PLAYING NICE WITH BRIARS

article by Mark Eaton

The briars in the pasture have finally pushed me to the limit. They cover valuable grass area and if given free run, will take over the precious pasture.

The last couple of years I have played nice. This year it's war.

Last week, morning and evening, I loaded up the sprayer with a blend of Napalm, Rat Poison, Jet Fuel, Things-I-Can't-Pronounce and a Flame-Thrower tip. No more Mr. Nice Guy! Our little ranch rig was laden heavy with my war blend. I was fully covered, respiration and as serious as a Momma cow standing between her new calf and a coyote. Let the battle begin!

Everything the spray touched will be affected. Including the grass. Today, the briars are turning a delicious shade of brown. It's too early to declare victory for the humans, but they are defiantly set back quite a bit. Some brush-hogging and I'll hit them again.

Briars are stubborn. The roots wander randomly and deeply. At the risk of sounding like a predictable writer, I will make an obvious and predictable comparison.

Most of us have 'briars' in our 'pasture'. They steal nutrients and moisture from the 'grass'. They prevent us from being as productive and peaceful as we would like to be. Further, most of us tend to "play nice" with our "briars". We hope they will see us coming and just give up. Roll over. Burn themselves.

Yet, as in the case of a good friend of mine, we tend to not see our own issues. They are tenacious and sinister. They fight like the third monkey boarding Noah's Ark. They do not go away without a focused serious attention directly at them.

For years my friend has struggled with self-sabotage. He over does everything he touches and eventually crashes. Food, hobbies, relationships are all over-done. He then gets disgusted with himself and goes on whatever recovery scheme is popular. He begins to see results. No impulse purchases. No rage explosions at employees. No late night eating an entire peach pie. He drops a few pounds, his employees aren't scared of him and so begin to tell him the truth of how his company is doing, and the credit cards get nearly paid off.

He begins to believe he has it handled. He convinces himself he is in control of his urges. He found a little contentment with his hobbies and toys and now believes he can indulge a little. It's just a saddle, trailer, horse. Next it's a ski boat and a tractor.

My readers will understand what happens next. His arrogance is in thinking he has the "briars" controlled. When he doesn't. The pattern repeats for decades.

You may not relate to this illustration, but with a little courage, you and I can see there are issues in our lives that we have attempted to deal with casually. We tend to play softball with ourselves and hardball with others. Our hope is that our issues really don't have deep roots that wander throughout our heart, mind and soul. We fantasize that we can just hope them away or that they will remove themselves if we threaten them.

Most adults know this is not the case. Observe a gossip try to give up gossiping. Observe a person with control issues try to give up their futile attempts to control everybody in their world. Watch the friend with years of deep self-image issues quoting positive thinking mantras. Watch the person who over-thinks or under-thinks everything, the person who cannot make a decision, the person who thinks they are the smartest in the room, the one who needs to have the last word, the one who is afraid of anything new, or has to be cute, fashionable, creative, successful to gain affirmation. There are those who are never satiated regardless of how satisfying the moment is. These issues run deep in our hearts and minds with vast and wandering roots. They are tenacious in how they have convinced us to believe that we need them to make life work.

The only fool is the one who thinks they have no "briars". We all do. To rid ourselves of them we need to take an honest look at our own pastures. Playing nice with them will only cause them to surface later in another form.

Get a trusted friend or a professional and go after the "briars" with you. You will be fine and the grass will grow where the briars once stood. It may take a few years and lots of hard personal work.

