WINNER

above: "If I tried to spell rodeo, it didn't look like it belonged in the picture, so I put a pole in there and the wheels started rolling," said Josi Johnson, winner of the photo contest for this issue. MY PATH

article by Jayde Atkins

“I have been crucified with Christ and I no longer live, but Christ lives in me. The life I now live in the body, I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me.” Galatians 2:20

Last fall when I didn’t college rodeo, many people said it was a mistake and part of me agreed. However, had I rodeoed, I wouldn’t have attended my first Husker game, wouldn’t have a job where I not only made money but learned a new side to ranching than ever before, wouldn’t have done college music with an influential group of people and professors, wouldn’t have gone to a new church, been assigned a wonderful host family that has saved my bacon on numerous occasions, or met many godly people that have encouraged me throughout the year.

So I took 7 months off. With a lot of rust to knock off this Spring, the season did not go how I planned it. When I didn’t make the CNFR I was disappointed, but not crushed. You see rodeo is one of my passions, but not the most important thing in my life. Now that’s probably blasphemy to all the rodeo people out there but it’s the truth. I love rodeo- the horses, physical and mental preparation, competition, and of course the success. It’s something

I’ll do for the rest of my life, but it’s not my WHOLE life because I belong first to GOD. So taking my shortcomings as opportunities in disguise, I decided to see where God would take me this summer.

Soon after school was out, rather than hearing my own name over the loud-speakers, I announced and timed at a junior high rodeo. A few weeks later, I ran the tractor and drag for a reining show. I’ve given lessons and been able to coach the next up and coming champions and here in a couple weeks I get to council a group of girls at the Mason City Rodeo Bible Camp, show them how God has influenced my rodeo career and hopefully help them connect rodeo with God as well. Had I gone to the CNFR, I wouldn’t have agreed to be involved in many of these experiences and I would have missed out on so many cool opportunities.

So today I was not CNFR bound. Actually I didn’t go anywhere because I had plenty of stuff to do at home! But you know, I’m ok with it. Am I satisfied? Heck no! I’ll be rooting here at home for my fellow competitors and as the summer goes on I will prepare harder than ever before for CNFR 2018. But for now I’m ok with staying home and enjoying the path God is leading me down. h

article by Siri Stevens

Trula Churchill and Worm just won $3,900 at the Bonus Race Finals in Lincoln, Nebraska. "I'm not usually home in June, so this just happened to work out. I won third out of 1,200 runs." Worm is 12, and was raised by the Churchill's. Born late at night, Worm was long, skinny, wrinkly and dirt brown. Streak of Fling is his dad, his mom is NFR Qualifying Steer Wrestling horse Jetta Rita. "When my husband, Linn, wasn't using her, we decided to raise some colts out of her. It was a fate deal when we took her over to the Clinic and Brian and Lisa's horse happened to be out there and we bred her to him. He was the first colt crop that Streak of Fling produced."

Trula admits that he's a character, but quick to add that he loves his job. "He's one of those kind that wants to please and do what you ask of him. He's very willing. He's still winning, so as long as he is, we'll keep going. He doesn't owe me anything – he has a home for life." Worm has taken Trula to the WNFR three times, the Canadian Finals three times (once as the champion), the RAM Circuit Finals twice and made three or four trips to the California Circuit Finals. He's known as the streak of blue as he makes his way around the cloverleaf.

"To me, the highest compliment a horse owner can get is to have everybody from the pickup men to the team ropers complimenting your horse. The announcer will call his name – and that's pretty cool to me that they always call his name – here comes Worm."

This summer finds Trula staying close to her home in Valentine, Nebraska. She made the WNFR in 2014 and decided after the winter that she was going to stick closer to home this year. "I have some young horses that need to be ridden," she said. "Linn and I will hit the closer rodeos and some of the amateur ones around home. The three years I made the finals I was home maybe 40 days, and not consecutively, so this will be a nice change."

She has no intention of quitting the rodeo road. "I'm going to keep rodeoing and do what I enjoy and stay active in the horse industry. Worm was the first colt we raised and we've raised one or two every year. I've got a full sister to Worm and she's now having some colts. The riding age colts they have are by Fulton Ranches other stallion CS Flashlight, and others such as Jesse James JR, Slick By Design, and Prime Talent." Linn is still riding horses and training a few and helps on his folks' ranch. 🐾

[“When life hands you lemons, put a bull rope on ‘em.”]

ON THE TRAIL WITH

DALE BRISBY

story by Siri Stevens

“Of course I’ll talk to ya, I’m so honest you can shoot dice with me over the phone!” Dale Brisby is not afraid to wear his name on his hat. “I am the best there is, was, or ever will be! I’ve been to the winning circle so many times, it’d make a normal man dizzy!” boasts the Texas bull rider. His rodeo career began early. “Rodeo has been my life, I’ve been goin 90 since before the war!” He started riding sheep, then graduated to steers and bulls, and went on to college rodeo. Where he obtained an undergraduate and a graduate degree in – ag leadership and education. “I done been 90 in the rodeo arena and the classroom ol’ son!”

“I have a really good time rodeoing and I like to live that life through social media. I am grateful every day that anyone might find what I do entertaining enough to give me a second look. I thank God everyday that He blessed me with a path to salvation through His son, with living in this country, for making me a cowboy, and for making me the most humble bull riding legend ever to walk the earth. If there’s a better life, I don’t know it.”

“Whenever I get together with my camara man, Randy Quartieri, and Leroy Gibbons, we’re like a bunch of little kids giggling and building a tree house. It’s just fun. And that’s how life should be! Especially if you’re a cowboy, and especially if you’re a Christian. I want to live my life through social media in a way that people see that.”

“The Lord put me on this earth to spend time in the rodeo arena. I’ve competed and mastered all three rough stock events professionally and I have also fought bulls professionally. It was shortly after college rodeo that I decided to pursue one event and only enter the bull riding. As many goals as I have set and accomplished, it’s getting a bit mundane.

So I am always looking for new horizons!”

He has mastered social media – his videos have been seen by millions. “I was always considered the class clown, but I think that was only because I was different than everyone else. I didn’t conform my personality to the status quo then, and I still don’t today. How many other people do you see walk into Cowboy Christmas in Las Vegas with mud boots, holes in their jeans, only a vest on, and their only concern is that everyone know it is ‘Rodeo Time’.”

He has brought his concept not only to social media, but to the retail market and motivational speaking engagements. He lives his ministry through focusing on his faith. “My business plan is prayer. I have some goals, but mainly, I want to please the Lord. That comes first. If that remains my priority then I will be at peace with whatever the outcome is.”

“I believe social media is merely a tool. A very powerful one that can be used for good or bad. For me, it is where I can hopefully give someone a break in their stressful day and make them laugh.

above: Dale will do anything for a good Snapchat, even run with the bulls at the DOXA Rodeo in Alex, OK
- Andrew Birzer

Everyone of my videos may not quote scripture, but hopefully they can see Christ's love through the way I live my life. Thank you to anyone who follows or subscribes to my shenanigans, you are why I do what I do. Hit me up in the DM's!"

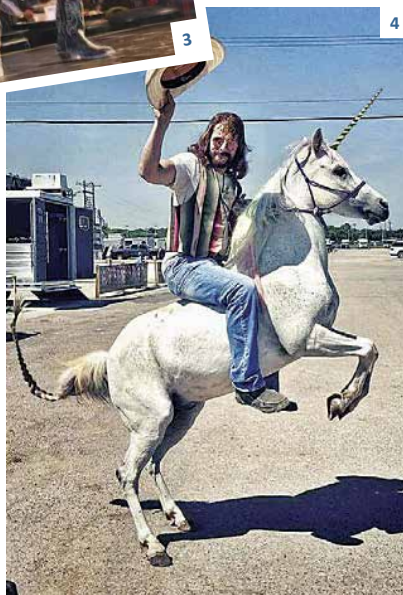

["It's just fun. And that's how life should be! Especially if you're a cowboy, and especially if you're a Christian. I want to live my life in a way that people see that."]

He partnered up with Fallon Taylor to create a series of videos poking fun at the barrel racing world. "We give barrel racers an inside look at bull riders and she gives bull riders and inside look at barrel racing. We do Snapchat takeovers where we run each others' Snapchat."

He has produced more than 100 videos and his goals for the future include more retail adventures. "I'd love to be the one spot people go for all things rodeo and obviously continue to rodeo." 🍷

Back When THEY BUCKED with Pat Litton

story by Siri Stevens

Pat Litton was born in Lincoln, Nebraska. Her dad was an ex-farmer that worked for the state and had a garbage route. “He later went into construction with his dump trucks and helped build airports during the war,” explained the 88-year-old from Gillette, Wyo. “We traveled all over. I went to 17 high schools. I got to know a lot of people and do a lot of things.” She had one brother and one sister – they both passed from cancer.

She went to college at Black Hills Teachers College for two summers and became a teacher. “I started teaching at 17, right out of high school. Teachers were hard to find. I taught in the Inya Cara school on the HK Divide, above Moorcroft.” She had 10 students in all 8 grades, including one that was the same age as she was. “I can remember when I went out to teach – it was quite a walk up the hill to school and I never went to town because I didn’t drive.” The opportunity developed her love for teaching and kids. “We had a great time together, we could use our imaginations.”

She has gone to the WNFR every year since 1974, when it was still in Oklahoma City. “I would go down with the high school association and secretary the rules committee meetings.”

She met her husband, Bob Isenberger, at the corner drug store in Gillette where she was working. “He worked for the Moore family, and came in and there was a glow around his head,” she remembers. “It just hit me like a ton of bricks.” He was at a dance she was at and they danced. “The school I taught was a skip and jump from the ranch he was working on and we started going together.” They were married within four months. The couple settled at Nine Mile Ranch and lived in that sheep wagon that first year. She and her husband lambed 3,000 ewes and Pat loved it. “The guys couldn’t get me out of the lambing pen.” Bob rode saddle broncs and bareback horses and competed in bull riding. “They used to say about him that none of the neighbors’ calves were safe – he was either riding or roping them.” The couple took a summer off and rodeoed. Pat had every intention to start barrel racing and team roping. “I would get so nervous that my feet would shake out of the stirrups, but I was pretty fleet footed and I entered the cow milking race because I could run. I was an ok ranch horse back rider, but not a rodeo horse back rider. I love horses and love to ride.”

After the summer, Bob took a ranching job and Pat continued to time local rodeos. Mike was born in 1954 and, Lee, was born in 1956. Mike was killed in a trucking accident on his 20th birthday, August 2, 1974. “Lee and I had just taken off to secretary a steer roping in Thermopolis.” She had checked into her hotel room and got the phone call.

Pat got involved through Bob with the Wyoming High School Rodeo Association; he was serving on the Board. Pat was recording times and word got out. Bob was roping calves and team roping and they spent every weekend rodeoing; the boys started with the high school rodeo. Pat ended up getting involved with the Fair Board in Gillette and ended up timing through that as well. Both boys were involved in 4H and Pat was a 50 year 4H leader. "I just liked working with kids. They are the most honest individuals."

The couple also produced the Little Cowpokes rodeo at their house, an event for kids age four through junior high. "We did that for 13 years, and quit doing that after Bob was killed." Bob went to Douglas to get a part for a water pump in January of 1974. He waited for the bus to come in with the part and he was 12 miles out of Douglas and in a white out. He was off the road and over corrected and rolled the pickup and was killed. "The boys were terrified; they were both in high school. If it hadn't been for rodeo, I don't know how I would have survived. There was always something I had to do – it was my salvation. I have a love affair with rodeo and the people involved with it."

Pat became the National Director for Wyoming High School rodeo in 1975 and was instrumental in developing the point system. "Before the point system, you had to win the state finals in order to get to the Nationals. Some kids didn't do good at the Finals and so couldn't make it to Nationals. Scott Redington and I worked on it – the system was set up so that it was consistent too. When I think about how many hours it took us to put it together. There had been others that had tried to come up with something, but we had to come up with something that was consistent and fair to every state. That was the hardest thing. We made the presentation to the National Board."

Pat met Gene Litton, who was serving as the secretary/treasurer for the National High School Rodeo Association. "I wouldn't let myself get serious about him," she remembers, but the couple ended up getting married on February 15, 1980 and had 30 years together before he passed away.

"We were responsible for the first computerized rodeo," said Pat. "Gene was secretary treasurer for the National High School and we had started computerizing, and he came to Wyoming to visit us when we had our state finals because of the good reports on our team. We built the National

High School office at our ranch in 1980," she said.

Pat was the first member of the National High School Rodeo Association Foundation—her number is #1. "The Foundation gives scholarships every year and our goal was to have every senior that applies for a scholarship gets one and I think they did that last year."

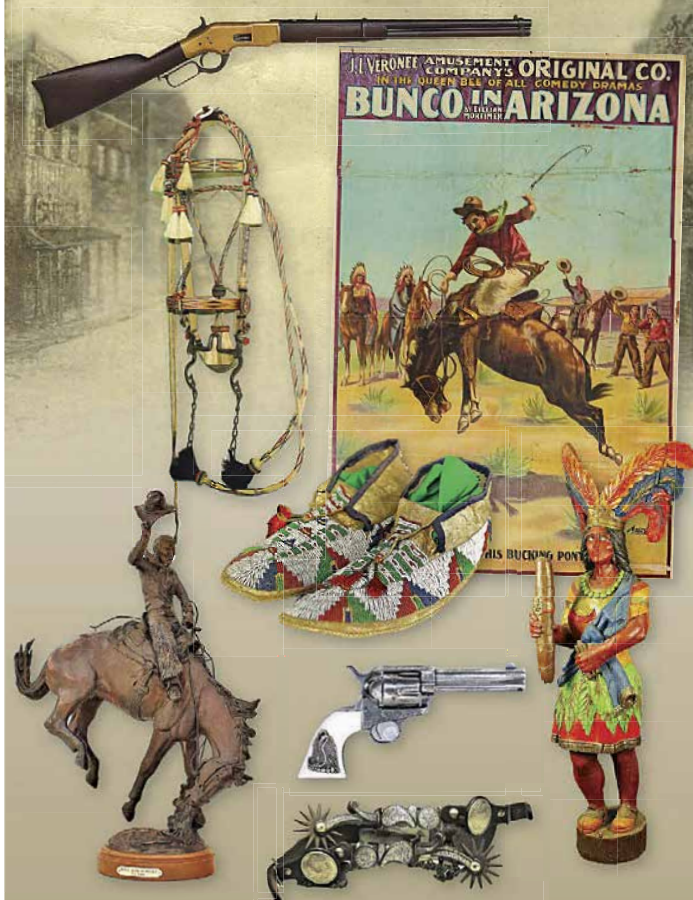

She has moved to a retirement home in Gillette. "I hope that I have accomplished everything that God wanted me to accomplish and that in some small way have touched a lot of lives. I guess I had so much help throughout my life from so many people and I hope that I never said anything that was harmful about anybody. All that I've wanted in my life was respect—and being liked." The Governor dedicated one day a year as Pat

Litton Day. "I think about all the things I was able to do and am glad to have been able to do it."

Pat claims her biggest accomplishment is being a wife and mother. "I hope I've been a good role model to all the kids that I worked with and that I have instilled some spark in the lives of the youth of America." 🐾

[“I have set goals to give my 3 boys a good life along with supporting my wife and building a strong family foundation,” - Mike Flanigan.]

story by Whitney Knipping

Mike and Shea Flanigan were born and raised on the ranch and in the saddle growing up in Kremmling, CO. Shea, now a 5th generation rancher, goes way back with the Hill family running thousands of yearlings to many different ranching business partnerships with the Flanigan Family. “When we got married, we started to look for ranches together with our families in order to branch out and expand the family operations,” says Shea. The couple looked all over Colorado and just couldn’t find anything that fit the family’s budget and lifestyle in which they wanted to continue on with their kids. They later came across their dream place and operation in 2012 where they were able to expand the operation purchasing the Snowy Range Ranch in Laramie, WY, now known as Snowy Range Livestock, LLC. The Flanigan’s have big goals of running and operating at full capacity, while they are young; raising their three boys, Gus (11), Hogan (9) and Jax (2), in the lifestyle they were brought up in.

Snowy Range Livestock, LLC started off with a small cattle herd and a few of the family’s horses and brood mares. In the last 5 years, they were able to expand to a small band of well-bred and proven brood mares, two stallions and a cattle operation of over 2500 head. Their reputable brood mare line up consists of noteworthy pedigrees including: Dash Ta Fame, Frenchmans Guy, DMNV Mountables, Firewater Flit, Special Effort, Dash For Cash, Dean Miracle, Streakin Six, Candy Cane Lane, Sun Frost, Special Effort, Sparkling Olene, Easy Jet, Bugs Alive in 75, Dr. Kirk, Chicks Beduino, The Signature, High Brow Cat, WR This Cats Smart, Kernel Freckles and Peppy San Badger. The Flanigan’s recently just purchased several outstanding mares from a long-time family friend and well-known race track breeder, Steve & Ralene Roahrboough of Western Livestock, LLC. They are very excited to see the outstanding babies to come from the Western Livestock mares and the ranches stallion, Ragged Charm.

Snowy Range Livestock also runs a stallion owned by the Hill Family that they do not offer to the public. He came from a mare Shea’s father had won the AQHA

World Show on and is by a stud her grandfather had purchased from a family friend, George Strait. “He is all cow breeding and we have loved all of his colts on the ranch and in the arena,” says Shea. The year after her grandfather passed away, her father and she went on a mission to find a stud horse that fit what the family does for a living ranching and could be incorporated into the Snowy Range Livestock’s performance horse breeding program. The Hill family has had a lot of nice stallions and horses throughout the family’s history and it was something Shea wanted to carry on. They were always fond of crossing cow bred mares on running bred studs and vice versa. In 2015, the Flanigan & Hill families purchased the ranches stunning palomino stallion, Ragged Charm from the Black Hill Stock Show. Ragged Charm, also known as Bugatti, is by Mel Potter’s PC Frenchmans Hayday and out of This Ragtime Cat. “He is producing some outstanding foals,” says Shea, “We are really looking forward to what this stud has to come.”

Shea has a strong history running barrels, and breeding top of the line performance horses is a long time goal of hers. She is reaching out to many of the top and best in the breeding industry to seek help in developing and running Snowy Range Livestock, any set discipline,” says Shea. In the fall of their 3 year old year, they get turned out for a couple months before starting back up in the spring of their 4 year old year in a set discipline, often barrels or roping.

While the boys ride the ranch and performance horses doing their daily duties, Shea rides her “fancy” barrel horses out on the ranch. That’s one thing that sets this breeding and training program apart from the rest. They don’t just run barrels, or rope and ride in an arena, but “these horses are used like they are supposed to be,” says Shea, “While they are well taken care of, they are expected to do their job and have to have a good mind and a large amount of bone and structure on them.”

LLC. Along her years of travel competing, she has become acquainted with the well-known SDP Buffalo Ranch owners in Ft. Worth, TX, where she has learned an immense amount from Shane Plummer and his staff ranging from breeding and collecting to studying pedigrees, geno and phenotypes on horses. “I really look up to Mr. Shane Plummer and his family and how far they have gone in the equine industry,” says Shea, “I look forward to standing the ranches stud, Ragged Charm at the SDP Buffalo Ranch in Ft. Worth over the next couple years to cover the Southern Region breeding shipments.”

While Michael and the boys can be found tending to their ranch duties of chasing cattle or fixing fence, they greatly appreciate and support Shea in the horse business. “She ensures to keep us all mounted and the horses are always well taken care of,” says Michael, “Shea doesn’t know how to stop and works around the clock being a mom, cooking for the ranch crews, and helps on the ranch daily, additional to running and managing the breeding and training program.”

All of the colts are started in the fall of their 2 year old year putting on approximately 30-60 rides. The Hill family has used the Vega family for over 10 years to break and put the first initial rides on their horses. “The Vega’s are key to our program, they are honest, kind and true horseman,” says Flanigan, “They have always done an outstanding job putting the base on our family’s colts.” From there, the colts come home to the ranch where they get turned out until the spring of their 3 year old year. Their entire 3 year old year they are ranched on and ridden outside. “I really believe they need to be broke and have a solid foundation before going on to

The ranch is not easy on a horse, from roping and doctoring bulls all summer to dragging calves through the fire, sorting pairs and crossing steep mountain country. The horses are always ridden hard and broke well.

The past 3 years, Snowy Range Livestock, LLC has reached several goals for their family. “The first year Shea qualified for the American, she found out she was pregnant with Jax a week after qualifying. Then she was in Arizona competing and the mare fell to the ground rolling over the top of her during a run at a jackpot. We were furious with her, but it didn’t stop Shea...she had a goal. The horse she qualified on that year ended up dying unexpectedly on Shea’s birthday and she wasn’t able to compete at the American, but that didn’t stop her. She went on worked hard and found another horse that she has qualified twice on to the semifinals. She is adamant she will make the top 4 at the American, and I know my wife...if she says she’s going to do it, she will,” says Mike. Shea won the New Year’s Bustin Out American Qualifier two years ago and from there she has been accomplishing and reaching many of her goals. “While she loves to run barrels, she never fails to leave us boys well taken care of at home,” he says, “She plans meals out, labels them in the fridge and leaves very detailed notes on schedules and what we are to be doing. The boys and I get a kick out of it...she is very on top of everything.”

