BRUISES AND THE MYTH OF TIME

article by Mark Eaton

There are bruises on my feet, shins, all over my thighs, neck, hips and arms. My elbows are bruised as well as my back and rear-end. As I sit here I am not a pretty sight. And I ache.

The cause is Judo. Yep. That sport of post Samurai Japan that took hold in 1882 and in 1964 became an Olympic sport in Tokyo.

I was 16 years old when I took up Judo in Japan. I engaged it with a vigor and passion I have known only a few times. Now today, after a 45 year sabbatical, I am training again. Yep, with the 19 and 25 years olds. Amazingly, my rank still counts although my movement resembles the speed of flowing honey. I have some unfinished business to take care of for that one last belt.

All you former bulldoggers and calf ropers who are team roping now, feel free to laugh. I'll wait. Be sure to get it all out.

The interesting thing as I am telling Susie about the last few sessions is that there is a story associated with each bruise. An attempted hip throw here. An arm throw there. A foot-sweep or sacrifice throw here. A blocked shoulder throw. This bruise is when I almost got choked out. This one is when the other guy blocked me and we collided hard. You may say: "this limp is from that bull in Houston" or "my missing thumb helps pad the arena in Cheyenne."

Win or lose they are Glory Stories. I found myself smiling when I told her about the bigger ones with schoolboy enthusiasm and animation. My face was grimacing when the bruise happened, but oddly I smiled when we talked this morning.

Bruises, of course, are not allotted only to the body. Bruises of the heart act very much the same only they heal differently. Contrary to popular myth, time does not heal heart bruises.

That myth makes them go deeper and spread further. We tend then to pile clichés on the tender place. Try to ignore them or silence them. We try to protect the unseen wound by avoidance. We set boundaries around it to not get hurt again and hope it goes away.

Yet, in reality, it remains. Life gets piled on top and new memories cover it. Like remodeling a bedroom without fixing the dry rotted flooring beams. The hurt is still there, but it is covered in hopes of forgetting about it. We all know that doesn't work.

Heart Bruises can become our friends. We must look at them. Study them. Wonder about them. We need to know why one thing hurts and why the same blow at another time from another person did not hurt. Making friends with our bruises leads us to honestly move forward and not just cover up. It leads us to authentically grow as we let them tutor us.

Heart Bruises have a story to tell. Show me your bruises and I ask you for the story. Once we are friends and no longer ashamed and want to hide them, they make great stories. We have learned and matured from them. We don't flinch when someone touches that once tender heart spot. We remember the blow we took and can talk about it warmly. Without anger, blame or shame we are even glad to show them and call them 'beauty marks'. They are a source of wisdom, reminders of life's hard fought battles and a comfort to those who may be currently wounded. The story of our heart bruises can become strength for someone else.

What once caused pain can be something that gives life. It hurt when it hit. But not now. Not because of time, but because we have looked at it. We made friends with it. We don't flinch when someone gets close to it. We have grown. The bruises have helped. They are proof of the epic lesson.

What once hurt us can heal others now, and we no longer blink when we see a bruise on someone else. Thanks Judo for the reminder. However, right now I wonder where Susie put the ibuprofen? 🙏

ENJOY THE JOURNEY

[ The best thing you can take to the next rodeo is to be winning the one you have just left ]

article by Stran Smith

One of my dad's heroes was Toots Mansfield. For you young guys, Google him. You need to know. Dad reflects a lot about conversations with Toots, and one of his favorite quotes from him is, "The best thing you can take to the next rodeo is to be winning the one you have just left." Everyone that rodeos, understands that statement. Toots is absolutely right. The feeling leaving a rodeo when winning or losing is like the difference in night and day. From my experiences, I feel like I left the rodeo at best less than half the time with that good feeling from winning.

As Paul Harvey would say, here's the rest of the story. What keeps me going the rest of time, comes from the Book of Philippians 3:13-14. It is so good. Paul says, "Brothers and sisters, I know that I have not yet reached the goal, but there is one thing I always do. Forget the past and strain toward what is ahead, I keep trying to reach the goal and get the prize for which God called me through Christ..." When God gives you a passion, I believe it's a calling on your life. The rodeo life is not easy, but nothing in life is easy. Enjoy the Journey. Don't get so busy trying to make a living that you forget to make a life. 🐾

Until next time, God Bless and I'll see you down the line.

BUILDING YOUR CONFIDENCE

[ "Build that confidence and we will see you at the pay window. Prepare, practice perfect and you can reach all of your goals! Shoot for the Stars and Follow your Dream!" - Martha Josey ]

article by Alissa Burson

Being able to cross the timer line, leave the roping box or step off of your horse with the mindset that you will succeed is a skill that must be perfected for any equine discipline. A positive mind frame is essential to be a top contender in any event. If you allow negative thoughts to creep up in your game plan, you have already begun to prevent yourself from performing to the best of your abilities. Confidence may not come naturally to everyone, but it can be developed. In order to lay the foundation for your success in the arena, it must start with your attitude and mindset. Positive mindset cannot be stressed enough.

With the many variables a rodeo contestant is up against such as cattle, ground, weather conditions and miles traveled, winning may not always be in your control. How you react to a loss or a bad draw sets you up for the next run. The people who tend to take the "why me" outlook usually tend to continue down the trail of unsuccessful runs. If you say something such as "I can't" you have prevented yourself from entering the arena with the riding to win mentality already.

The best weapon you have against nerves is preparation. When the USA Olympic Rodeo Team competed in Calgary, Canada in 1988, they knew going in that they were prepared and their preparation allowed them to win! Preparation for your event starts months in advance to your run. It's proper conditioning for you and your horse, a good feeding program and perfect practice. If your runs tend to fall apart at home when you add speed, it may be best to stay home until you can make good consistent runs at home. Many people will wait until the show to add more speed and that can blow not only your horse's confidence but yours as well. If you will slow yourself down at a show and ride your horse consistently at the same speed you are training at home, then you will have a much better outcome. Once a horse is running consistently at shows you will probably not need to make competitive runs at home anymore.

The key to building confidence in young riders is to provide them with the right horse. Over-mounting a young or inexperienced rider not only prevents them from learning, but can be dangerous and detrimental to their riding career. The right "kid" horse should be well patterned and controllable. Providing the youth rider with a professional trainer experienced in teaching novice riders is also important.

Having the right equipment also makes things much easier when trying to compete. A good saddle that fits the rider and the horse can make a rider much more comfortable and allow them to be in the correct position. When the saddle is too big it allows a rider to be thrown forward which permits a horse to drop its shoulder in events like barrel racing while in roping it can cause a person to get behind leaving the box making it harder to get up and rope correctly. Too small of a saddle is not good because you need to be able to push on your saddle horn. If your horn is too close, you have a tendency to pull your weight forward instead of pushing back. A saddle fitting a horse is just important as fitting the rider. An ill fitting saddle can cause pressure points or pinching which prohibits a horse from moving freely or turning smoothly. The next piece of equipment is proper head gear. The wrong or improperly fitted bit can cause a horse to work poorly while not enough bit can allow a horse to get out of control and away from the rider. When trying to build confidence having a horse with good control is needed. It is always best to seek a professional to help fit a horse with the proper head gear that also fits that specific rider's hands. In a sport where time is critical, a horse that underperforms by even two tenths of a second can make the difference in placing or not.

Martha Josey 11x NFR qualifier believes so strongly that the right equipment and ability to practice perfect are part of the tools needed to make competitive, confident runs. She and RE Josey developed clinics to teach strategies to help other riders achieve this. The Josey's designed their schools and clinics to help riders find the correct bits, understand saddle fit, learn how to make practice count and achieve a positive, winning mindset. Proper attitude, perfect practice, correct equipment, competent instruction along with the proper care of your horse is what will help build you and your horse into a confident, winning team.

One of Martha's favorite things to tell students is "Build that confidence and we will see you at the pay window. Prepare, practice perfect and you can reach all of your goals! Shoot for the Stars and Follow your Dream!" 🌟

ON THE TRAIL WITH ROSCOE JARBOE

Bull Riding Champion of the 2017 San Antonio Stock Show & Rodeo

story by Ruth Nicolaus

Roscoe Jarboe is “the Rock.” Or at least, that’s what his dad used to call him. When the number five bull rider in the PRCA’s world standings was a little boy, his favorite WWE wrestler was the Rock. His dad would walk through the house, asking if anybody could smell what the Rock was cookin’. And he’s cooked himself up a great start to a rodeo career.

The New Plymouth, Idaho bull rider won the 2016 Resistol Rookie of the Year award, plus qualified for his first Wrangler NFR last year.

He’s been preparing to ride bulls since he was a kid, traveling with his dad, Bo Jarboe, as Bo rode bulls in the Columbia Circuit.

“He cut his teeth (on bull riding) when he was a baby,” Bo said. “I used to load him up in the pickup when I went to rodeos, and it’d be just me and him. Well before he knew what was going on, he was at rodeos.”

Bo rode bulls till about 2000, when Roscoe was four years old, and then he and his then-wife Miss (short for Melissa) built an arena and bucking chutes on his place outside of New Plymouth. They made sure their son had whatever he needed: first calves, then steers, mini-bulls, and bulls.

At New Plymouth High School, Roscoe was in FFA and 4-H and showed pigs. He wrestled and rodeoed, competing in the Idaho High School Rodeo Association his freshman year, and then in the Oregon High School Association his sophomore and junior years. He finished as reserve state champion bull rider in 2012 and 2013, his sophomore and junior years, winning the average his junior year and finishing eleventh in the nation at the National High School Finals Rodeo in 2013.

His senior year Roscoe went pro, getting his PRCA permit that year. He turned 18 in April of 2014, but chose to spend two years as a permit holder before he got his card and entered his rookie year. "I wanted to get the experience, to figure out the rough patches, what rodeos to go to, and what rodeos not to go to," he said.

For him, rodeo is not just the eight seconds on a bull. The sport is ninety percent mental, Jarboe believes. "Most of us are in good shape to ride bulls, and we work out, but mainly we're working on our minds." Riding bulls is like riding a bike; a person doesn't forget how to, Jarboe said, but staying confident is important. "We just have to keep our minds positive; it's a mind game. We read

Idaho. "We don't talk about it till we get in the car, then we have our words, and everybody has their own opinions, and we usually get something productive out of our conversations. There's no negativity in the car."

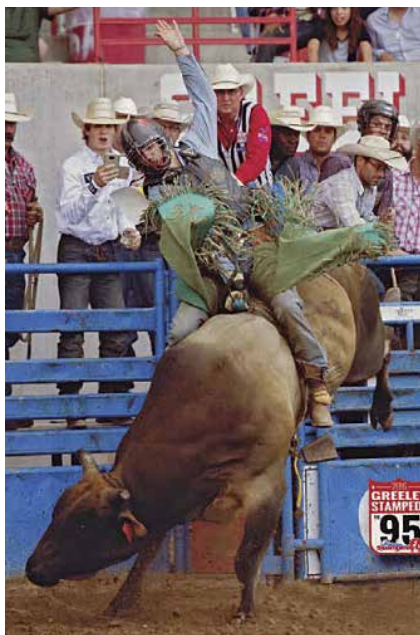

Roscoe and Brady have known each other since they were kids; their dads rodeoed together, and Brady remembers going to the practice pen with Roscoe. "We picked up horn tips, and thought we were cool," he said.

This year has been Roscoe's best year of rodeo. As of press time, he was ranked fifth in the world standings and had $87, 455 won. After competing at his first WNFR and finishing his first year of pro rodeo, his books (about mental psychology), and all we have to do is stay positive."

His traveling partners help. He travels with Dalle Mason, Brady Portenier, and Chase Robbins, and the four keep each other going. "It's cool because we're all really good friends, and say we get bucked off," said Portenier, who is from Caldwell, maturity and confidence shows. "I'm just having fun this year," he said.

Part of that fun is being more relaxed on the road. With his paycheck from the WNFR, he bought a motorhome. He and his buddies are "taking it easy this year, and having fun with what we do." They sightsee when they have time, taking in Mt. Rushmore and other places, and they bowl and golf. "We're being kids," he said. Golfing is big for him and his buddies. "We golf all the time. That's like another job for me. It's so relaxing to just get out there and hit some balls."

His biggest win this year was at the San Antonio Stock Show and Rodeo, where he won the finals on D&H Cattle Company's Sweet Pro Bruiser, scoring 91 on the bull. It was a bull he would love to get on again. "He'd be good to get on any time. You don't want to miss the opportunity to get on that bull."

Last year, Roscoe's biggest win was Cheyenne Frontier Days, when he covered all three of his bulls, won the second round, finished fourth in the finals, and won the average with 246 points on three head.

Jarboe didn't let nerves get to him at his first WNFR, even though it was everything and more than he expected. "Everybody tells you it's just another basics better than a lot of guys, and does them well. When he gets into those wild positions, he's able to fall back to the basics, and go to home base, and doggone ride them."

His buddies have named it "the noodle." "He noodles them," Portenier said. "He can get into a really bad position, to where most guys would quit or plain not have the ability to get back in the middle. But Roscoe seems to do it more than not. Everybody has that one time when they're hanging off to the side and can wiggle back, but I've seen Roscoe do that quite a bit."

His dad Bo, and his mom, Miss, divorced when he was 16. His dad travels rodeo," he said. "When you get there, it's a lot bigger than that. But once you get behind the bucking chutes, you can't see the crowd and the lights aren't too bright, and it's just another rodeo. You focus on riding your bull." He covered his first two bulls, but regretted not riding more. When the WNFR was over, he wished there were more bulls to ride. "I could have gone a couple more rounds, but that's because I was disappointed in how I finished."

He has several nice buckles, including one from his Cheyenne Frontier Days win in 2016 and one from round two of the WNFR, but he wears a buckle he won in 2011 showing pigs at the Payette County Fair. He was grand champion two years in a row, and loved showing pigs. "It was a good experience because you had to raise an animal and treat them as you want to be treated. Pigs have a personality of their own. They're probably one of my favorite animals." He doesn't wear his good buckles, not wanting to scratch them.

Roscoe's younger sister, Harli Jo, is the pig showing expert in the family. She's won grand champion several years in a row. The 16-year-old is graduating from high school a year early to move on to college. "My kids achieve what they set out to do," Miss said. "They work very hard for their goals. The best thing is they are very humble about it."

Roscoe has his own style of bull riding. "Everyone likes to talk about how he's got some crazy wild style," Portenier said, "but when you break it down, he does the

for his job, and if the rodeo is close, will drive seven or eight hours to watch him ride. Roscoe's style of riding isn't like his dad's. "He's got his own style," Bo said. "It's a really strange style that works for him. I wish he would change it up just a little bit so his body lasts for a while. But the more time goes, he may change it up."

He and fellow bull rider Garrett Tribbles were neck and neck for the Resistol Rookie race all year. Both qualified for the Wrangler National Finals, but Roscoe edged out Garrett at the end of the season by over $20,000. Robbins, Roscoe's traveling partner, finished third in the Resistol race.

He's ready for this year's Wrangler NFR. Last year didn't go as he wanted. "I started getting down on myself, and that's the worst place to do it, at the (National) Finals." This year he'll know what to expect. "It's still nerve-wracking when you get there, but I'll feel like I've been there and done that."

Roscoe has qualified for and competed at the Columbia River Circuit Finals twice and competed at the PBRs early in his career.

He's ready to repeat what he did last year, when he was on a roll. "It's hard not to win when you can't fall off. There are ups and downs (in bull riding), but when you get one rode, you just roll with it, and let it happen till it starts not happening anymore."

"I try to keep my head focused and do what I'm supposed to do." 🐾

Don Reichert Joins NIRA Alumni Board

story by Sharon Adams

South Dakotan, Don Reichert, is the new member of the Board of Directors of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association and he brings a lifetime of experience with rodeo at every level.

In 1959, Don was 14 and when he started riding bulls in Lee Crowser's practice pen and from there he went on to championships in regional high school rodeos and in the Northwest Ranch Cowboys Association and the South Dakota Rodeo Association. Don traveled with his brother Duane (Rodeo Clown and Bull Fighter) in the mid 1960s and rodeoed from Canada to Texas and Colorado to Michigan helping Duane with clown acts.

Don won the bareback riding at the Jackrabbit Stampede at South Dakota State College (now University) in 1964. From 1966 to 1968 he won numerous all-around, bareback riding, and bull riding championships in the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Great Plains Region rodeos. He also competed in the saddle bronc riding and wrestled steers, winning the steer wrestling at the Jackrabbit Stampede in 1967. He was Great Plains Region All-Around Champion in 1966 and 1967; Bull Riding Champion in 1966, 1967, and 1968; and Bareback Riding Champion in 1966. He competed in three College National Finals Rodeos, winning the National Bull Riding title in 1966 and 1968. He was the NIRA Student Manager for the Great Plains Region from 1967 to 1968.

Don filled his PRCA permit in 1968 and competed in many PRCA rodeos in the Badlands Circuits and surrounding states, riding bulls until the fall of 1984. He was the first person to make a qualified ride on Sutton's unriden Booger Red (five years in the bucking string) winning the bull riding at the Corn Palace Stampede in Mitchell in 1971. He competed in the Circuit Finals in 1978, 1979, and 1981. From 1980 to 1984 Don served as Badlands Circuit Manager and was named Outstanding Member in 1980. His wife, Pat, was given a Badlands Circuit Special Award in 1984 for her service to the circuit.