The grass will grow again. Proverbs 20:5

HARRY TOMPKINS

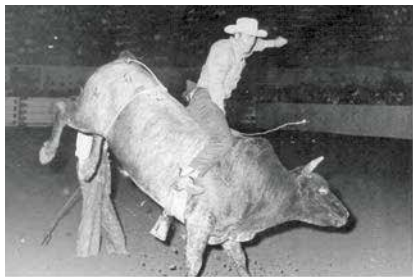

Oct. 5, 1927 – June 29, 2018

[Remembering Those We Lost]

courtesy of the PRCA

The rodeo world lost a legend June 29. ProRodeo Hall of Famer Harry Tompkins, an eight-time world champion - including five bull riding titles (1948-50, '52, '60), one bareback riding win (1952) and two all-around crowns - (1952, '60), passed away in Stephenville, Texas. He was 90.

"He was a fun-loving, generous man," said Martha Jordan, Tompkins' daughter. Tompkins, a quiet kid from Peekskill Mountains of upstate N.Y., who never saw a bull until the day he climbed on, became one of the best cowboys in the long and storied history of rodeo.

Known for his sense of humor - he was photographed waving to a cameraman while riding a bull in 1949 - Tompkins was a popular champion with fans and his fellow competitors. A superb athlete and stylish rider, the 5-foot-8, 150-pound Tompkins possessed exceptional balance and coordination.

He took pride in living a clean-cut lifestyle - no cigarettes or alcohol, and no gambling. He traveled hard by car and airplane with friends and fellow champions Jim Shoulders, Casey Tibbs and Jack Buschbom, the first group to hit the road with the intensity and dedication characterized by modern-day cowboys.

"Really, I was always doing it for the fun, and it was fun for years and years,"

Tompkins said in a Sept. 19, 1984, article in the ProRodeo Sports News. "I wouldn't trade it for anything."

Born in 1927, less than 50 miles north of New York City in Furnace Woods, N.Y., Tompkins learned to ride horses while working on a dude ranch, which had rodeos on Sundays to entertain guests.

In 1946, at 19 years old, Tompkins prepared to pull his first bull rope alongside the pros at Madison Square Garden. It took place at a special rodeo promotion where area wranglers - sponsored by the

dude ranches which regularly employed them - had a chance to try their luck. Tompkins worked at the Cimarron Dude Ranch in New York.

By 1948, he was atop the rodeo world, winning the first of three consecutive bull riding championships.

He married Rosemary, the daughter of famous stock contractor Everett Colborn, in 1950, and moved to Dublin, Texas. He had a cattle ranch and designed the portable steel chutes that were used at rodeos in New York and Boston. Wrangler made him one of the first cowboys to have a corporate sponsor. After Rosemary died of cancer, Tompkins married current wife, Melba. He was inducted into the ProRodeo Hall of Fame with the inaugural 1979 class.

"I hope that I am not only remembered for my major accomplishments in rodeo, but also for my reputation of being honest, fair and respected for what I did," Tompkins said in an Aug. 11, 1999, article of the PSN.

Tompkins is survived by wife, Melba, and her family; sons, Mark (Laura) Tompkins; Neal; daughter, Martha (Larry) Jordan and grandchildren, Jake and Ava. 🐾

story by Lily Weinacht

Rowdy and Justin Norwood at the Texas High School Finals - JenningsRodeoPhotography.com

[Qualified for the National Little Britches Finals in four events as well as made the Top Hand Team in each; team roping, steer wrestling, ribbon roping and tie down roping]

Rowdy Norwood of Amarillo, Texas, makes his debut at the 2018 NLBFR in July leading the senior boy rookie standings with 3,207 points separating him from second place. Rowdy, 16, originally joined the association with the goal of qualifying for the 2019 Jr. Ironman. He put his nose to the grindstone, and when he looked up, not only had he qualified for the NLBFR in all of his events—team roping, steer wrestling, ribbon roping, and tie-down roping—but he also made the Top Hand Team in each event.