Having set many goals for themselves, the ranch and the business, they are working countless hours to achieve them, starting with the expansion of their cattle ranching side over the next 5 years and continuing to breed and build their barrel horse program. “A big goal of ours was to train and get our stud Ragged Charm to the futurities,” says Mike, “Shea and I have worked together along with our family to get him to the point he is at and we are looking forward to watching him the rest of the year.”

“It has been a goal of mine the past couple years to get a prospect production sale started,” says Shea, “There is not one like this anywhere and there are so many good breeders in our western region. My vision above: Gus, age 11, roping and dragging calves to the fire at the family’s branding - Christy Bursleson is to produce a top of the line, high quality prospect sale offering weanlings, 2 year olds and 3 year olds.” Snowy Range Livestock is excited to offer the first CHAMPIONS OF THE FUTURE Performance Sale in the fall of 2017 at the ranches indoor arena in Laramie, WY.

“I have set goals to give my 3 boys a good life along with supporting my wife and building a strong family foundation,” says

Mike Flanigan, “We work together well and I have loved her since we were in 3rd grade and feel lucky to have her and share our passions in life, ranching, raising good horses and raising our boys together.”

Meet the Member Quincy Lucky

story by Lily Weinacht

Nine-year-old Quincy Lucky's rodeo season was interrupted but briefly when he broke his roping arm last July. He was riding again 10 weeks later, and he qualified for the 2017 NLBFR his rookie year in the goat tying and flag racing without missing one rodeo.

The cowboy from Bossier City, Louisiana, was saddling his horse, Chico, for practice and climbed on a fence to put a halter on when Chico decided to rejoin the other horses. The ride ended with Quincy hitting a tree, giving him a couple of lacerations on his face and a broken arm. "The next day, Quincy sat up in the recliner at the house and told me, 'More than anything in the world right now, I want to get back on Chico bareback – but with a bit in his mouth,'" says Buddy, Quincy's dad. "Little Britches is what he wants to do the most, and whatever other rodeos fall in between can work."

Quincy was back on his horse within 10 weeks, and started breakaway roping again in March. It took a week for his roping to feel good again after he got his cast off, and he practices on the dummy daily, even roping a dummy in the house. He also has a pen designated for practicing his goat roping, and a working cattle pen with lights and a cover. Quincy is the fifth generation on his dad's side of the family to ranch in Louisiana, and he works alongside his dad and grandpa painting fence and checking and feeding cows. His mom, Jada, didn't grow up on a farm, but

after she and Buddy met on a blind date and they were married, she became one of the farmhands. "Buddy and Quincy are good teachers, and Quincy has taught me how to rope a little bit," says Jada. "I take care of the baby calves and bottle feeding." She also works cattle and does paperwork, and her cooking is well loved, especially the duck gumbo she makes with the ducks Quincy brings home from hunting. (See the recipe on page 105) "It's extremely hard (ranching and rodeoing) but it's a sacrifice we make for Quincy. Rodeo is everything to him and he loves it," says Buddy. "And we have really good employees. Everybody loves Quincy and they step up any time something needs taken care of when we're gone."

Since Quincy was already breakaway roping when he joined Deep South Little Britches in December, he's competing in the junior boys division, and loves competing against the older kids. "Those older kids just make him better, and he was all for it," says Buddy. Quincy's favorite event, however, is team roping, because he has the opportunity to rope with his friends, including Noah Weeks, Tyler McGuffee, RJ Otwell, and Austin McAlister.

Quincy also competes in playdays in Ringold and Marshall, Texas, and he's sitting high in the all-around standings for the Ringold series, which holds its finals in August. His latest buckle, won in the breakaway roping, came from the Martha Josey clinic that George Chambers of the NLBRA told the Lucky family about. Quincy also tied several calves at the clinic. "We were there for a week, and he nor any of his friends wanted to leave!"

says Buddy. "He can't wait to be back."

Quincy's love for roping is infectious, and he's inspired his dad to return to the roping world. Buddy grew up roping but quit in his twenties due to work and started loaning his rope horses out. Tragically, all the horses tested positive for Coggins and had to be put down. "I swore I would never team rope or own another nice finished rope horse again because I loved them all," says Buddy. "Then Quincy came along and I realized how much he loves it. We're roping together now, and I'm finding I like it more and more."

Quincy's goal is winning the all-around at the Ringold series this summer, along with doing his best at the NLBFR. "We want to give all the glory to Jesus," Jada finishes. "None of this would be going on without Him – we've been very blessed."

A Little NLBRA History

The new season is starting and we want you to become a member!

The National Little Britches Rodeo Finals just completed it's 65th year. As one of the oldest youth rodeo associations in the United States, the National Little Britches Rodeo Association is The NLBRA has a history as legendary as those that have helped produce it and the names that have wiped the dust off in the arena.

In 1952, a group of rodeo enthusiasts held the first of what would become an annual rodeo for kids. The event, dubbed the Little Britches Rodeo- was held at the Arapahoe County Fairgrounds in Littleton, Colorado. Little Britches continued as a single annual event until 1961, when a national convention was held in Denver. There were representatives on hand from several states and the meetings ended with a national youth rodeo association being established with the headquarters in Denver.

Since that time, the National Little Britches Rodeo Association has grown by leaps and bounds. The association has overall goals and standards that have never been compromised. The NLBRA continues to serve the interests of the the Western-minded youth of the nation. According to it's mission statement, "it is a non-profit venture to build sound, healthy minds and bodies- to develop character, self reliance and good sportsmanship through competition in the great sport of rodeo."

Today the NLBRA is a foundation for junior rodeo in the United States. Last year nearly 3000 kids from 33 states competed in nearly 500 Little Britches rodeos. As we close the chapter on the 2017 season there 48 franchises and we are still growing. The back bone of the association is the board of directors. 21 volunteers from various areas sit on the board and annually conduct business but ultimately the largest roll is the production of the National Finals.

One of our favorite claims to fame is the family atmosphere where multi generations make the NLBRA their home. Did you know that not only was Ty Murray a NLBRA World Champion Bull rider but that his mom also held the same title in 1956. The level of competition at the NLBRA events is second to none. Many collegiate rodeo athletes and an impressive number of professionals began or furthered their careers in the NLBRA arena. Other rodeo legends both past and present include Casey Colletti, Kristie Peterson, Code DeMoss, Josh Peek, Butch and Rope Myers, Royce and Heath Ford, Trell Etbauer, Emily Miller, Marlene McRae, Shali Lord, Kody Lostroh to just name a few.

Meet the Member Josie Roselle

story by Lily Weinacht

Josie Roselle achieved her goal of qualifying for the NJHFR in Lebanon, Tennessee, in the pole bending for the first time this spring. Astride her beloved pole horse, Jonesy, the 13-year-old from Eaton, Colorado, won the first round of state finals. While the other two rounds didn't go as she hoped, her hard earned points from the season carried her into fourth place. Josie also competes in the CJRA, and does barrel racing, breakaway roping, and ribbon roping, with plans to start team roping. But pole bending is her favorite. "I love my horse, Jonesy, and he's very special to me. We've had him since he was four and now he's eight. He came in as a cutting horse and my mom (Julie) trained him to do barrels and pole bending. He's becoming more and more finished, and I think poles are kind of a game to him. I'm blessed to have such an amazing horse!"

Josie started rodeoing when she was four on a pony named Sparkles. Her dad, Justin, competed in tie-down roping and currently team ropes, while her 17-year-old brother, Jace, competes in the CSHSRA and CJRA in tie-down roping, team roping, and the occasional ribbon roping. "My brother started rodeoing and I thought it was really cool, so I followed in his footsteps," says Josie. "Dad used to compete a lot, which has encouraged me and my brother. We were used to going to rodeos for him and it grew on us. I definitely look up to my brother and my dad and mom. My family is really a big deal – I couldn't rodeo without them providing me with a horse and driving me to rodeos. I like Fallon

Taylor – she's kind of my idol and I always watch her on TV. I just love seeing my friends at rodeos, and I love horses!"

Along with Jonesy, Josie is riding a new barrel horse, Floyd. "Before that, I was running Jonesy in barrels, but I was hoping to make it to Nationals in pole bending and I didn't want to mess anything up with him, so we're going to try working him on barrels now," she explains. Josie also rides her brother's heeling horse, Nell, in the breakaway roping, and plans to ride Moon when she starts team roping. "We have calves at our house, and we just finished our arena to be a team roping arena, so we're hoping to get steers now that we've been to Tennessee."

Josie will be an eighth-grader at Eaton Middle School this fall. She was on the A Honor Roll last year, and especially enjoys her math class and teacher. She played basketball on the A team last year, volleyball, and ran track, but plans to focus on basketball and rodeo more this year. She also enjoys doing crafts, such as painting tables, or making jewelry that she sells at rodeos. "Last summer I sold Mason jars that I spray painted and bedazzled, and I've made bracelets out of beads and safety pins and necklaces with names imprinted on them. I also like hanging out with friends, and I like to go swimming a lot.

"My goal this year was to make it to Nationals, which I did and it's really exciting for me," Josie finishes. "In barrel racing and all my events, I want to keep my hand down. I'm trying to work towards not hitting poles in the pole bending, and helping my horse have clean runs." 🐾

Meet the Member Stocker Robbins

story by Lily Weinacht

I have a love for the sport,” says 18-year-old Stocker Robbins of rodeo. “I do high school sports like football and wrestling, but once I started riding bulls, everything else went out the window!” The CSHSRA member from Ignacio, Colorado, grew up on his dad’s bull riding stories, and Stocker had his own stories to tell once he started riding bulls at 14. He entered high school rodeos the following year, and finished eighth at state finals, recently recovering from several broken ribs after a bull stepped on him at a rodeo in April. “As soon as I started riding bulls, I loved it, and I’ve had a passion for it ever since. It’s probably the thrill, and being able to ride one and step off.”

Along with high school rodeos, Stocker entered the American Youth Bull Riding Finals held in Ignacio in January. “It’s a pretty good bull riding to go to, and my friends have done all right there. I’ll also travel around to some open shows this summer. My dad, Joshua, and my cousin Dalton Sanchez have been the biggest influences on me,” Stocker adds. “My dad has hauled me around to rodeos and paid entry fees and gotten me everything I needed so I’m safe. Dalton went to a few bull riding schools and he’d come back with what he learned and teach me and my little brother what we should be doing. Dalton high school rodeoed with me and graduated last year, and now he’s riding bulls for a living.”

Stocker and his 16-year-old brother, Hunter, do most of their practicing and working out together. “Hunter broke his leg in a bucking chute two years ago, and he’s getting back into it this year and doing high school rodeo, so I’m excited to have him on the team.” The brothers also have a younger sister, Talia Sage Robbins, who rides calves when she comes to visit from Florida. “We live in the country between Ignacio and Pagosa, and I like that my family lives here,” says Stocker. “It’s a pretty tight-knit community, and everyone knows everybody. We’ve all been brought up around here.”

Stocker recently graduated from Ignacio High School, where classes like welding, woodshop, and fitness and conditioning were his favorites. “I also liked anything in my agricultural classes,” he adds. Stocker went to state in wrestling three times, placing second his freshman year and fourth his sophomore year, while he also played wide receiver and free safety for the Ignacio

Bobcats football team. There were even a few occasions when Stocker would finish a football game and drive with his family overnight to make it to his rodeo the next morning. “I never leave for a rodeo without my auxiliary cord for music,” he says. “We listen to all kinds, except country rap. I’m not really into that.”

When he’s not at a bull riding, Stocker enjoys riding his horse, Luna, and roping, or helping his friends move cows. Before his family moved to Florida for several years, they owned an outfitting business and 40 horses and mules, which Stocker helped with. Today, his dad owns a construction company, where Stocker works. “We’re a big hunting and fishing family, and I like doing pretty much anything outside. I’d like to rodeo full time – that’s my dream – but I might go to college on a bull riding scholarship,” he finishes. “I’d like to get on a pro circuit and travel around a bit.”

Jim Moore Award

story by Siri Stevens

The second annual Jim Moore Award was given to Ira Dickinson for the second year. The award was based on the Linderman award, which recognizes a cowboy that competes in both ends of the arena, and at least three events. With encouragement from Tom Parker, the Board created the award to inspire members to become competitors on both ends of the arena and be recognized for doing so. They established a point system for the award which included a 15 point minimum per event. Tom and Linda Parker have been the buckle sponsors since inception and Larry and Dawn Ward of WARCO Pump are the saddle sponsor.

Jim Moore graciously accepted the honor of the award in his name. Born in 1939, his family had a ranch between Midwest and Wright. He spent his life on the ranch, raising sheep, cattle, and horses. He began his rodeo career at the age of 12, roping calves, riding cows, bareback riding and cutting. He served on the Wyoming High School Rodeo Board for several years and became the student president of the National High School Rodeo Association in 1956. He went on to rodeo at the University of Wyoming and the RCA. Jim qualified for the National Finals Steer Roping in 1972, 1975, and 1978. He was elected the Steer Roping Director in the PRCA in 1978. He was on the board for two years. Jim lives in Douglas now, spending the winter in Nevada.

He has two boys (Mark and Tommy) and three girls (Lisa Ward, Jamie Flitner, and Elaina Berman) Jamie was Miss Rodeo Wyoming in 1985 and four of them competed in rodeo, through Wyoming high school and on to college rodeo. "I'm sure there are other people that have rodeoed here in Wyoming that are just as qualified, but I'm honored they selected me."

Ira competes in steer wrestling, calf roping, team roping, and saddle bronc riding. He was able to meet Jim this year at the rodeo in Casper as well as the Finals, where the award was presented in Rock Springs. "We got to visit and he is a generational rancher like my family, so we have a common mind set." Ira's great great grandfather homesteaded the ranch they live on in 1885, and Jim's family started their ranch in the late 1890s. "He fits the mold of an old happy cowboy."

Ira will be representing the Wyoming High School Rodeo Association in steer wrestling and bronc riding. "I practice one event a week," said the 17-year-old. "JD Hamaker has been extremely helpful in the bronc riding and my work every day on the ranch has helped me get ready for the other events. Building fence and moving cows along with wrestling and going to the gym are helping me get ready too." 🐾

[12 Champions Crowned at College National Finals Rodeo]

From a pair of repeat titlists to a freshman phenom, 12 college athletes earned national championships Saturday night at the 69th annual College National Finals Rodeo (CNFR) in the Casper Events Center.

Team ropers Cole Wheeler and Wesley Thorpe were the only repeat champions, winning their second straight title, but their first for Texas Tech University. Last year they represented Weatherford College (Wheeler) and Ranger College (Thorpe). They entered the championship round tied with a team from Gillette College for second overall. Both trailed the leaders from Sam Houston State University by one-tenth of a second. Neither of the other top contenders managed to rope their steer while Wheeler and Thorpe clocked a 5.5 to place second in the round.

A Sam Houston State University freshman from Victoria, Texas, Lane McGehee dominated the bareback riding. He won two of the three preliminary rounds and scored 79.5 points on Harry Vold Rodeo's Spicy Chicken to place second in the championship round, a point behind Sheridan College's Hunter Carlson. McGehee's overall win was by an almost unheard-of 16 points.

McGehee wasn't the only Sam Houston State athlete to win a national championship. Breakaway roper Loni Lester came from second overall to win the title when she clocked a time of 2.7 seconds in the championship round. That was good enough for second place in the round and gave her an overall time of 10.9 seconds. She won the championship by three-tenths of a second through four runs. Lester, a junior from Gonzales, Texas, was also named Women's All-Around Champion.

In goat tying, only six-tenths of a second separated the top seven finalists with three of them tied for the lead. Championship round pressure didn't seem to bother fifth-ranked Tawny Barry of Eastern New Mexico University. The junior from Carter, S.D., won the final round with a time of 6.4, which was enough to earn her the national title by two-tenths of a second.

The biggest jump to claim a national title came from bull rider Cole Melancon of Hill College. The Liberty, Texas, sophomore was ranked halfway down the top 12 at sixth after qualifying for the championship round. He had just one qualified ride in the first three rounds. Melancon put together an 85-point effort on MoBetta Rodeo's Blindside to win the championship round and the national title by 4.5 points. No bull rider was able to make more than two qualified rides during this year's CNFR.

Texas A & M University junior Hailey Kinsel and her mare DM Sissy Heyday that she calls "Sister" are earning a reputation as a tough duo to beat on in a multiple-round barrel race. Kinsel, who won more than $400,000 in the barrel racing at The American in February, used the same formula of consistency to come from fourth place and claim the college championship. The Cotulla, Texas, cowgirl did not win any of the first three rounds, but stopped the clock in 14.06 seconds to win the championship round and the national title.

Tie-down roper Reid Zapalac of Tarleton State University, saddle bronc rider Preston

Burr of New Mexico Junior College and steer wrestler Denver Berry of Southeastern Oklahoma State University were the other three new champions who came into the finals with the lead and held on to win titles. Berry, a senior, did it by wrestling his steer in 3.9 seconds to tie for first in the championship round. Zapalac's time of 8.8 placed second in the championship round and Burr's score of 74 was enough to tie for fourth Saturday night.

The All-Around Cowboy title went to Cole Frey of McNeese State University who qualified for the final round in both team roping and steer wrestling. Panhandle State University won the men's team championship and Sam Houston State University earned the women's team title.

The College National Finals Rodeo features the top student-athletes in rodeo from the 11 regions of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association competing for national championships.

PROFILE: CODY DEVERS

[Recipient of the 2017 Harry Vold Memorial Scholarship]

story by Siri Stevens

Cody Devers is from Perryton, Texas, north of Amarillo by two hours. He started competing when he was young; he grew up on a horse. “Both my parents rodeoed, trained and sold horses for a living. My mom (Sabrina) is a barrel horse trainer/seller and does clinics, and my dad (Marty) was a PRCA steer wrestler and roper. He still hazes at most of my rodeos.”

Cody jumped his first steer off a horse when he was only 12 and was hooked on steer wrestling. He won the Texas JHSRA Region 1 and was Top 10 at the NJHSRA Finals for Texas, he was also Oklahoma State High School Finalist and won the Kansas State both KJHSRA and KHSRA associations, winning a NHSRA Finals go round for KHSRA. “I played high school baseball too, and the rodeos in the other states were closer to where I live. I would leave running from the field, jump in the truck to get to my rodeos.” He was also the NLBRA Reserve World Champion winning a go round at the finals that was .1 from a new world record, and IFYR Finals Top 5 twice.”

His family owned horse business trains and sells performance horses all over the United States and several foreign countries, even to New Zealand has allowed him to meet a wide variety of clients from famous actresses to Cody’s own steer wrestling clinics where he has taught Dallas Cowboy football players to Canadian hockey players to steer wrestle. “Most of the 40 to 50 head of barrel, roping and steer wrestling horses on the grounds are on consignment to sell are on our website

that we own, barrelhorse.com and in RODEO NEWS, of course! A lot of people know our Team Devers steer head brand, which is pretty cool to walk by and see your brand on horses at a rodeo or on tv.”

His brother, Matt, used to steer wrestle and rope, but is now busy building his own business, ProTech, that sells and fixes computers, security systems and cameras in horse trailers and businesses. “He knows all the technical stuff and I help him with the installations when I can. Rodeo schedules make it hard to have a “real job” but I do the networking labor on the job sites and I shoe horses. I shoe A LOT OF HORSES!”

He’s spending the summer rodeoing not only pro but amateur as well. “We will be hitting five rodeos every week,” he said. Traveling with Maverick Harper for the first part and then he’ll jump in with Jule Hazen, WNFR steer wrestler for the last. Cody is the current 2016 KPRA Steer wrestling Champion, and hopes to have a repeat this year. He is also trying for the Prairie Circuit Finals, the Nebraska State Rodeo Finals and the Central Plains Finals. He has a good start on the year in all three associations.

Cody is a Dean’s Honor Roll student that rodeos for Coach Stockton Graves at Northwestern Oklahoma State University and qualified for his second trip to the CNFR in steer wrestling. “This year I split the win for the first round with a 3.7 – that time was the fastest for the entire CNFR.” The rest didn’t go as well. “I drew two hard running steers and then broke the barrier in the short round – I was coming in fourth and was set to win reserve but Denver (Berry) is one of my good friends, we rodeo together in the Central Plains region, so I’m glad he won it.”

The highlight of the CNFR, besides winning the round, was winning the Harry Vold Memorial Scholarship. “My third picture I ever had was with Harry Vold, I was four months old, and my dad was in the short go, and I ended up in a picture with Mr. Vold, World renowned PRCA stock producer and PRCA World Champion steer wrestler, Roy Duvall. 18 years later to the day, I was in the short go at the same rodeo, PRCA Dodge City Roundup, and I got my picture with him again.”