Don worked with Jim Thompson and South Dakota Public Television as Color Commentator for the early 1980's to the mid 1990's for their broadcasts of the South Dakota State University Jackrabbit Stampede, South Dakota State High School Rodeos and the National High School Rodeo in Rapid City. He announced the on-air broadcast of the Nebraska State High School Rodeo in Burwell.

In April, 2016, Don was honored at the South Dakota Buckles and Bling fund raiser as the only two-time national champion from SDSU. Also in 2016, he was one of the honorees at the 27th Annual Casey Tibbs Foundation Tribute Dinner at the Casey Tibbs Rodeo Center in Ft. Pierre.

After graduating from SDSU in 1968, Don taught Vocational Agriculture at Geddes, SD for three years and then joined the Land O'Lakes Feed Division. In 1982, he became a National Accounts Sales Manager for Land O'Lakes Animal Milk Products Division and retired in 2012 after 41 years with the company.

In an interview with Matt Schmidt for the SDSU alumni magazine Don urged young people to go to college and join the rodeo club. He said "I learned to thrive on a challenge when I rodeoed. When I had a tough sales call, I would think of it as facing an unriden bull. That would give me the determination to figure out how to accomplish the sale."

Don, in a statement about joining the Alumni board said "It is an honor to be a member of the board of directors of the NIRA Alumni and support college rodeo.

The NIRA brings together past participants and anyone interested in college rodeo. At the 2017 reunion during the College National Finals most of the honorees stated that college rodeo was the reason they completed their advanced education. This experience enhanced their lives and the lives of others.

As a board member my objective will be to increase alumni membership and obtain more scholarships. Anyone interested in promoting college rodeo may become an alumni member, not just past NIRA members. I encourage you to join now."

Don and wife Pat have four children and six grandchildren who live near them in the Sioux Falls area. He is enjoying time with his grandchildren and has recently taken up metal sculpture, specializing in rodeo silhouettes, of course! 🐾

SLOTTED

article by Crystal Lyons

I have this mental system. Whether it's a right thing to do or not, I'm not entirely sure but it seems to work for me. I have "slots" for people. Say for instance, I come across someone who promises to be able to do something, but in actuality, they never back up what they say. After a few times of that, you realize that they have a great talk but you simply cannot put your trust in them to actually DO what they say. So in my mind, into a particular slot they go. Their slot may be titled something like this..." Enjoy their company but put NO WEIGHT in what they say." Or if I'm looking for a one word title, it might be, "Undependable."

[ I placed the horse in his correct slot and I was no longer agitated by his behavior! It's amazing how that works. ]

The reason I do this is to keep my emotions from being disturbed and being angry with them. That way, once I have established in my mind the fact that they will never come through with the goods, I stop being disappointed with them as a person. I've slotted them in that pigeon hole that keeps them further from my heart. I can therefore enjoy that person's personality per say but keep myself free from the wrecks they invariably will cause.

It's like some horses we've had. Some we could count on through thick and thin and some...well, you know. I figure it this way; every person has their place. Very possibly NOT the place God intends for them to be but by their own choices, it's where they seem to reside. I am NOT their integrity police, therefore, if I have no authority to demand change in those areas...I "slot them" and move on. That way I am not having to deal with inner anger every time they are around and I SURE DON'T put myself in a position where I'm hung out to dry if they don't come through.

Like that horse you may have owned at one time, you know the one! I owned one of those. I had him from a baby and at 8 years old, he still could swallow his head for no apparent reason and drill you like a yard dart. He was a cool horse but you just could NOT put your trust in him enough to ever relax! You have to "slot"

the horses you can and cannot do certain things on if you want to continue riding reckless! Finally at 50 years old, (me...not the horse) I was riding him one day and kept feeling that knot in his back and reality FINALLY broke through the fog in my brain and I said WHY am I still riding this horse?!! I got off him that moment, before he acted on what was obviously running through his mind. I called a PRCA stock contractor who tried him, bought him and he earned a place bucking in his A string for a few years.

I placed the horse in his correct slot and I was no longer agitated by his behavior! It's amazing how that works. I have a friend who has a saying about ordeals that are outside her circle of influence. "This isn't my circus and those aren't my monkeys." It pays to know a horse before you put your foot in the stirrup...and it pays to know a person's character before you hitch your wagon to them. Not everyone deserves your trust! We can save ourselves from a few wrecks in life if we pay attention and take note of people's patterns; because in reality... you didn't "slot" them... they did that themselves, you simply recognized it. 🐾

Regular Feature | Back When They Bucked

Back When THEY BUCKED with
Frank Beard

[ The year 1987 was when they became PRCA members, and their shows were nearly all family-run. ]

story by Ruth Nicolaus

On the wall in the meeting room at the Sisters, Ore., Pro Rodeo hangs a bull's head, a testament to a man and his family's way of life. That bull, Cuddles, was one of many bucking bulls and horses owned by Frank Beard, of Beard Rodeo Co.

Frank got his start in the bucking bull and horse business as a youngster. The son of Bill and Ruby Beard, the 89-year-old cowboy was born to a horse trader who also had race horses. Frank's mother passed away when he was a baby, and by the time he was in his teens, he was riding bucking horses.

As a teenager, he began riding horses for Ruth Parton, Toppenish, Wash., a trick rider and girl bronc rider. When he was in his twenties, he was working for area ranchers and stock contractors, including Bob Nicholson and John Van Belle, and during the off-season, packed on bucking horses on hunting trips around Mt. Rainier. Frank also rode barebacks and saddle broncs and galloped race horses at local tracks in the Northwest.

It was while working for Van Belle that a rodeo queen caught his eye. It was Charlot Van Belle, the Toppenish, Wash. rodeo queen and John's daughter, and they married in 1947. For their honeymoon, they went to the Moses Lake, Wash. rodeo, where Frank won second in the saddle bronc riding, and the next year, won the rodeo.

Frank and Charlot were both nineteen when they married, and the two made a home together. He continued working for his father-in-law, and together they welcomed "four studs and a filly," as Frank likes to say: Casey, Tim, Kelly, who passed away four years ago, Pat, and Shannon, the daughter.

Frank added pickup man to his resume, picking up for Van Belle and Flying Five. He shod horses, and volunteered with his kids' 4-H club and horse shows. The older boys showed horses more than they rodeoed, but when Pat came along, he wanted to ride broncs, so Frank made sure there were practice horses for the kids.

He and his father-in-law were providing stock for several amateur associations, including the Northwest Rodeo Association. In 1973, Beard Rodeo Co. was formed, and by the time the 1980's rolled around, pro rodeo cowboys who got on his animals at amateur shows were urging him to get his Pro Rodeo Cowboys Association card.

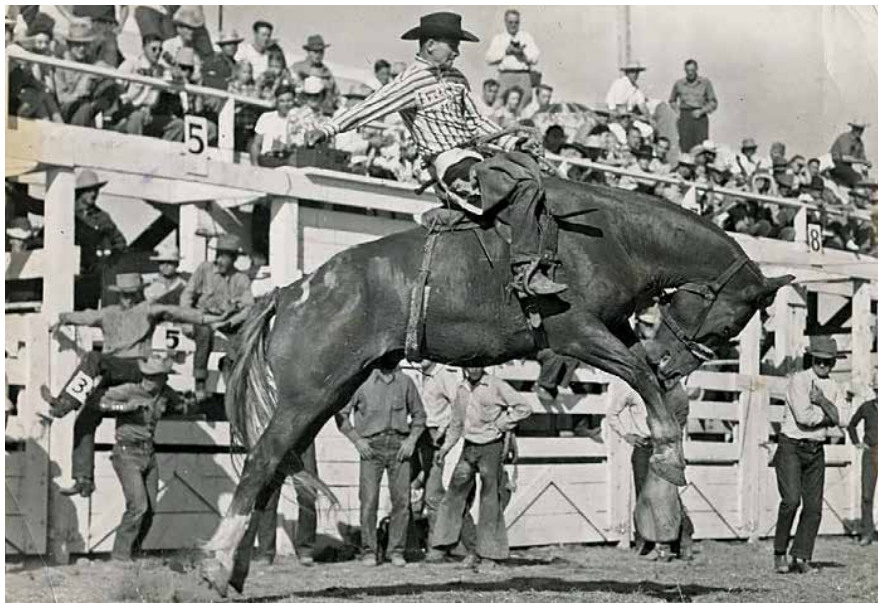

Australian cowboy Dave Appleton told Frank to come to the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City, where Frank and his son Pat made the decision to go pro. The rule was that any new stock contractor had to bring five new rodeos to the PRCA, so Beard Rodeo Co. brought some of their amateur shows, including Molalla and The Dalles, Ore., and Monroe, Wash. "Some of the better amateur rodeos we were doing at that time made the switch with us," Frank said.

The year 1987 was when they became PRCA members, and their shows were nearly all family-run. Pat picked up, along with Shannon's husband Don Stewart. Frank's nephew Randy Allan would also pick up. Charlot's sister Ellen Pederson and Shannon timed. Charlot cooked, and the family traveled in a fifth-wheel, with the grandkids tagging along. Edie Longfellow was rodeo secretary: Charlot said she wouldn't do that job. "That was not in the discussion," remembers Daniel Beard, Tim's son and Frank's grandson. "Anything else would be OK with grandma, but not that."

The Beard Rodeo Co. had great bulls but even better horses. The most memorable was a saddle bronc named Profit Taker, a thoroughbred who had made $32,000 on the race track. Not only did he buck, but after each ride, Frank could get on him bareback and ride him around. At the rodeos, he was penned with the saddle horses, and he'd get washed and brushed just like them for the rodeo. Profit Taker bucked at the National Finals Rodeo when he was thirty years old.

Beard Rodeo also had a bareback horse-turned saddle bronc named Roan Ranger who went to the National Finals Rodeo eight times, before Frank switched him to the saddle bronc riding, where he was ridden only three times in three years.

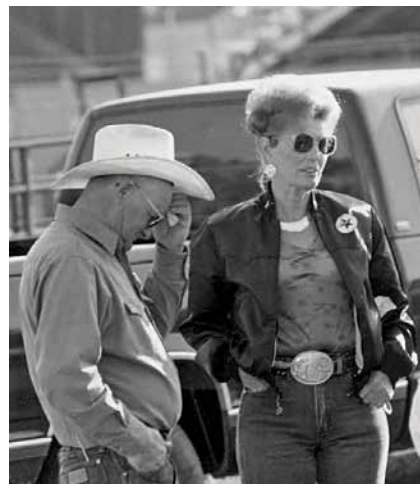

Another outstanding horse was Heckle, a ten-time NFR bareback horse who was a thoroughbred/quarter horse cross. A bay, the horse was beautiful, confirmation-wise, "a gorgeous-made horse," Frank said. "People would talk about what a good riding horse he would be, if they could break him, but he'd have been pretty cowboy-y. He was as hard muscled as he could be."

Frank had begun a breeding program with his horses and some registered mares from Barb McLean, but in 1991, his first crop of colts came, along with the main herd sire 101 Home Grown.

Frank and Charlot lived in Sunnyside, Washington, and when the state highway came through their property, were forced to move, so they went to Outlook. When Interstate 82 came through their property in Outlook, they had to move to Ellensburg. They live north of town, on an irrigated farm with good grass. Their log home is full of artifacts, western and Native American: spurs, bits, saddles, Indian handiwork, and more. Frank is "a trader," said Edie Longfellow. During down time at rodeos, Edie, Charlot and Ellen would visit antique and thrift stores, and Charlot would always say, as she considered buying something, “how will this look at my estate sale?” Edie laughed.

The Beards were the starting point for several contract acts. Rodeo clowns Flint Rasmussen and JJ Harrison got their starts with them, as did a young unknown name, Boyd Polhamus. “The promoter hired a kid right out of school named Boyd, to announce (a Beard rodeo), and he would have a hard time pronouncing those Indian names for towns. Everybody in the crowd would tease him,” Frank said. “You could tell pretty soon that he was pretty talented.”

Frank and Charlot sold Beard Rodeo Co. to Mike Corey in 2007. Health reasons precipitated the sale, and “it was the best decision for everybody,” said Daniel. The Beards had bucking stock at the Wrangler NFR every year of the company’s existence.

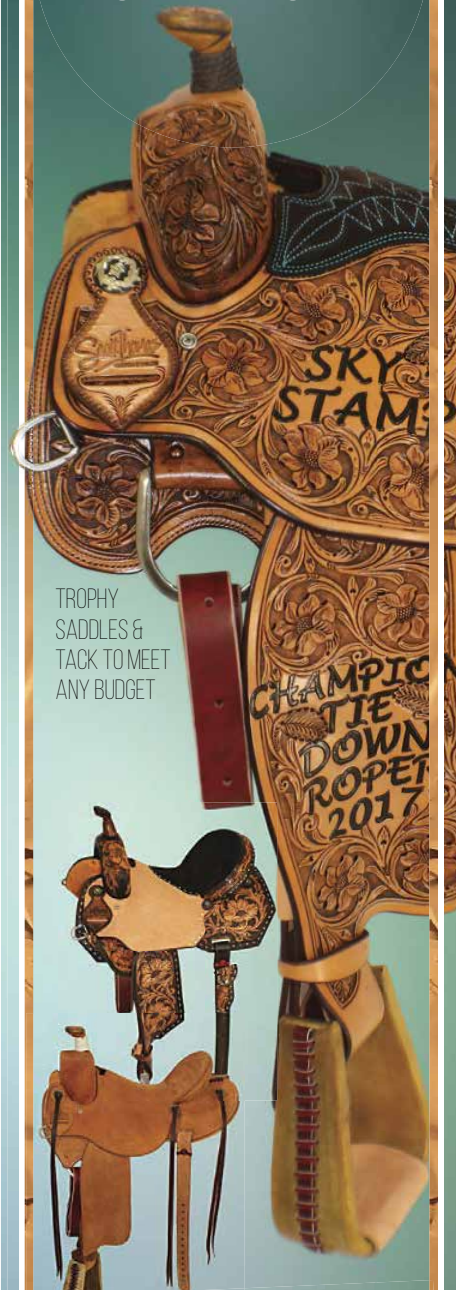

Frank and Charlot’s home is still open to traveling rodeo people, contestants and contractors, and they often stop by to visit.

And the Beard family is still involved in the sport. Casey is general manager of the Pendleton, Ore. Roundup and served on the PRCA Board of Directors. Pat, a former Wrangler NFR pickup man, is the tourism director for the city of Pendleton. Don, Shannon’s husband, was a pickup man, Shannon worked as a timer, and the couple raised bucking horses. Daniel, Tim’s son, is a partner in Summit Pro Rodeo.

And the bull on the wall in Sisters, Ore.? It’s Cuddles, a Beard bull, who cornered the Sisters rodeo president Jim Morris in a back pen and broke his wrist. Frank and his family provided stock in Sisters from 1990 till 2007.

Frank doesn’t regret a minute of his life. “I got to do a lot of things that nobody had a chance to do,” he said. “I’ve enjoyed life, I’ll say that.”

While many of the top NLBRA and PRCA competitors have multiple chances throughout their career to win gold buckles and titles in events they compete in, there is one award that a competitor has only one shot at, the coveted Resistol Rookie of the Year. This award is given out to first year card members for the PRCA and three years ago was added to the NLBRA that earn the highest amount of combined points in the All Around. ## Meet the Member Elaine Cannon

story by Lily Weinacht

Elaine Cannon leapt into the rodeo world when she was six, and today, the 14-year-old from Delta, Colorado, is the CJHSRA Breakaway Roping Champion. She went into state finals knowing she had to catch all three of her calves to stay in the average, and she did just that. Elaine also finished in the top six of all her other events, including barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying, and ribbon roping with David Jones. "My favorite is probably breakaway roping," she says. "I just like how it has to be fast, and I like the challenge." During her first time competing at the NJHFR, Elaine caught one of her calves, and she also enjoyed going to all the dances, going to a goat roping, and attending a calf roping clinic. "It was a pretty big experience!"

Rodeo started in Elaine's family with her dad, Dustin, who fought bulls and continues to team rope, and her step-mom, Ryan, who high school rodeoed and continues to compete in barrel racing. Elaine's 13-year-old brother, Connor, also competes in the CJHSRA in goat tying, saddle bronc steer riding, and breakaway and team roping. He runs the roping chute for Elaine during practice, and their step-mom holds goats. "I want to thank my dad and step-mom for all the support they give to me and my brother. Besides my family, I look up to Jody and Jesse Sheffield," says Elaine. "I go ride with them almost every day, and Jody helps me with barrels and poles and Jesse helps me with my roping." Elaine would also love to spend a day with Sherry Cervi so they could talk about barrel racing and how to mentally prepare.

Elaine competes on two mares in her events, and both are named Lily, though

one is a palomino and the other is a sorrel. "They had those names when I got them – it's pretty cool!" says Elaine. "I say red Lily or yellow Lily to keep them straight. We have three dogs and four cats and four goats, and all three dogs go to rodeos with us. We have a border collie, a mini Aussie, and a Brussels Griffon/Chihuahua mix."