Rodeo has been Rowdy's sport of choice since childhood, though he also played basketball for several years and showed pigs in FFA in sixth and seventh grade. When it came time to choose between sports, he and his older brother, Justin (18), chose rodeo without hesitation, competing in junior rodeos and ranch rodeos before moving up to high school and Little Britches. "In Little Britches, you get to meet a lot of new people from areas you've never been before, and it's really one of the only other national associations besides high school. We tried to start a franchise a few times when we moved here, but we couldn't find anyone to host the rodeos. Kyle Northrup started the Texas Panhandle Little Britches and we got involved with it here," says Rowdy, whose name was inspired by a roping his dad went to. "My dad always wanted to have a little girl, and he was convinced when my mom was pregnant that I was going to be his little girl. All he could think of was names for girls. MB Anderson, our neighbor, was announcing a roping my dad entered, and he couldn't read my dad's handwriting and announced his name as Rowdy, so now I'm Rowdy."

The Norwood's moved to Texas from Olney Springs, Colorado, where they ran a small cattle ranch until the drought took hold. In 2007, Rowdy's dad took a job in Texas, and the environment they moved to has played a central role in Rowdy and Justin's rodeo careers. With a rodeo or roping held within a ten-mile radius of their house year round, Rowdy and Justin never lack for opportunities to compete, while they can get to a rodeo in New Mexico, Colorado, Oklahoma, or Kansas within four hours. The brothers team rope together, Rowdy heading and Justin heeling, while Justin hazes for Rowdy in the steer wrestling. Rowdy won the NRS Little Britches Rodeo Association all-around, steer wrestling, tie-down roping, and ribbon roping year-end titles in June. He racked up the majority of his rookie of the year points at the NRS LBRA franchise, competing in 24 of the 32 rodeos held in Decatur, Texas, at the NRS Events Center. His ribbon roping partner, Sophia Joyner, is also in contention for the NLBRA Senior Girl Rookie of the Year title.

Equally crucial to Rowdy and Justin's rodeo success are their parents, Randy and Bobbi Norwood. Randy is often working out of town as a welding pipeline inspector but comes to as many of their rodeos as possible, including state finals and the NLBFR, and watched videos of their runs to give them pointers. Bobbi teaches high school chemistry and physics, and hauls Rowdy and Justin to all of their Little Britches and high school rodeos. "We get a list written and everybody takes some responsibility getting ready to go, and I do the final walk through to make sure everything on the list is done," says Bobbi, who also helps with timing or secretary work at the rodeos when needed. "Every horse I've ever tried to rope on has wound up being one of the boys' horses, and I'm protesting now saying they have to make a horse for me. They help out with the driving, and they haul by themselves occasionally." Bobbi competed in the NLBRA in the 1970s, including team roping with her sister. "The competition in Colorado was always pretty stiff with Little Britches headquartered there, and since the finals has moved to Guthrie, I feel the sheer number of contestants has increased immensely, which makes the competition increase. It's an awesome association, and you're not hauling all over the country with your kids to get them qualified."

The brothers also compete in Region 1 THSRA, and Rowdy qualified for state finals in the team roping with Justin, and steer wrestling, which he finished 13th in at state finals. He advanced to state finals last season in the steer wrestling as well, his first year competing in his favorite event since he advanced from chute dogging. “I just like how high speed it is,” says Rowdy, who was the High Plains Junior Rodeo Association Year-End Reserve Chute Dogging Champion in 2015. “Chase Pope, a local guy, did high school rodeos when he was younger, and he started teaching me chute dogging. I did Jace Honey’s bulldogging clinic and a few of Rope Myers’ clinics. I’m pretty much the first in my family to bulldog, and my cousin Dakota Camfield started it this year as well in Little Britches. “The roan horse I bulldog on, he’s our old team roping horse, and everyone in my family has won money on him. Ace has taken me pretty far in bulldogging,” says Rowdy. “My calf horse, Joker, I just got this year, and we’re just starting to get together now. Smoke is my team roping and ribbon roping horse. He was a calf roping horse first, and I stepped him up and he’s a really good team roping horse.” Rowdy and Justin practice and ride daily, either at their home arena, which Rowdy and Randy built together several years ago, or another local arena. Bobbi runs chutes and videos for them, and helps with tacking up and exercising horses. “When we travel, we talk about how the week’s been and watch our videos—video is one of the most amazing practice tools we have nowadays,” says Rowdy, who scarcely ever gets into the truck without his blue heeler, Dale, at his side.