“I wrote an essay about an Army soldier – H.D. Hogan – that died in combat, he was a young rodeo cowboy, too. The topic was sacrifice and patriotism, so he’s the one I thought of. What he and all the service men have done for our country is what I think sacrifice means.” Cody gets to apply the $2,500 scholarship to his senior year. “I’ve got at least one more year to go for my Ag Business degree.”

For Cody, pro rodeo is his future. “It’s what I love to do. It’s what I was born to do.” 🐾

COMING TOGETHER

article by C.J. Aragon

Just a few short weeks ago the rodeo world was abuzz for a speech Joe Beaver made at the Texas High School Finals Rodeo. I will admit it I was caught up in watching the video and reading the comments from parents and contestants across the country.

I have an unusual perspective on his speech, you see I am an Idaho native that has moved to Texas to coach college rodeo. From my view on it there is rodeo talent from across the country and around the world. It is not simply localized in one area. What was disturbing was how easily the rodeo world took offense to Beaver's speech and how easily it separated the rodeo world based on state lines.

The speech did start to drive a divide between the rodeo families across the country. But then at the CNFR a young bull rider from Australia was severely injured in the third round.

Bradie Gray faced life threatening injuries after a bull stepped on his chest. He was rushed to the hospital where they did an emergency surgery in the ER to save his life. As I write he is still in the ICU in the Wyoming Regional Medical Center in Casper, Wyoming.

As the word of Bradie's accident quickly spread the rodeo world quickly and quietly threw away their differences and came together in support of the young cowboy that few of them knew. The rodeo family was quickly united, in a time of need for one of their fellow members.

Bradie and his family received help in many ways from across the country and around the world. Donations flew in to help with medical expenses from Texas, to Canada and from New York to Australia. Unfortunately in most cases it takes a tragedy to unite all of us involved in rodeo.

The hosting city of the CNFR, Casper, has treated the Gray's as if they were a member of their community. The out pouring of support has been overwhelming at times.

We can all be thankful that we are involved in a sport like rodeo, and that although we may have our differences of opinion on certain things that we can all still come together and support one of our own in a time of need. 🤠

C.J. Aragon was named the 2008-2011 Grand Canyon Region Coach-of-the-Year, 2014-2015 WJGAC Coach-of-the-Year, 2016 Southwest Region Coach-of-the-Year, and 2010 National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Coach-of-the-Year.

Meet the Member Tuffy Gessling

story by Naomi Loomis, WSRRA Association Representative

A rodeo Clown takes his place in the arena lights. Whether or not he's insane is not important right now. It's with grit and intensity that the rodeo clown steps in the path of almost certain destruction or brings the crowd to their feet with laughter.

Ranch rodeos date back to the 1880s, cowboys showed off their ranch skills and by the 1920's the rodeo funnymen (rodeo clowns) were an early feature but assumed the role of protecting cowboys only with the growth of bull riding. Rodeo clowns have become one of the most important parts of the rodeo world today including for the Western States Ranch

Rodeo Association.

Tuffy grew up in a Northern Missouri town called Macon. He attended high school in Alanta, Missouri. He is the oldest brother of two sisters. He has six nieces and nephews. His dad past away two years ago and his mom lives close to him. Tuffy attended Missouri University and studied animal science. "I always wanted to be a cowboy and if I see someone without a smile then I want to give them mine," states Tuffy. Tuffy starting riding bulls when he was 15 and one day the clown/ bull fighter that was our rodeo clown quit and so Russ Aurther Rodeo Company hired him to be their rodeo clown.

Tuffy the Rodeo Clown job isn't always to protect bull riders, in fact, this is only half his job. During the rodeos there are lulls and slow times. This is when a Tuffy uses his other talents. He keeps the crowd amused with his skits, jokes, and funny conversation with the announcer. He has comedic talent, energy, creativity, his cowboy roping skills and a sense of humor. Tuffy's painted face brings smiles to those young and old. "When I put my clown face on, I am energized and ready for the show."

Tuffy takes being a rodeo clown very seriously. He is one of the best hands around the arena that I have ever met. His mental prowess and physical strength make him successful at what he does. He says he had many influences growing up. "My grandfather and dad are my greatest influences. They taught to work hard, they taught me about animals, they taught me what to do, and not to do, about farming. They also to taught me to dream big and to do what you love. You can work your whole life at something you don't love and fail...if you are doing what you love you never fail," Tuffy says.

Tuffy became interested in ranch rodeo because of the deep traditions and values of the cowboy life. "I was working for my sponsor, CSI Saddle pads at the NFR to promote bronc riding and had a meeting with WSRRA President Marc Page. We hit it off from minute one. He and I have been close friends ever since. On a hand shake, I made a deal with Marc to come to the WSRRA Finals. I have been there ever since," states Tuffy. "That's why I love the cowboys. A hand shake is still used and honored."

Tuffy may find himself in the arena light but he also is pretty handy. From roping to horsemanship skills, training stock dogs, carpentry, welding, teamster work, pyrotechnic work and public speaking he is very talented in all that he can do. "It has helped me to learn different trades because I am able to from promotions to building pens, to negotiating contracts," says Tuffy.

Tuffy spends about 100 days on the rodeo trail and he takes some pretty neat things with him. First he takes his sense of humor, honor and traditions. "I honor the ones that came before me and made it possible," he says. Second he takes his trick ropes. "So I always have an act, plus I'm a roping addict."

Third I take my bed roll from J-D canvas. "I always have a place that is home to lay my head." Fourth, he takes three coins that his grandparents gave him and his dad's ring. "I always them in my front left pocket." Fifth, I take my phone book and phone. "I have to know what and where I have to go."

Tuffy is a very successful rodeo clown with winning Rodeo Clown and Bullfighter of the Year by the Illinois Bull Rider Association. He was the first and so far the only cowboy to win these two awards together. He has won Contract Act of the Year 18 times. He has been the MRCA, URA and WSRRA rodeo clown of the year. He also was the MRCA, URA, AYRA Bullfighter of the year. "I work every day to become successful. I got a long ways to go but I'm going forward. Some days it may be slow but I am still a step in the right direction," Tuffy explains.

Tuffy is one of my favorite cowboys. He works hard at what he does. He brings smiles and laughter to those that are around him. He is humble and keeps his word. I am proud to call Tuffy a friend and a colleague of the WSRRA. Thank you Tuffy for all you do for the WSRRA.

I am leaving you folks with some words of advice from Tuff. "Folks need to put the phones down and talk to each other learn about your neighbor or just a random stranger. Always leave the world a better place. Aim for the moon, if you don't make it, at least you're among the stars." 📺

Meet the Members

Hope Brosius

story by Ruth Nicolaus

Hope Brosius is a member of the Nebraska Junior High School Rodeo Association.

The fourteen year old cowgirl lives south of Ashby, Nebraska, and competes in the pole bending, goat tying, breakaway roping, and ribbon roping (as a runner for Kaden Wooters.) She has two horses for her events: Dexter and Annabelle. Dexter is her pole and goat horse, and he has a “funky” personality, Hope said: he likes to eat Froot Loops.

Annabelle is a five-year-old palomino who is new to the family. A breakaway horse, she has a lot of energy. “She’s always ready to go and do stuff,” Hope said.

Hope just finished her eighth grade year at Hyannis Public School. Science is her favorite subject, and she loves to read, especially adventure and action books. Her favorite teacher was her kindergarten teacher, Mr. Blevins, from Stapleton, Neb., because he was kind and patient. He passed away from a heart attack seven years ago, and because of his example, Hope wants to be an elementary teacher when she grows up.

She is active in 4-H shooting sports, plays volleyball, basketball, and runs track, and is on the honor roll. In 4-H, she shows goats, horses, bottle calves, and the family dog (a Corgi, named Lilly). She sews and bakes, including decorated cakes and cream cheese chocolate chip cookies.

Hope’s favorite vacation was a trip the family took to Des Moines to the National Junior High School Finals two years ago, when her sister Britney competed. Hope had a blast. “All my friends were there, and we got to hang out for a week.”

Her favorite food her mom makes is chicken alfredo; her favorite dessert is her mom’s homemade turtle cheesecake, and her favorite soda pop and candy is root beer and Milky Way candy bars.

She has competed at the state junior high school finals the last two years and will do so again this year. She has also qualified for Nationals in the 4-H BB gun competition, which will be held in Rogers, Arkansas in late June. She is the daughter of Jennifer and Robert Brosius. 🐾

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE NJHSRA MEMBERS THAT PLACED IN THE TOP TEN AT NJHFR!

The Nebraska team took a team of 43, that included 4 teams that qualified in the shooting competition. Nebraska finished as the 7th team overall! 3 of 4 Nebraska Delegates were elected into Student Event Director Roles, Wacey Day Girls Goats, Rhett Witt Tie Down and Matthew Miller in the Saddle Bronc steer riding.

Nebraska Youth Qualify For National High School Rodeo Competition

Champions crowned in each event

story by Ruth Nicolaus

The Nebraska High School Rodeo season wrapped up last weekend with the high school finals in Hastings at the Adams County Fairgrounds. Rodeo athletes from across the Cornhusker State competed in two go-rounds on June 15-16 and the short go-round on June 17. The top four contestants in each of twelve events were determined, and they will go on to compete at the National High School Finals Rodeo in Gillette, Wyoming, July 16-22.

Champions from the 2017 Finals are: Gauge McBride, Kearney, bareback riding; JT Bradley, Brewster, boys cutting; Morgan Kessler, Callaway, girls cutting and breakaway roping; Maddee Doerr, Creighton, goat tying; Grant Turek, St. Paul, tie-down roping; Sage Miller, Springview, saddle bronc riding; Brook Jamison, Ashby, barrel racing and pole bending; Zane Patrick, Bartlett, and JT Bradley, Brewster, co-champions in the steer wrestling; Mason Ward, North Platte, bull riding; and Tee Whited and Rio Whited, North Platte, team roping.

The year-end all-around winners were JT Bradley, Brewster (boys), and Brook Jamison, Ashby (girls).

Reserve all-around champs were Gauge McBride, Kearney (boys) and Maddee Doerr, Creighton (girls). Rookie of the year went to Gracie Pokorny, Bartlett, (girls) and Gauge McBride, Kearney (boys). The V-Bar Sales Men's Timed Event Trailer was awarded to Gus Franzen of Kearney. The 2017-2018 Nebraska High School Rodeo Queen is Joscelyn

Sonksen of Lexington.

The following are highlights of a few of the champions.

Breakaway roping and girls cutting champion Morgan Kessler Callaway's Morgan Kessler came home with two titles: breakaway champion and girls cutting champion.

The seventeen year old cowgirl switched breakaway horses in the spring, which made a difference in her roping. She won second in the first round in Hastings, then knew all she had to do for her second run was "rope clean" and not break the barrier. It was hard for her to hold back and not push the barrier. "I like being fast and going for first," she said, but she held off, making a clean run.

A broken barrier in the short round and a time of 12.9 seconds caused her to think she didn't win the year end title, till her mom, Tina, also the high school secretary, told her she did.

This will be her second qualification for the National High School Finals; she competed there two years ago in the cutting. The cutting is tough at Nationals, she said. "It's hard to be amazing with some of the horses there." But Kessler is ready to do whatever it takes. "I'll do whatever my trainers (Don and Kelly Troyer) tell me to do."

Kessler, who is homeschooled, is the daughter of Kevin and Tina Kessler.

Tie-down champion Grant Turek

Grant Turek used his experience to his advantage.

This year's state finals was the second qualification for the St. Paul cowboy, which made his competition this year better.

He came into state finals in first place in the tie-down roping, and he had a plan. "I knew I had to go make my runs, and do what I wanted to do: be consistent, be smooth, and no mistakes."

And second time around helped. "Not everything was new," he said. "Being in the short round last year helped. I felt like I'd been there."

Turek, who will be a junior at St. Paul High School this fall, will make his first trip to National High School Finals. He qualified for the National Junior High Finals three times.

He also competed in the team roping at state finals, finishing in sixth place.

He is the son of Jeff and Sheila Turek.

Goat tying champion Maddee Doerr

Maddee Doerr didn't let a rough patch this spring get her down.

The fall rodeo season was good to her, but in the spring it was "a little rough,"

she said, "till I pulled my head out and started doing good." Her problem? The goats were tough, and "figuring out how to tie them took me a little while. Once I figured that out, I took off from there."

The goats were also difficult to keep tied at state finals. In the first round, out of 28 cowgirls, only eight had their goats stay tied. Maddee's was not one of them, but a solid run in the second round, with a time of 8.6 seconds, won her that round.

This is the fourth time the Creighton cowgirl has qualified for state finals. This year, she also competed in the breakaway roping this year, finishing second in the state.

This is also the fourth time she has qualified for Nationals. Last year, she finished as fourth in the nation in the goat tying.

This fall, she will attend Cochise College in Douglas, Arizona, on a full ride rodeo scholarship. She will compete on the rodeo team in the goat tying, breakaway, and possibly the team roping. She plans on studying agri-business at the two-year school.

This is the second year Doerr has finished as the Nebraska goat tying champion.

She is the daughter of Eric and Monica Doerr.

Bull riding champion Mason Ward

Mason Ward led the pack of bull riders in the Nebraska High School Rodeo Association all year long.

The North Platte resident, who will be a junior at McPherson County High School this fall, broke his ankle at the 2016 National High School Finals Rodeo in July of last year, and ended up sitting out the first three rodeos of the fall season. But then he never looked back, winning first at eight rodeos (O'Neill, Grand Island, Nelson, Callaway, McCook, Mitchell, Harrison and Crawford), and placing second at Stapleton.

He entered state finals in first place, and won the title with a total of 129.5 points, more than forty points ahead of the number two bull rider, Conner Halverson.

Ward knows the mindset of a bull rider has to be positive. "You have to believe

in yourself, and you can't ever fight your head. You have to go at it 100 percent." He describes his attitude towards bull riding as "grinding" away.

Ward also plays football and wrestles at Tryon High School and is on the honor roll.

This will be his second qualification for the National High School Finals.

At state in Hastings, Ben Wood, Greeley, was the only bull rider out of six riders to cover two of his three bulls; two riders covered one of three (Ward and Halverson).

Ward is the son of a former bull rider, Mark, and his wife Kelly.

Meet the Member

Diane Axmann

story by Lily Weinacht

Diane Axmann from Loup City, Nebraska, is sitting high in the NSRA barrel racing standings. The 51-year-old qualified for the NSRA finals for the first time in 2004, several years after she started rodeoing. "I haven't been doing it all my life like most of the girls competing. In college, I did track and I played sports in high school. I always had horses, and when I was thirty-five, I got a mare off the racetrack that was a thoroughbred and I got into a little cutting." As much as she enjoyed cutting, it was expensive, and Diane was intrigued when she saw how much a local barrel racer won rodeoing. "Barrel racing was a little more feasible, and it was that need for speed. You have to be a little athletic yourself to ride these horses, and that adrenaline rush you get is a lot of fun."

Diane now competes in the NSRA, M-SRA, KPRA, and PRCA Prairie Circuit, but she started out going to jackpots and has always trained her horses herself. "I learned hard, and it took longer to get where I am with them at the rodeo level, but that's part of the challenge. It's fun when it all comes together and you're the one who trained them. Somebody that encouraged me to go from jackpots to rodeos is the gal I buy a lot of my horses from, Carrie Howard Byam. She lives in Oklahoma now, but I still call her and ask for opinions. She was the person that pushed me to go the most, and she could see that rodeo would be a good direction for me," says Diane. "I like the atmosphere of rodeoing and the competition of it, and the loud music and noise and ground conditions."

This season, Diane is running two geldings, Legit, 9, by Judy Gracey's stud who is a son of Frenchmans Guy, and Newt, 8, a cow bred horse by Bill White's stud in Ashby, Nebraska. "When I got Legit, he had some issues and it took time to get him calmed down. I trained him myself, and Newt came from Adams Feedyard. He's a nice horse I found out had some speed. He ran at some rodeos last year and he's showing a lot of promise." The mare Diane was riding previously won her nearly $40,000 between amateur and pro rodeos, along with the year-end saddle in 2012 in the M-SRA. "She got hurt, and I took her to Littleton, Colorado, for an MRI and found out it was in her foot. I bred her to Judy Gracey's palomino stud, and I'll probably breed her to him again because I really liked the baby. When you breed a mare that's won some money, you have a pretty good chance of getting something good out of it."

When she's not on horseback, Diane helps her husband, John Obermiller, with farming. "I help in the spring with planting and hauling seed and in the fall with harvest, and John has picked up more custom harvesting too. He encourages me to go and wants me to do this (rodeo)." John competed in rodeo in the 1970s, and he's recently trained one of Diane's barrel horses to pull their buggy, which he's driven at a wedding and several parades. They also enjoy traveling to areas like Jackson Hole, Wyoming, the Black Hills in South Dakota, and visiting the museums in Ponca City, Oklahoma.

Diane's main focus this summer is seasoning her two horses and exposing them to larger pens, especially since she'd like to qualify for the Prairie Circuit Finals in the future. "I hope by the end of the summer I can make one of the finals between the NSRA, Mid-States, and KPRA," she finishes. "I hauled Newt to nine rodeos last year and he placed in four of them, and it would be really nice to make all three of those finals." 📷

Rodeo Spotlight O'Neill Summerfest Rodeo

story by Lily Weinacht

Every third weekend in July, the O'Neill Summerfest Rodeo in O'Neill, Nebraska, draws in contestants and spectators alike for two nights plus slack of M-SRA and NSRA rodeo fun. They were voted M-SRA Small Purse Rodeo of the Year in 2015 and 2016, and the rodeo board attributes that to the caliber of stock, the facilities, and the never-slackening pace of the rodeo. "We try to go the extra mile accommodating contestants and keeping the spectators comfortable and entertained," says Bryan Sanford, the rodeo committee president. He competed in the M-SRA for several years and stepped into the role of president eight or ten years ago, though he's been on the rodeo committee since the early 1990s. "We're having a wild horse race again this year including a Calcutta, and we always try to throw some fun things in. We had a chicken scramble three years and continue to have a best seat in the house. We're always doing something different with a unique twist." The latest twist features celebrity horse races on inflatable horses at the rodeo this year, organized by rodeo secretary and treasurer, Lauri Havranek. The rodeo is also featuring a dance at the community center following the Friday performance, with music by Cutrix Sound and Entertainment.

that work our concession stands for the rodeo, and our Lions Club and Rotary Club park cars," says Lauri. Bryan, also the arena director, coordinates gate help and other volunteers in the arena. He's helped the rodeo committee grow, doubling their numbers in the last three or four years.

The rodeo features nine events, including breakaway roping, and new this year, mixed team roping. "It's been at the contestants' request, and we've had a lot of people asking about it," says Lauri, also the executive director of the O'Neill Chamber of Commerce. Planning of the next Summerfest Rodeo begins even before the current year's rodeo has opened. Lauri has served on the rodeo committee the last six years, and though she hasn't competed in rodeo, she's equally passionate about it as any contestant. "I love the sport and the silent communication between the contestants and their horses. I like meeting people and the camaraderie amongst the contestants," she says. "A real cowboy's word is as good as the handshake that accompanies it." 🤠

The Summerfest Rodeo celebrates its 33rd summer of rodeos this year, and makes a centralized stop between the rodeos in Burke, South Dakota and Madison and Greeley, Nebraska. "It was originally started by the O'Neill Chamber of Commerce as a way to give back to the community that would appeal to everybody," says Bryan. Along with the eight rodeo committee members, the weekend runs on many volunteer hours. "We have terrific volunteers from throughout the community

Meet the Member Rowdy Cook

story by Lily Weinacht

“No matter how it goes, bull riding makes you keep wanting to come back for more. It’s the adrenaline rush you get, and it’s fun!” Rowdy Cook, 19, from Tremonton, Utah, dipped the toes of his boots in the rodeo world as a calf rider and was all in by the time he started riding mini bulls. He junior high and high school rodeoed for Utah and joined the RMPRA as a freshman, qualifying for their finals in 2015. “I broke my collar bone right before the finals and I was able to get on one bull before I competed. I ended up breaking my wrist, so it was kind of a rough go, but it happened in November, so if it was going to happen, it was a good time!”

Rowdy has been strictly a bull rider since day one, and it only took one ride on a saddle bronc to confirm his love of bull riding. He continues to compete in the RMPRA, and started competing in the PRCA last year. He’s currently sitting fourteenth in the PRCA Wilderness Circuit. “I like the experience and the good times I have doing it (rodeo). I met some of my best friends through rodeo, and the money is always a good thing too!” Rowdy travels with fellow bull riders Austin Allred and Damen and McCoy Moody. “Mostly we jam out to music and have a little bit of karaoke when we’re driving,” Rowdy says with a laugh. “We have old-school country and some rap – pretty much anything you can think of, one of us will have on our playlist.” They recently competed in

Springville, California and Reno, Nevada, and Rowdy placed in Tucson, Arizona, along with riding in Belton, Texas. “I love the atmosphere of pro rodeos – they’re super big and the crowd gets into it, and it’s electrifying! I still get butterflies walking in. I entered in Fort Worth and the atmosphere of walking into that arena and Rodeo Fort Worth itself was breathtaking.”