Elaine will be a freshman this fall at Vision Charter Academy. "I'm pretty excited – I think it's going to be an eye-opener," she says. "Math is my favorite, probably doing equations, and I do gymnastics during the school year. Gymnastics keeps me strong, so it helps with my upper body strength and my arms, and that helps me with rodeo." Before school starts, Elaine is using the rest of her summer break to go to rodeos and ropings, along with starting in the CSHSRA at the end of August. She competes in several junior rodeos during the summer, including Delta County Junior Rodeos, Colburn Lions Club Junior Rodeos, and Norwood Roping Club Junior Rodeos. When she's not on horseback, Elaine loves to rope the dummy with her family or go shooting or fishing on the Grand Mesa.

She never leaves for a rodeo without baby powder and beeswax for her rope and piggin' string, which she faithfully re-powders or waxes after every rodeo. "I'm working on getting my rope out of my hand a little faster than I do now, and in barrels, I need to focus on riding correctly because my horse is a little different than most I've ridden. You don't have to use your hands a lot with her, but you have to bump her and really use your words. I would like to make it to Nationals my freshman year, and I would like to make it all four years in more than one event." 🐾

Meet the Member Danny Prior

story by Lily Weinacht

Danny Prior spurred his way to the 2017 CSHSRA Saddle Bronc Riding Champion title this season, winning his first state title his rookie year. “I was a little worried about it (finals) and I wasn’t sure that someone wasn’t going to pass me up, but I went in with the mindset that I was going to ride and hopefully go to Nationals.”

The 17-year-old from Lakewood, Colorado, started riding broncs two years ago, inspired by the stories his grandmother told him about his saddle bronc riding great-grandfather. “He rode in the twenties and thirties, and my grandma told me about him. I’ve always looked up to him and wanted to follow in his footsteps,” says Danny. His grandfather and several of his cousins have also competed, and when Danny decided to start his own rodeo career, he attended the Sankey Rodeo School in Penrose, Colorado. “Once I started doing it, I fell in love with it and wanted to keep doing it. I have a good job that allows me to keep doing rodeo and parents that support me – I’m pretty lucky to keep doing it. The rodeo school really helped me out, and the guy who taught it, Paul Schultz, is who inspired me to keep doing it.”

Danny started rodeoing in the CSHSRA last fall, and he won Cortez, the first rodeo he covered a bronc at. “That helped me out a lot,” he says. “I’m always trying to improve. Right now I’m getting down the spurring motion on the horse, covering as many as I can, and constantly trying to get better. I follow Cody DeMoss and Clay Elliott. Those two taught a school I went to, and I like following along with them because they’ve helped me out and I like to see them ride.”

This summer, Danny and his friend and fellow saddle bronc rider, Kole Ashmore, are working for stock contractor Jon Suttie of Infinity Rodeo on his ranch in Encampment, Wyoming. “He was the stock contractor at the Rifle rodeo, and Dave Hoffman told me about Jon and said to talk to him, and I ended up getting a job for the summer. We’re averaging twenty miles a day gathering cows and I’m riding Jon’s horses. He has a couple younger horses I’m training and some colts I’m riding. Kole and I will be here all summer. We get a lot of riding time, which helps with bronc riding balance-wise, and living in a walled tent is fun. We’ve had a lot of wind, but not much rain, and we do all our cooking – mainly ramen,” Danny says with a laugh. He and Kole will be able to take time off to compete in the NHSFR, and they’ll make the four hour drive up to Gillette, where Danny’s parents are meeting them.

Danny is a senior this fall at Golden High School, and he particularly enjoys metal shop. “I enjoy going there and welding, and the teacher is really cool. I’m in advanced, so we get to build our own things, and I made a welding table.” Danny also likes fishing in the Encampment River on Jon’s ranch, but he’s more likely on horseback, either moving cows or getting on practice broncs. He rarely leaves for a rodeo without a small Bible in his gear bag, given to him by Dave Hoffman at one of the Cowboy Churches.

“I want to thank my parents, Jane and Les Prior. They’ve helped me out a lot in allowing me to do this and they’ve been a big help to me,” Danny concludes. “After high school, I’m probably going to rodeo and work on some ranches. I’m going to try to go in the PRCA and make it all the way to the NFR.”

Meet the Member Jayden Igo

story by Lily Weinacht

Barrel racer and pole bender Jayden Igo began rodeoing when she was eight, and this fall, she's taking her favorite sport to the next level at Gillette College. "From being involved in other sports, it's much more appealing to go ride my horses and be in that environment rather than in a basketball court," says Jayden, 18. "I got a new horse a year and a half ago, and it took a really long time to get with him. But this year, we've finally started to click and it's really satisfying to me that I never gave up on him."

A native of Gillette, Wyoming, Jayden is the second generation on her mom's side of the family to rodeo. She competed in the WHSRA three years, taking her sophomore year off to do outdoor track and basketball, but deciding to focus solely on rodeo her senior year. "It's really hard to do both and keep my horses and myself in shape, and practice, so I had to pick and I went with rodeo. It's what I enjoy most, and sometimes I miss other sports, but rodeo is something I want to do in college and as I continue to grow up." Jayden will be rodeoing for Head Coach Will LaDuke in the barrel racing, and she plans to study either occupational therapy or business.

Jayden placed sixth in the second-go of the WHSRA state finals in the pole bending, and seventh in the short-go, and while she enjoys both her events and also tied goats for several years, she favors barrels over poles. "It's just the adrenaline that barrels give me, and being around my horses," she says. "It's the one thing I fell in love with." Jayden is also inspired by her friends and neighbors in rodeo. "My neighbors Pat and Jean Hladky have always been there if my parents are busy – they take me to high school rodeos because their daughter junior high rodeos, and last year while I was looking for a new horse, they let me borrow theirs. Joy Barlow and her family have always been welcoming in letting me use their barn in the winter, and Joy has been a lot of help getting me to where I am now."

Jayden keeps her horses at her grandma's farm, along with cows, chickens, and 4-H pigs and goats. "Growing up, I spent a lot of time out there, and in the summer, I'm there almost every day riding horses and doing things to help out." Jayden's grandma, Jeanine, is also the family renowned cook, and her roast beef and noodles is Jayden's favorite meal. Jayden's two horses, Jessie and Codger, are among those on the farm. Jessie is the new barrel horse Jayden has been riding since last August, and she runs poles on Codger, who belongs to Paula O'Connell. "Paula has definitely helped me out through rodeo," says Jayden. "Her daughter, Emmy, and I went to school together for one year in elementary and ever since we've been friends and rodeoed together."

Since graduating from Campbell County High School, Jayden has been competing in jackpots, working out, and spending time with friends and family, including her parents, Jay and Denise, and her 14-year-old brother, Jeric. "In the winter, my brother and I are pretty big into snowboarding. Our neighbors have a condo at Big Sky Resort, so over Christmas we spend about a week there. In December, I plan on going to the All-In Barrel Race in Las Vegas," she finishes, "and I want to have a successful college rodeo season this next year."

Meet the Member Colt Hokana

story by Lily Weinacht

The 2016 and 2017 seasons reflected Colt Hokana's hard work and practice when he claimed two consecutive state titles in the bareback riding, along with winning the bareback riding at state 4-H finals in 2016. The 18-year-old from Columbia, South Dakota, opened the 2017 season by also winning the bareback riding at the 20X Extreme Showcase. "It's a lot of fun, and there's not a whole lot of bareback riders anymore, so I think we're needed," says Colt. He also competes in tie-down roping and he headed in the team roping last year, but roughstock remains his favorite.

"My dad, Curt Hokana, rode bareback horses and bulls when he was younger. He's helped me, and my mom is always there videoing my rides. Chad Lehman, Chad Freeman, and Dave Stangle have also helped me, and I went to a Wayne Herman bareback school in March of 2015 where Kaycee Feild and Bobby Mote were instructing," says Colt. He also looks up to his traveling partners, which include Nick Schwedhelm, Andy Hall, Jim Bob Ellsworth, and Justin Kissack.

Colt recently practiced with Marvin Garrett, the assistant rodeo coach at Gillette College, where Colt will start on his welding degree this fall. "Marvin has helped me quite a bit already, and I'm excited to go to college there. They have a new college rodeo barn, and I know a couple people who are going there." Colt has also placed in several SDRA rodeos, and he's currently working on his PRCA permit, where he met PRCA bareback rider Tanner Aus. "I introduced myself to him in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and he's a really nice guy and an awesome bareback rider."

In the tie-down roping, Colt rides El McLuke Bar, whom he calls Luke. "He goes back to Sun Frost on his papers," says Colt, who competed on Luke at the 20X Extreme Showcase in 2016. "A guy near where I live had him for sale, and I traded some money and a nice looking dun colt I'd started for Luke." Colt and his parents, Curt and Merri Hokana, have five horses and a foal, along with several steers. They make their home outside of Columbia, and Colt enjoys the people, but admits he'd prefer living closer to the mountains. "For the things I like to do, I'd much rather have mountains. I go pheasant hunting with my dog, Annie, whenever I can, and I like to fish."

Colton graduated from Groton Area High School, where shop class has long been a favorite of his. "I'd spend a lot of the day in there. I made a set of spurs out of some rasps, and my teacher had me make a feed bunk." Throughout the school year and this summer, Colt has been working for Cutler Ranch near Frederick, South Dakota. "They raise Black Angus, and they're really good people." Colt helps with whatever is needed, and it isn't unusual for him to be up early loading livestock, even during the school year.

"I'm happy to be a man of God, and my goals are to make the short-go at Nationals and make the college finals and the Badlands Circuit Finals," Colt finishes. "My long-term goals are written out in my workout room. Number one is to make the WNFR, two is to be a world champion, and three is don't ever quit." 🍷

Meet the Member Rhett Witt

story by Ruth Nicolaus

Rhett Witt is spending his summer roping and raking.

He's been in the rodeo arena, tie-down roping, team roping (as a heeler for Jate Saults), ribbon roping (as a roper for Elle Ravenscroft), chute dogging, and tying goats.

And he's been on the family ranch west of Valentine, on the John Deere tractor, raking hay in the hayfield.

The fourteen year old cowboy, a member of the Nebraska Junior High School Rodeo Association, loves to rope. Of his events, heeling is his favorite and his strength.

He's well mounted, and he's thankful for his family, who help him find horses that fit him well. Rhett's heel horse is a twenty-year-old bay gelding named Snip; his tie-down and ribbon roping horse is Pork Chop, a twenty-year-old sorrel, and his goat tying horse is Topsy, a twenty-two-year-old bay. Of his horses, Snip is his favorite, because "he's level-headed all the time," he said. "He has a fun personality. He makes you like him."

This month, he will start school as a freshman at Valentine (Neb.) High School. Last year, he participated in basketball, football, FFA, and quiz bowl. In high school, he'll play basketball and continue to rodeo and team rope with his sister Bailey.

This summer, he's had fun competing at the National Junior High School Finals (where he finished in sixth place in the nation in the goat tying), at Little Britches Finals in Oklahoma, and he tagged along as Bailey competed at the National High School Finals. When he is out of school, he plans on being a professional cowboy in three events: tie-down, team roping, and steer wrestling.

Besides the rodeo, there's been a bit of work thrown in this summer. He has put out salt and mineral for the family's cows, and he's been on the John Deere, running the rake. In a good year, the family will put up 4,000 big round bales. This year, Nebraska has been drier than normal, but it won't affect the number of bales the Witts put up, as the drought dries out wet spots that they can't normally hay.

Rhett loves to hunt and fish. He and his granddad, Bill Mulligan and his dad hunt for pheasants and in the winter, they ice fish at Merritt Reservoir. His grandma Judy Mulligan is an expert at making excellent grilled pheasant, and frying crappie and perch.

Rhett competed at the National Junior High Finals this year, in the goat tying, chute dogging, ribbon roping, and team roping. He also competed at Nationals in sixth grade in the breakaway roping. He is the son of Michele and John Witt.

Meet the Member Mark Kasperbauer

story by Ruth Nicolaus

Mark Kasperbauer is the 2016 and two-time cutting champion in the Nebraska High School Rodeo Association.

The eighteen year old cowboy lives seven miles south of Spalding, Neb., and for his event, rides a nine year old mare named Harley, a blue roan, doesn't have the most pleasant personality in the world, but she's good at her job. "She's one of the most athletic horses I've been on," Mark said. "She has a big stop and is very gritty on a cow. Not many cows get by her." She has a temper and isn't "very fun to be around," he said. Mark is able to overlook her character flaws. "She performs well in the cutting pen, so that makes up for it."

Kasperbauer graduated from Spalding Academy this spring, where he was a starter on the basketball team, played varsity golf, was on the quiz bowl team, honor roll, and is a member of the National Honor Society. He is an active member of the National Cutting Horse Association. Of his three sports, rodeo is his favorite, and he compares golf to rodeo; they're both mental games, requiring lots of concentration. "You've got to keep your cool" in both sports, he said.

For fun, he and his friends like to float in the stock tank on the Cedar River, play golf, and read. His favorites are the classics, including Jules Verne's books like Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea and Around the World in Eighty Days. He also likes to play the guitar.

This fall, Mark looks forward to attending the University of Nebraska at Kearney and majoring in agri-business. He won't compete in college rodeo but will team rope at local jackpots.

Mark enters the state finals in first place in the cutting. He's competed at the

National High School Finals the last two years.

His favorite food is his mom's grilled steak, cooked rare, with Cookie's Barbecue Sauce and French Fries. His favorite dessert is cherry cheesecake, his favorite soda pop is Squirt, and his favorite candy is Butterfinger bars.

He has two older brothers: Chad and Drew.

He is the son of Jene and Janet Kasperbauer. 🐾

Meet the Member Jacey Jensen

story by by Lindsay King

N SRA scholarship recipient Jacey Jensen graduated from Burwell High School this past spring and has big plans to attend Colby Community College. She will be on a track and equestrian team scholarship while majoring in equine science this fall. "I will be on both the western and hunt seat team. I will also high jump and run some races for the track team." A pole bender since she was little, Jacey is an accomplished equestrian in rodeo. She finished the high school season in sixth place in the poles. Jacey also runs barrels and breakaway ropes. "I rode with my dad [Mark] when he was competing in amateur rodeos in the bull dogging as much as I could. When Randi, my step mom, came along, she started teaching me how to run barrels and poles in the third grade." Jacey has two step sisters, Ashlyn, 15, and Jymmie, 13, as well as two brothers, Brody, 8, and Whitten, 2. "When we go rodeo it is more of a family event. We do not go on any vacations because we rodeo all the time." Jacey runs barrels and poles on Boss, a 16-year-old dun who originally belonged to their cousin but quickly became part of the Jensen family. "Every time I get done riding Boss we put Whitten on him, he just loves it. I have never seen a horse with so much character. When Boss gets tired of Whitten riding he will start prancing around until we pull him off." Jacey breakaway ropes off Cowboy and runs barrels on their mare, Sam.

Jacey started in 4-H so she could learn to ride properly, something their mom has had all the kids do before getting to rodeo. "I have always liked being around

the horses and then competing on them makes it that much better. It is something that once I started I never wanted to stop." A busy schedule kept Jacey performing at her highest level throughout high school. She played volleyball, basketball and track all while continuing to rodeo. "I enjoyed never having any down time and always going from one thing to the next. I would come home from a practice and Jymmie would have my horses saddled so we were ready to ride." Jacey's junior year was tough in the rodeo pen leaving her anxious for her final year. "Rodeo is such a mental game; you have to focus on what you want. And know what you need to do to accomplish what you want to and your mindset has to follow." Most weekends during the spring and summer are spent on the rodeo road. "Most of the time in the spring I would have a track meet the day before we would leave for a rodeo so I would pack as soon as I got home and away we went." Last summer the Jensen family moved into town, leaving their horses ten miles away in a pasture. "It makes it a lot harder to practice when the horses are so far away and we have to bring them all the way back into town to ride. We make it work though." Jacey's favorite part of rodeo is getting to face her fears in adversity and making the best of a good situation. Support inside and out of the arena is what made Jacey's rodeo experience in Nebraska great. "I am very appreciative of any type of support I get on this new adventure. It is nice knowing that people believe in me and my past accomplishments enough to give me a scholarship for college. It means even more coming especially from an organization like the NSRA. There is no better feeling." 🐾

Meet the Member Brett Heggie

story by Naomi Loomis, WSRRA Association Representative

A working cowboy's everyday duties included riding, roping, branding, horse breaking, and the like, and these activities often served also as his pastime. The Western States Ranch Rodeo Association is for cowboys and cowgirls that want to demonstrate their skills and show off their horses at sanctioned ranch rodeos with a goal of competing at the WSRRA National Finals in Winnemucca, Nevada. It's a lot of fun to see all these good hands show off their skills not only at the local events but at the finals. One of these hands great hands is Brett Heggie.

This 29 year old cowboy grew up on a ranch in Parkman, Wyoming. Since he was old enough to ride he loved to compete in any event that has to do with a rope. "Where I grew up, we were surrounded by big ranches with a lot of handy cowboys. My dad and I would help them and that made me want to become a cowboy, Brett states." Growing up Brett would compete at ranch rodeos, calf roping and team roping. A year ago he married Dana, they currently have no kids but have many dogs and horses. He manages a large cow-calf operation in Hardin, Montana.

Being a cowboy was what Brett always wanted to be. "Growing up, I always wanted to be a good cowboy like my Dad and Grandpa. I liked to watch good cowboys rope in and out of the arena. As I got older, I started to work towards gaining the same skill set that they have. I was very fortunate growing up that I was able to enter any rodeo I wanted to enter and practice as much as I wanted, with endless amounts of cattle to rope in and out of the arena. This made it easier to be competitive at a young age, Brett says.