Time on the road also gives Rowdy a chance to work on school. Last year when he was a junior, he switched to homeschooling, and plans to continue it through his senior year. “Rowdy gets the chance to work horses in the daytime in the winter, and he got a colt and has been able to ride it some,” says Bobbi. “He had to urge us toward homeschooling, and it’s the same deal,—we make a list of things to get done while homeschooling, and he brands and does some welding for a construction guy here. It’s a taste of the adult life and what it takes. Most kids that rodeo have to be disciplined to practice. We had a 15-minute rule—if you had a bad run, you had 15 minutes to be aggravated, and then go on to your next event. With the events in Little Britches back to back, we had to change that to a 15-second rule, and that really helped Rowdy. We’re just disappointed we didn’t join Little Britches sooner so Justin could have hauled more. He’s going to Dodge City Community College this fall and team roping for the Conquistadors.”

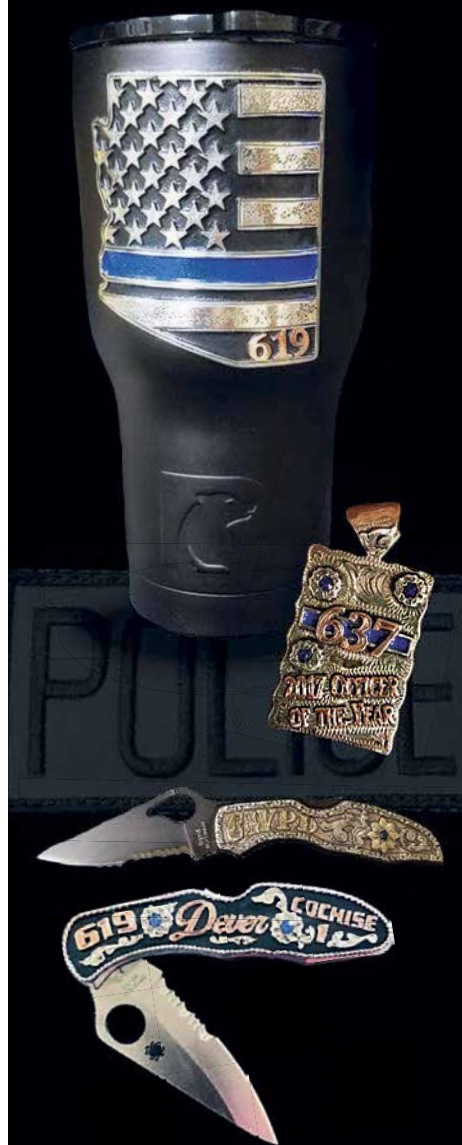

Rowdy also enjoys welding with his dad and kicking back at the family’s swimming pool, but it’s more likely he’s in the arena riding. His hard work won him a large check from the Double G Memorial Timed Event Rodeo in Canadian, Texas, last year, where he won the all-around, team roping, chute dogging, and tie-down roping. If Rowdy could enter any rodeo in the country, he’d choose Cheyenne Frontier Days, and hopes to back into the box of The Daddy of ‘Em All once he starts rodeoing professionally. “I’d like to make a career out of rodeo, and I’d love to rodeo through college and the rest of my life if I can.”

The City of Gallup and producer Walt Eddy went above and beyond for the 2018 event. They upped the ante by adding $3,000 added money to each standard event and included the addition of steer wrestling. The event champions came from a total of eight different states, proving the event lives up to the name, drawing in the best competitors in the nation to the event.