When he’s not crisscrossing the United States, Rowdy uses the time to compete in RMPRA rodeos, work, and get on practice bulls. “Tim and Tyler Bingham from Honeyville, Utah, own bulls and they’re really good about bucking once a week. I’ve been friends with them since I was nine, and when I’m struggling, I can call them to help figure it out. Tim has made the NFR twice, and I rode mini bulls with Tyler. I like that the RMPRA rodeos are pretty laid back, and it’s usually the same stock every weekend, so you get to know the animals you’re getting on,” he adds. “I plan to hit some RMPRA this summer, and hopefully make the finals.” Rowdy also stays busy with his roofing job when he’s home. He’s worked for the company for a year, and discovered that spring and fall are the ideal times for roofing. He also enjoys spending time with his family. “I have two younger sisters, and they’re both dancers, but if my rodeos are close, they all try their hardest to make it. My dad and I really like hunting and fishing – deer and elk are mainly what we hunt. We drive forty-five minutes to an hour and we have a pretty good hunting spot up there.

“I’d like to make the circuit finals and hopefully win the circuit, then go on to the Ram Circuit Finals. If everything works out perfect, I want to make it to the NFR. I want to thank my friends and family for supporting me and sticking by my side no matter what. I definitely wouldn’t be where I am today without all of them.”

Utah Junior High Rookie Hallie Bennett

story by Holly Wilson

Hallie Bennett got started with rodeo when she was just three years old.

"My parents got me involved," she said. "My mom did 4H and high school rodeo, and so did my dad. He also did some pro rodeos when he got older."

As a sixth grade student at Frontier Middle School, she competes in the team roping, breakaway, barrels, poles, goats, and ribbon roping.

A rigorous practice routine is essential for keeping up with a six event cowgirl, and Hallie's brother helps her stay competition ready.

"Every morning, me and my brother will do exercises and rope our team roping and breakaway dummies," she said. "Then I go out to the arena and run barrels and poles, and tie my goats."

It was this persistence that kept her ahead for the title of the Utah Junior High School Rodeo Rookie. Not to mention, leading the title all year long.

"My greatest rodeo achievement was winning the rookie award," she said. "When we were still doing rodeos before

state finals, I would always check to see if I was winning it or how many points I needed to stay ahead."

"I always wanted to be aware of what I needed to do to stay on top. And I was leading it the whole year."

Hallie finished the rodeo season with 147.5 points; 15th in the barrels and goats, 20th in the breakaway roping, 14th in the pole bending, and 18th in the ribbon roping.

She has a string of three horses that helped her accomplish this feat. She spends a lot of time with them, and has developed a strong bond with them over the years.

"My barrels/poles/breakaway horse is Rockstar, and he's my favorite. My team roping horse is Clyde, and he's a head horse, and my goat horse is Hollywood," she said. "They've been with me the whole time and have helped me accomplish things like the rookie award."

Although she doesn't know where she will attend yet, Hallie plans to continue rodeoing throughout high school, and college as well.

Aside from rodeo, she also enjoys playing basketball and singing.

"I play winter basketball, and won Most Valuable Player (MVP) of my team," she said. "I also love to sing, and I sing the National Anthem at a lot of rodeos. My favorite rodeo to sing at was the first I sang at, Tooele, and I like to sing at my mom's rodeos. She does UJRA."

Hallie has her parents to thank for not only introducing her to the sport of rodeo, but keeping her involved throughout her life.

"I would like to thank my parents, my brother, and my grandparents for coming to watch," she said. "I would also like to thank my rodeo friends, the people who put on the rodeos, and the sponsors, it wouldn't be possible without them."

With their support, Hallie was able to cinch the Utah Junior High School Rodeo Rookie award, and won't let anything get in the way of her dreams.

"Always keep trying and never give up on anything you want to do." 🐾

Introducing 2017-18 President

My name is MaRynn Moody. I am your 2017-2018 Utah Jr. High President. I live in Deseret, UT, I have three horses Dana, Nellie, and Gunner, and my sidekick German Shepherd Kya. I have 2 older sisters, that have paved the way for me. Some of my hobbies beside my horses are, basketball, playing the piano, hanging out with my friends, and making my dad desserts.

Right now I'm back in Tennessee at the Jr. High Finals, my heart swells with pride just being part of such a wonderful organization and awesome sport. I am loving the opportunity to be here making new friends and competing for Team Utah. Rodeo may be the only sport where we are fierce competitors inside the arena and afterwards one big rodeo family, cheering each other on.

Let's set our goals high and make 2017-2018 rodeo season one for the books!!!!

Utah Junior High Queen McKardy Kelly

story by Holly Wilson

Eighth grader McKardy Kelly has only been competing in junior high rodeo events for a year, but has taken the rodeo queen world by storm.

"I just started rodeoing last year, but I've been riding horses and doing rodeo queen contests for a really long time," McKardy said. "My mom did a lot of rodeo queening in high school, and even competed at county and state. My dad and grandpa are rodeo announcers and my uncle is rodeo clown, so I've been to rodeos ever since day one."

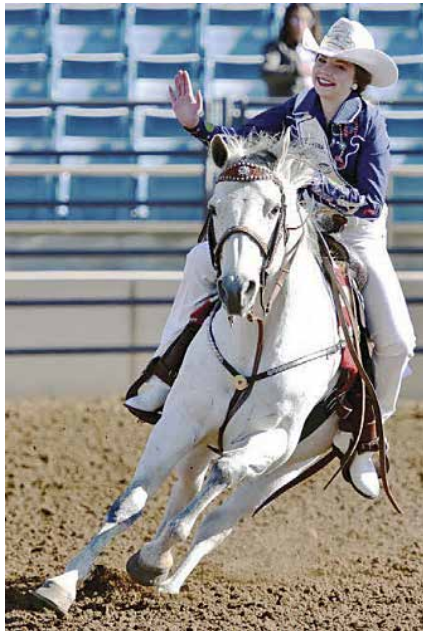

As a student at Rocky Mountain Junior High, she competes for her region in barrel racing, pole bending, and ribbon roping, and represents this year as the Utah Junior High School Rodeo Queen.

She prepared for the contest through spending hours in the rulebook, practicing her public speaking and modeling, and getting to know herself.

"Like all contests, I was nervous. But when I got there and was with the girls, I had a lot of fun," McKardy said. "There were five other contestants, and I really enjoyed getting to meet them and other people through the rodeo queen contest."

McKardy travels with an entourage to each of her events, that includes her mom, dad, brothers, and grandma.

"Any time that we're going to a rodeo, we make all sorts of different memories together and I love rodeo for that," she said.

Many of those memories over the past year have involved a fleet of equine athletes that have helped McKardy accomplish her goals.

"I have a horse named Hottie, and he has helped me get better at rodeoing through barrel racing. I have another horse named Norman, and he has been with me to do grand entries in parades, he's super solid," she said. "And then there's Scout, and I did my reining portion of the [Utah Junior High School Rodeo Queen] contest on him."

"I'd like to thank my entire family for supporting me through everything that I have done," McKardy said. "And a special thanks to Keith Karren for letting me use Scout for the queen contest."

With the support of her family and friends, McKardy plans to continue queening throughout high school, college, and beyond.

"I plan on doing many rodeo contests throughout my life," she said. "Hopefully next year I can try out the high school contests, which I'm really excited for."

"In the long run, I want to go to Miss Utah and be able to meet amazing girls that I will have friendships with my entire life."

When she's not in crown, McKardy enjoys being an active junior high kid and having fun with her friends.

"In the summertime, I love to paddleboard and kayak, and spend time with friends and family," she said. "I just love hanging out with friends, and going to rodeos to watch."

McKardy is also involved on her school campus through being a "Too Cool" ambassador, that helps prevent bullying on her junior high campus. She also looks forward to joining Future Farmers of America (FFA) next year as a freshman.

McKardy has a bright future of queening ahead of her, and tries to be a positive inspiration to others through her queen contests and involvement on her school campus.

"Whatever you want to do in life, never give up. Keep working for it. I believe that hard work can help you do amazing things." 🐾

Introducing 2017-18 Vice President

My name is Taylee Ackerman. I am 12 years old going into 7th grade. I have been rodeoing competitively for just a little over a year. I am the new Vice President of UJHSRA for the 2017-2018 year. I am so excited to have this opportunity that I have received. I compete in barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying and ribbon roping. My horses names are Bunker, Muzzy and Penny. I can't pick a favorite event, I love them all the same. I am starting breakaway this fall. Before rodeoing, I raced motocross for 4 years. We moved to South Utah County and I decided to trade that in for a four legged friend. I have one sister named McK- lay and she also rodeos in high school.

What I love best about rodeoing is I get to meet so many great new friends and families.

Utah High School All-Around Cache Burnside

story by Holly Wilson

Cache Burnside is a recent graduate of Virgin Valley High School in Mesquite, Nevada.

He was a member of the rodeo team, and competed in the team roping and steer wrestling. Cache has been riding ever since he could stay on a horse, and has his parents to thank for getting him started in the sport.

"If it wasn't for my parents, I probably wouldn't have what I do right now," Cache said. "They started me roping the dummy when I was little, and then I got started on cattle."

His parents have always been his biggest supporters, and travel with him down the rodeo road. "My dad drives us, and is like our personal chauffeur," he said with a laugh.

Cache prepares for time on the road by mentally preparing, and practicing his form. "I usually prepare the week before," he said. "I always prepare myself to compete the best. Then, when I get to the rodeo, I'm ready and I know what to do."

This sort of preparation has helped Cache throughout his rodeo career, and has landed him a place at the Utah High School Finals Rodeo on several occasions.

"My freshman year, my brother and I got third in the team roping at the High School Finals," Cache said. "This year, I won the finals in the all-around and team roping."

Cache also placed third in the steer wrestling with a time of 21.760 on three head. Cache finished the year with a grand total of 539 points, nearly 90 points ahead of the closest competitor.

Although he's nowhere short of young talent, Cache also has some talented equine athletes that help him get the job done.

"I've got four horses that I use. My bulldogging horse is five years old, and his name is Ricky Bobby because he likes to go fast. My haze horse is just a young horse that we started, and he's awesome. My heel horse's name is Denny, and he makes it hard for you to miss."

"We've trained them and worked with them a lot, we treat them right and they treat us right."

Cache trains horses in his spare time, and enjoys camping and fishing. Basically, anything that you can do on horseback. "We ride in on horses and we ride out on horses, it's a part of our lifestyle," he said.

Cache also competed on the high school wrestling team all four years.

"While I was competing on the wrestling team, I took third in state my junior and senior year, and just had a lot of fun!"

Although wrestling will stay in his high school memories, rodeo will remain in Cache's future.

"I got accepted to Central Arizona College, and hopefully we make the college finals," he said. "I plan on team roping and steer wrestling for sure, unless the coach has other plans."

Rodeo is a part of the Burnside family way, and Cache upholds the family tradition.

"Rodeo is what we do," he said.

"My family helped me learn and become who I am today. We have to go do our best and whatever happens, happens. If we have a bad one, there's always another rodeo."

Cache looks forward to continuing his rodeo career, and will hit some PRCA rodeos until he begins his college career in the fall.

"Do what you love to do, no matter what happens," Cache said. "If you love it, try to be the best you can be and try to perfect it. Don't let anyone change what you want to do, it's your choice."

Utah High School All-Around Kaitlyn Miller

story by Holly Wilson

Kaitlyn Miller is an all-around cowgirl who competes in team roping, breakaway, pole bending, goat tying, and barrel racing.

She grew up on a small family ranch, and was introduced to rodeo through her parents.

"They didn't bring it up until [my siblings and I] got a little older," Kaitlyn said. "My parents rodeoed, and they got us started. We went to a backyard rodeo and I've been hooked ever since."

Kaitlyn has been competing in rodeos and continued her rodeo career throughout high school. She completes her curriculum online, and will be a senior in the fall. This leaves plenty of time for rodeo.

Although she won the Utah High School Rodeo Association women's all-around this year, her favorite achievement was winning the same title as a freshman.

"Winning the rookie, the breakaway, and the all-around my freshman year was my greatest achievement," Kaitlyn said. "I hadn't had the best spring rodeos or state, and I made the finals in fourth place."

"I was so nervous to go back, but I roped my first calf and it settled down for me, so I just did my thing."

She credits her horses for a large portion of her success. They've been with her since she was eight years old, and has grown up with them.

"Everything has just worked out for me, my horses don't get as much credit as they deserve," Kaitlyn said. "They're rockstars, they have made me who I am."

Kaitlyn and her horses hope to continue their rodeo careers in college, and have a few places in mind.

"Rodeo is definitely in my future," she said. "I'm not sure where I'm attending, but I have a few places in mind. They're all in Texas, so we'll see if my parents let me go. Utah and Texas are a long ways apart!"

In her downtime, Kaitlyn plays basketball and helps her family out on the ranch.

"When I'm not rodeoing, I'm out on the ranch in Nevada helping my dad with cows," Kaitlyn said. "Our ranch is in the middle of nowhere... we always tell people to drive to the middle of nowhere and then drive 30 minutes more and you'll find us."

"My dad is out there most of the time. We have one million acres, I couldn't tell you how many cows, and 1400 wild horses."

Her parents have supported her throughout her rodeo career, and travel with her to her events. Rodeo is truly a Miller family affair. "The whole family comes, my mom, dad, and four brothers," Kaitlyn said. "I could never repay my parents for everything that they've done."

Along with the support of her parents, Kaitlyn has built strong relationships with other rodeo competitors, including reserve all-around cowgirl Taylour Latham. "I would like to thank Taylour and the Latham family for letting me use their barrel horse while mine has been out," she said.

Kaitlyn looks forward to her future of rodeo, with her family and friends by her side.

"Something that I've learned along the rodeo, is that there's always another rodeo," she said. "You can't let one bad run ruin your mindset. The only thing that matters is the next one." 📷

Introducing 2017-18 President & Vice President

Dear Members, I am excited to represent you by being your president this year. I'm proud of how last year was and I hope we all can make this year just as fun and amazing.

Deklyn Jensen

My name is Amanda Butler. I'm going to be a junior at Payson High School. I compete in barrels, poles and breakaway roping but barrels is my passion. I LOVE rodeo!! My favorite thing about rodeo is all of the life lessons learned from every aspect of it. Outside of rodeo, I love to draw and spend time outside. Pencil sketching is my favorite form of art and my favorite subjects to draw are animals, particularly cattle and horses. I've been involved with UHSRA for 3 years, one year as a junior high contestant. I look forward to representing the UHSRA as the new Vice President and plan to serve the association to the best of my ability.

Meet the Member Shaeden Marr

story by Kyle Eustice

Like many young rodeo contestants, Shaeden Marr was introduced to the sport by her family. Many of her predecessors participated in it, including her grandparents, mother, father and older sister. As someone who has been around it her entire life, the blossoming 13-year-old Tularosa, New Mexico native is thrilled to be a member of the New Mexico Junior High School Rodeo Association.

"My dad trains racehorses and my mom was a racehorse jockey," said Shaeden. "They both rodeoed. I've just been around animals my whole life."

As she finds her footing in the competitive rodeo world, she is honing her skills in events like breakaway roping, barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying, team roping and light rifle shooting. Her favorite is admittedly the breakaway roping and pole bending events, which she says has taught her that "respecting the animals helps with the danger of sport."

Shaeden recently completed her seventh grade year at Tularosa Middle School and is looking forward to attending eighth grade in the fall. She is a straight-A student who truly enjoys school and spending time with her friends. Her parents — Joel and Teresa Marr — have been incredibly supportive of all of her endeavors, and her old sister, Shacie, is a powerful influence, as well.

"Shacie is in the same events as me," said Shaeden. "My mom trains barrel and pole horses, and also runs barrels. My dad trains our colts for roping and also ropes with us. We raise all of our horses."

Although Shaeden's rodeo career is just getting started, she already boasts some major accomplishments. She's made it to the nationals in both her sixth and seventh grade years, something she's extremely proud of. But it's not without sacrifice. She works hard every single day. Whether it's practice for one of her other sports or hobbies, or time in the arena, her work ethic always shines.

"I try to practice at least every other day in between all of my sports," explained Shaeden. "I have a lot of other hobbies like softball, volleyball, basketball, and track."

Above all, she loves the socialization aspect of rodeo competitions. She's met friends from all over the United States and she believes that's what makes rodeo special.

"The best part about rodeo is meeting new people," said Shaeden. "I also like making new friends."

Above all, Shaeden is blessed to be around her favorite animal all the time. Her most beloved horse Lacy Prance is, as Shaeden puts it, always "ready to go do something" and makes it clear she "enjoys her job." In the future, the ambitious rodeo contestant has her eyes set on nationals again, where she plans on rising to the occasion. "I really hope to make nationals my eighth grade year," said Shaeden. "I'm shooting for a national title." 🐾

Meet the Member Adriano Duran

story by Kyle Eustice

Sixteen-year-old Adriano Duran lives in La Jara, New Mexico and attends high school at Coronado High in Gallina, New Mexico, just a few miles up the road. Thanks to the support of his expansive family, he's been able to pursue his passion for rodeo. His parents Nathan and Danette Duran, brother Andres, younger sister Reynae and grandparents Tony and Eileen Duran are consistently in his corner.

["I was proud to represent my home town and school at the finals. What an experience! ... Cassidy and I sealed the deal in the team roping, and finished seventh overall."]

"My father is my biggest supporter and best friend," said Adriano. "My mother is always behind me in everything I do. My brother supports me at every rodeo and my little sister is my cheerleader. My grandparents also make every rodeo and support me win or lose."

As a member of the NMHSRA, Adriano got his start in junior rodeo when he was in 8th grade. With the guidance of Andres, who rodeoed in his senior year of high school, he was drawn to the sport. He soon partnered with Cassidy Evans for the team roping event.

"We finished third when qualifying for the national finals in Des Moines, Iowa," said Adriano. "I also entered the chute dogging. My uncle Anthony, now my coach, steer wrestled in high school and college. With his encouragement, I started chute dogging. I proudly finished second in the state and also qualified for nationals."

Adriano and Casey then participated in the finals, and being from a small town, they weren't exactly sure what to expect, but were pleasantly surprised with the results.

"I was proud to represent my home town and school at the finals," said Adriano. "What an experience! Although I didn't have much luck in the dogging, Cassidy and I sealed the deal in the team roping, and finished seventh overall."

By the end of junior high, Adriano was eager to move up to the high school level his freshman year to team rope. He's finally team roping this year and tried his hand at steer wrestling, as well.

"I practiced the ground work over and over and was told I was ready to jump," explained Adriano. "I'll admit it was hard to convince myself to jump off my horse at a full run onto a steer's back. With several words of encouragements, I did it. After the first one, I was hooked. So far I'm having a good year. I hope to finish strong and qualify for nationals. My horse Rebel is what makes my job easier. He puts me there every run. I really believe he looks after me while I'm getting down."

Along with Rebel, he also has a heel horse named Aspen, a smaller mare. He's

trained her on his own and she's helped him place at the junior nationals. Above all, his faith keeps him grounded.

"After every rodeo, I thank God for my accomplishments win or lose," said Adriano. "As long as my horse or I don't get hurt, we're able to go back to the practice pen and work on what may have gone wrong."

Adriano tries to practice as much as he can in both team roping and steer wrestling. On average, he practices four to five days a week, but with the responsibilities of living on a ranch, he has to plan his day carefully. In the meantime, he's focused on making the national team in both events and eventually earn a college scholarship to rodeo at the college level.

"I believe rodeo has many benefits in life," said Adriano. "If you surround yourself around good people, there is a lot of good you can take with you." 📷

Meet the Member Toni Karre

story by Lily Weinacht

Toni Karre started chasing cans in the GCPRA three years ago. Her fascination with the sport began during childhood and quickly turned into a lifestyle, and she now serves as the WPRA's Turquoise Circuit Barrel Racing Director. "When I first started out with horse shows we did western pleasure, and pretty soon I dropped those for barrels and poles in Little Britches just for the speed," says Toni. She joined the WPRA when she was 16, and later entered amateur rodeos and started college rodeoing for University of Northern Colorado. "My dad raced horses on the track and I always made the horses I had. My dad had a few of them started as barrel horses, and I liked that challenge and I've always liked the people involved. My dad and my aunt had a huge part in my education and success with horses, and my mom hauled me everywhere. We lived on the Western Slope of Colorado, and I can't tell you how many times she drove that pass with two kids and a few horses."