Brett was first interested in ranch rodeos when he was in college at Dillon, Montana. "I started going to a few branding competitions and then started to enter a few ranch rodeos in the summer. I eventually went to enough to qualify for the first WSRRA National Finals in Winnemucca." Ranch rodeos are an event that cowboys and cowgirls can demonstrate their horsemanship, roping, cattle handling, and teamwork, similar to the everyday work on the ranch. Brett says, "I was attracted to ranch rodeo because of the competition, and fast pace that required a cowboy to be mounted on a good horse and skilled while working day to day on a ranch. It allows you to show off the skills that you use every day at home."

Being a cowboy during the day helps in the ranch rodeo arena. Their day to day operations mean that they get to rope a lot of cattle outside giving them good practice for when they are in a ranch rodeo. Brett explains how you need skills in the arena and how they help with life. "I am very fortunate to have a job where I get those opportunities and always have a rope in my hand. In order to participate in ranch rodeo, you need to have a good balance between a rodeo cowboy and a working cowboy. I believe that people who have roped in the arena are a lot sharper with their rope, but roping on the ranch teaches you how to setup shots and how to ride your horse to get a job done in any scenario. You need to be able to go fast but be smooth and in control while doing so. This is where the rodeo cowboy and the ranch cowboy styles mix to create a perfect combination in my eyes. This helps in other aspects of life regarding the importance of being a well-rounded person. Competing also allows you the chance to meet new people, stick your hand out there and shake a stranger's hand, and learn something you didn't know. Being coachable and accepting to new ideas and techniques will help you go far in life no matter what you are trying to do," he says.

[ Being coachable and accepting to new ideas and techniques will help you go far in life no matter what you are trying to do. ]

WSRRA currently has sanctioned ranch rodeos in 13 states and Canada. Brett entered a sanctioned WSRRA Montana ranch rodeo in 2009 and qualified for the national finals. "I enjoy that the association allows me to meet and see other cowboys from all different parts of the country. I have made many friends through this association," Brett states.

"I am most proud of winning the ranch rodeos I have won to qualify for Winnemucca. Each one of these rodeos have been against tough competitors, some of which I get to work with a lot of the time, Brett explains.

Cowboys are strong, independent, and still in possession of the vestiges of chivalry and respect for the land. The life of a cowboy is all about only taking what you needed from the land and giving it back so much more. Cowboys predominately do all that is possible to keep their ranches going and their cattle feed. But regardless some cowboys are like superheroes to me;

the cowboys that are tough and humble. They are a symbol of honorable behavior, respect for all creatures big and small and patriots for their country and their way of life. Brett is just one of those guys. While competing at the 2017 WSRRA national finals Brett was on the Dragging Y ranch rodeo team, his team members were Chad Goings, Wade Tibbitts, and Jason Ward. "We had a great long round, qualifying for the short round, and led the short round clear to the last event where I had some tough luck and nearly cut off 4 of my fingers after I had roped a steer in our last event, causing us to go from first to third in the average and a trip to the Winnemucca ER. This was just one of those things that happens, but I was happy to still get third and thankful to have great teammates that understood that this was part of ranch rodeo, and crazy things can happen," Brett explains.

At the 2016 WSRRA national finals, Brett competed on a horse named Pocampo. "He is a solid ranch horse that I could do anything on. He was the old "Trusty rusty" and I have enjoyed many years of ranch rodeo on him," Brett says.

Along with his humble attitude, Brett takes his wife, his horse- Johnny Ringo, his hairy dogs, Howdy and Ernie and plenty of new King ropes, and a winning attitude when he rolls down the WSRRA rodeo trail.

Brett goes on to say that his 2017 goal include going to the WSRRA national finals in Winnemucca, win the finals and keep all his fingers. Brett and his team have already qualified for the finals by winning Powder River Days in Sheridan, Wyoming. "I have made the short round almost every year, but haven't quite gotten the big win yet. My hand is healed up 100 percent and I am looking forward to the trip down to Winnemucca," Brett states. Brett and his team are very competitive and try to win at rodeo and ranch rodeo. "Our goal is to win first and have fun," he says. The team that Brett qualified with this year is John Ward, Wade Tibbitts and Luke Wiggins. "We always try to make a strategy before every event. We know exactly what we are going to do before we ride into the arena, which gives us an edge over the competition," he says.

Brett and his team have all summer to practice for the 2017 WSRRA National Finals coming up, November 1 – 5, 2017 in Winnemucca, Nevada.

On behalf of the WSRRA, good luck at the 2017 WSRRA national finals. 🍀

Utah Junior High Girls Reserve All-Around Kamryn Carlsen

story by Holly Wilson

Kamryn Carlsen graduated from Roosevelt Junior High School, and will be attending Union High School in the fall.

As a junior high competitor, Kamryn competed in the team roping, breakaway, barrels, goats, poles, ribbon roping.

"I started to ride when I was two years old and stated to rodeo at five years old with the Utah 5th and Under Rodeo Association," Kamryn said. "My whole family rodeos."

"My dad competed in high school, college, amateur, and pro rodeos. My mom high school rodeoed, competed in amateurs, and lots of barrel racing associations. My sister Kayla rodeos, and my youngest sister can't wait till she can rodeo."

It is quite the family affair in the Carlsen household, and they often spend long nights practicing and preparing with each other.

"In the summer we work our barrel horses in the mornings and rope at night," she said. "During school we try to focus on a couple of events each night to work on."

Perfect practice makes perfect preparation, and Kamryn was able to qualify for the Junior High National Finals all three of her eligible years.

"I had a great time competing at Silver State International Rodeo in Winnemucca, Nevada in July as they had opened it up to Junior High this year."

Kamryn relies on her horses Charlie, Cinder, Thunder, and Diesel to help her through her competitions.

"My barrel horse's name is Charlie, I've been running him for two years and we have had some great runs together," she said. "I'm looking forward to start high school rodeos this fall."

Kamryn is planning on rodeoing in high school, and beyond.

"I would go to college in Texas so I can rodeo, rope, and run barrels all year long."

Kamryn also enjoys other activities outside of rodeo, including sports and spending time with friends.

"I love to play volleyball, boat, camp, and hang out with my friends when I have extra time," she said.

Kamryn thanks her parents for introducing her to rodeo, and the state of Utah for all of the opportunities to continue her passion.

"Utah is a great place to rodeo, they start you out young, like with the Utah 5th and Under Rodeo Association, and then the junior high rodeos and high school rodeos," she said. "I feel like this is why Utah has such strong teams they send to Nationals each year!"

"Even though we have cold, long winters, we ride all year long and love every minute of it!"

The sport of rodeo has provided Kamryn and her family with many opportunities, and has also taught her some valuable life lessons.

"Rodeo is amazing because we can travel and practice and we grow stronger as a family. I can not imagine what else we would do if we did not rodeo," she said. "It gets in your blood and it doesn't leave."

"I love rodeo because it teaches me to be responsible and try hard and practice the best I can," she said. "This helps me compete with the best and do my best every time I ride in the arena." 🐾

Utah High School Reserve Men's All-Around Cooper Bennett

stories by Holly Wilson

Cooper Bennett finished the rodeo season as the reserve men's all-around, with 452 total points. He competes in the bareback riding, team roping, and tie-down for his district.

He will be a senior at Union High School this year, but started rodeoing when he was just three years old.

"My family has been into rodeo," Cooper said. "My mother, step dad, late father, and all of my siblings rope and ride."

Cooper's late father was a PRCA bareback rider, who passed away when he was young.

"My dad died when I was 3 months old and my mother worked so hard to provide the opportunities we have had," he said. "Then, 11 years ago she met Bob and he was able to help us too."

Cooper maintains a strong relationship with his stepdad, who works with him on the basics.

"I team rope almost every day to work on a lot of fundamentals. I also calf rope a lot," he said. "I ride a spur magic every day for my bareback riding and get on practice horses when I can."

"I also like to meet up with my brother Caleb when he is available for constance critiquing."

Practice is paying off, as Cooper just won the UHSRA State Championship Bareback Rider title.

"I also finished seventh in the team roping, won second in the average, and finished in the top 15 in the calf roping," Cooper said.

"Making the short round in Utah in three events is an accomplishment in itself."

Part of his success is in his mounts; Gunner, Squirt, Buck, and Dozer.

"Gunner is my calf horse, Squirt is my practice pen heel horse and a great back-up, Buck is a green heel horse, and Dozer is my main heel horse," he said.

Cooper is currently entertaining several college offers, and is keeping rodeo in his future plans. "I hope to keep gaining experience and working hard to step up a level over the next several years to be able to have the opportunity to travel with my brother Caleb."

Outside of his rodeo career, Cooper loves to spend quality time with his brothers.

"I love to hunt and fish with my older brothers, Dustin and Caleb, and spend time with friends and family," Cooper said.

His family has been supportive of his rodeo dreams, and spend a lot of time traveling with him on the road.

"My older brothers pitch in a lot of time traveling when it's possible for them to help out if my parents can't get off work," he said. "My sisters are very supportive also."

With the success of his brother Caleb in the rodeo world, Cooper looks up to his brother and hopes to follow in his footsteps.

"I have watched hard work and sacrifice pay off, watching Caleb's dreams and determination and my other siblings success in whatever they sought to do," Cooper said. "Anything is possible regardless of adversity, be respectful, kind, and work hard."

Utah High School Women's Rookie of the Year

Sammy Taylor

Sammy Taylor is a senior at Union High School, and competes for her district in the team roping, breakaway, barrel racing, goat tying, and pole bending.

She started rodeoing at a young age, with the help of her dad.

"I started rodeoing around five years old," Sammy said. "My dad hauls me everywhere and helps me improve."

Her step-mom and sister Rylee also travel with her on the rodeo road, and serve as a support system in the practice pen as well.

"I practice like I play, and try my hardest to get my mind in the right place in the practice pens throughout the week," she said.

This determination has paid off throughout her rodeo career.

"My eighth grade year, I was the Utah Junior High State All-Around Champion," Sammy said. "I took four events to Nationals, and ended up sixth in the nation in the breakaway roping."

This year, Sammy finished the season as the Utah High School Rookie of the Year. She accumulated 212.5 points over the year, and earned points in barrel racing, breakaway, goat tying, pole bending, and team roping.

School Rodeo Association," she said. "I would love to get a scholarship and college rodeo after I graduate!"

Outside of rodeo, Sammy is a part of the Union High School basketball team, where she is a starting point guard.

Her competitive spirit is encouraged by her dad, mom, and step-mom.

"I'd like to thank them for pushing me to become a better person inside and outside of the arena," she said.

She keeps level throughout her practice and competition schedule, and has a piece of advice for her fellow competitors.

Sammy also hopes to take them to college with her in the future.

Meet the Member Megan Burbidge

story by Lily Weinacht

“My parents grew up in rodeo, and ever since I can remember, I’ve been on the back of a horse,” says Megan Burbidge. The 20-year-old RMPRA breakaway roper started competing by the time she was four and went on to compete in junior high and high school rodeo for Utah. She went to the NJHFR twice in the breakaway roping, and her senior year, won the Silver State International Rodeo in the goat tying, along with reserve all-around. Megan, who hails from Elwood, Utah, joined the RMPRA shortly after finishing high school, and last year, she won Santaquin and placed second at Tooele and Alpine. “Most of their rodeos are within a few hours, and I travel with good people,” she says. “I really like going over their Fourth of July run – they’re all really good rodeos to go to.”

Megan’s main goal for the season is winning the RMPRA in the breakaway. She qualified for the finals for the first time last year, and also college rodeoed for two years at South Plains College in Texas, breakaway roping and goat tying. “I like goat tying best. When I was little, I didn’t like it because it was a lot of work, but the harder you work at it, the more it pays off. You can’t buy a goat horse and be good at goat tying. I like that breakaway is fast, and in the matter of two seconds, you can win so much money,” she adds. “It’s taught me a lot of life lessons, too. Rodeo is a pretty humbling sport – you learn you’re not always going to win, and even if you do, you still have to be humble about it. You’re competing against some of your best friends, but you’re still cheering for them.” She especially looks up to her parents, Trisha and Eric Burbidge. “I couldn’t do it without them. They’ve made sure I’ve had all I ever needed and supported me wherever I wanted to go, and the girls I travel with keep me up all the time. Even when it’s tough, they’re right there to keep you going.”

The other half of Megan’s team are her horses. Her main horse in the breakaway is a 16-year-old mare, Tara, who was born and raised on the Burbidge’s farm. “My brother roped on her in high school, and when I was a freshman I started roping on her. She’s never had a bad day, and she’s always just honest. My goat tying horse is Bay. I got her as a yearling and trained her to do goat tying, and I can rope off her too.” Megan also never leaves without her two Toy Australian Shepherds.

She is attending Eastern New Mexico University this fall, where she’ll continue to rodeo and finish her degree in Ag. education. Megan’s ultimate goal is to become a professor. During the summer, she helps on the family farm with everything from baling and loading hay to watering. “I go jackpotting a little bit, and I go to almost every Rocky Mountain rodeo there is on weekends,” she says. Her younger brother, Chase, also rodeos, competing in the IHSRA, and their older brother, Nick, rodeoed in high school.

Megan uses any free time to ride horses in the morning or evening, and another one of her goals is qualifying for the CNFR. “Rodeo is kind of a way of life – I would be lost without it,” she says. “My motivation is looking forward to the next rodeo. You’ll always hit some slumps, but I like working hard and knowing it will pay off.” 🐾

Rooster and Hiyo Yazzie

below: Hiyo Yazzie - RodeoBum.com

story by Siri Stevens

Rooster Yazzie, 17, and his cousin brother, Hiyo Yazzi, 16, from Brimhall, New Mexico, competed at the International Finals Youth Rodeo last week in Shawnee, Oklahoma. Rooster competes in team roping and steer wrestling. He likes steer wrestling the best. "It's a lot more fun." He started rodeo when he was five, following his father, Benny's, footsteps. His mom (Paula) didn't rodeo or ride horses. He is one of four children: Kodi is nine; Lacey is 19; Nyera is 21, and Odessa is 26. When he's not rodeoing, he spends his days doing cattle and ranch work. When he is finished with high school next year, he wants to go on to college and become a horse chiropractor.

Hiyo got involved in rodeo because it's a family tradition. He competes in steer wrestling, calf roping, and team roping. He has been rodeoing since his freshman year, learning how to compete from his dad, Donovan. His mom, Sherylene, doesn't rodeo, but she videos and runs the chutes. He didn't go as much this year; trying to hit the USTRC ropings too. He has three siblings: Colter (6), Ashley (12), and Lavonne (25). When he graduates, he will go to college, hopefully at Odessa College, and college rodeo. His goal is to make it to the NFR. "I want to explore bigger and better things and experience the competition at the NFR." When he's not rodeoing, he ropes and has fun with the cattle and practicing.

Both boys will be seniors at Tohatchi High School. They practice together; they live two miles apart on the Navajo reservation and have been roping since they were little. They have arenas at each house so they take turns. They rope muleys, which makes it tough. They both play basketball too. They compete against each other and find it fun. "We try to be better than the other, but nobody gets mad when it happens." 🐾

Meet the Member Bob Carder

story by Lindsay King

Cardholder number 347 and the original secretary from ACRA's beginnings in 1976 are all in the family tree of current vice president, Bob Carder, from Miami, Oklahoma. "The ACRA has a deep history in my family." Bob's wife Shawn and daughters, Addee, 18, and Kylee, 23, are all current members. Bob started out in rodeo as a team roper, calf roper, bareback rider and steer wrestler. "I made my way through the high school and amateur ranks, steer wrestling turned out to be my forte." Bob's involvement with ACRA leadership started in 1990 as the steer wrestling director, he took time off as his daughters started to rodeo more. "When my daughters started to rodeo in ACRA, I got involved on the board again. I was a committee director for two years before becoming vice president." For the past nine years, Bob has chaired Rodeo Miami, voted ACRA rodeo of the year seven of those years. "Usually this rodeo is the first weekend in May, but our arena was four-feet under water." An ACRA- and IP-RA-sanctioned event, they have all eight of the regular events but also include steer roping. "NEOs rodeo coach, Koby Ungeheuer and I started chairing this rodeo in 2010 and it has just grown from there." Rodeo Miami is special for Bob and Shawn because it is where he asked her to marry him in 1989 when he moved to Oklahoma. Bob has worked for Oklahoma Natural Gas for the past 25 years. For 27 years Bob has taught the horse-shoeing class at Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College and also assists Koby with the rodeo team.

"I function on very little sleep. We try to go to about two or three rodeos a week. Our whole family travels together." This year has sent his family in different directions, as Kylee seeks rodeos outside their usual circle. "I can throw a rock from my house in Oklahoma and hit Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri. That is our circle for rodeos." Bob's last ACRA finals was in 1995 and the last time he wrestled a steer was eight years ago. "I was always in the top five for ACRA. I got to experience NARC finals in El Paso, Texas, to represent the ACRA in 1989. I just love the sport of rodeo, I was raised in it." It all started with Bob's dad, Bob, a steer wrestler and one of the first members of the ACRA. "He was the one that started dragging me to rodeos. I tried to play sports

but I just had a love for rodeo more." Bob was raised in southwest Missouri, ironically near the town where the ACRA was formed. "Back in the 70s there really were not any organized local rodeos around. Everything was open." The founding ACRA members sought to create an association providing equal opportunities with rules and make the playing field as even as they could. "I get to work with almost all the ACRA stock contractors, they are all upstanding people. They want to see the cowboys and cowgirls do well and compete on quality livestock."