Paige Jones, a sophomore from Wayne, Oklahoma, was the barrel racing champion on her extremely talented four-year-old, High Cotton Lane, winning both long rounds and the average, pocketing over $5,200 in one event!

"The Best of the Best is one of the most prestigious events to compete in as a high school student. Winning it and receiving the payout that it offered is a very rewarding accomplishment!"

Wyatt Bray of Stephenville, TX was the team roping champion with his partner, Zant Lewis of Snyder, TX. This is Wyatt and Zant's second year to compete at the event, and between the rodeo and the nightly jackpots they took home more than $7,000 each. The Best of the Best is one of Wyatt's favorite events all year.

"My Gallup experience was nothing short of outstanding. The weather was great, the rodeo was awesome, and the payout was exceeded expectations. No words can express the gratitude I have for Walt Eddy and the City of Gallup for producing this event. I'm deeply honored by the title I have won and I'm ready to try for it again next year!"

A unique element to the event every year is the parent team roping and ribbon roping. These events are always a hit, getting everyone up on their feet in the stands to cheer on their favorite team! Ribbon roping champions this year were mother/son duo Colton and Erin Oliver from Utah and the team roping champions were father/son team Jaylen and Marlow Eldridge of Idaho. Each winner was awarded a CSI saddle pad as well and the ribbon ropers took home a Charlie calf dummy and sled, and the team roping champions took home a Hot Heels SureFire dummy.

Martin Saddlery trophy saddles were award to each standard event champion as well as American Hat and Cinch Jeans certificates. The All-Around Champions, Kenna Hayes McNeil of New Mexico and Kash Cattoor of Utah, were awarded new iPads and hand tooled leather cases courtesy of Red Rock Security. New to this year's event was Red Bluff Buckles to each winner, each round, courtesy of Lansing Construction. Additionally, Classic Equine awarded Classic Fit leg boots to each round winner as well.

From the parent events, to the jackpots, wooly riding, junior looper roping, and junior incentive side pot, there is something for everyone in the family in Gallup at the Best of the Best. This year's event paid out over $130,000 and only looks to keep improving. The hospitality and scenery are second to none at this event, with the vision to do everything possible to make rodeo better for the next generation. Back When They Bucked with

story by Gail Woerner

Joleen Hurst Steiner is a petite ‘tells it like she see’s it’ cowgirl who was born in Woodward, Oklahoma in 1952. She grew up in Fort Supply, Oklahoma, which she said was “in the middle of nowhere”. She had two sisters and a brother. Joleen was the third child. Her biggest desire as a youngster was to have a horse. Her sister felt the same way. Joleen remembered getting a pony when she was nine. Then her folks bought her and her sister full-sized horses. The girls both trained their own horses.

At first Joleen competed in Little Britches rodeos and Junior Rodeos. She entered the pole bending, breakaway calf roping, goat tying, and barrel racing events. She broke a breakaway calf roping record at the age of 13 at the Little Britches Finals Rodeo in Littleton, Colorado.

Joleen admits her horse was a good horse for barrel racing, but not National Finals quality. When her sister married she gave her horse, Hot Shot, to Joleen. In 1970, she joined the Girl’s Rodeo Association (GRA) and with her mother at her side she made all the Oklahoma rodeos, and ventured even farther to Colorado, Kansas, all the Texas rodeos, New Mexico, Arizona and even the West Coast. She loved the California rodeos because the weather was always so good.

Joleen admits when asked ‘what was the hardest part of barrel racing’ she thought nothing was hard. She was young, life was good and she had a good horse. She would read the GRA News to decide which rodeos to go to. She picked the rodeos that added the most money and that is the direction she and her mother headed.

When asked how much she practiced her answer was, “Never!” She laughingly admitted, “I just hung on to Hot Shot, and we were in the money a good deal of the time.” We know she worked harder at it than she admits, but she truly enjoyed every minute of it. She felt the rules in barrel racing were fair for everyone when she was competing.