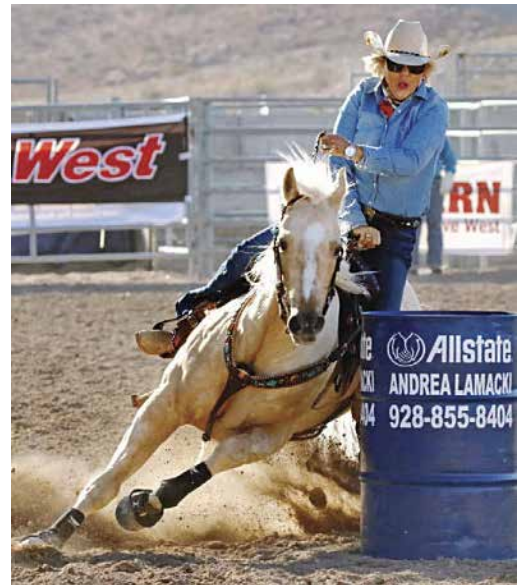

While Toni grew up in Colorado, she came to Arizona in the 1980s when her husband, Dennis, took a job in Chandler. "I almost feel like a native, but I miss Colorado summers," Toni says with a laugh. "My brother is in Greeley and my mom and stepdad are in Eaton. They own Chute Help, which does roping arena accessories." Dennis steer wrestled and he and Toni competed on the Turquoise Circuit, Dennis qualifying for their finals six times, and Toni four times. Though he's since retired, Dennis travels with Toni to all her rodeos. Their two sons, Miley and Dakotah, grew up riding and roping. Miley is now a basketball coach, and Dakotah is a production assistant for Paramount Pictures in Los Angeles.

Beyond the rodeo trail, Toni owns Estrella Counseling Services, which she started in 2009. "We do court ordered counseling, and individual, marriage, and family counseling. I did counseling for many years, but now I'm more in the operative part of it." The business has one main office and two satellite offices, while Toni manages the interns and other counselors and attends court.

Much of her free time is allotted to the horses. "I'm a real stickler on the horses being in shape. A lot of it is conditioning with my older ones, and conditioning and training with my younger ones." Her main barrel horse is Dox Dat Uno, but Toni calls him Monty. "He's nine but I bought him when he was six. He was going to jackpots, but he wasn't very brave about going to rodeos. It was challenging getting him seasoned, and this is the first year being up in a performance where I feel confident. He's been worth the wait because he's very talented. The Grand Canyon rodeos are very good because if I have young horses that aren't as seasoned, I can do the incentive, and that's how I got involved with them." Toni also has her dog, Zoey, a Labrador/Dachshund mix that travels to rodeos with her.

Toni and Dennis enjoy traveling with the horses in tow, and now that she's seen many of the states and part of Mexico, she'd like to visit Canada and New Zealand. "I have a lot of bucket list items, like going to the All-American and

the Kentucky Derby. I always like making the Grand Canyon finals, and my goal in the next year or so is to make it to the Turquoise Circuit Finals again since I'm a director and I'll be going to a lot of circuit rodeos." Toni is involved in many aspects of the association, from meeting with rodeo committees and members to updating social media and finding sponsors.

"The influence of my family growing up is what made that foundation in rodeo. My brother went to the WNFR three times in the team roping and my step-dad and uncle went to the steer roping finals. There's such great people in this industry. We all really do have the same goals in mind, but they're willing to help you get there too, and I would like to do my part helping the younger generation reach their goals."

Ralph and Sallye Williams

story by Lindsay King

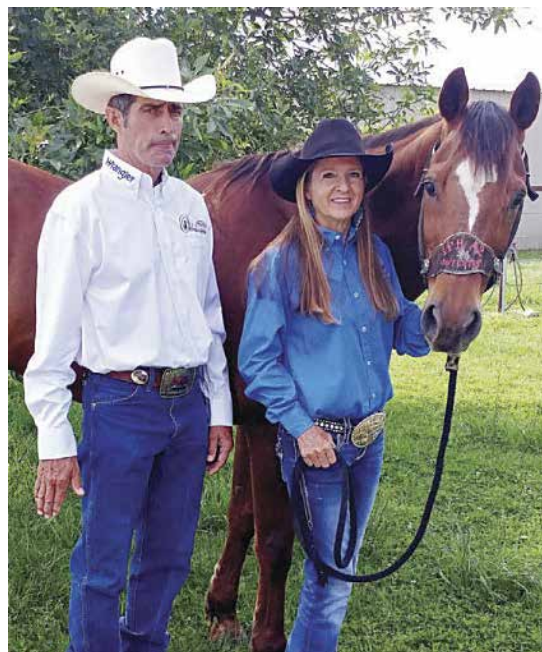

Hundreds of miles, one horse and two events, this basically sums up the rodeo life of Ralph and Sallye Williams from Skiatook, Oklahoma. They both grew up in the same area but did not get together until they were at Claremore Junior College together. “When we were little kids our mothers played in an adult basketball league together.” They went their separate ways to finish out their degrees, Sallye at Southwestern Oklahoma State University majoring in secondary education and Ralph at Southeastern Oklahoma State University majoring in business finance. For 29 years Sallye has worked as a math teacher, 14 years were spent at Owasso Public Schools and the last 15 at Skiatook Public Schools. A third generation rancher, Ralph cared for the cattle while training rope horses for 35 years. Their nearest neighbor happens to be their son Cole who is married to Laurianne. Their 21-month-old son is named Ralph Coleson, after his grandfather. Cole roped in junior rodeos but now races four-wheelers instead. Now that Sallye is retired from teaching she babysits her grandson during the week. Their daughter Cooweesta is also a teacher but works on the Williams Ranch with her dad during the summer and breakaway ropes with her mom on the weekends. “She goes with Ralph and I to all the rodeos she can now.”

Colt, a 1997 model, sorrel Quarter Horse was named the American Cowboy Rodeo Association Barrel Horse of the Year 2007 through 2011. For eight consecutive years he was the only horse Ralph and Sallye hauled. “When we would go to the rodeos Ralph would team rope off him and I would run barrels on him.” Bought from Ralph’s uncle, John Israel, for team roping but Sallye decided to teach him the barrel pattern. “He just took off with it, he did a great job.” He took both Sallye and Ralph to the ACRA finals every year since 2007. Astride Colt Sallye raced to the ACRA championship barrel title in 2007, 2009 and 2011 as well as a reserve title in 2008. In 2015, at the age of 18 Colt was retired from barrels. Now 20, he still team ropes. A talented steer roper, Ralph rides Snoopy, a 21-year-old sorrel Quarter Horse gelding. The first year the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association National Circuit finals had steer roping, Ralph and Snoopy were there to snag the title in 2010. Luckily, ACRA regularly has steer roping also. At least six saddles line the walls of their tack room for barrel racing and steer roping. Sallye has been seasoning a new barrel horse, Herbie, ever since Colt was retired three years ago. “He was kind of a blown up futurity horse. We just rode him out in the pasture for a few years to work out his problems.” Herbie is a 12-year-old bay appendix Quarter Horse. One of his first rodeos was the ACRA finals in 2015 where he won the average.

“We don’t take vacations; rodeo is like a vacation for us.” The couple runs down the rodeo road not only for the ACRA but they also compete in the Indian association taking them to the Indian National Finals Rodeo for many years. After winning the ACRA finals on Herbie in 2015, which also was one of his very first rodeos, Sallye hauled him to Las Vegas to win the INFR world championship. Their rodeo career has taken them to the Pendleton Roundup in Oregon all the way down the shores of Florida. “We like to see sights and travel all over the country for rodeo.” Sometimes Sallye and Ralph do not go to the same events because it does not have steer roping. “We like to go to ACRA rodeos because they are a little closer and they have good finals.” Both Sallye and Ralph have served as ACRA directors at one point or another, they are now alternates. “Everybody asks Ralph about the steer roping because he has been doing it for so long and so well.” 🐾

Meet the Committee Cimarron River Stampede

The 81st Cimarron River Stampede at Waynoka Oklahoma is always held the second weekend of August, August 10-12. Located 45 minutes northeast of Woodward, Oklahoma, Waynoka is a small town (less than 1,000) known for the Little Sahara Sand Hills – the largest state park in Oklahoma for ATVs.

From 1936 to 1938 the rodeo was held on the Perry Phillips pasture which is on the west edge of town, now owned by Larry Zook. In 1939 they moved the rodeo to the Waynoka School Football Field in Santa Fe Park. The name Cimarron River Stampede was adopted in 1946. In 1950 the Cimarron River Stampede Rodeo moved to its present day location on Broadway Street east of town. When the Rodeo Club was organized there were about 20 members. Frank Hutchison was president for several years and he along with the members did a remarkable job in making it a success. They had a roping club and cowboys from Cherokee, Freedom, Laverne, Buffalo, and Woodward would come here to rope then in return Waynoka would go rope in their towns. Waynoka was undefeated for two years.

For numerous years, Vernon Barnes served as the Waynoka Chamber of Commerce Rodeo Chairman of the Cimarron River Stampede Rodeo along with Max Olson serving as Arena Director.

The Cimarron River Stampede Rodeo continues to change and grow with Vernon's nephew Mike Bowers taking the reigns as Rodeo Committee Chairman with Max Horn as the Arena Director in 2011. Bowers stepped down after six successful seasons and turned the reigns over as Committee Chairman to Travis Long and Arena Director Clayton Kennan. "We have trail rides, team sortings, a pasture gold tournament and a trap shoot with the Fire Department to help raise money."

The money from the rodeo goes to putting it on the next year. "Thursday night is kids night –everyone in the elementary school gets in the rodeo for free. We get bounce houses for the kids to play on and we do an Easter egg hunt in the middle of the arena and we give away $500 in those Easter eggs over the three days. We also have a calf scramble and we give away another $100 each night in the calf scramble. We started an adult calf scramble and we give away money for that too." The Friday and Saturday night dance is free with the rodeo tickets. "We also have a parade on Saturday morning and give away doughnuts and coffee." 🍩

Meet the Member Stratton McGhee

story by Lily Weinacht

Stratton McGhee plans to be a stock contractor and bull rider when he grows up, and he's already hard at work in both careers. The 14-year-old from Colony, Kansas, qualified for the NJHFR in bareback steer riding and light rifle shooting, while he also competes in tie-down roping, ribbon roping with Bella Sauvage, and his favorite event, bull riding. He rode his bulls in the first and third rounds at state finals, and won state champion in the light rifle shooting. Stratton finished in the top 25 of bareback steer riding, and his adventure into Lebanon, Tennessee, also included meeting numerous other kids, roping the dummy with friends, and going to the dances.

This was Stratton's first time competing at Nationals, while he is the first in his family to compete in roughstock. His dad, Brant McGhee, competed in high school rodeo and team roped in the PRCA. Stratton plans to start team roping in the next few months, and though he's broken an arm, ankle, and dislocated his shoulder in the bull riding, the adrenaline rush is too addictive to stay away. "I like going and hanging out with my friends, and I love rodeo," he says. "My favorite (junior high rodeo) is probably Dodge City's outdoor arena. I like being outside. My dad really helps me out, and so has Derrick Shannon. He helps me out with the bareback, and he used to ride bareback in high school."

Stratton has several bucking bulls to practice on, and even rides one of his heifers. "One of my bucking bulls is a mini Zebu, and another one is out of the I'm a Gangster bull that was in the PBR. I also have some bucking chutes so I can get on them, usually when I have two of my friends, Nick Vaughan and Clay Shannon, come over. My dad shoes horses, so he's traveling all the time, but he comes and helps when he's home." Stratton's dad drove out with the family to Nationals, then flew back and forth several times to work and return to watch him compete.

Along with growing his herd of bucking bulls, Stratton stays busy riding his tie-down and ribbon roping horse, PacRat, whom he also plans to compete on in the team roping. PacRat found his forever home with the McGhee family when Stratton's dad purchased the gelding from one of his clients. "They had won a youth world on PacRat in the heeling, and they met Stratton and decided he would be a good fit for PacRat. There's not much we don't find pretty special about him!" says Danelle, Stratton's mom.

Stratton's sister, Callie, 17, competes in breakaway roping, goat tying, barrel racing, and reining cow horse. She broke the arena record at the KHSRA state finals with a 1.81 in the breakaway roping, and plans to college rodeo for Missouri Valley College this fall. Brinley, 11, competes in barrel racing and pole bending, and Gentry, 10, likes to tie goats. The siblings practice together, and their family recently built a new house on 80 acres. "There's a lot of ponds I can fish in and trees I can hunt in, and I like to drive our Gator around and there's lot of land to do that on," says Stratton. He also works for his grandpa and uncle in the summer, cutting silage and hay and working cattle. In the fall and winter, they go hunting, and Stratton especially enjoys coon hunting, along with quail and pheasant.

He's entering his freshman year at Crest High School, and likes running and lifting weights in P.E.. Stratton also plays on the football team, along with baseball and playing on a traveling basketball team this summer. In addition to that, he'll be rodeoing in the NLBRA this fall.

His goals include practicing his roping more, keeping up his bareback and bull riding, and ultimately, becoming a professional bull rider and owning a nice herd of bucking bulls. 🐾

Meet the Member Shad Winn

story by Lily Weinacht

Shad Winn of Westmoreland, Kansas, competes on both ends of the arena as a bull rider and team roper, and he secured a place at the NHSFR after finishing second in the bull riding at state finals. He started junior rodeoing when he was 6, following after his dad, Casy Winn, who rodeoed in college and now coaches the rodeo team at Kansas State University.

Shad, 18, joined the KHSRA two years ago after his family moved to Kansas from Utah, and he enjoys the competitive yet friendly nature of the association. A heeler, he's roped with Brandon Hittle since joining the KHSRA. "I like to team rope, but I like riding bulls for the adrenaline rush, plus it's been in my family since my grandpa started rodeo in our family," he says. Along with his dad, Shad looks up to WNFR bull riding qualifier Jerry Shepherd. "He helped me out a lot with bull riding when we lived in Utah, and helped me get my mental game strong. I still send him my videos and call and text him once in a while."

For team roping, Shad hauls a 10-year-old mare he calls Sunny. "My brother, Dixon, trained her and when he went to college and went on a church mission, he gave her to me. She's as solid as they come." Dixon will be a senior at KSU this fall, and competes in bull riding, tie-down roping, and team roping. Shad recently signed on to the KSU rodeo team, and he is looking forward to roping with Dixon for a year, while their younger sister, Kyleigh, is a freshman in the KHSRA. "It's been fun hauling to rodeos with her and hanging out," says Shad, who never leaves for a rodeo without a case of Mountain Dew. "But I try not to drink the whole case – I share with my buddies."

The Winn family makes their home near Westmoreland, with an arena out back. "I like that we can practice whenever we want," says Shad. "I like Kansas a lot, and I do miss all my friends in Utah, but it's been good to make new friends out here." Along with their horses, the Winns have a cat, Dean, and Shad's Australian Shepherd puppy, Billy. "He comes to work with me every day to Wickstrom Feedlot," says Shad. "I've worked there the past nine months, and I help with doctoring cows and branding."

Shad graduated from Manhattan Virtual Academy in May, which held its ceremony in the library. He particularly enjoyed his English class the last semester, and writing poetry. Rodeo has inspired several of his cowboy poems. He met his goal of qualifying for the NHSFR his senior year, and qualified for the NJHFR in bull riding all three years of junior high. Shad also went to the NHSFR in the bull riding last year. "It was a really good time, and I got to see my Utah friends. We also drove over to Sheridan, Wyoming, to watch the pro rodeo, and stopped at King's Saddlery, which was really fun. I had to get a rope and a ball cap.

"I want to thank my family and all my friends for supporting me," Shad finishes. "Next year I want to make it to the college finals, and when I'm out of college, I want to make it to the WNFR in bull riding." 🐮

Meet the Member Kallie Montalvo

story by Lily Weinacht

Knickerbocker, Texas, native Kallie Montalvo is competing in her third season with the AJRA. The 13-year-old enters the breakaway roping, goat tying, and ribbon roping, sitting in the top five of all her events. "Goat tying is my favorite, and I like competing with other people and with my horse. I have a lot of friends at the AJRA rodeos," says Kallie. "I look up to my dad. He rode bulls, and he always makes me work hard so I can be better. I've been to several of Lynn Smith's schools, and she's helped me with getting my tie faster and posting on the go, and getting off my horse faster." Kallie's mom, Natalie Montalvo, adds, "Lynn is so inspirational. She has a couple of clinics in Texas for returning students, and it's normally the same twelve girls that Kallie competes with. We continue to be impressed with Lynn and how she also teaches them about being a good person."

Kallie started competing seven years ago, inspired by her dad, Philip Montalvo, who has worked on ranches and competed in high school rodeo growing up. "I like the competition and the traveling, and I like to work hard so I can see myself get better," says Kallie. She has competed in several Joe Beaver ropings, and her hard work took her to the TJHRA state finals, where she set a personal best time of 7.09 in the goat tying and finished second in the first-go, placing twelfth overall at state finals.

- JenningsRodeoPhotography.com

She is the youngest of three, and her two sisters, Kizzie and Kindra, now grown with families of their own, are very supportive of her rodeoing. "They're a really close group, and if the rodeos are close enough to watch, they come out," says Natalie. "The whole weekend of state finals they watched the live feed and were really cheering Kallie on." Also part of the family are Kallie's horses. She ties goats off of Molly, and ropes on Jewel. Molly started out as Kallie's barrel and pole horse, but when she switched to roping events, Kallie trained the mare for goat tying. "I'm training another horse right now, Golden Boy, to be my backup goat and breakaway horse. He's eight and he's doing really good."

Kallie will be an eighth-grader at Christoval School this fall, and she particularly enjoys animal science. Her basketball team, the Lady Cougars, was district champion, while Kallie also runs cross country. "We'll go to the Frio River for a week or so in the summer and go camping, but I have to limit trips because of practice for rodeos. I like to watch movies while we're on the road. I like all kinds, and my dad is a big fan of John Wayne." Natalie adds, "Kallie is very family oriented, and she practices all the time. She loves her friends, and she loves being home." Kallie's goal is to continue rodeoing through junior high and high school and compete at the college level in breakaway roping, as well as studying to become a veterinarian. 🐾

Meet the Member Trevor Hale

story by Lindsay King

Fourteen-year-old Trevor Hale from Perryton, Texas, is no stranger to competitive roping of any kind.

An avid hand with a loop in calf roping, team roping and ribbon roping, he has made many trips to the American Quarter Horse Youth World Show as well as the National Junior High Finals Rodeo. A fourth-generation cattle rancher, Trevor grew up on Hale Ranch in the Texas Panhandle, he lives and breaths cattle and horses. He made the switch to homeschooling through Grace Christian Academy last year to allow more time outside doing what he loves. "My favorite subject is more than likely history. There are not very many numbers and some pretty fun facts." Going into his freshman year, Trevor is excited to get to the high school rodeo association and up his own level of competition. "Oklahoma has a long line of very tough competitors. I always like being in a tough environment to push myself to be better." Trevor has always been around tough competition, his mom Cindy trains AQHA English horses while his dad Greg showed rope horses when he was younger. "My dad has been in Perryton ranching his entire life, he showed a little bit but has always been taking care of cows." Trevor first started to rodeo when he was five years old, he never really had any interest in learning how to ride jumpers like his mom.

During the school year Trevor starts his day by working on school until about noon, then he heads outside to ride horses and help out on the ranch. "School is very important to my family and we always get that done first before we do other things." During the summer he spends his time exclusively outside, not only helping with cattle work but also riding with various AQHA and PRCA professionals. "I have had a lot of people help me and appreciate them a lot." Trevor likes to spend his time with Stran Smith, Marcus Costa, Brad Lund and Gary Wells, just to name a few of his rodeo mentors. "Stran is a great mentor, not just in the roping pen but in life, school and everything I do. He has helped me a tremendous amount." All this help and Trevor's work ethic led him to AQHYA world titles in tie-down roping in 2014 and breakaway roping in 2016, as well as winning the tie-down roping at the NJH-SRA finals last year. Amongst all this work, Trevor also led the Oklahoma Junior High School Rodeo Association as president this past year. "I am just always trying to get better, improve my riding skills and ultimately become more of a horseman." Aside from roping, he also competes in goat tying, chute dogging and the working cow horse events. While in Tennessee for nationals for ten consecutive days, Trevor will be found competing in tie-down roping, ribbon roping and team roping as well as goat tying and chute dogging. He won both the ribbon roping and tie-down roping at state finals this year which led him to the all-around cowboy title as well. "It is just another rodeo, that's all you have to think. It is another roping to go to." Trevor's main mount is Kate, a 12-year-old sorrel mare used for calf roping. His other calf horse is Goose, a 13-year-old bay gelding. He also has Duke, a seven-year-old bay head horse. They are all Quarter Horses of course. If it is in the cards, Trevor would like to rodeo professionally in the future. However, his ultimate goal is to become a rancher like the rest of his family and eventually run Hale Ranch alongside his dad, and remain involved in the horse industry. 🐾

recipe courtesy of Jada Lucky

"As much as I would love to, I cannot take full credit for the gumbo recipe I use. Our very good friend, Rusty Wilson, from Lafayette, Louisiana is a true bred and born Cajun. I asked him for his roux recipe (which is the base of the gumbo) to make my duck gumbo (He usually uses chicken and sausage). So here it is, with a few tweaks."