Breakaway roping has been ACRA's big push in the last ten years, Bob was reluctant to include it outside of the slack at first. "After the response from the crowd and a million girls showed up, it is one of the best events we have. We get 50-60 breakaway ropers at every rodeo." The prize money and year-end awards have gotten bigger and better the last forty years but breakaway roping is the biggest change Bob has seen. "The ACRA is so family oriented, the breakaway roping allows a husband and wife to both participate in our rodeos." They added money to both sides of the team roping to also continue growing membership. "Our major goal is to get more added money for our contestants and to get better awards. I enjoy putting on rodeos and helping grow the organization, to make it bigger and better for the cowboys and cowgirls." 📺

Meet the Committee Perryton Rodeo Association

story and photos by Pam Chisum

From 1998- 2005 the rodeo was under the Young Riders 4-H Club. In 2005, the rodeo had outgrown the 4-H club and parents and the Perryton Rodeo Association was formed. Perryton Rodeo Association (PRA) currently has 9 directors and 40 members and continues to grow. PRA is very family oriented with families working the rodeo and a few of the former Young Riders 4-H club now married and helping out with their young kids.

Perryton is excited to be one of 6 rodeos in the Super 6 Saddle Series this year. Along with Seiling, Waynoka, Freedom, Dumas and Cherokee. All of these rodeos are KPRA first approved rodeos.

The added money is $ 700 per event, $1,400 for team roping and $500 for 40/40 team roping.

The 2017 rodeo will feature mutton bustin and calf scramble for the kids and a video replay board for the rodeo. More added attractions are being planned.

Saturday night will be Tough Enough to Wear Pink. PRA started this program 4 years ago and have successfully raised money to help ensure women can get a mammogram at Ochiltree General Hospital or further testing if needed and insurance is not available.

This year the Perryton arena will host 2 junior rodeo associations, a high school rodeo and a college rodeo along with the KPRA rodeo in August. 📺

PERRYTON RODEO
ASSOCIATION

Perryton Rodeo Association will host the 19th Annual Wheatheart Rodeo the 3rd weekend in August (Aug 18 & 19, 2017) at 7:30 and mutton bustin at 7:00.

Meet the Member Taylor Algrim

story by Lily Weinacht

“Rodeo is definitely challenging, and it pushes me to be better in everything throughout my life,” says Taylor Algrim, the 2017 KHSRA Barrel Racing Champion. “It’s very humbling, and it’s a great experience to be around all the wonderful people that rodeo. You get to ride amazing horses, and it’s a great sport – it’s taught me a lot throughout my life.”

The persistence Taylor, 18, has acquired through rodeo paid off at state finals. She won all three rounds of the barrel racing, along with the year-end, while she was one point off from winning the year-end in pole bending. Taylor was the state pole bending champion last year, and the KJHSRA Barrel Racing Champion in eighth grade. “My horse was running really good, and she pretty much makes a consistent pattern every time. I wasn’t even too nervous about it – I felt really confident in her and her runs. I like my events equally,” she adds. “In the barrel racing, I really like the competition, and the speed is pretty fun. I like the poles because you have to think throughout your entire run and it’s really a challenge because there are more obstacles than barrels.”

Taylor entered her first rodeo when she was three, and especially looks up to her mom, Tamra. “She has hauled me everywhere and taken me since I was very young, and I also look up to Carol Tracy. She’s a lady I ride with a lot, and she’s helped me to learn, and ride different horses, and she’s been very helpful throughout my rodeo career. I’ve had a lot of support from my grandparents and all the rest of my family. My grandparents, Martha and Perry Arnold, travel to all of my and my cousins’ rodeos, and my great-grandpa, Jim Arnold, still drives his motor home and comes to our rodeos.” Taylor is also joined at her rodeos by her step-dad, Scott, her dad, Kirk, and her step-mom, Ashley.

Taylor rides her 11-year-old mare, Tootsie, in barrel racing and pole bending, along with her other two horses, Boomer and Tee, which she alternates riding depending on the arena. “My main horse is Tootsie, and I’ve been riding her since she was six. She was my very first horse. My grandparents Perry and Martha raise horses and they picked her out specifically for me and I got to start with her from the very beginning.” Taylor’s family also has several dogs, including her dog, Frankie, who travels to rodeos with them. Taylor’s seven-year-old brother, Kole, goes to all of her rodeos and enjoys dummy roping, and he hopes to start junior rodeoing this year.

A freshman this fall at Oklahoma State University, Taylor is majoring in bio chemistry and molecular biology, with a minor in Spanish. “I want to be an orthodontist,” she explains. “There are five or six dentists in our family, so I’ve been around it a lot and find it very interesting, and I think it’s something I would like to do as a career.” Throughout high school, Taylor was very involved in Student Council and FFA, along with cheering on the varsity cheerleading team. Her team competed at regionals and state all four years of high school, and won reserve at state in 2014.

Taylor is considering competing on the OSU rodeo team, and if not, she plans to continue rodeoing and barrel racing as much as possible. Her goal for the summer is placing in the top five of the IFYR and NHSFR. “I definitely think that I have the horses right now to achieve those goals. I want to thank my family for all their support – they have done a lot for me throughout my lifetime. It’s definitely been a life changing experience and I would not be the person I am today without rodeo.”

Meet the Member Tanner Meier

story by Lily Weinacht

Even though he puts his cowboy hat on his bed – or perhaps because of it – Tanner Meier took home his first state title this June when he won 2017 KJHSRA All-Around Cowboy. The 14-year-old from Garden City, Kansas, went into state finals confident in himself and his horses. “I felt good about everything, and I just tried to go out and make the best runs I could,” he says. “My favorite (KJHSRA) rodeo is state finals at the Dodge City Expo Center. It’s a really nice facility with nice stalls, and everything about it is just great.”

Tanner started the unconventional practice of putting his hat on his bed before a rodeo several years ago. “People say it’s bad luck, but it’s good luck for me. Sometimes the rodeo goes downhill or uphill, but there’s always the Lord there for me.” He qualified for the NJHFR in tie-down roping, team roping with heeler Jesse Boos, goat tying, and his favorite event of chute dogging. Tanner has also competed in ribbon roping with his cousin Kiley Slavin. He finished ninth in the world in chute dogging, and also advanced to the short-go in tie-down roping. He’s moving up to steer wrestling in the KHSRA this year, using the custom-made saddle he won in the KJHSRA. “Steer wrestling is going good so far,” he says, “and I’ve taken some crashes every now and then, but I still really enjoy it.”

Tanner was inspired by his parents, Shelley and Jason Meier, to start rodeoing when he was five, and he has the support of his entire family. “There have been a bunch of people who have helped me. My parents; my aunt and uncle, Kelley and Rowdy Slavin; Rusty Slavin; and Jule Hazen. He had a bull dogging school I went to that helped me out a bunch. I’d also like to thank JD Draper – he’s helped me with all my events and been a really good friend and like a brother to me – and Payson Crouch for helping me with team roping. My big brother, Trevor Meier, helps me big time and is always in the practice pen with me.”

Practice also includes the rest of Tanner’s family helping out, along with his grandparents, Larry and Esther Johnston, who come to watch and support him, and his nine-year-old brother, Tyler. “He has special needs, but he’s always out in the practice pen with us, and he has a pony he’s getting to where he can ride by himself in the arena. He’s one of my favorite little kids!” Tanner practices daily, riding his calf horse, CJ, and team roping and goat tying horse, Charlie. The Meiers also have practice steers, goats, and calves, which Tanner and Trevor are in charge of caring for.

The Meier family makes their home 15 miles outside of Garden City. “There’s a lot of sand, and the wind blows, but there’s something I just love about it, and it’s somewhere I always want to go back to,” says Tanner. He’s a freshman this fall at Garden City Virtual Academy, doing the bulk of his school from home. “My favorite subject is probably math, and I like algebra. I’ve been homeschooled since third grade and I’ve loved every minute of it. It lets me get more involved with rodeo, and I can spend more time with my horses and my family.” Tanner also enjoys hunting and fishing with his dad and older brother, particularly deer hunting near their home.

Along with competing at the NJHFR this summer, Tanner competed in the NLBFR in breakaway roping, dally ribbon roping, and goat tying. He’s competed in the association since he started rodeoing, and Trevor also competed at the finals in steer wrestling, team roping, and tie-down roping. “Rodeo is just something that I crave to do every single year, and it’s something that I love,” says Tanner. “One thing I’d really like to accomplish is to win a national title in high school or Little Britches.”

Meet the Member Karlie Tucker

story by Lindsay King

Fourteen-year-old Karlie Tucker from Nardin, Oklahoma, is a quadruple threat when it comes to competing in the OKJHSRA. The eighth-grader is a top competitor in barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying and breakaway roping. Karlie is the oldest of five siblings, Talon, Laine, Sage, Rickey and Quincy. Karlie, Talon and Laine are homeschooled by their step-mom Miranda. Karlie loves science, especially chemistry, when she grows up she wants to possibly become a doctor.

Karlie started to rodeo when she was about five, first in the Cherokee Round-up Club and eventually moved onto Little Britches in all four of her events. Justin (Karlie's dad) and Miranda have helped Karlie learn how to rope but it was as much of a trial and error process for them as it was for her. A family friend, Luke Blanton, has taught them a lot about roping and been there since the beginning. All of the Tucker kids started out in rodeo at a young age, with Talon starting into his first year of junior high rodeo. Karlie enjoys spending time with her siblings, whether it is fishing in the summer or traveling to rodeos. "We pack up all of our family and go to pretty much every rodeo together."

Karlie looks up to Sherry Cervi because of how well she rides, as well as Tuff Cooper to help improve her roping. There is a tie between breakaway roping and goat tying as far as Karlie's favorite event goes. "You have to be really quick and you have to react to whatever happens, whether the goat goes a different way or the calf, you have to move quick." Riding, roping and tying everyday keeps Karlie ready for the rodeos. However, the partnership with her three equine companions is one aspect of rodeo she admires most. "I like that you have to put a lot of trust in your horses." Karlie rides BJ, a 19-year-old bay Quarter Horse, for barrels and poles while she rides Frosty, a bay roan Quarter Horse, for breakaway. Checkers is Karlie's goat tying horse, an appaloosa that she shares with her sister Laine who breakaway ropes and goat ties with him.

Meet the Member Tucker Huffman

story by Lindsay King

Thousands of miles behind the wheel have taken 17-year-old Tucker Huffman and his grandpa Dale to rodeos and calf roping events since he was three. "Grandpa is the one who has taught me the most about rodeo, he has helped me get where I am today." At just three years old, Tucker raced stick horses at a rodeo his grandpa and mom Bendy took him to. "Since I was little I have always been interested and around horses and cattle, and I wanted to try out rodeo too." He started in barrels and poles, but by the time he was nine his hands found a rope and he began breakaway roping. By 11 he roped and tied his first calf, he has not looked back since. "It is an independent event, it is just you and your horse. It can be a challenge sometimes and I love that." Tucker's calf horse is an 11-year-old mare named Quixote. Woody a six-year-old gelding, is his heel horse who he is training himself. "He gets better each time I run him." He started out in the NWOJRA where he was the champion tie-down roper in 2013, champion chute dogging in 2014 and 2016. He was fourth in chute dogging at junior high nationals in 2014. "OKHSRA is very competitive, you have to be on you're A-game every weekend. It makes it even more fun." Even though Tucker enjoyed liked chute dogging, he could not bull dog in high school because his knees would not be able to take the high impact of jumping from a running horse.

Tucker is a senior at Sharon Mutual High School in Mutual, Oklahoma, where

he likes to study math and science. "Math comes easy to me. I like to be hands on with things and science is kind of that way." He wants to get into an agricultural program and a rodeo team in college, what school has yet to be determined. "I have always wanted to learn how to artificially inseminate and preg-check cattle for a living. It would help my grandpa and the neighbors out a lot if I knew how to do that." He plays football and is the offensive guard and defensive nose guard. "I usually have a rodeo right after a football game, especially in August." During the summer, Tucker works for Wilma Gordon Farms taking care of 100 cow/calf pairs and yearlings. He also helps his grandpa at Huffman Ranchers with his 250 black and red Angus pairs.

"During the summer I try to hit a rodeo almost every weekend, I try to find somewhere to go. There will be a few times with a weekend off but not very often." Tucker also loves to go bass fishing with his friends when he finds the time.

Grandpa Dale is his role model and has helped him with everything from improving his roping to training his horses. "He is very patient with animals and people. He was really patient with me when he was helping me learn how to rope. It would be nice to grow up and be like him one day." An avid cattle rancher his entire life, Dale, along with Tucker's grandma and mom, have been his biggest supporters in rodeo. "Grandpa makes more than half of the rodeos I go to. He loves to watch." Tucker hopes to make it to national high school finals this year and possibly the NFR. His favorite road snack is chex mix and his favorite Bible verse is Joshua 1:9. Before every run he says a prayer. "I just ask to make the best run possible." 🙏

Meet the Member Kambria McDougal

story by Lily Weinacht

“Rodeo is very rewarding, and it’s so much fun to be with friends I’ve grown up with since we could walk,” says Kambria McDougal. “We watch each other grow more competitive, and it’s so rewarding to go out there and win, or sometimes not win, but still knowing we’re doing the best we can if we practice as hard as we can.”

The 18-year-old from Brock, Texas, started rodeoing at an early age, and presently competes in the AJRA in barrel racing, pole bending, breakaway roping, and ribbon roping. She’s sitting in the top five of both pole bending and breakaway roping, and sixth in the ribbon roping. Kambria also competes in THSRA, qualifying for the NHSFR her freshman and sophomore year, and UPRR rodeos. She is going to the IFYR for the fourth time, this year on the Bloomer Trailers High School Rodeo Team. She won the pole bending and the all-around there in 2014. “I like breakaway or barrels best depending on the day. In barrels, we trained our own horses, and it’s a great feeling being one with a horse like that. In breakaway, I like how fast everything comes across.

“I’ve been really blessed to have great role models throughout my life,” Kambria adds. “My parents, Jamie and DeeCee McDougal, have been amazing – they both rodeoed and really worked to teach me right and take me to great people like Tuf Cooper, Jerry Jetton, Ed and Martha Wright, and quite a few others. The Bloomer family have been amazing to me – I’m so very thankful for all they have done between the interview training and the amazing role models they are, and the speakers they bring in for us! The Bruner family, who own Durhams Trailers, have really supported me throughout the years, as well as the Teskey family, who own Teskey’s Saddle Shop. OE Nutraceuticals keep my boys feeling great, and I want to thank the Tatum family, who own Tres Rios Silver. This family has been behind me through it all, and they’re not only great sponsors, but I know if I ever needed anything, one of them would be there as quick as they could be!”

Kambria’s horses include Ace, a young-er horse she’s seasoning at several AJRA rodeos, Rolo, her rope horse, and Mini Me, her main horse trained by her parents until Kambria started riding him in sixth grade. “It’s really neat seeing a horse progress that we’ve trained. He’s an amazing horse – I’ve won so much on him – and if the ground is bad, he takes care of me. He’s a once-in-a-lifetime horse and his attitude is amazing.” Tuf Cooper, who lives near the McDougals, rode Kambria’s horses one year when he was preparing for the WNFR. “It was a great experience to watch and learn,” she says.

Kambria graduated from Brock High School, where she took dual credits and was the varsity captain of her cheerleading team. She was also involved in FFA, and plans to major in Agribusiness at Tarleton State University. “I plan on getting my master’s in business – I can really do anything with that,” says Kambria, who will be barrel racing and breakaway roping on TSU’s rodeo team. She also hopes to compete in several AJRA rodeos during her summer break next year. “It’s been a great association to grow up in and super competitive, and there’s always really great people. I like the AJRA Eden rodeo. It’s a different set up to come through a side gate, and it’s fun to be able to experience new things like that.

“I’d like to get my young horse rolling as good and consistent as my other horses, and one of my big goals is to win the College Nationals Finals Rodeo at least once,” Kambria finishes. “I try to set my goals high, and freshman year seems to be my thing, so I’m hoping to start out strong my freshman year and keep it going.”

Meet the Company Diamond Cross Rodeo Company

Diamond Cross Rodeo Company Knows the World Stage Starts at Home

story by Lori O'Harver

LEXINGTON, Texas – The pastures where the Diamond Cross horses spend most of their time is dotted with mesquite instead of bluegrass. The horses are identified with fire-brands instead of leather halters with brass plaques bearing their names and lineage. Aside from those differences, Kentucky's Lexington and the Texas version look a lot alike. Both are home to champion horses with royal bloodlines and are looked to proudly by fine horsemen. Wesley McManus can testify to that.

Twenty years a bull fighter, McManus has grown his Diamond Cross herd of bucking horses since 2010. His band of bucking horses originate from two of bronc riding nation's most respected producers of horses who buck; Harry Vold Rodeo Company of Aurora, Colorado and Mack Altizer's Bad Company Rodeo of Del Rio, Texas.

"I know in my heart that if our community fails to focus on our great horses and the young cowboys and cowgirls coming up in the sport, that we are lost," said McManus. "I met Daryl McElroy a few years ago. He shared his vision for the Texas Bronc Rider's Association's (TBRA) multi-layered plan to support not just the industry, but the contestants who will carry the sport into the future. I jumped on board almost immediately."

