into the center of the bread comes out mostly clean, you might have some melted chocolate chips on the toothpick and that is fine. You just don't want a lot of gooey batter.

6. Remove the pan from the oven and set on a wire cooling rack. Let the bread cool in the pan for 15 minutes. Run a knife around the edges of the bread and carefully remove from the pan. Let the bread cool on the wire cooling rack until slightly warm. Cut into slices and serve. 🍴

1/2 tsp black pepper
3/4 tsp. celery salt
3/4 tsp. garlic salt
breadcrumbs
cayenne pepper to taste

NO KNEAD BREAD

INGREDIENTS:

3 cups all purpose or bread flour
1/2 tsp. yeast (active dry or instant)

1 tsp. salt
1 1/2 cups hot water, not boiling (about 2 T extra flour for shaping)

DIRECTIONS:

1. Combine flour, yeast and salt in a large bowl. Stir in water until it's well combined.
2. Cover with plastic wrap and let stand at room temperature for 3 hours.
3. After 3 hours dough will become puffy and dotted with bubbles. Transfer it to a well-floured surface and sprinkle dough with a little flour. Using a scraper, fold dough over 10-12 times & shape into a rough ball.
4. Place in a parchment paper-lined bowl and cover with a towel. Let stand on counter top for about 35 minutes.
5. Meanwhile, place Dutch oven with lid in a cold oven and preheat to 450° F.
6. When oven reaches 450° carefully, using oven gloves, lift the parchment paper and dough from the bowl and place gently into the hot pot. (parchment paper goes into the pot too) Cover and bake for 30 minutes.
7. After 30 minutes, remove lid and parchment paper. Return, uncovered, to oven and bake 10-15 minutes more. 🍴

There were no rodeo clowns in the earliest rodeos. But once the audience was charged admission, producers became concerned that the spectators be entertained. At first, cowboys were picked randomly and asked to keep the audience entertained. A few were good at it, and enjoyed the laughs they received. They became the first rodeo clowns.

The 22nd Rodeo Clown Reunion was held July 27-29 at the Fort Worth Stockyards. 50 clowns from 15 states and one Canadian province joined together to swap stories and entertain the crowd at the Stockyards at the National Day of the Cowboy weekend. The clowns have a total of 998 years in the arena - as a bull fighter, barrel man or laugh getter and most of them did it all. Thanks to Gail Woerner for putting on this wonderful event. 🐾

LITTLE RICHIE

CO-CREATING WITH GOD

article by Crystal Lyons

It kinda amazes me how you can read something multiple times and never see what's right in front of your face. I experienced this again, just the other day. We're pretty much all aware of the creation story where God spoke and it became. And then He created mankind in His own image and likeness, therefore making us little creators also. Throughout the Word, it tells us that death and life are in the power of the tongue and James goes as far as saying that our words are like rudders that direct a ship or bits in horses mouths to direct their path. We're the ONLY creation on the entire face of the earth with the ability to form ideas into speech. Why? Because our speech creates! We are made that way....in the image of God the ultimate Creator.

OK, now to share what I never saw before. In Gen. 2:19 it didn't say that God spoke and the animals and birds became. It says God FORMED the animals and the birds and then brought them each one to Adam to see what he would call them. Whatever Adam named them, that's what they were called. Name denotes nature, so when Adam named them, he was calling their nature into existence as well. Why is this significant? If God had SPOKEN the animals into existence, there would've been nothing more to add. ALL would've been complete and sealed. So God FORMED them and remained silent so that He could enjoy His most magnificent creation, mankind, co-creating with Him! There was nothing disturbing Adam's relationship with His Creator at that time and so mankind and God enjoyed perfect fellowship walking through life and co-creating TOGETHER. That's how God MADE this world to operate! Man and God walking together and creating LIFE on earth as it is in heaven.

So, why is this point so incredibly important? Because...though Adam fell and thus gave the devil an entrance into this earth....the way we are wired by God has NOT CHANGED! We are STILL built to co-create!! But now the question remains, WHO are we going to co-create with? We are wired to create with our intentions expressed through speech. So the question is, with whom are we agreeing with? Amos 3:3 says basically, how can two walk together except they be in agreement. When we vocalize, is it from a standpoint of agreeing with God's intentions or Satan's? God STILL DESIRES those He can communicate with so as to co-create in this world LIFE instead of death, HOPE instead of disparity, BEAUTY instead of ugliness!

My thoughts to you are, in whatever this life brings your way, whether by God or by Satan or simply by life itself....what are you calling it?? God is waiting to hear what we say about something to see if it's agreeable with His purpose in the earth so that He can co-create with us and cause what we say to come to pass. OR, is our words going to be more in line with the plans of the enemy as we speak out of frustration and despair words that God cannot agree with, therefore we co-create with Satan's intentions instead of God's! There's simply no way around the fact that we WILL co-create with SOMEONE in all that we say! We can't change the way we're wired. Who are we creating with? What are we saying as life comes before us?

YOU AND I ARE FAR MORE POWERFUL THAN WE REALIZE! 🍌

RN MARKETING

She's gone from May through October working for various rodeo committees, but when she's back home she keeps us supplied in stories through the winter. Lindsay King is another name that is an old family friend. I used to babysit her! Lindsay has a fulltime job now Assistant Editor at American Angus Association but is still doing a little writing for Rodeo News. Lindsay Whelchel has been writing for the IPRA for several years, and Michele Toberer is a recent add on to the team and we are very excited about that, along with Shiley Blackwell. And I cannot forget our great video guy, Chuck Coon, who always comes up with the BEST content for our social media. It takes a village to make this magazine work and I am so grateful that we can provide you with stories and photos from across the nation. 🇺🇸