INGREDIENTS:

2 yellow onions
1 bell pepper
Fresh garlic
1 avocado
3/4 cup avocado oil
1/4 cup of coconut flour
Kitchen Bouquet sauce
10 small duck breasts
Down home green onion sausage
2 tbsp. chicken bouillon
Tapioca starch
Tony's, cayenne pepper, black pepper, salt, Tabasco, or hot sauce

DIRECTIONS:

1. Add 2 yellow onions, 1 bell pepper, and a little garlic chopped w/ a little avocado oil in the bottom of pan and cook until translucent.

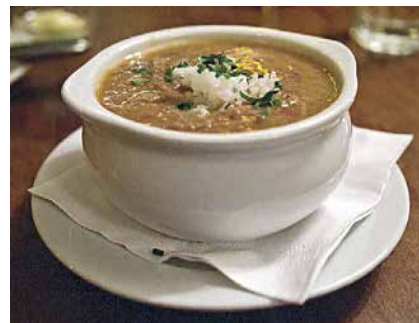

2. In a separate glass bowl: mix 3/4 cup avocado oil & 1/4 cup of coconut flour in a pyrex until smooth until there are no lumps. Heat it in microwave for 1.5 minute, 1 minute, 1 minute ...should be pretty hot. This is the ROUX

3. Add some kitchen bouquet (coloring for gravy, etc.) to get the color a little brownish & some of your cooked onions to stop roux from continuing to cook.

4. Add roux to onions at bottom of pot and stir it around before browning meat... Add duck (I usually put in about 10 small duck breast) & cook until a little brown on the outside.

5. Add amount of water you want depending on size of gumbo pot (you want it to look soupy). Cook for 2 hours on simmer & then add a pound of down home green onion sausage, cook for another 30 mins.

6. Add 2 tbsp. chicken bouillon (flavor) & 1 tsp at a time of tapioca starch to thicken to liking, cook for another 30 mins.

7. Spice w/ Tony's, cayenne pepper, black pepper, salt, Tabasco, or hot sauce of choice.

8. Once its almost done cut green onions & put in. Have file' on table! 🍴

Meet the Member Kaycee Hollingback

story by Lindsay King

Ranch life is the best life, at least that is how 17-year-old Kaycee Hollingback of Wilburton, Oklahoma, feels about it. Born into a family of cattle ranchers, Kaycee spends her summers riding and roping, anything to help her dad Jerald at Watts Ranch down the road and grandpa Ricky at his ranch in Antlers, Oklahoma. "There is not a whole lot that I do other than work cows and rodeo, but that is all fun to me." Kaycee learned how to rope at the early age of three and went to her first junior rodeo when she was seven. "Since then I have been addicted to it." She goat ties, breakaway ropes and pole bends in the Oklahoma High School Rodeo Association but she also runs barrels and ribbon ropes at other junior rodeos. Her mom Virginia started roping when she was only 12 and is credited with getting Kaycee started. "My parents taught me just about everything. They kind of just gave me a rope at first and then they helped me if I ever needed it." Kaycee tried her hand at heeling but decided it was not her event. However, her 11-year-old brother Tanner is a team roper. Kaycee is closest to her grandma Hollingback who lives next door to her and she considers her best friend.

At first Kaycee disliked goat tying but her mom told her she had to stick with it until she was good. Today, it ties as Kaycee's favorite event with breakaway roping. In 2016 she won the goat tying at the Joe Beaver Junior Roping Association finals and the NRS Youth Timed Event Championships. Kaycee is now sitting in the top four for OHSRA in both goat tying and breakaway roping. "The best part about OHSRA is the level of competition. Everybody has the same goal in mind, everybody working hard seems to make you work just as hard." Last year at state finals, Kaycee missed every calf but still managed to make it to nationals from all her points accumulated during the regular season. "I could have been really fast but I fell over the top of my goat because I pulled my quad in practice that morning." When she was only 14, she was the all-around average champion in OYRA, winning her a two-horse trailer. Her dad helps her in the box while her mom takes to the stands. "She makes me nervous when she stands behind the alley because she talks too much but my dad doesn't say anything."

Kaycee wants to one day start her own brahma herd and started this years ago. "I swapped him a glass of tea and lemon cake for a tiger-striped brahma heifer." Going into her senior year at Wilburton High School, Kaycee aspires to attend Southeastern Oklahoma State University competing on the rodeo team and possibly majoring in pre-law. Her favorite class at school is yearbook, because of its interactive nature. Her mom teaches English at WHS and taught Kaycee both her freshman and junior years. During the spring and fall, they are on the road almost every weekend for a rodeo. "Over the summer I try to go to open rodeos to get runs in. I am always trying to go to one, I hardly ever take a weekend off." Kaycee ropes off Jim, an 18-year-old grulla Quarter Horse gelding who she has had since she was ten. "We borrowed him for the OYRA finals one year for poles and breakaway. He is a wicked little pole horse. So we ended up buying him after that." Jim is considered the all-star mount for the Holingbacks, Tanner even uses him for poles. Her goat horse Hollywood, a nine-year-old sorrel Quarter Horse gelding, was originally purchased as a back up breakaway horse. "I had to turn him into a goat horse in a day after my other horse had a heat stroke. We placed second and he has been my mount ever since." The 17-year-old bay Quarter Horse mare, Marble, is Kaycee's barrel and pole horse. "She is kind of hateful sometimes so on those days I call her Mabel and say it is her evil twin sister." 🐾

Meet the Member Layne Lagasse

story by Lindsay King

Concordia, Kansas, transplant Layne Lagasse is a tried and true team roper. "Rodeo is about the only hobby I am good at and feel like I can win." Generally, he is a header but after a partner change this year he is heeling in the CePRA with Maverick Harper. Now an Alva, Oklahoma, native, Layne works for Wiebener Cattle. Farming about 3,000 acres of crops and running 1,200 head of cattle on wheat every year. They also have a starter yard that he is responsible for. He grew up around the CePRA in Concordia. The last five years he has roped in the association. "A couple of years ago they raised their fees and now you can rope for $1,000 to $1,700 for first place." The past few years Layne has been occupied with work and has not roped a whole lot. In 2015 he made the CePRA finals and won the average. He has not been back since but has set his sights for it this year as well as the KPRA finals. "I would like to win both if it is realistic." Layne mostly rodeos through July and August.

His dad Lance is an auctioneer and real estate agent in Concordia while his mom Brenda is an agricultural accountant. Lance has roped for as long as Layne can remember. "My dad got me into it. I picked it up when I was younger but never really got started roping on a horse until I was ten." Layne and his dad roped at a lot more jackpots and USTRC events than rodeos. He high school rodeoed, making the finals in 2011, his senior year. "I was top ten all four years of high school and I was third my senior year. And made the nationals that year." He roped at the International Finals Youth Rodeo for a few years, even winning a round in 2009. He dabbled in calf roping in high school. "Whenever I started rodeo I put everything else on the back burner." The same as in high school, Layne does not do much more than work and rodeo. Layne remembers always practicing with his dad in high school, but has not roped with him a whole lot since. He is in-between horses at the moment. His 18-year-old sorrel

Quarter Horse gelding is retired after coming up lame after many years of roping with Layne. Now, he is using a 16-year-old sorrel Quarter Horse gelding from his dad. "I just call all my horses by their color."

Layne plans to continue roping in the rodeos around Alva for the time being. Last year he bought his PRCA card and went to rodeos on it. His sister Taylor, a sophomore at Southwestern Oklahoma State University, also ropes in the CePRA and KPRA, roping calves and running barrels. "We have grown up rodeoing together for the last ten years or so." The Elsworth and Salina, Kansas, rodeos were two of the biggest Layne has won in the past few years. Layne likes being able to take $125 and turn it into $1,700 when he wins. "I suppose it is more of an addiction than anything, it is not much different from gambling."

PROFILE: KARSYN DANIELS

[2017 NJHFR Barrel Racing Champion]

story by Siri Stevens

Karsyn Daniels, from McKinney, Texas, won the National Junior High National Finals Barrel Racing Championship for 2017. Out of around 160 girls, and inclement conditions, she and her horse, Muffin, were able to get a total of three clean runs: 15.6, 16.0 and the short to 15.7. “The 16.0 was in the mud, but they took all the mud out and put new dirt in for the short go,” said the 13-year-old who has been chasing cans since she was three. “Muffin handled the ground even though it was raining and muddy. ‘I went in there going for it and she took care of me and herself and we did good.’”

Karsyn got Muffin when she was six and Muffin was five. “One of my mom’s friends had her, and we went to see her and bought her the same day. After I first got her, it went downhill,” she admits. “We took her to 4 time NFR qualifier Michelle McCloud and she had to completely restart her. She was there for a year, and when we got her back, we clicked.” Karsyn has been competing on Muffin for six years and it keeps getting better. “She’s come a long way – and so have I.” Karsyn never gets nervous, but at Nationals, she did. She came back in the number one hole to the short go and just needed a clean run. “I just had to keep all three barrels up and hope that I was fast,” she said. “I was in the lead by a ways and hoping it would hold.” After the run, she had to go do an interview, then pictures, and it was crazy. “I’m still in shock from what happened – there was so much stuff that went on – I just took it all in.” They left the next morning for the 14 hour drive home.

Karsyn can blame her love of rodeo on her parents. “My parents took me to the NFR when I was four and ever since I was there I wanted to rodeo,” said the Texas Junior High competitor who also breakaway ropes. She spends her whole summer on the rodeo trail. “I just get in the truck and go,” she said. “My dad (Jack) drives and my mom (Kristen) is the videographer.” In addition to the TJHRA, she competes in the WPRA and has qualified for the American Semi Finals three times. She rides every day – all of her horses are at home, and she rides about four a day. She will be in 8th grade next year and this is her first year to do junior high rodeo. She was barrel racing a lot and didn’t have time to do junior rodeos. “I got into roping and I wanted to go do that and I thought it would be fun to be around kids my age.” Her roping horse came from the Driver’s, Marty Yates trained him and next year her goals are to make it to Nationals in Breakaway and Barrels and repeat as the champion. 🏆

LISA LAGESCHAAR

[2017 Miss Rodeo America returned to her barrel racing roots at Josey Ranch]

article by Lily Weinacht

Lisa Lageschaar, 2017 Miss Rodeo America, returned to the place that reinforced her love for barrel racing, rodeo, and horses as a teenager when she was part of the 36th Annual Josey Jr. World this May. “It was so special to go back to the Josey Ranch,” says the 25-year-old from Pickton, Texas. “I never competed in the Josey Junior World since I didn’t expand my barrel horizons until I could drive myself places and pay my entry fees, but I went to two Josey clinics six or seven years ago since I’d heard so many good things about them. The first time I went, I was riding a horse I couldn’t decide if I wanted to sell or keep, but I wanted to learn more – I don’t believe anyone can stop learning. I went back the following year on another horse who had been injured and was sound again, and it was great, because the Joseys take everything slow and only push the horse as much as they can handle.”

The horsemanship Lisa fine-tuned at Josey Ranch served her well through the Miss Rodeo Texas competition, which she won in 2016. While attending the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame induction ceremony last October, Lisa reconnected with Martha Josey. After Lisa won Miss Rodeo America – Martha eagerly following her former student’s progress throughout the competition – she was invited to take part in the 2017 Josey Jr. World. “It was so special to be back and be around like-minded people,” says Lisa. “Martha is a phenomenal woman and barrel racer, so it was really neat to be part of that event.” Lisa represented Josey Ranch through interviews with media and interviewing contestants herself, as well as visiting with sponsors. “I also spoke to the contestants and visited with them and their families to offer words of encouragement or wisdom, and share in their hopes and dreams and just be there for them.”

Lisa’s own hopes and dreams started with her parents, who immigrated to Texas from the Netherlands in 1990, a year before Lisa was born. “The Netherlands is eighteen times smaller than the state of Texas, with a very large population, and the only way to have farmland is to inherit it because it’s so expensive,” Lisa explains. “My dad wanted to be a dairy farmer, and he picked out Australia, New Zealand, or Texas. Fortunately for me, I was born in Texas – I can’t think of a better place to live.”

Growing up working on her family’s dairy farm instilled a work ethic and can-do attitude in Lisa, who coaxed her parents into her first pony when she was five. Two years later, she had a full-sized horse and started competing in jackpots and playdays. She dabbled in junior high rodeo, but with cattle to show as well, she focused primarily on jackpots. Her crossing into the rodeo queen world started with a royalty contest flyer handed to her in the school cafeteria when she was 14. “Anything and everything that had to do with a horse I wanted to try. I was first runner-up, but with my competitive nature I thought I’d try again. I won Winsboro Rodeo Junior Queen the following year.” Lisa competed for one more local title, then returned to barrel racing and team roping. She earned her master’s degree in secondary education from Stephen F. Austin State University and her bachelor’s degree in agricultural education from Tarleton State University before running for Miss Rodeo Texas. “I wanted to focus on rodeo, but the more I learned about Miss Rodeo America and Miss Rodeo Texas, I decided I’d better compete since there’s an age limit on rodeo queen-ing, but there’s no age limit on rodeo.”

Lisa, who plans to start her doctoral work in educational leadership after this year, is the second oldest woman to hold a Miss Rodeo America title. “I love the tradition and values and camaraderie of rodeo, and that everyone is there to lend a helping hand. Growing up in a dairy farming family, I learned that with hard work and faith, anything is possible, and everyone believes that in this industry. I even preached that to my Ag. kids, and it’s a strategy you will be successful with no matter what you apply it to.” Lisa taught high school agricultural science for a year before resigning to serve as Miss Rodeo America. “That was bittersweet, because this has been one very rich fly-through-the-pie-of-life year, but I miss my kids quite a bit. They were juniors when I taught, and I just went to their senior graduation. It was good to see them and be reminded of why I do what I do. I love being around the kids, and not only teaching, but mentoring them, and learning from them.

“Right now I’m focusing on Miss Rodeo America, but I still would like to be a teacher educator,” Lisa finishes. “I’m still horse crazy and I love to rodeo, and I’d love to run a barrel horse down the alleyway of the Thomas and Mack.” 🐾

for coming to the Josey Jr World!*

We are so proud of our former Josey student, and all her accomplishments!

"After attending two clinics in 2010 and 2008, Martha and I reconnected at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame when I was Miss Rodeo Texas and she was so excited since I was a former student and she had followed my journey to the Miss Rodeo America title at the NFR Finals in Las Vegas and asked me to come speak at the 2017 Josey Jr. World. I'm so excited and thankful to be a part of this event!"

REGRETS

article by Laura Lambert

I was casually listening to the television the other day, probably while I made breakfast or cleaned the kitchen. Who actually knows what I was doing other than watching television because that's not something I just sit down and do. I heard the announcer on the show say something along the lines of, "In 20 years, you will only regret the things you didn't do."

Of course, this was the start of a long thinking process for me. My first thought was that it was absolutely true. After further wonderance though, I decided that it wasn't unequivocally true but it had a lot of truth to it. I would venture to guess that there are things people have done in their past that they regret. I know I have a few things I wish I wouldn't have done but, back to the sentence at hand.

"The things you didn't do...." This rang true with me. One of my biggest regrets is that I have always been what I would call, "responsible." I always expected more of myself than many others did. I've always had a job. I've always expected myself to pay my own way without asking for help. I've always thought that if I wanted something, I just had to work harder to get it. I never allowed myself to just do something. There was always a process that went with it. I suppose that you could probably call me a realist because I haven't allowed myself to dream that much.

For instance, I've always wanted to live where it's warm all the time. I wanted to move down south when I was young, but the means weren't there. When I say that though, it is with a realist view. The way I see it now, I could have moved any time I wanted and I should have. I could have gotten a job down there and carried on. I could have risked not having money to pay rent, or buy food, or pay my car or truck payment....but I didn't.

I have always wanted to travel more but again, responsibilities kept me home. Who even knows what all they were, but it has always been something. A job, bills, kids, an ill parent, and the list goes on...I just never felt like I could leave and be gone for very long at a time. But, looking back, I should have...

Over the years, I've had some great horses. Speculation, of course, but I believe I've had some that were tough enough to "make it." Responsibilities in my mind kept me from trying. But I should have...

This isn't a sob story. I have a wonderful life with a great husband, two amazing boys, a home and small little ranch that is dream worthy. I'm living a life many would give up a lot for and believe me I know it. This small saying just got me thinking about all the things, I wanted to do but didn't. Who knows where those things would have led or how much my life would have been changed because of them. I love my life, but I encourage young people to do the things they want to first.

If you want to travel, find a way to do it. If you want to ride horses, find a way to do it. If you want to move somewhere different, find a way to do it. If you want to rodeo, find a way to do it. Sometimes, we need to give up the security and the glamour and lead the life we want to. There's a way. Get a smaller trailer, maybe a year or two older truck....don't eat out, assess your needs versus your wants and what you are willing to give up to do what you want to do.

There is plenty of responsibility in this life we lead. You are going to have ample time to be tied down to payments and a mortgage, or time to raise your family. Do what you want to do and find a way to do it before you settle down. It's worth it.

As the old saying goes, "No one, while on their death bed, ever wished they spent more time at work. They regret the things they didn't do....like spend time with their family, make memories, travel, eat ice cream..."

BOBBY DEEDS

article by Lily Weinacht

[Frontman responsible for keeping the deer population thriving in Texas.]

Texas has one of the largest deer populations in the United States, and Cargill Wildlife Specialist Bobby Deeds is at the forefront of keeping that deer population thriving. “I’ve been with Cargill ever since I finished my master’s at Angelo State University in 2004,” says the 37-year-old from Goldthwaite, Texas. “I was a territory manager for them and then I went into the wildlife specialist role. It’s the fastest growing segment in the feed side because of recreational hunting. I love getting into the country and working with different land owners, helping them grow bigger deer. I never would have thought in college that a job like this existed – I wanted to keep rodeoing and not go to work. If I’d known the job was here the whole time, I would have been running hard to get it!”

Bobby grew up on his family’s ranch in central Texas, where hunting and rodeoing were not hobbies, but lifestyles. Bobby started rodeoing when he was five or six, beginning with riding calves, then steers. He worked up to riding in all three roughstock events, and after rodeoing in high school for Texas, he competed on the Angelo State University rodeo team. “I had a back injury and I wasn’t rodeoing, and I think it was God telling me to get a real job,” Bobby jokes. “I had a graduate professor, Doctor Cody Scott, who was one of the most influential people besides both my parents, driving me toward what I had a desire and passion for. It’s by the grace of God that this all fell in line, and I’m lucky to be where I am today.”

A day in the life of Bobby has him traveling anywhere in Texas to perform habitat analyses and design a feeding program for whatever the habitat is producing. “I go from one ranch to the next, and the first thing we talk about is their goals,” he says. “Every ranch and its resources are different. Whether they want the biggest deer they can grow, or exotics, we can figure it out. Nutrition is the easiest thing to change, but if everything else isn’t dialed in to it, you won’t get a lot of response from it. I make recommendations other than nutrition and make sure the habitat is doing the most for them, because feed is a big investment from a management standpoint. Nutrition, age, and genetics are the three things that grow big whitetail deer. Texas is probably ten to thirty years ahead of some states with what we’re doing with whitetail deer, and we have a pretty lengthy hunting season. The forefathers of deer management like Aldo Leopold managed habitats and were really dialed in on the deer management standpoint.”

Every other moment of Bobby’s is spent with his family. He and his wife, Ashley, have three sons, Ethan, 9, Evan, 6, and Easton, 6 weeks. “When I’m not working, I’m typically coaching one of their baseball games or I’m in the practice pen with them,” says Bobby. “Ethan is in the top ten of the AJRA steer riding, and we have a small practice pen behind the house with a bucking chute. There’s a reason rodeo kids are typically the best I come across in manners and how they succeed in life because of what’s engrained in them from a work ethic standpoint. My number one goal in life is to raise good kids and have God in their lives.”

Bobby also breaks colts for his dad, who runs 20 head of broodmares. “We have no shortage of horses! We’re training those for our own horses since my boys are getting started in roping, and we have two or three good roping prospects. I’m really happy with where I’m at right now with Cargill,” Bobby finishes. “If I have an idea, we run with it, and they support me and get behind it. I want to continue being successful and leading on the wildlife management side. I want to think of something that will take it to the next level on the feed side, and I want to be remembered as someone who helped raise really good whitetail deer, and great kids.” 🍷

ART OF RODEO TEXAS SADDLERY

[Producing the new look of the Old West]

story by Siri Stevens

Brit Ellerman is a third generation leather crafter, silversmith, and team roper. He splits his time between competing at the PRCA level as a header for TJ Watts and working in his shop in Ft. Lupton Colorado or Dale Martin's shop in Alba, Texas. "Everything in my life has started with a contact I've made through rodeo," said the 24 year-old Mountain States Circuit Champion Team Roper. He and his partner recently returned from Kissimmee, Florida, where they placed in a go-round and won third in the average. "I missed a steer in the final go round," he said. "The trip was great — my family and a bunch of friends flew to Florida and we spent a few extra days exploring. It was a great rodeo — they took great care of us."