"The community is built on traditions, so change is sometimes hard to accept. New faces and ideas aren't always welcomed with open arms," McManus continued. "I say who else is working hard and actually doing something to help the sport? I'm behind the TBRA all the way!"

It's not simply rodeo business as usual when it comes to producing a TBRA co-sanctioned event. It's horse heavy because the TBRA features every bucking horse riding event; ranch broncs, saddle broncs, bareback horses and mini broncs and ponies. Setting an even pen of horses for each event's particulars would be hard enough, but allowing for the RIDE TV Women's Ranch Bronc Riding with seasoned, non-eliminator type horses and fit ponies for three different age levels of kids for the Mini Saddle Bronc and Mini Bareback Riding world finals qualifiers requires a lot of forethought and precise selection.

"I spend a lot of time and effort trying to make it not just fair, but as safe as riding a bucking horse can possibly be," said

- Shelby Lynn Photography

McManus. "There's no sense in trying to develop a strong, new facet of the industry if all we end up doing is breaking an egg in the contestants."

"Billi Halverson came off really bad and is out for the season," McManus said. "She's a tough young lady and on fire to ride. Falls are part of it, thankfully bad falls don't happen very often. As much as we all hated to see it, but it's going to happen, I don't care who you are."

Bronc riding is a dangerous sport and that will never change. Not dumbing it down, but smartening it up for young or beginning contestants is part of how we keep the pipeline of riders full. 🐾

SAMMY CASTANEDA

[ Cargill Animal Nutrition Consultant ]

article by Lily Weinacht

Sammy Castaneda loves a challenge. For the Cargill Animal Nutrition Consultant from San Antonio, Texas, improving everything from the size of deer antlers to the stamina of a rodeo horse is what makes him tick. “It is very satisfying finding solutions for new and current customers and building long lasting relationships along the way,” says Sammy, who started working for Cargill in their cattle feed division 10 years ago. “Helping people reach their goals and implement a sound nutritional program long-term is success to me. Some days I am working to figure out how to help a cow/calf operation increase conception rates and increase weaning weights, or feedlots looking to improve costs and increase average daily gain (ADG). The next day I’m on a deer ranch discussing body condition and growing big healthy deer with antlers that stop you in your tracks.” Sammy also works with rodeo and performance horse owners to maintain healthy topline and energy. “In the nutrition business the needs of customers are always changing. It is important to stay informed and understand markets and trends, as well as environmental changes that affect feed consumption, gain, and performance.”

Sammy has always been interested in the field of animal science. Many generations of his family have lived and worked on ranches throughout South Texas including the King Ranch, home of the “Running W” brand. “They were the true cowboys called vaqueros and roped wild cows in the brush, trained horses, and worked cattle with the best of them. It was their life and they were good at it. This is where some of my roots come from and I can certainly appreciate their hard work, dedication, and love for the cowboy way,” says Sammy. Growing up, Sammy worked on feedlots and ranches and took every chance he could to work cattle, rope, and

be around that lifestyle. Sammy’s interest in animal nutrition led him to achieve an associate’s degree in agriculture and a welding certificate, while he finished with a bachelors in animal science from Texas A&M Kingsville.

“My dad always said that hard work and smart work will lead you there and it is up to you to figure out what “there” is. I graduated and then started working for Cargill in 2007. I worked at a few feedlots in the Panhandle as a feed and cattle manager, and my wife worked with me as the office manager. Taking care of over eighty-five thousand head of cattle, I gained large scale production knowledge and eventually ventured into the position I am in now. I’ve always loved the nutrition side of things. Most days I am visiting ranches, feed dealers and different breeders including cattle deer and equine. South Texas is home to millions of acres of brush country and prairie, providing habitat for lots of wildlife – white tailed deer in particular – which is a big part of my business today,” says Sammy. Nutrena and Record Rack are two of the major brands that he represents. They have a team of research scientists, specialists and consultants who work together and strive to be the leaders in providing innovative solutions to their animal feed customers worldwide. “Our customers rely on us to help them, so we have to be very effective in what we recommend, and we take it very seriously. Sometimes we’ll formulate a specific feed depending on that customer’s needs.”

Sammy is also involved with organizations like the Texas Deer Association and is part of the committee that recently put on the Texas Deer Association’s first annual Ropin’ & Smokin’, sponsored in part by Record Rack and Nutrena. “Deer breeders are such a big part of our business, and I want to bring some of my knowledge to the table,” he says. In the last year, Sammy partnered with BXB Productions, a rodeo production company, in putting on ranch rodeos and team ropings. “We do one to two ropings a week around San Antonio and take the ropings on the road every other month or so throughout South and Central Texas. It’s helped me grow and meet new people, and it’s really cool to put something like that on. We also do some charity events to help local causes. At our first annual Nutrena Roping, we had over eight hundred teams and we gave lots of custom prizes and cash. We have also partnered with Sosa Buckers, owners Shiloh and Shane Sosa, and do different segments with bulls. There’s a huge link between rodeo and hunting. A lot of the contestants are ranch managers or avid hunters and they rodeo for fun, and these ropings are a very good way to interact and meet new people.”

Every chance he gets, Sammy takes part in the hunting and team roping lifestyle he promotes. He’s also an avid fisherman and enjoys team roping locally, while his two children, Delina, 8, and Samuel, 5, ride and work cattle with him and have started rodeoing. His wife, Fela, works for Animal Health International Inc., and even shares some of the same clients with Sammy. “We have cows, and it’s not a big operation, but enough for the family to get together and work. I do things so I’m a role model for my kids and youth in general,” says Sammy. “I try and lead them in the right direction and strongly support them in activities such as sports, rodeo and FFA. I believe teaching those hands-on skills, discipline, hard work, and dedication will help them achieve what they set out to accomplish. I want to help my kids grow and rodeo and hopefully they can lead successful lives.

“I’d like to continue doing these rodeo events and making them better, and get Nutrena’s name out there,” he finishes. “I also want to keep growing my business and helping these ranchers meet their goals, which is something I take a lot of pride in.”

PRESENCE OF GREATNESS

article by Laura Lambert

Well, as we all know by now, I'm a constant thinker. If I'm awake, I'm thinking about something, and horseback brings about a lot of time to think. I was riding around the warm up pen at Greeley and I happen to be up on one of the nights of slack. What that means in a nutshell is that there were a lot of barrel racers riding around the pen.

As I did my best to just walk around the arena and keep my horse calm, I was watching other people and their horses. I realized I was amongst some of the greatest in our industry. Just in that little 60 X 100 dirt ring, there were multiple horses that had been to the Wrangler National Finals, circuit qualifiers, American qualifiers...you name it, it had been done by the group of individuals surrounding me.

It was quite honestly awesome to think about the quality of horses all riding around together. Some of them were calm as they could be, some of them were looking as if they were about to explode, others were somewhere in the middle of the spectrum. Each one of them was, no doubt, exhibiting their own personality and quirks.

Bits were clanging, spurs jingling, saddles squeaking. Among the lull of voices discussing rodeos, schedules, horses, and life in general – my mind was absorbing the stunning value of the equine partners amongst us. The shear money that was walking through the arena was probably unbelievable to most people.

I wondered what the horses were thinking as well. Do they know just how valuable they are? Do they know they are the best of the best? I think they do, or I should say, I think some of them know. I've had some horses that you could just tell, knew their value. They ruled the roost and they knew it. For most of them riding around that night, I suppose it was just another day at the office for them. That brought me to quite another thought – trust.

These horses were surrounded by terrifying things. The crowd was exceptionally loud, there were tractors driving around, golf carts buzzing about, carnival rides with lights and clicking and buzzing, etc. Flags were blowing in the wind, lightning was striking quite near us, the wind was picking up and yet, there they were just walking, trotting, loping around, trusting us and doing exactly what we ask.

Trust is something that always astounds me with horses. If you really think about it, they are incredible beings to allow us to do all that we do to them. For instance, getting in the trailer. This one makes me giggle. Do they know they are about to be hauled down the road at sometimes 80 miles per hour? Stopped too soon when someone cuts us off? Turned around corners, weaved through mountain passes? Surely, they cannot understand this and if they do, they need more credit. There are certainly humans I don't want to drive me around. I wonder if they feel the same?

Greatness is the only word I could think of as I looked around. They are majestic, incredible athletes that deserve much respect. They certainly are worthy of our thoughts and the best care we can offer. Take a minute next time you are at a big rodeo during slack and look around you. We, as humans get most of the credit and people know the human athlete's names – as they should. But, I am here to tell you that those four legged athletes deserve much more of the credit than they often get. When we are allowed to be around them and blessed to have them, please remember that you truly are in the presence of greatness. 🐾

For now, Ride Tall .... He's Always Watching!

As we head to Texas and Oklahoma I hope everyone is staying cool. This is my first adventure staying in Arizona for the summer and needless to say I'm trying not to melt! As a native Texan I have forgotten how hot it can get, Montana has been a perfect place to enjoy all the seasons without too many extreme weather changes.

Some important reminders again: August 1st is the deadline for ballots, nominations and submission of rule changes. Now is the time! Please take a moment to get involved. As a member, your input is very valuable, extremely necessary and greatly appreciated. If you have any questions please feel free to call Susi in the office or your event directors. I would like to introduce Jim Arnold as a new candidate for president, Jim is available for questions and would love to hear from you. Chuck Melin is also planning on throwing his hat back in the ring. Please take the time and place value in planning the future of your association.

A final note... I will continue my efforts to encourage everyone to reach out to their sponsor resources, which are an essential part of every rodeo association. Again there is no contribution too small. As Directors, we take on a large responsibility that enables contestants to compete for prize money and memorable awards at our Finals. I personally would love to hear from my Ribbon Ropers and Runners with sponsorship suggestions. With a forged effort, our Association is able to provide contestants, family and fans with a great experience in Panguitch, Utah where we meet for the next SNFR.

Saddle up, check your cinch and stay blessed, see you down the road! Your NSPRA Friend, Bids and/or applications must be received in the office by August 1, 2017.

NOTICE!!! Please be aware that some entry dates for the 2017 rodeo season will NOT be on a Tuesday. Entries are approximately 10 days prior to the beginning of the rodeo. Beginning with the May rodeos in Panguitch, entries MAY be taken on a day other than Tuesday. For example, the entry date for the Panguitch rodeos in May will be Thursday, May 4th!! We have many rodeos during the week and several locations with consecutive rodeo dates. This makes it difficult to only take entries on Tuesdays! Please check the entry dates carefully! If you have any questions, please call the office at 928-684-9566.

RANDY CORLEY

Former North Platte resident, Buffalo Bill Rodeo announcer to be inducted into Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame

story by Ruth Nicolaus

Randy Corley, who lived in North Platte for two decades, is an inductee into the 2017 Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame.

Corley never thought he'd make a living as a rodeo announcer, and there was a teacher at Niobrara County High School in Lusk, Wyo., who concurred.

He was a high school kid, taking a speech class because it was an easy credit, and when he was asked to give a speech, it was always rodeo-related, about world champions like Larry Mahan or Jim Shoulders. The teacher did not approve. "She had threatened me a couple of times that I needed to talk about something different," Corley recalled. "I'd always come back to rodeo." One time, she couldn't take it anymore. When he started yet another speech on rodeo, she "came running up and ripped the speech off the podium, and said, 'you've got to think about your future. You're not going to talk rodeo your whole life.'" Little did she know, Corley would make his living "talking rodeo."

He was born in 1951 in Miles City, Mont., spending his school years mostly in Lusk and Lance Creek Wyo., and his summers with his granddad, Waldo Parsons, a cowboy who he idolized. "I spent every summer at his ranch, and when I got older, I'd go out in the winters and help feed cattle. He was everything to me."

In 1977-78, he attended the Ron Bailey School of Broadcast in Seattle, then worked as a dj in Broken Bow before moving to North Platte, where he was on air at KODY AM and KX 104.

In 1979, world champion saddle bronc rider Bill Smith started a nightly rodeo series in North Platte and hired Corley to announce it. He was acquaintances with Michelle and Trent Barrett, the children of the legendary North Platte native Hadley Barrett, also a rodeo announcer. Michelle, who ran barrels, and Trent, who roped at the rodeo, insisted their dad, a rancher north of town, come to the rodeo to hear this young announcer. He did, and Corley was nervous; he knew who Hadley was, and his accomplishments in the music world and the rodeo world.

Hadley was impressed but wanted to hear Corley announce when he wasn't aware of Hadley being in the audience. So the next week, Hadley made a trip to town for tractor parts, and again visited the rodeo, this time unannounced. He liked what he heard. A few weeks later, he asked Corley if he'd be interested in getting his PRCA card. Corley was, and Hadley assisted him in becoming a PRCA member.

That was in 1980, and four years later, Corley won the PRCA's Announcer of the Year award, an honor he would win eleven more times throughout his career, the most of any other announcer, in 1990-1996, 1998, 2003, 2011 and 2015.

Throughout Corley's career, he has announced rodeos across the nation: the big ones, and the little ones alike: North Platte; Puyallup, Wash.; Caldwell, Ida.; the RAM National Circuit Finals; Tucson, Ariz.; San Antonio, Texas; Phillipsburg and Pretty Prairie, Kan., and dozens more. He was selected to announce the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo sixteen times.

He worked alongside his father-in-law at five rodeos: North Platte, San Antonio and Waco, Texas, Caldwell, Idaho, and Puyallup, Wash., till Barrett passed away on March 2 of this year.

Corley vividly remembers what Barrett said after the final performance in San Antonio on Feb. 26, four days before he passed. "He laid his mike down, and said, that is the best rodeo I have announced in my life."

Corley and Barrett were good friends as much as they were son-in-law and father-in-law, and Corley relates a funny story Barrett told years ago. When he first started, Barrett asked him to live in on the ranch, to help take care of things when Barrett was on the road. By that point, Corley and Michelle were dating; they married in 1984. "I thought it would be nice to have somebody to help out when I wasn't around," Barrett said. "I made Randy a deal, and I thought he had good values. What I didn't realize was, his values were my valuables: my clothes, the food in my refrigerator, my rodeos, and my daughter."

Barrett was inducted into the Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame in 1999, and now eighteen years later, Corley follows him. The ceremony is the first weekend of August. It was a team effort, he insists, throughout his career. "I need about 500 or 600 people to come up to the podium with me," he joked. "There are a lot of people to thank, more than I can pinpoint. It's stock contractors, great committees, really good entertainers and rodeo clowns and bullfighters and sound people that I've gotten to work with. It's all the people that make those rodeos happen, and have given me a place to shine. All of them exemplify what the announcer does."

Corley knows the North Platte rodeo fans will miss Hadley; this will be the first time since 1964 that Hadley has not been behind the mike at the rodeo. He's been preparing himself. "It's something I've talked to God about every day," he said. "I have to go into that rodeo, and make it good." A special tribute will be done for Hadley; it won't be sad, Corley said, but "we'll pay tribute in a special way. We'll hear Hadley."

Corley and his wife Michelle moved to Silverdale, Washington in 2001. Corley has two daughters, Kassi and Amanda, and together the couple has a son, Cole, and a daughter, Brittany.

He is honored to be inducted into the Hall of Fame, and thankful for his life. "I realize more and more every day, how we don't have the control we think we do. You can place it all in God's hands, and it's how God planned it." 🤠

A LITTLE ENCOURAGEMENT

article by C.J. Aragon

This was taken from a friend of mine who is a great coach, Stacey Elias Martin. She has coached from the pee wee level to the college level and here are a few observations that we share.

After being around some of the best (and worst) parents and kids in the rodeo world, there are a few things I want parents to know about their little cowboys and cowgirls. This is about those kids that are internally driven to strive for success and are out there working all week for those weekend rodeos. Here are 5 things they want their parents to know...

1. Their fear of disappointing the people who support them and love them can be overwhelming and can cripple them in a competition. These kids WANT to win. They know YOU really want them to win and so they enter the arena with the weight of all of that pressure on their shoulders. The kids I have seen be amazing in the arena, never had to walk out and worry about parents that were mad/yelling/upset with them. These kids were free to lay it all on the line every time they rode in the alley so they won a lot more than the kid that was scared to make a mistake. We ALL want to win but it is worth losing the respect of our kids when we act like jerks by being loud, embarrassing, and insulting if they don't win? I want to win as much or more than anyone but I try really hard to let my son know that as long as he gives it his best effort, win or lose, I love him and this is something we do for fun. Wins and losses will never be allowed to define who we are or change our love for him.

2. These days are numbered and when these kids are gone, you will beg for one more rodeo road trip, win or lose. I hear it from so many parents... "We can't wait for high school rodeo to be over." Then two years later they are wishing for one more trip to nationals with their kids because they finally realize how amazingly blessed we are, that we get to haul our kids all over the country every summer and make some amazing memories. The memories we make and time with our kids is much more valuable than any saddle or buckle you could ever bring home. 🍷

TO BE CONTINUED in August 15, 2017 issue...

C.J. Aragon was named the 2008-2011 Grand Canyon Region Coach-of-the-Year, 2014-2015 WJCAC Coach-of-the-Year, 2016 Southwest Region Coach-of-the-Year, and 2010 National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Coach-of-the-Year.