He begins his days feeding the 15 horses on the place and cleaning pens. He likes to rope early while it's fresh in his mind. After that, he heads to the shop. He has four reps that work for him and he and his employees work to fulfill the orders they generate. He plans his days the day before to get everything accomplished he wants to. So far, his coverage includes Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Arkansas, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Texas, Oklahoma and Canada. The wholesale business is generated from word of mouth. His best selling product are the rough out buck stitch belt that was brought out last year. "It's the most detailed one we make. We make all of our own lace, so everything we do is hand done and takes quite a bit of time."

Dale Martin is his business partner, and is in charge of production. "The other day I made 30 or more casual belts. We have 120 stores now, and Dale makes sure we have everything we need. If we get short, or someone wants a different style, I'll make it here. Dale used to own Martin Saddlery and has recently come out of retirement. "I ran into him at a roping in Arizona," explains Brit. "He was looking for a young man to partner with on an idea." Brit learned about how the belts are made and the quality of leather used to create them. "My grandfather was a bit maker and craftsman, and my dad (Jay Ellerman) has done a few things, so I'm a third generation crafter. I learned all the tricks and the right tools to use."

Brit has learned a lot from his parents, Jay and Tammy Ellerman. "One thing that my family has always stressed is that you get out of everything what you put into it. My parents started with nothing and the first piece of property they bought they knew nothing about interest rates. The reason they ended up in Ft. Lupton is the ground is sandy and we could have an arena. My mom and dad cleared the 7 acres by hand – they didn't have a tractor. They are just really good people."

Brit started roping when he was able to hold a rope and ride a pony – three years old. "I didn't work on my roping because my main focus was on basketball until halfway through high school. My dad had quit rodeoing, so he had some head horses around I made it a priority." At 5'10" he had to work at it. After graduating from high school, he headed to UW to rodeo and obtained a BA in Business Administration and Marketing. “That degree has helped me in the aspect of understanding the profit and loss and other things – and I wished I would have paid attention more to accounting. I wish there was a class in how to get a business started. It’s tough to get started and break through. Without any credit history or backing, it’s tough to get started. I’ve relied heavily on people that I know that are successful. I ask a million questions to apply to what we’re doing.”

Dale and Brit are partnered on Texas Saddlery and all his custom leather work is under the business name of Ellerman Exclusive. “Dale is on speed dial and I just have to ask him and I go down there quite a bit and he’s so good about helping me and teaching me how to build new things and explaining why things go together. I’d get an idea and I’d just make it. If I messed it up, I didn’t worry about it. I take what I learn from that and finally get the idea that was in my head and make it work.”

Having good tools is important. He admits he used to get tools from a magazine, and he soon realized he needed the best tools he could get, and he turned to Barry King at Kings Saddlery. “Barry King makes all the tools I have.”

Brit isn’t exactly following his childhood dream. When he was young, he wanted to be the governor. “I like politics, and I like people and trying to make things better. I still keep that in the back of my mind – I have a lot of goals before that one. One is to make the NFR. That’s something that’s been my dream since I was a little kid. “I’ve had such a great list of people that have influenced my roping. The other thing I enjoy doing is building the business- and I want to continue that and build the brand. The leather stuff is just part of it – between real estate and our horses, it takes the whole family.”

Meet the Member Eric Frazier

story by Lori O'Harver

Eric Frazier is a 42-year-old father of three, grandfather of one who is poised to step into a new job as Texas Area Manager for Paramount Utility Company. He's also sitting 8th the RIDE TV GO Texas Bronc Riders Association Bareback Riding Standings and riding better every time he nods.

"I started riding bareback horses about 20 years ago, fresh out of high school. Horses were different then, not as strong as they are today. I was out for several years and am amazed to see the results of the Born To Buck programs in terms of producing bigger, better, stronger horses. It's great to be riding again and feel exactly how well that program is producing," said Frazier.

As a 20-something, Frazier worked in the cell phone industry building towers. It was his job to climb, which kept his body in great shape for the demands of the bareback riding event. Today, his workouts don't come as a perk of his job, but he uses them to inspire and lead his young sons as they grow in youth sports.

"My 6-year-old, Braxtyn, has been playing flag football and baseball and the youngest, Brody the 4-year-old has been 'playing' alongside his team since he was old enough to get around good. He's about to try out for a flag team of his own. Both of them are serious about athletics while I work to keep them balanced in their focus on academics," said Frazier.

"Exactly 18 months ago, the company I worked for had a 'biggest loser' fitness program that I participated in. I weighed in at 248 pounds and in six weeks, lost 33 of those. I told my wife, Amanda, that I was feeling so good I thought I should crack out the riggin' and enter up somewhere. Instead of laughing, she helped me find a rodeo close to home," Frazier said.

"Rodeo is truly a family sport, which sounds odd since only the team roping has two contestants truly working together, but it is. It's family oriented and I'm grateful to be able to travel with my family, to have them be a part of what I love," said Frazier. "I believe in leading by example, so when my boys and I play catch in the yard before my workouts, they join me. We train together. It's just another way to share the values that contribute to success in life. But when it comes down to how I'm able to rodeo, I credit my wife. There is a lot to say about her and how amazing she is. It helps out a lot when you have a great woman, wife, mother and best friend in your life to help catch your dreams."

"I'm also gratified to see the hard work and rising success of the TBRA. I'm honored to be representing for this growing organization and believe that it's not only very much needed for the future of the horse riding events, and what is rodeo without those? I believe the TBRA business model is built for longevity and success. I admire Daryl McElroy and his team for the relentless way he works for us and the growth of the sport," said Frazier. 🐾

Meet the Member Dave Eastlake

story by Lindsay King

Eighty-year-old Dave Eastlake saddles his “old-mans horse” every morning and gets his roping in before the Amarillo, Texas, heat starts to blister. “I try to rope every day. Not to be competitive; it is part of my exercise program.” Dave remembers when the NSPRA was called the National Old Timers Rodeo Association back when it began in 1979 in Hyan-nis, Nebraska. Raised in a small farming community outside of Phoenix, Arizona, Dave started in junior rodeos riding steers and some bareback horses in high school. “After graduating from Arizona State University with an agricultural degree, I went to work in a feed yard. We roped and doctored every animal in the pen instead of bringing them to a chute. I only had two days off a month so I roped every single day.” Dave started roping calves in the evenings, he would rope ten calves off his horse. “Then I would take a rope and tie calves to the fence and practice tying.” He joined the Arizona Rodeo Association and the RCA, still holding his pro card today. In 1965 Dave won the ARA calf roping championship, starting a life-long career of championship calf runs. “I could tell you about all the big rodeos that I won pretty well at, but that could go on and on. That’s how I got to where I am and then I started going to the old timers.” Always in the cattle industry, Dave eventually moved from Arizona to Texas as the industry migrated east.

“Basically, I am retired now. I have been involved in a lot of different ways with the NSPRA. I served as president for one term but the main thing I am involved with now is the Hall of Fame. We are trying to make it bigger and better.” When the NPSRA finals moved to Las Vegas a few years ago, Dave suggested the Hall of Fame induction move with it.

Dave was 40 when he first discovered the NSPRA; he initially wanted nothing to do with it. “As time went on, I got a little more interested in the NSPRA.” When the finals were in Las Vegas that first year, competitors only had to compete in one rodeo to go, Dave got to go. “They started the association after that, in 1979. I was in from the beginning and I have known every president since those days to now.” Inducted into the NSPRA Hall of Fame in 2003 for his dedication to the organization, Dave is a NSPRA world champion calf roper and served as president, vice president, event director and now as chairman of the Hall of Fame committee.

Dave met his wife Linda initially over the phone while ordering calves from Texas but saw her for the first time during his annual trip to visit his sellers. “I walked in that office and there was the best-looking Texas woman I ever saw in my life.” Married in 1976, Dave and Linda have lived in Amarillo for the last 41 years. “Over the years we have had a lot of fun together traveling and entering senior rodeos.” The first rodeo Dave entered in was an annual roping in Wickenburg, Arizona, held the Sunday after Thanksgiving. “My neighbor in high school, Eli Straun, came up to me at that roping and said he was going to enter us in the ribbon roping.” Instead, Dave ended up being the runner for the late Everett Bowman in the ribbon roping. “That was the first buckle I ever won and the first rodeo I ever competed in. He [Everett] was one of the first people in the United Cowboys’ Turtle Association that eventually led to the RCA and PRCA.”

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM THE BOX!

By Jerry Martin : Cowboy Connection Ministries!

My wife and I went to Montana to some National Senior Rodeos and I took along with us a new calf horse that we bought earlier in the year. Now this was his first trip on the road with all the hours and hundreds of miles in the trailer only to get out and find himself in a strange place and at times being separated from the only thing he found comfort in, the other horse being hauled with him. I found myself feeling sorry for him because I could see his fear. But the real story here is there are people going through life the same way. There is a lot of uncertainty, anxiety, and fear in what tomorrow will bring. The Bible tells us in Proverbs 12:25, "Anxiety in the heart of man causes depression." That is why there is so much depression today, so many are on anti-depressants because they are uncertain of their life and where their tomorrow will take them. Let me encourage you with this truth, there is a God, the Creator of heaven and earth, and He loves YOU. He wants to be your Father, Savior, Protector, Provider, your everything. With everything He wants for you, there is one thing He never intended for you to have, and it can be found in II Timothy 1:7, "For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power and love and a sound mind." So don't go through life like that young horse who's on the road for the first time. Put your trust and confidence in God the Father. Again, the Bible says in Psalms 32:8 "I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go, I will guide you with My eye." This is spoken by our loving Father in Heaven, who loves you very much. Lord Bless you today!

We have many rodeos during the week and several locations with consecutive rodeo dates. This makes it difficult to only take entries on Tuesdays! Please check the entry dates carefully! PAIN TOLERANCE

article by Dale Woodard

A pain tolerant person as defined in Webster's Dictionary is someone who can put up with bodily suffering. People with a high tolerance of pain I believe have an advantage in life. When someone is involved in an activity or a sport and they get hurt but are able to stay focused and on task that is an advantage. You can just flat out get more done if injuries and pain do not stop your progress.

You may recognize Freckles' name as a past World Champion bull rider. During the sharing of stories between Leon and Freckles I could tell Freckles was a man blessed with a high tolerance of pain, throughout his long and storied career.

Another man that I knew with this gift was Rob Smetts the Rodeo Hall of Fame Bullfighter. I saw Rob try to jump a bull at the Cow Palace in California around about 1980. Rob and the bull were running at each other head on. Rob jumped but the bull raised his head and sort of jumped too. The bull's head hit Rob square in the chest. Rob hit the ground hard and the bull went on his way. When I got to Rob I asked him if he was hurt. He said, "I don't know but I can't feel my legs." I told him to just relax for a minute or two and maybe the feeling would come back. Sure enough within five minutes Rob was up and able to finish the performance. You can call that pain tolerant, grit, guts or whatever you choose. I call that being tough.

When I was in the foundry business in the '80's I had a guy named Earl Coon that worked for me. Earl was a great worker and also a rodeo rough stock rider. He was what I call junkyard tough. Earl was stocky built, not necessarily a pretty body but oh was he tough. I saw him get bucked off of a bull one time and hit the ground so hard it would have killed most people. When Earl got up he was near my barrel. He looked at the bull and said under his breath, "That didn't hurt me." And that was just one example of many that made me call this guy junkyard tough.

Now fast forward to the spring of 2017. Karla and I have a great grandson who lives in Pueblo, Colo. This boy lives in town and his grandmother (our daughter) lives about a block away. He is three years old, loves animals and wants to be a cowboy. Recently my wife and I volunteered to bring the boy to our ranch for four days and nights. His name is Dalton. Now I knew going into this extended stay that Dalton was going to need a little toughening up in order to survive on the farm. After all, he has lived his whole life in town, being watched over very closely by his mother and grandmother. Sure enough, he wasn't here long and while riding a horse with me we got brush whipped by a low hanging limb. My boy started to cry and get wimpy. I checked him out to make sure he wasn't hurt and then I explained to him that on the farm things happen and we all need to just toughen up. He looked at me through those alligator tears and said, "OK Papa, I can be a tough guy." Each time after that when he would get a little hurt I would remind him that this was an opportunity to be a tough guy. And he seemed to latch on to the idea with enthusiasm for the duration of his stay with us.

When we took our little guy back to Pueblo I made a point to inform his mom and grandmother what had transpired. I realize this idea of being a tough guy can be taken to an extreme such as in the case of Evil Knievel the motorcycle stunt man. But generally speaking, being a pain tolerant person allows us to accomplish more in our lifetime, be it in sports or business so it's a principle that is worth pursuing in ourselves and our children. ■

*Thanks for the visit,
Dale*

GRATITUDE & PERSPECTIVE

article by Lacey Stevens

It's a Monday morning and I'm at work, wishing it were Friday. When it's Friday, I'll be wishing it were five o'clock. When it's five I'll wish I were headed to practice. I think that's our human nature to always be anticipating what's next, rather than enjoying what is now.

I try every day to keep two words in mind, gratitude and perspective. I realize there are 100's of other words I could use and I do to some extent but these two words keep me grounded and appreciating each moment for what it is, rather than waiting for what's next. I saw this video on Facebook and this guy was preaching about the same thing. As we grow up we can't wait to be a grown up, then when we're a grown up we can't wait to graduate from college, then we graduate and we can't wait to get that perfect job, we get the perfect job and we can't wait to be married. We get married and we can't wait to have

kids, and it continues. The point being, instead of always looking at what's next I try to be in the moment and appreciate where I'm at. Yes, I do the same thing and it's important it keeps us focused on our goals. But if we look too much into what's next we miss what's in front of us.

Gratitude; being thankful for what I have. The people in my life, the ability to rope, the horses I've been blessed with, my health, my job that allows me to rope, etc.

Perspective; a positive point of view. Always keeping in mind it could be worse, way worse. Missing in the short round, yes it's a bummer but it's not the end of the world.

So the next time you wake up on a Monday and are feeling gloomy ask yourself what you're grateful for. Then ask yourself what would life be like if you didn't have one of those things you were grateful for? Now that will put life into perspective. 🐾

Meet the Member Mattie Johnson

story by Chiara Bacque

Mattie Johnson of Choudrant, Louisiana punched her ticket to her first National Junior High Finals rodeo by securing a third-place finish at the LJHSRA Finals and capturing the rookie pole bending title. “I was proud of my horse, Dunny. She’s the main reason I won Rookie.” The twelve-year-old, third generation cowgirl is no newcomer to the rodeo way of life. “I’ve been around team ropings and rodeo since before I could walk and started competing in rodeo when I was four.”

Mattie competes in several events, including pole bending, goat tying, and barrel racing. She also runs ribbons for her partner, Grant Foster. “Running poles is my favorite because of my horse, Dunny. He was passed on to me from my sister.” Mattie’s sister, Lena, is a 15-year-old LHSRA member, and she competes in break-a-way roping, barrel racing and pole bending.

The Johnson family operates a successful rodeo stock contracting business, J2 Productions, producing junior and high school rodeos and team ropings in Louisiana. While the rest of the family is busy producing the rodeos, Mattie gets her horses ready to compete. “Being the daughter of a stock contractor is very rewarding because I know a lot of people because of my dad.” Mattie has learned a lot from her parents, who are both NHSRA Alumni. “My Dad coaches my roping events and my mom coaches barrels and poles.” When they’re not competing, Mattie and Lena help their mother time the team roping competitions.

Growing up in a rodeo family has taught Mattie a lot of responsibility. The

Johnson Ranch is home to Mattie’s parents, Natie and Carrie, and her sister, Lena. The ranch lifestyle is something that she is blessed to live. Mattie describes a typical day at home, “I usually tend my horses and feed the goats, but picking stalls is my least favorite thing to do on the ranch.” Most days, you can find Mattie riding her horse and roping calves with her sister, who is a great role model. “My sister is all that and a bag of chips,” Mattie says. The encouragement and support of her Grandparents also plays a major role in her life.

Traveling to rodeos is always fun with her dog “Dally” by her side, and her favorite snack on the rodeo trail is gummy bears. She enjoys hanging out with rodeo friends and would love to spend time with Fallon Taylor. “She is my idol because she’s not afraid to dress how she wants to and be who she wants to be.”

Not only is Mattie successful in the rodeo arena; the Choudrant Elementary sixth grader also excels in the classroom as an honor student. Learning new things and hanging out with friends are some of her favorite things about school. “My favorite school subjects are math and science. I also like PE because you can run around and don’t have to sit in a classroom.”

When she’s not at a rodeo, you can find her playing basketball or softball. Once she has finished chores at the ranch, rodeo practice, sports and homework, Mattie still finds time to watch Food Network, her favorite television channel, and prepare some of her favorite treats in the kitchen. “I love to bake brownies cookies and cakes. I love to watch people bake and cook on Food Network.”

Mattie hopes to continue rodeoing in the future, and she also dreams of attending Louisiana Tech to study biomedical engineering. “I want to design artificial organs or prosthetic arms and legs.”

Maddie is excited about her future in rodeo and looks forward to her first NJHSRA Finals. “I live by the bible verse Philippians 4:13 I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me.”

Louisiana High School Rodeo Association

Meet the Member Kase Bacque

story by Siri Stevens

Kase Bacque from Opelousas, Louisiana, has a goat herd and has started a breeding program — his Spanish Boar crosses are used for goat roping as well as meat goats. He and his family live on a ranch and he started with a few to rope and then decided he could get more. “I thought I might make a little money on the side,” said the 15-year-old All Around Cowboy for Louisiana High School Rodeo Association. Kase will be a sophomore next year and is home schooled. “We always grew up on a ranch and always had a rope in my hand,” he said. Kase lives on a sprawling family horse and cattle ranch outside Opelousa. His family raises Corriente and Brangus cross cattle. They have 17 horses as well as 50 head of goats. “All the cattle we raise are roping cattle which they sell to local producers. My dad rodeoed a lot and I picked it up from him. I’m in three events, the calf roping, team roping, and cutting,” he said. “I did really good in all my events at Finals.” Kase is dedicated. “I spent every day practicing — I’d cut in the morning and either team rope or calf rope in the evening.”

His dad was a PRCA tie down roper, who made the NFR in 1992. He passed away in 2004. Kase was only three years old at the time, but has watched videos of him. In the rodeo world, Jeff Chapman is his coach. He lives in Mississippi and comes every other week to coach both Kase and his older brother, Karter. “Jeff has been coaching me for three years. He’s a calf roper and he helps me with my horses and the mental game of roping. A lot of rodeo is mental. If you can control your emotions, then you can win.” For

Kase, the hardest thing about roping is be consistent. “A lot of practice and patience and roping the dummy help with that consistency to catch.”

He also learned a lot from Karter. “Karter taught him everything about rodeo and now Kase is carrying forward those things that he learned from Karter,” said his mom, Chiara Bacque.

He has an older sister, Lindsey, 23, who is only one in family besides his mom, Chiara that didn’t rodeo. They showed Brahma cattle instead. They both have been supportive — opening the chute and untying calves for him. Kase went to the National Junior High Finals for two years, ending his junior high year as the state junior high champion twice in the calf roping, and once in the team roping. He ended up 11th in the calf roping at the National level. Kase will head to his first National High School Finals in a few weeks. He made it in the cutting and calf roping. “I’m roping just about every day and going to ride cutting horses two to three times a week.” He also spends time in the gym and works cows and his goats on the ranch. “I’m always around horses and cows.”

His goals are to eventually make the WNFR and get a college degree, along with college rodeoing. When he’s done with rodeo, he hopes to open his own business using his business degree from college. “I’d like to have a western store or have my own duck hunting company to guide hunts. A Couple years back a buddy invited me on a duck hunting trip and I fell in love with it. In the winter time, if I’m not in a roping pen, you can find me in the duck pond.” 🦆

Meet the Member Kayla Earnhardt

story by Kyle Eustice

Thirteen-year-old Kayla Rylee Earnhardt is anticipating beginning her freshman year at Liberty Preparatory Christian Academy this fall. In the meantime, the Mooreville, North Carolina native is focused on her first love — rodeo. Kayla has been taking riding lessons since she was 4 and her parents bought her first horse four years later. Now a member of the JRSRA, Kayla is thrilled she gets to ride horses on a daily basis, and work together as a team. Currently, her events are barrel racing, pole bending, breakaway roping and goat tying, but she admits goat tying is her favorite. While many parents might think the nature of the sport is too risky, her mother Rene and father Kerry know how much she loves it.

“I don’t think about the danger or let fear take over what I want to do,” said Kayla. “My family is used to the dangerous sports. My dad raced in NASCAR and now my brother does. It’s about doing what we love and enjoy, and that’s how my parents, especially my mom, look at it. She’s asked that question a lot and she always responds that we’re doing what makes us happy and that’s what she focuses on.”

With a last name like Earnhardt, which is unequivocally linked to racing superstar Dale Earnhardt, Jr., she takes the sport seriously. When she’s in school, she spends three days a week in the classroom and two days in satellite school, making traveling to rodeos much easier.

Her brothers Bobby and Jeffrey also help push her along while her aunt, Taylor Earnhardt Putnam, is still heavily involved in rodeo, and won the SRA All Around Cowgirl title two years ago, something Kayla is happy to emulate.

“I had a great year last year,” explained Kayla. “I won the 2016 JRSRA All-Around Cowgirl title. I also came home with a bunch of buckles, winning both the Barrels and Goat Championship, as well as Reserved Champion in Pole Bending

and Breakaway. It was a once in a lifetime moment when everything just went right. Mom says to really live in those moments because they don’t come around often.”

Kayla joined the JRSRA in 2009 at the age of six after she saw some friends getting involved. “We had some friends that were letting us use their horses and they competed in the JRSRA,” said Kayla. “It worked out good for me because my parents wouldn’t buy me a horse until they knew I really was committed and wanting to continue riding as I got older. I’m very thankful to the Colyer family for sharing their horses with me.”

In addition to the JRSRA, she also competes for her state of North Carolina in the NC High School Rodeo Association, which has her in the practice pen often.

“Whether tying a goat, roping a dummy or working the horses in the arena, every day I do something,” said Kayla. “I have a young horse now, so I have to stay more consistent with him verses my seasoned horses.”

In her free time, the ambitious teenager likes to play volleyball, act in theatrical productions and shoot photographs. She also likes arts and crafts, but overall, rodeo keeps her going.

“I love the partnership with my horses,” said Kayla. “We’re athletes that depend on each other in and out of the arena, but the bond we have is special. The people you meet on the road and spending time traveling with our rodeo family means a lot to me. Rodeo is not just a sport, but a lifestyle that we all share as one big family — the victories and the defeats.”

While she loves all of her horses, her 22-year-old roping horse “Shorty” is one of her favorites. “He has not only won me a lot of money and awards, but he’s taught me to push myself and make me want to be better,” said Kayla. “He’s a tiny guy with a big motor and heart to win. He’s the one that will be hard to replace in my barn — not that he’s going anywhere. This is his forever home.”

In terms of the future, she’s focused on continuing her education and branching out into other areas of rodeo.

“I hope to add team roping to my resume,” said Kayla. “My coach Traci Morris, who is a former SRA All-Around Cowgirl, will be starting me on that next chapter and I’m really excited to learn something new in the arena.”

CHANGING LEADS

article by Crystal Lyons

If you were drawn to this article in hopes of getting wisdom on training your horse flying lead changes, don't waste your time. Turn to someone who knows....and that's certainly NOT me! But there is a principle here that weighs truthful in other areas of life concerning lead changes.

Years ago I was blessed to breeze race horses for an older woman who was an encyclopedia of horse knowledge. She insisted that her race horses be well trained and not just unbroken colts running fast, more from fear than good training. She was adamant that her horses be able to change leads easily so they could better maneuver getting out of a tight spot during a race. And that sometimes, that little bit of knowledge could make the difference between winning or losing.

A few weeks ago I spent time with a good trainer friend of mine and he was instructing me on the beginning exercises needed to prepare a horse for learning a smooth flying lead change. He had me doing counter arcs with my horse. You know what that is, right? It's where you lope a circle in one direction while having your horse's head face outward from the circle. In other words, you're loping one direction but your horse's head is facing another.

We as individuals and as a nation also, can get stuck in one lead and changing that lead is desperately needed for the benefit of our future. Learning to switch leads fluidly and easily to transition from one direction to another is MOST IMPORTANT if we want to finish our race well! And sometimes, when we're NOT getting it, we need to be brought through some exercises where we our eyes are turned OUTWARD instead of inward, so as to position us for a much needed shift in direction!

America as a nation is in a counter arc right now and it's a GOOD THING because the direction our nation has been traveling in, has been in desperate need of change! And though loping in a counter arc is rather uncomfortable to say the least....the results will prove to be very refreshing!

While many people in our nation are upset over this shift, and sad to say, that

even includes many who consider themselves Christians. Our leadership, (the head) is looking outward. Though that puts the nation in a place of unrest, it's imperative that we be in this counter arc so as to change the entire direction of our nation from self imposed destruction to fulfilling the destiny that America was birthed to ultimately fulfill.

These are exciting times and to be overwrought in fear over all the unrest, is to believe that we will be stranded in this counter arc forever. No....the counter arc is NOT the destination....it's the pathway to a much needed transition and change of direction. This is a matter of necessity for the destiny of our nation, and other nations that will follow suit. Whether we realize it or not, we've been "boxed in" for several decades now by those who's agenda is for their own self interest and NOT for the nation. To maneuver out of this trap, demands we change leads. The difference in winning or losing is at stake.... so I say "thank God for this counter arc America is experiencing"! We're in the process of making a flying lead change! May we as a nation get back on course with the direction GOD has for us and may we be able to proclaim with confidence....God bless America....AGAIN! 🇺🇸

Meet the Member Laine Moore

story by Lily Weinacht

I like getting out rodeoing and seeing more than what you see at home. It's a rush and it's a passion that I always follow," says Laine Moore. "If you slow down, there's nothing to come back to, so it's a commitment and a passion."

The 16-year-old steer wrestler, team roper, and tie-down roper from Asbury, Alabama, started competing at a young age. His grandpa was one of the first to start roping in their part of Alabama, while Laine's dad began rodeoing as a teenager. "My dad, Chuck Moore, has taught me everything I know since I was knee high to a grasshopper," says Laine. "He taught me how to rope, and Dustin Buchanan has really pushed to be better than what I am and helped me with my horses and roping. He hazes for me, and Monty Stone has really helped me with my calf roping and my horses. I really appreciate those guys."

This is Laine's rookie year in the SPRA, while he also competes in the Georgia High School Rodeo Association and the NLBRA. He's currently sitting second in the world all-around standings for the NLBRA, and competing in all three of his events at their finals this month. Laine heads in Little Britches but heels in the SPRA with Chris Sprayberry and Shannon Smith. "They come and rope with me two or three times a week, and I rope with my daddy most of the time or Hunter White. My sister, Karson, is eleven, and she's in the top twenty of Little Britches in team roping and breakaway. I rope with her at home every chance we get." Laine's mom, Angel Moore, competed in barrel racing and breakaway roping for many years, and has recently started team roping.

The Moore family makes their home near Asbury, along with their horses and the colts Laine is starting. "My head horse, Bubba, is a buckskin I use at all the SPRA rodeos. When I got him, he hardly knew anything and had a bad bucking problem, so I rode him and he turned into a really good horse. The horse I really love the most is a little bitty gray mare, Harley, and she's the best bull dogging horse I've ever been on. I bought her from a kid who placed on her at the Junior Ironman. She stands flat-footed in the box and she can really run. My calf horse is a little Paint, Gunner, and he's really sporty and a little squirrely. I trained him myself and he's got me where I am today." Laine is also starting three outside colts and one of his own. "I'm trying to make her into a calf horse for my sister so she has something to breakaway on when she's older."

Laine will be a junior this fall at Asbury High School, and he particularly enjoys welding class. "Last year we built a smoker, and we're building a trailer right now that we'll finish by the first of next year. I always told myself if I was going to get a job, it would be welding, and now I'll get my welding certification." Laine also loves hunting and fishing, and he's partial to the way his grandmother fries the catfish he and his granddaddy catch.

His number one goal is to win a world title and a saddle at the NLBRA finals, along with winning state in the steer wrestling this next season of high school rodeo. "I'm hoping to make it to the SPRA finals this year – my daddy's been and I've been to watch, so that's a big goal to make it to the SPRA finals and win something there."

Meet the Member Janet Kerr

story by Lindsay King

Around a track or a cloverleaf pattern, racing is part of everyday life for Janet Kerr from Rogers, Ohio. "My husband, Wayne, trains thoroughbred race horses and futurity barrel horses. So lots of time at the track." Janet's sister used to show pleasure horses but she thought it was more fun to see how fast her pony could go. Her childhood neighbor Tony introduced her to barrel racing when she was eight and later he introduced her to Wayne. "We only knew each other six weeks when we got married. I lost my mind and moved to Ohio with him." Janet has been in Ohio for the last 14 years with Wayne. "When I was a freshman, a random friend told me about a high school rodeo. I had never been to one before, knew nothing about it. I was lucky to have a great horse and we won that first one together. I was hooked from that point on." Janet learned how to rope and goat tie after that, moving up the ranks and making it to nationals 1991 through 1994, sometimes in five events. "I was not one of those kids that grew up and knew it all from junior rodeo, I struggled. I knew how to run barrels and poles from speed events in 4-H but I had to work my way through everything else." Her first year at state finals, Janet captured the title in barrel racing and her niece just did the same this year. "She is carrying on the family tradition and I am really proud of her for that."

Janet still craves going to rodeos more than 20 years after she started. "Back in high school, I could fall down, wipe out on the goat run and people would still encourage me that I would figure it out eventually." Most people never want to return to high school but Janet would love to go back so she could experience those years in rodeo again. "Some of the best friends that I will ever have for the rest of my life are from high school rodeo. It is a great group of people. They are there for the enjoyment of the sport." Janet pursued an animal science degree at what was once known as Southwest Missouri

State University, making the CNFR in 1996, winning reserve barrel racing in the Ozark region. "I tipped a barrel in the first round so I was out after that but it was an amazing experience." She puts her degree to use helping her husband with Kerr Racing, Wayne has trained race horses for the last 20 years. "He is definitely the trainer of the family, I help out with everything else." They are gone barrel racing at rodeos and jackpots all the time. "I got my MSRA card back in 2011 and went to the finals in 2012 and 2015." She also runs in the SEBRA, winning the finals average in 2014. "Every year you buy your card you want to go to finals but now I have different goals. I am riding a three-year-old so I am going to try my hand at the futurity thing this winter. I am trying to get out my comfort zone a little bit."

"I would love to have a chance to make a run for the IFR." With the racing business it is difficult for Janet to travel far to rodeos. She likes the MSRA because most of the rodeos are close and they add a lot of extra money. "Everybody says you have your rodeo family and you truly do. You spend all summer with them. I have my own MSRA family. They try to do their best by their contestants, the stock contractors are great and it is not just a business for them." Her main horse, Smarty, is a ten-year-old, 16-hand gelding known as the "overgrown pony" because of his sour personality. "He is real honest, he goes in and drills three barrels every time." Janet recently went to Rwanda and Tanzania, Africa, for two weeks to visit her aunt. She has plans for more international travel in the future but barrels will always be her passion. She is sponsored by Chrome Girl Accessories; she says they keep her horses stylin' by providing all her tack sets. "I am proud of the sport and I love to run. I love that every rodeo is opened with a prayer and the national anthem. When you look around the crowd, the culture and respect you see isn't found at a lot of things anymore. I just love being a part of that." 🤠

Meet the Member Eryn Cardinale

“My family has competed in rodeos for many generations, and I’ve always had rodeo horses and the opportunity to ride, so I’ve loved it from the start,” says Eryn Cardinale. “I was about two when I started barrel racing, and from there I took up roping.” The 17-year-old from Ballston Spa, New York, has qualified twice for the AFR in breakaway roping, placing third in the first-go at AFR 39. Her most recent accomplishments have been in high school rodeo, winning the NYHSRA All-Around Cowgirl title for the second consecutive year. Eryn has won numerous champion and reserve champion titles, while at least one of her horses has taken home a Horse of the Year award the last three years.

Eryn competes in the APRA in breakaway roping and barrel racing, along with goat tying, pole bending, and team roping in the NYHSRA, but breakaway is her favorite. “I’ve been the most successful in that event, and I have a really strong bond with the horse I ride. I’ve watched my aunt Emily (Arnold) Fabian make it to the IPRA finals, and I’ve always looked up to her and I want to be as great as her one day. She’s taught me that if I’m consistent and positive, good things will come. We spend a lot of hours in the practice pen, and I wouldn’t be where I am today without her. Some of the other people who have supported me are my uncle Eric Fabian; Chris and Tracy Brennen for lending me a horse; Payton Jones; Cynthia Kennedy; Sarah Arnold; my farrier, Darren Morgan; and my vet, Dr. Rodney Stewart. My mom, Jennifer, is my mental support, and I wouldn’t have the opportunity to do this without her. The people I compete and haul with and my aunt and mom have a really strong outlook, and they are very positive when I go to these rodeos. That’s how most of my success has come – my family is very supportive.”

Eryn’s rope horse, Stitch, came from Eric Fabian several years ago. “Stitch is my favorite out of all my horses. He has a pretty big attitude and he’s good at his job and pushes me to do my best. I ride Sadie and Honey, my Aunt Sarah’s barrel horse, in all my events in high school. At first Sadie was a barrel horse, and I trained her to do all the other events, so she’s pretty special to me. I’ve won almost twenty buckles on her, and she’s won Horse of the Year three times. Stitch has won Horse of the Year as well. I keep my horses at my grandmother’s (Cynthia Kennedy) farm. She also makes sure we have calves so we can practice, which I do pretty much every day. Emily and Eric come and help, and so does Payton Jones, who boards her horses there too.”

Abigail, Eryn’s eight-year-old sister, enjoys riding, but soccer is her favorite sport. “My step-dad, Andrew Werner, takes her to soccer games, and my mom always brings me to rodeos,” says Eryn. “We always make sure to get to one another’s events, and we’re very supportive of each other.” The family also enjoys taking their boat to Saratoga Lake in the summer, or having cookouts.

Eryn just finished her junior year at Ballston Spa High School, while she’s also attending cosmetology school. “Once I’m finished, I’ll have completed one thousand hours of training, and then I’ll take the state board exam and become a licensed cosmetologist. My life goal is becoming a successful business owner of my own salon, and my rodeo goals are to make it to the APRA finals in both my events this year and hopefully to win the all-around.”

International Finals Youth Rodeo

story by Lindsay Whelchel

The International Finals Youth Rodeo celebrated its 25th year this month, drawing hundreds of youth competitors from across the United States and beyond. Contestants came from as far away as Australia to compete for lucrative prize money in Shawnee, Oklahoma.

The IFYR, sanctioned by the International Professional Rodeo Association, is the soil in which many professional rodeo competitors establish their roots. Mention any high-profile name in the rodeo world over the past 25 years, and they will have likely made the trip to Shawnee in their youth to compete at the IFYR.

And this fact is celebrated by the IFYR Hall of Fame inductions that take place every couple of years. Criteria for induction is that the contestant must still be involved in rodeo but be at least 10 years removed from the IFYR competition, says Suzanne Gilbert, a longtime IFYR volunteer.

The first inductee, Mike Outhier was an IFYR champion who won the All-Around Cowboy title in 1993 through 1996 consecutively, as well as the IFYR Saddle Bronc Riding Championship in 1995 and 1996 and claimed the IFYR Bull Riding and Bareback Riding championships in 1995. He went on to compete professionally in the tie-down roping, bull riding, bareback and saddle bronc riding. He qualified for the International Finals Rodeo in multiple events winning multiple world titles, including All-Around World Championships. He also qualified to the National Finals Rodeo. Outhier was inducted in the IFYR HOF for 2007.

Perhaps the most famous in the mainstream media in terms of inductees are Oklahoma brothers, Jet and Cord McCoy. They are IFYR champions, both won multiple All-Around and saddle bronc riding champion titles, who grew up to become multi-time IPRA world champs. Cord also qualified for the NFR and PBR Finals. They were no doubt stars in the rodeo world already, but what made them Hollywood stars was their success and relatability on the popular reality television show "The Amazing Race," where they competed multiple times, giving the world an honest look at the grit and determination of cowboys. They've both also run for public office in Oklahoma since. They were inducted in 2009 alongside the late and esteemed rodeo announcer Mark McGee, called the “Voice of the IFYR,” who was heavily involved in the IPRA and with the IFYR from its inception as a narrator of the rodeo action year after year. He was inducted posthumously after he was unexpectedly killed by a drunk driver.

A well-known name in the barrel racing world, Jackie Dube Jatzlau, who competed in the IFYR taking multiple All-Around titles, as well as individual event titles in pole bending, barrel racing and breakaway roping, during her high school years. She then went on the qualify for the NFR and become a fixture in the barrel racing futurity world and was inducted into the HOF in 2011.

For the IFYR’s 20th year in 2012, two special inductions were held for Suzanne Gilbert for her time invested in making the IFYR possible each year since its inception and her commitment to community involvement in Shawnee, as well as Ken Etchieson, the IFYR founder and longtime rodeo announcer in the IPRA, where he also served as office manager in the 1970s and General Manager of the Expo Center.

Another All-Around cowboy, Justin McDaniel, a bareback rider and bull rider who qualified multiple times in both events for the International Finals Rodeo, taking the bull riding Rookie of the Year title, as well as being a PRCA World Champion, was the IFYR Bareback Champion in 2003 and 2004, and All-Around Champion in 2004. He was inducted in 2014.

And one of the many aspects that make the IPRA special is their inclusion of Cowgirl Breakaway Roping at the Pro-Rodeo level. Talented cowgirls are able to qualify for the highest levels of rodeo competition and compete for world championships at the IFR. Oklahoma cowgirl Jenna Lee Hays has seized this opportunity, becoming a multi-time IFR qualifier and an IFR Average Winner. Not surprisingly, she got her start right there in Shawnee as an IFYR champion and is the IFYR’s latest HOF inductee for 2017. Jenna says the experience competing at IFYR growing up was always something she looked forward to, and the rodeo gave her something to prepare for each year. It was valuable competing against contestants you wouldn’t normally compete against beyond your high school association, she assures. Another benefit to the experience was being put into an environment akin to a pro-rodeo setting at an early age. “I think that it was really fun to be able to compete in front of a crowd like what they had, because being in high school you really didn’t ever get an opportunity to compete in front of a large group of people, so that was always fun,” she says. On being inducted into the IFYR HOF, Jenna says the honor was a surprise. “I’m humbled and appreciative I was thought of to be inducted,” she enthuses.

Clearly, the IFYR is helping lay the foundation for rodeo’s rising stars and the preservation of the sport. 📺

Meet the Committee

Indiana State Fair

[The Indiana State Fair is the largest multi-day event in the state.]

story by Lindsay King

The beginning of August will mark the 161st celebration of the Indiana State Fair, featuring IPRA/MSRA-sanctioned rodeo produced by Three Bar J Rodeo. The theme, Wonderful World of Food! “The Indiana State Fair is the largest multi-day event in the state. The rodeo is a big part of that, being such a long-standing event,” says Bobbi Bates, Indiana State Fair events and entertainment manager. “We have contracted with different attractions over the years to provide the grandstand entertainment, where the rodeo happens.” Rodeo records for the state fair go back to at least 1997 and feature an array of events. “We held a PRCA rodeo for a number of years, the [IPRA] Hoosier Rodeo Series and the World’s Toughest Rodeo. This year we are bringing back [an IPRA sanctioned rodeo with] all seven standard [rodeo] events to the Hoosier Lottery Grandstand. We are anticipating a large number of entries, so we are also running a slack performance.” There will be two rodeo performances Aug. 15-16 at 7:30 p.m., slack will be Aug. 15 at 1 p.m. Attending the rodeo is free with admission to the fair, we estimate thousands of people will come to watch. Three Bar J Rodeo came highly recommended from rodeo contestants. “They are an Indiana-based company, we are excited to feature them in our home state. They produce about ten county fairs each summer. We thought it was great to have a tie to our county fairs and then bring them to the state fair,” Bobbi added.

Once a rough stock rider, Mike Johnson started Three Bar J Rodeo in 1996, producing 16 IPRA and MSRA rodeos all across the state. “I lease my arena out a lot and we work some of those. With the leases and rodeos on the road we do about 35 rodeos a year,” says Mike. He runs it with his wife Marcia, son-in-law Joe Hanes and daughter Mary Hanes. “All the guys that work for me do a great job. Without them and my family, this would not work. They are really dedicated to all the rodeos.” Mike will bring clown Mike Wentworth and announcer Matt

McGee. “They work very well together. Every move they make they know what the other is about to do.” Mike prefers his announcers to be on horseback in the arena, it adds to the interaction with the clown and helps everyone stay on top of last minute changes. “Our clown, Mike, is outstanding, he has a lot of really good acts. He has a little car act, he rolls it over, things like that. He has a muscle man act, he does something different every rodeo we go to.” Kids will have the opportunity to participate in a boot race or a stick horse race at the event. “The chicken scramble is always really good too.” Local contestants who do not hold IPRA or MSRA cards will have the opportunity to compete as well. “We should have a lot of contestants. We have really good added money and I have another rodeo Saturday of that week just south of Indianapolis. I think we will have a lot of good contestants come up from that.” At each rodeo, Mike announces their upcoming events. “Word of mouth is probably the best type of advertisement.” Mike also runs Williamsburg Stockyards, buying a lot of old milk cows from the surrounding farms. “I’ve been with the IPRA for a long time and they send you good contestants and good people in the office to work with. Every rodeo we do we try to do it to the best of our ability to make it a good show. We do everything we can to make the contestants want to come back to our rodeos. And make sure the committee is happy with what we bring to them.”