DIAMOND IN THE ROUGH

article by Lacey Stevens

As most know if you've read my article for any amount of time, I've had a mare that I've struggled with from issues in the box, trying to sell her, and then trying to get her sound. This mare is in every definition a mare, moody, unpredictable, and loves to push my buttons.

I stayed sound. I took her to a jackpot last weekend and I'm not going to lie I was nervous. Before she went to the trainer she'd be fine in the practice pen but at a jackpot is when she'd freeze up and not get in the corner. I remember being in Arizona the year before, I had four call backs pretty high up there and just like that refused to get in the box. Even

Not to mention she's hot, she's the most athletic and fast horse I've ever crawled on, and she's not afraid to buck me off. Last year I sent her to a trainer to tune on and sell. I truly believe she didn't want to go to a new home, because he changed her for the better but couldn't get her sold. When I took her there I couldn't even get her in the box, and she had absolutely no rate. I was amazed she never sold, but am convinced she didn't want to leave me.

I got her back and shortly after she came up lame on both fronts. I got x-rays done, injections, shoeing, pads, chiropractor; you name it I tried it. I decided just to give her time off and leave her be. After watching her in the pasture and her normal day to day routine she looked really good. I decided to start legging her up. She seemed fine so I started roping on her and so far (knock on wood) she's the chute help was helping me. Let's just say, she was a different horse last weekend. I was so happy with her; she handled cattle nearly perfectly and was so solid in the box, when right to the corner without a fight.

I was impatient and wanted her gone; I never wanted to get on her again. Obviously not everyone is fond of mares including me, but if you can learn to communicate with them I believe they will give you everything they have and then some. Yes, she's bucked me off and has thrown fits but it was her way of talking to me. 'That saddle hurts my back, I'm scared of the box, I'm confused on what you're asking.' If we are patient and listen, they do talk to us and I neglect to listen most times. I'm thankful that she didn't leave me, that she was determined to stay with me and that I gave her another chance. She's my diamond in the rough. 🐾

START, CATCH AND HANDLE

article by Dale Woodard

Around 1980 I switched from heading to trying to learn how to heel. Some days heeling steers by two feet seems easy but on other days I feel like I have to trail every steer before I am comfortable enough to throw my heel rope. Yes, part of that is the way the headers handle the steers, or it may partly be the steers' antics, but a lot of it is me. Sometimes I don't get enough speed on my rope, sometimes I'm not up high enough or close enough to the steer. It's all part of the big picture and I guess it is the challenge of heeling. Whatever it is, heeling steers is something I enjoy doing on a daily basis in spite of the frustration I feel on some days. Heeling steers consistently is so much easier when you are heeling behind someone who handles cattle properly.

Speaking of handles and how that affects the catching percentages of the heelers, here's an example. One of the first good headers that I got to heel behind was a guy named Billy Barnes. Yes, Billy Barnes was Jake Barnes' uncle. He was a good partner because he had a good horse, he scored great, and handled cattle wonderfully. Billy was easy to heel behind and that was something I needed at that point of my career and still do to this day.

Also, I loved Billy's simple philosophy about the headers job. He said, "It's the start, the catch, and the handle. That's all it is. It's you against the steer and the conditions. If I just do my job, the winning will take care of itself." He used to tell me that too many headers concentrate so much on the catch that they forget about the start and the handle.

A friend of mine that I practice with a lot asked me how I cope with the different handles that I get at the different jackpots. My answer was that I do the best that I can and make adjustments as I go along if needed. But one of the things that I do is keep a file on headers that I might want to rope with in the future. And you can bet before I ask a guy or gal for their phone number so we might rope I make sure they handle cattle in a way that I think I can catch behind them. Just because someone has a high catching percentage doesn't mean they handle cattle well.

Even though I'm a heeler, I know one of the key elements to a good handle, and that is for the header to get the rope tight and the steers head turned before they let their head horse go left.

Another factor involved in a good handle is the head horse's body arch. If the head horse's nose and right hip are arched toward the steer that will help handle the steer properly as the head rope is tight and then the head horse begins to widen to the left and forward a little. The opposite of this technique is after the head rope goes on the horns but there is slack still in the head rope and the head horse turns his body sideways and goes left. This maneuver causes the steers to swap around and their hips to swing away from the heeler in a violent fashion.

I just hate it when I can see my header catch the steer, turns his horse sideways and then drop out of sight. What usually happens after this action is that as I make my entry instead of seeing the steers' hips and legs, I see his face. The reason the steer and I are eyeball to eyeball is because his hips have switched positions with his head.

When I see this happen, whether I'm heeling for the guy or not, I know this header is not a candidate for my future partner file. His name goes on one of my lists but you can bet it's not a list that any header wants to be on.

I try not to complain about the handling of a steer, but sometimes I just can't hold back. After a particularly violent handle one day, I mentioned to the header that he might consider handling his cattle a little easier. He said, "Well he was loose when I caught him."

I replied, "Next time turn him loose cuz I will have a better chance of catching his feet loose than trying to heel him behind you."

Headers, if you can just remember my old partner's philosophy and do three things: start, catch and handle, your winning percentages will go up considerably. 🐾

ROPER REVIEW:

story by Teri Edwards

Roping is in her blood – literally. Bailey (Cooper) Peterson, daughter of 7-time world champ, Clay O'Brien Cooper. Bailey grew up in Higley, Arizona where she lived until the age of eight. After a couple of years living in Idaho, the family made the move to Texas.

A few years later, Barrie and Brad Smith, her aunt and uncle, along with cousins, Shelby and Sterling, left Arizona and also moved to Texas. Bailey would spend summers with them while her dad was gone rodeoing.

"That's really when I started roping. My Aunt Barrie hauled Shelby and I all over and I owe a big thanks to her," says Bailey.

"Shelby and I both made it to the state high school finals in Team Roping and Break-away every year of high school."

Her favorite win is easily when she and Barrie won the Cruel Girl Championships in Oklahoma City. She and cousin, Shelby, were reserve champs and between the three of them, they won every round of the roping.

Bailey remembers coming home from school every day and her dad would have horses saddled, ready for her to spin steers for him.

"Our practice sessions were intense," says Peterson. "It's important to get everything you can out of every run. Every time I get on a horse I have a goal. It's ingrained in me that you go to the practice pen with the intention of what you need to work on and it's very serious."

I've had the advantage of roping with and getting help from some of the best like Allen, Speed, David Key. A few years ago, I was going through a tough time and called Jade Corkill. He invited me over and we roped the dummy for five hours with the temperature in the single digits. I'm very grateful for those opportunities and don't take it for granted."

Now, Bailey, 30, is married and has a daughter, Fallon, 9. Bailey and Cal Peterson spend most of their time in South Dakota ranching and training horses. During winter months, the family winters in Texas where they train horses, and go to rodeos and ropings.

Fallon, it seems, will follow in her mom's footsteps. "You can't keep her off a horse," explains Bailey. "She runs barrels, ties goats, and won her first buckle last year running barrels. She ropes with us in the practice pen, but isn't ready for competition." 🐾

COWBOY Q&A

Meet the Member Luke Dubois

story by Chiara Bacque

Luke Dubois competes in five events in the Louisiana Junior High School Rodeo Association: tie-down roping, team roping (header for Grant Foster), ribbon roping (ropes for Kylie Cliburn), chute dogging and goat tying. He and his partner won the state team roping title, placed 4th in tie down roping and 3rd in Ribbon roping at state qualifying him for his first National Junior High Finals in Lebanon, Tennessee.

Fourteen year old Luke is most proud of his paint gelding, Batman, because they share the same birthday and age. Batman was given to Luke as a gift from his Grandpa. "My dad helped me train him and I can do anything off of him. I can pen cows, head, heel and rope calves on him. Knowing that I helped train him makes him even more special to me." Luke is a 4th generation cowboy and began riding when he was able to sit up and began competing at the age of six. "I love every event in rodeo but my favorite is tie-down roping." Roping calves is a passion he would like to perfect in the next few years. "Rodeos are won in the practice pen so I practice a lot."

Luke grew up in his families horse training business in Cankton, Louisiana, with his parents Shel and Jeanne Dubois, Grace (12), Faith (10), John David (8), Gabe (5), and Clay Michael (3). Everything that he has learned about horses has been taught to him by his parents. His father is a third generation cowboy and his mother is a LHSRA alumni. "I spend a lot of time assisting my dad and learning how to train horses." He loves having a large family because there is always lots of love and he has a large cheering section at the rodeo. "I always have someone to rope and ride with and everyone helps with the chores." While Luke admits the horse training business requires effort from the entire family, cleaning stalls is his least favorite chore. "We all pitch in to get it done." All of the siblings are preparing to follow in Luke's foot steps in Louisiana Junior High Rodeo. They help Luke in the practice pen by pushing up cattle and working the chute gate. In the future, Grace and Luke will pair up in the team roping event. "It's easy to practice when you rope with your sister."

The 7th grader attends David Thibodeaux Stem Magnet Academy where he enjoys making new friends. He loves math and social studies and would like to attend college to pursue a mechanical engineering degree. He is an active member of the 4-H club. "I would like to college rodeo and qualify for the NFR". Luke is always thinking about riding and roping. "I like to track the sled dummy and rope on young horses. I think good horsemanship is important."

Trevor Brazil inspires him to be a good horseman and to try to become a great all around cowboy. "I would love to spend time with Trevor."

For fun, Luke likes shooting skeet, wake boarding, playing basketball, and hanging out with friends and family. On rainy days, watching Total Team Roping and Spin to Win on television are his favorite activities. He is an active member in 4-H and competes in several equine competitions and team roping throughout the year. While traveling he loves to eat hamburgers, fries, and beef jerky. Making new friends at rodeos is something he really enjoys.

Luke has a special bond with his parents. "They help me with everything and want me to do my best." Taking me to rodeos is a lot of work for my parents. I'm very blessed because I wouldn't be able to rodeo without the help of my parents." 🐾

Louisiana High School Rodeo Association

ents for her success both in and out of the arena. “My parents are very good examples of how to live a Christian lifestyle and raise four daughters. They keep our family dynamic while following Christ.”

Traveling to rodeos is always fun for her while drinking an Icee and eating chips with a good book in hand. “I like the sweet and salty combinations of the two, and I like to read like my mom.” Learning about the geography of Louisiana and lifestyles of friends intrigues her.

When Kelly isn’t competing at rodeos, she enjoys reading, riding horses, and spending time with family. “I like to go to the lake with family. My brother-in-law has a boat and we have fun enjoying the family, weather, and water.” A senior at Cedar Creek School, Kelly has particularly enjoyed English classes and engaging discussions. She is a National Honor Society Scholar, a member of the Spanish Club, Key Club, Creative Writing Club, Student Council, and she has been a member of the tennis team for three years.

Kelly plans to attend Louisiana Tech College in Ruston, Louisiana pursuing a business marketing degree. While she admits that choosing a college major and career path is rather stressful, “I hope to find a career that makes me happy.”

In the future she hopes to visit Hawaii. “I really want to go to Hawaii. I’ve seen pictures of how beautiful it is.”

As Kelly enters into a new chapter of her life, she is filled with pride, yet knows that she would not have been able to do it alone. “I’m proud of all that I’ve been able to achieve in rodeo. I owe it to all the people who have helped me. I am most proud of the relationships that I have made through the last 7 years of rodeo.”

Meet the Member Kelly O’Neal

story by Chiara Bacque

Kelly O’Neal is in her final year of competition in the Louisiana High School Rodeo Association. The 18-year-old cowgirl, a resident of Choudrant, LA, lives with her parents Tom and Gay O’Neal and sisters Martha (24), and Claire (22). Sister Amy (28) and brother in law Zach live nearby.

Kelly got involved with horses and rodeo through her dad, who competed in tie-down roping. “Claire and I liked to go to the barn with him. I wanted to do whatever Claire did including rodeo.” Kelly does admit, though, that feeding the cattle is her least favorite thing to do.

This Choudrant cowgirl is the reigning Louisiana High School Rodeo Association Reserve All-Around Cowgirl and Champion Girls Cutter. She finished 3rd in goat tying, and top ten in pole bending, barrel racing, and breakaway roping. She will be attending her 4th National High School Rodeo Finals in Gillette, Wyoming and hopes to add to her many championship titles.

Family and rodeo go hand in hand for Kelly. “I really enjoy spending time with them on the road.” She credits her par-

Meet the Member Hall Rodeo

story by Lindsay King

“The ACA is an association for the every-day, hard-working person that gets off work and comes out to the rodeo with their family,” says Cline Hall, second generation owner and operator of Hall Rodeo, LLC, out of Ash Flat, Arkansas. Named rodeo producer of the year for six years and counting, Cline knows nothing other than the life of a rodeo producer. Hall Rodeo started in 1983 by Cline’s late father Keith. Cline took over in 2009, producing nearly 70 total performances each year. “We are out on the road almost every weekend. We haul a brand new WW portable arena for each performance.” Hall has started to branch out and produce bull riding events also. Every Wednesday night in Ash Flat during the summer, they hold the Mike Watson State Farm Summer Series rodeo. “Our whole family comes out to the rodeo, we have a good turn out every week. That is what we get to do at home and it is what we enjoy.” Tradition is the name of the game for Hall Rodeo, sticking to the traditional events, nothing more and nothing less. “We have a lot of history in Hall Rodeo and we try to keep it alive through each of our events. Everything is back to the roots of rodeo, we don’t try to change a lot of stuff.” Cline is married to Ashley and they have four-year-old Kelton and one-year-old Kohen. “We always try to get the kids involved. We have a calf scramble at every rodeo and sometimes we will have mutton busting at special rodeos.”

This will be the first year Cline will produce the rodeo at the Ozark Empire

Fair in Springfield, Missouri. Started in 2012 by Aaron Own, the fair manager, it has grown quickly. “There are usually more than 200 contestants at this rodeo.” Held August fourth and fifth at 7:30 p.m., Guy Mclean, an Australian horse trainer and entertainer will be featured. “We do a lot of fairs in northern Arkansas and southern Missouri, we are excited for the opportunity to do a fair as large as the Ozark Empire Fair. It is one of the biggest in the state of Missouri and usually gives the state fair a run for its money.” Cline started his own bucking bull breeding program as a child and has been growing it ever since. Winners of the ACA bucking bull of the year seven of the last eight years, Hall Rodeo owns and breeds 15-year-old bucking bull Vertical Limit. “One thing I am proud of is we are raising all of our own bucking bulls and horses.

We are also starting to raise our own roping steers. So we are getting to where we raise all of our own stock for our rodeos.” Cline runs Rodeo Ranch out of Ash Flat, nearly 300 cross-bred cow/calf pairs run along side bucking stock on almost 1,500 acres. Cline’s favorite part of each rodeo is the chaos of each performance, he gets an adrenaline rush from trying to keep everything running smoothly, one that usually lasts about two hours. “There is a lot of work leading up to those performances so when we are having a really good rodeo and the crowd is enjoying it, that is easily my favorite part of the whole thing.” They have produced the Newton County Fair rodeo in Jasper, Arkansas, since 2011, winning rodeo of the year numerous times in the ACA. “We always have fun there in Jasper and look forward to it every year. We feel like that is one of the good ones to look forward to every year: when the rodeo of the year and producer of the year get together.”

Meet the Member Sally Poteat

story by Lindsay King

Fourteen-year-old Sally Poteat from Spartanburg, South Carolina, traded in her English saddle for a barrel saddle as soon as she got the chance. "When I was growing up I always wanted to ride, for my fifth birthday our neighbors down the street brought horses for us to ride in the yard. I started taking riding lessons not long after that when I got into the first grade." Sally runs barrels, poles, ties goats, breakaway ropes and ribbon ropes. "A friend of my grandpa's puts on a rodeo and my mom used to take me to them. That is where I first saw barrel racing and decided that I wanted to do it." Christmas of 2014 brought Sally her first horse, Dash, a five-year-old sorrel gelding who she ran barrels and poles on for two years until he passed away. She now rides another sorrel, an 11-year-old mare named Lexi while she ropes off Stella, a blank-year-old red dun mare. "Barrels is my favorite; it is what I started doing what I always wanted to do. I like to go fast and the adrenaline rush I get right before I go in the gate." The 2016 reserve champion barrel racer and sixth place pole bender sending Sally to the Junior High National Finals Rodeo. She earned a second trip to nationals after winning ribbon roping at state and placing sixth in the goat tying. "State finals from the past two years have been my favorite so far, those were definitely two of my better rodeos. Both weekends were hectic but I wouldn't trade them for anything." Heavy rainfall in Tennessee left the arena sticky, Sally still managed to place 21st in the preliminary round, missing the short round by less than one second. "My ribbon roping partner, Colton Schlock, and I finished with a 17.42 run and we were only one hole away from making the short go finals." Sally is now the reigning 2017 Foothills Youth Rodeo Association princess.

Sally, along with her parents Warren and Elizabeth and 17-year-old brother

Trey, are big University of South Carolina Gamecock fans. "We all go hang out with my parent's friends when the gamers are on. That is where my mom went to school." Next year Sally will be a freshman at Boiling Springs High School. Her favorite subject in middle school was social studies. "Last year my teacher was really good and throughout middle school I had teachers who taught really well so I always looked forward to going to that class and learning about that subject." During the school year, Sally spends three times a week with Crystal McDowell working on her events. During the summer she gets to the barn at seven in the morning to help Crystal work some of young horses on the roping dummy. "I participate in a lot of church activities and I like to shop I guess. But mostly, I just rodeo, practice and give lessons with Crystal, you could say that is my hobby." After each rodeo Sally goes to the nearest Waffle House to get her favorite: a Texas bacon patty melt, hash browns and a cherry Coke. "Most of the time my whole family goes with me to rodeos. At first, mom always would mess with me when I was saddling and trying to get into the zone. She has kind of learned to leave me alone a little bit before and after I run. Usually my dad will help me get ready, putting my rubber bands on and stuff like that." Sally does not get nervous for her roping runs but she does get a little worried before she goes in for the barrels and goat tying. "My horse gets really hot sometimes so I just try to keep walking. And I try not to talk to anybody because I will get out my zone if I do. I always go over in my head what I need to do because I will forget if I don't tell myself. I get really nervous in barrels." This is Sally's first year to run in the JSRA. "I have had a great time. The ground and stock have always been great. And everybody is always so nice, they lend a hand whenever they can." Sally is looking forward to competing in the SCHSRA, FYRA and maybe even rodeo in college. "Rodeo is something that most people do not get to experience, but it is something that I have loved and has changed my life for the better." 🐾

Meet the Member Tyler Hoagland

story by Lily Weinacht

I love going down the road. I love the people you meet going new places, and I'm addicted to roping – I don't know what I'd do if I couldn't rope anymore!" Tyler Hoagland of Birmingham, Alabama, caught his roping addiction when he was 10 or 11, and after several years of playing Little League baseball, he wanted to follow his dad's example and become a team roper. "I started in the junior high rodeos and worked my way up, and I did one year of college rodeo at Ranger College in Ranger, Texas," says Tyler, 23. "I did some tie-down roping, but I mainly team rope. I just like being in a team sport."

A header, Tyler ropes primarily with Phillip Kelce and Steven Bland. Tyler and Steve are currently sitting second in the SPRA team roping standings. "I've known them forever, but this is the second year I've hauled down the road with them," says Tyler. "My whole family has really helped me out a lot and they've all been really supportive. Most of my family rodeos, so we all work together and help each other out. A lot of people have helped me get down the road – more than I can name – but my family has been the biggest help." Practice is a daily event on the Hoagland farm, provided the arena is dry.

Tyler is involved in nearly aspect of the farm, from working and hauling cattle to cutting and baling hay and harvesting their cotton crop. "We've got seven hundred acres of cotton, and a good crop yields a bale and a half to two bales per acre," he explains. "It's pretty flexible for me to get out and rodeo. The only time I really need to stay around is when we start harvesting cotton, which is in October, Lord willing." Tyler also took over running the Lazy H Farm boarding business full time in February, which his father started years ago. "It's going pretty good, and we have several horses in the barn. It's work, but it's an enjoyable work. I'm always working to build my cattle operation," he adds, "and trying to find more land for that or my horse boarding."

His own horses include Dunny, his 23-year-old head horse. "I got him when I started my freshman year of high school, and we bought him from Ed Allen. He's been my main horse since, and I've had others come along but they've never been as good as him. I have another horse coming along and I'll start hauling him next year. I don't do a lot of starting and training, but I do wish I had more time to start horses." In his very spare time, Tyler is roping, along with spending time with family and friends at events such as cookouts. "I like steak – that's one of the reasons I'm in the cattle business because I do like to eat steak," says Tyler. "There's not a lot of sitting around. I hunt whitetail deer just about all winter long. We have a lot of older folks in the community that can't get out to hunt, so we help them too."

While Tyler has also competed in US-TRC ropings in the past, the SPRA is his primary focus these days. This is his fourth season competing in the association, and he qualified for their finals for the first time last year and finished in the top five of team roping. "They do their best to get the best stock they can and make it as fair as possible," he finishes. "I'm always trying to better my roping, and I'd really like to win the year-end in the SPRA on the head side." 🐾

Meet the Member Dan Welsh

story by Lily Weinacht

“I’ve always been a cowboy at heart,” says Dan Welsh. The 41-year-old bull rider turned steer wrestler was first the son of a dairy farmer in Connecticut. Growing up, he showed dairy cows and even rode a few of them, but he didn’t throw his leg over a bull until he was 22. “A buddy of mine from college and I went to watch a rodeo in Glenn Falls, New York. He told me he was going to a practice pen the next day, so I rode along. Bulls were ten bucks a head and I rode the first two I got on.” This was in October of 1997 when he was in his second year at the State University of Cobleskill at New York and looking for the next school to transfer to. “I found North-west Missouri State University had a rodeo team and my major in agricultural education. I transferred, jumped in the car all by myself and drove thirty hours. I dropped all my stuff in the dorm room and the first place I went was the rodeo grounds.”

Dan attended college in Missouri for another two years and befriended the rodeo team, pushing steers for the team ropers, who in turn ran roping steers in the bucking chutes for him. Friendships grew between Dan and Steven Snow, a bull rider on the college team, along with Miles Mitts, who rode bulls on the PRCA Great Lakes Circuit. Steven hooked Dan up at the practice pen in Nebraska on Friday nights. In 1999, Dan attended his first rodeo school and entered his first rodeo. “It was in Manhattan, Kansas, at a URA rodeo, and I rode my bull for seventy-four points. I won seventy-four bucks, and I was hooked!”

Dan competed in events held by the Bull Riders of America and National Federation of Professional Bull Riders, and joined the APRA in 2011 when he moved back to the East Coast. He won both the APRA finals and APRA Year-End titles that same year. Dan and his family make their home in Palmerton, Pennsylvania, and he currently serves as the APRA Interim Bull Riding Director. “My parents supported me the whole time. I rode bulls for eighteen years and retired at the American Finals Rodeo in Atlantic City when I was forty. When I started riding bulls, the legends were still riding, like Tuff Hedeman and Jim Sharp. I recall a rodeo at Springville, Missouri, that Steven Snow and I went to, where one of the promoters asked us to sign autographs. I looked down the table and there sat Tuff Hedeman and Luke Snyder, who had just won the PBR Finals as a rookie. People were coming through with programs and hats, and I was signing my name next to theirs! That moment, I knew I wanted to show people I was a bull rider with my riding, so that’s what I did for eighteen years, and it was good.”

Since retiring from bull riding, Dan is trying his hand at steer wrestling. “I went to my first clinic in May, put on by Tim Slater and Mike Smith, and it was a great clinic. Each steer I put my hands on I got them thrown. It’s just a new adventure and I’m excited about it!” Dan’s wife, Charlene, is the APRA Secretary and also works as a rodeo secretary for various association. His 12-year-old step-son, Colton, rides junior steers and their four-year-old son, Dillon, recently rode his first two sheep.

Dan’s latest venture is his two Brahman bulls, Gus and Woodrow. Gus was a Christmas present a couple of years ago and Woodrow is 11 months old. Dan first taught Gus to lead down their driveway, then took walks to get the mail and visit with neighbors. “It’s like training anything – it’s time and effort. We sometimes take him to rodeos, and it’s fun to take him and educate people about what a true Brahman looks like, and that not all bulls are mean.” Gus travels to rodeos with Dan, where people can sit in the saddle and take photos with him. Dan also works with their two horses, but he often rides Gus when the family trail rides. During the week, he is a food safety inspector for the United States Department of Agriculture.

“I’ve personally set a goal to be a forty-one-year-old rookie in the APRA steer wrestling,” Dan finishes. “While there are younger kids that are true young rookies, I’m a true old rookie. I rode bulls until I was forty, and I hope to be steer wrestling until I’m fifty.”

2017 International Finals Youth Rodeo Champions

The International Professional Rodeo Association would like to congratulate the winners of the 25th Annual International Finals Youth Rodeo held in Shawnee, Oklahoma. What an exciting week of competition and gathering of fine young men and women competitors from across the United States and even as far away as Australia. The IPRA has been sanctioning this superb event since its inception, and we look forward to many more years of involvement. We are proud to support these talented contestants coming together to celebrate rodeo, showcase their skills and compete for lucrative prize money. Over the years, the IFYR has become the foundation for so many rising stars in the sport of rodeo. It is a place where their professional careers begin to form in a quality setting such as the one orchestrated by the team of dedicated IFYR committee members at the Heart of Oklahoma Expo Center, the many volunteers and personnel. But beyond the arena, the IFYR is an event that fosters so much more than professional prohess. It helps to hone teamwork, perseverance, responsibility, dedication and the hard work synonymous with cowboys and cowgirls, which translates into a positive impact in all areas of life and in any career that IFYR contestants choose. By the high dose of these characteristics on display this year in Shawnee from the over 800 competitors, we know the future of rodeo is bright, and we hope to see you all next year! # Meet the 2017 IFYR Youth Directors

The International Finals Youth Rodeo appoints six youth each year to work as ambassadors for the rodeo as well as assist the judges in the three arenas during the rodeo. Through an application and interview process, they are selected and then they attend a winter meeting at the International Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City. Rene' and Kurt Underwood have run the program for 12 years and their family has been volunteering at the IFYR for 15 years. "This program brings outstanding kids in and we make lifelong relationships with them," said Rene'. "The directors come out with knowledge of the inside workings of the rodeo and many of them go on to other things by having this on their resume. There are two directors assigned to each arena and they work with the judges as well as the liaison between the student contestants and the judges. They have had to make some tough calls and their work load is incredible during the IFYR. For their service, they get a golf cart to use during the week, free clothes from Cinch, a belt buckle, as well as a jacket."

Wes Thibodeaux, from Elmer, Louisiana, is one of the six 2017 IFYR Youth Directors. "A friend of ours told us how great it was and we came," he said of the IFYR. "There's nothing like it – how the community comes together shows how great Shawnee is." The 18 year old ran for the position as a youth director to get more involved in the IFYR. Wes competes in team roping and will go to college next year to become a mechanical engineer. He has rodeoed since the sixth grade and has one younger brother Will.

Morgan Harrington from Casa, Arkansas, competes in poles, barrels, and break-away. She ran for the position to see how the rodeo works from the inside. "I love being involved in everything I do and this helps me get involved on a deeper level." She started rodeoing when she was four and likes the family aspect of rodeo. "I watched my barrel horse get hit and killed by an 18 wheeler, and my rodeo family stepped up to help me – letting me borrow horses and keep competing. I get to run on his son now, so I have a part of him with me." Morgan is an only child and plans to attend the University of Arkansas and study biochemistry and biology. "I am in a contract to become a pharmacist," she said. "I give all the glory to God."

Adriane Nichols from Ozark, Missouri, has three sisters and one brother. She competes in barrels and poles, but is just competing in barrels at the IFYR. This is her second year at the IFYR. "I love how open everyone is and all the volunteers – it's a good rodeo to come to." She is excited to be part of the Youth Director team. "I love it; the people I've met have been great and I wouldn't have this opportunity to see what happens behind the scenes." The 17 year old wants to be a pharmacist.

George Wright from Slaton, Texas, has enjoyed meeting the people that run the IFYR. "I've always wanted to know how it worked," he said of the IFYR. "I started roping when I was a little kid and took a few years off to concentrate on saddle bronc riding." He's a heeler, but found out that there was a need for a header and decided to switch ends and help a fellow roper out. "We're going to make it work," he said of roping with someone he's never met. He will be helping in the roughstock arena. "My job will be to make sure everyone is ready to crawl down on one and set up poles." He has an older brother, Levi, and will be going to Southeastern Oklahoma State University and majoring in marketing.

Sydney Odle from Brush, Colorado, joined the Youth Directors to help spread the name of the IFYR and get kids involved with more than just the rodeo part of it. She competes in barrels, poles, team roping and ribbon roping. She plans to attend college and play softball. "I figure I can rodeo for the rest of my life after college so I'm going to play softball in college." She thinks the toughest part of rodeo is the mental aspect. "I'm really good at psyching myself out – so I just tell myself I'm here for a reason and do what I do."

Creede Hicks from Home Wamette, Oklahoma, decided to be a youth director because he enjoys working with the staff. "I like being able to help them and promote the rodeo. We went to a library last year and talked to kids about the sport of rodeo – it was neat to teach the kids." Creede just won the 2017 National Little Britches Steer Wrestling Championship and will spend his week rodeoing and working with the judges in the steer wrestling and team roping arena. Creede has a little brother, Chance, and an older brother Nick. Creede is 18 and plans to attend college in the fall and win the IPRA world in the steer wrestling and become a nurse. "I enjoy working with people and helping them."

2017 IFYR Volunteers

story by Siri Stevens

It takes more than 500 volunteers to keep the International Finals Youth Rodeo running smoothly. There are twelve committees that meet monthly and 24 volunteers received 25 year buckles at this year's IFYR. One of those is Daniel Beck, who has been a volunteer at the IFYR for 28 years; 25 years at the IFYR and three years for the National High School Finals. He started his career chasing cowboys for the first three years. "Nationals you had to have shirts on; button down, back numbers square on the shoulders, and cowboy boots, hat, spurs – they demanded quite a lot from young kids," said the 88 year old native of Shawnee. "I was born and raised in the north part of town." His career was with Oklahoma Gas and Electric after serving our country in the Air Force in atomic, biological, and chemical warfare. He was stationed at Cargill Air Force base. "I was a lineman for 14 years and then service and then metering." Daniel and his wife, Elsie, have four children, Nancy Bryse, Mickel, Tim, Scott; 8 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Daniel is the grumpy grandpa selling programs. "I'm doing the same thing I did the first year I was here – selling programs. My son, Scott, has been helping me about five years – he takes off work." What makes Daniel come back every year are the kids. "I enjoy young people saying 'yes sir, no sir', they are always exceptionally polite. There is always a prayer before the rodeo and the National Anthem. Those things I'm interested in. I love past history and you can learn a lot if you just listen to what's going on. I have enjoyed every year of IFYR."

What keeps Scott coming back each year is his dad. "This is a way to spend time with my dad."

The volunteer group becomes a family. "Sometimes you forget names but you don't forget what they did," he said. "They know I'm going to be here – I had two good friends that started here with me – Ozer Etney – he was the mayor here. He and I did census taking before we got acquainted here." He likes the IFYR because it is personal and fun. "These kids know what the rules are and they abide by them. I hope that I can last five or ten more years, but I'm getting older and it's getting harder for me to get around." 🐾

McConnel wins Bulls Only XIX

story by Joe Naiman

Ryan McConnel won the Optimist Bulls Only Rodeo XIX competition July 14-15 in Lakeside, California.

McConnel, who is originally from New Mexico and now lives in the Central California town of Tollhouse, was the only one of the 40 riders to stay on both bulls and had a score of 143 points on two head. Corey Rickard of Nuevo, California, placed second in the average with a score of 79 on one head, which was also the highest score of the rodeo hosted by the Lakeside Optimist Club.

"I've heard about this bull riding for a long time. I'm very blessed to be in the number one spot," McConnel said.

(The Optimist Bulls Only Rodeo event was first held in 1999 and became the first bulls only rodeo to be sanctioned by the IPRA in 2005.)

McConnel had a 67-point ride on Astronaut July 14 and was given the option of a re-ride but chose to keep his score. "I was a little bit soft," said McConnel, who rode with a partially torn groin.

"I rode my bull last night," he said. "I was happy about that."

The draw gave McConnel a bull called Road Hazard for July 15. "I watched that bull last night," McConnel said.

The fact that McConnel rode Road Hazard better than Mitchell Thomas did the previous night may have been in part due to the observation and in part due to the fit between McConnel and Road Hazard. "He's got a lot of size," McConnel said.

McConnel is 5'11". "I tend to like those bigger bulls," he said. "We got along really great."

The judges gave McConnel 76 points for his ride on Road Hazard. "I felt pretty good knowing I had a bigger bull," he said.

That gave him second place among the July 15 scores and first for the combined two go-rounds. "I'm lucky that everybody else that rode the first one fell off their second one," McConnel said.

Since McConnel was in the top six in the average in addition to being the average winner, he had the opportunity to ride in the bonus round, but he was too sore from his groin pull to pursue the $1,000 winner-take-all prize. "I was almost not going to be able to get on today," he said.

Only two cowboys participated in the bonus round and both were bucked off.

McConnel expects to return to Lakeside for Bulls Only XX next year. "What a bull riding. This is the best bull riding to go to in California," he said.

Rickard first competed at the Lakeside Rodeo Grounds during his California Junior Rodeo Association and California High School Rodeo Association days before he graduated from high school in 2011. He was bucked off Scream in the July 14 performance but stayed on Renegade for the required eight seconds July 15.

"Just a jump-up bull," Rickard said. "The one you want to get on."

The 79-point score put him into the average lead until McConnel rode his second bull. Rickard settled for second place and the high score of the rodeo. "I was just lucky it all worked itself out," Rickard said.

Rickard has made the trip to Lakeside for several previous Optimist Bulls Only Rodeo events. "Can't wait until next year. It's always a good time," he said.

The record Bulls Only score excluding the bonus round was the 90-point ride by Junior Saenz in 2009. (In the 2005 Optimist Bulls Only Rodeo, Sean Case won the bonus round with a 92-point ride.) Saenz, who is now 36 and lives in Valley Center, California, retired from bull riding after his two Bulls Only XIX rides in which he was bucked off both times, but the father of six-year-old Boogie Saenz is continuing in the sport as the vice-president of the Pacific Coast Junior Bull Riders. Boogie Saenz not only won the Mutton Bustin' competition July 15 but stayed on his sheep for 17 seconds to give both father and son Bulls Only records.