As we discussed, the changes that have occurred since her era she immediately mentioned “No one complained about the ground in my era. Whether it was sandy, too hard, or whatever, we just dealt with it.” Joleen also said there are a lot more quality horses bred to barrel race today than she saw in her days in the arena.

Concerning the barrel racing horses, she feels that often trainers expect the horses they train to turn a barrel a certain way. “I feel they should allow the horses to decide how they choose to make the turn. The horse knows best what fits them.” She also said you can tell which horses love it as much as their rider – it shows.

In 1970, Joleen was having a good year and her dad told her if she won the barrel racing at the Cow Palace he would buy her a trailer with living quarters. That win qualified her for the National Finals Rodeo, in Oklahoma City, as one of the top fifteen barrel racers in the world. There were nine rounds of barrel racing and she won three second places and two first places. "If I didn't knock over a barrel I placed," she admitted and laughed. That first year she finished 7th for the year.

"When I hit the road in 1971, I was in heaven. My mom cooked wonderful meals, and we stayed on the rodeo grounds in my new gooseneck trailer. It wasn't as common to stay on the rodeo grounds as it is today, but it was much easier, Hot Shot was with us, and it was fun."

The following year, 1971, she qualified for the National Finals Rodeo again, finishing in third place in the world, and third in the Average. There were ten rounds of barrel racing and Joleen had three second places, and three third place wins, but this year something happened that changed her life forever. She met Bobby Steiner, a bull rider.

Her mother didn't think much of bull riders. Mrs. Hurst was much more interested in Joleen finding a nice calf roper to marry. "Mom thought bull riders were lazy. All they had to do is bring their bull riding equipment in a bag to a rodeo. Mrs. Hurst felt a roper that had the responsibility of hauling his horse and keeping him sound would make a better husband for her." Joleen was determined. She saw something in Bobby she hadn't found before. He was very confident. They had their first date at Belton, Texas on the 4th of July. He picked her up in his big Oldsmobile 98 and she was impressed. She asked him if it was his dad's car. She thought the car was way too fancy for a bull rider. After all, she was driving a little Ford pickup. Bobby informed her it was his car. Their first date was a drive-in movie in Temple where they saw "Bandolero" and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid".

After that they ran into each other at various rodeos and continued to date. The following year after the Houston rodeo Bobby asked Joleen to marry him. They married in June, 1972. Their family eventually expanded to three with the birth of Shane. Sid was born fourteen months later. Joleen had her hands full with two little boys, and a husband, so the barrel racing stopped.

The following year Joleen began to help Bobby with his bull riding career. She entered him in all the rodeos and helped him plan to get to all of them. She said, "You might call me Bobby's navigator. I made sure his entry fees and turn out fines were paid and took care of the business end of the sport." (This was all before PRO-COM). She traveled with him until the doctor told her, when she was 7 months pregnant, that she needed to stay at home. Bobby won the World Championship in Bull Riding in 1973, and was 2nd in the Average. He retired from bull riding shortly after that.

Bobby began helping his dad, Tommy, with the Steiner Rodeo Company at that time. The legacy of Steiner Rodeo Company began with Buck Steiner, Tommy's dad running it with Tommy. Then Tommy and Bobby ran it together. Joleen carried the American flag and helped in many other ways. She helped Mildred Farris, the secretary for Steiner Rodeo Company, last they had it as their third event in each performance.

Son Sid became a steer wrestler and went to the National Finals in 2000. In 2001, he was absent from those top fifteen in steer wrestling. But in 2002 he came back with a vengeance and won the Steer Wrestling Championship and the Average. He followed in his dad's foot-keep time. "When we had rodeos overlap, liked Belton and Pecos, I would secretary the smaller one," explained Joleen. When they sold the rodeo company in 1982, Bobby and Joleen spent their time raising their sons and ranching.

The Steiner family has always been tremendously benevolent to many groups and totally supportive of rodeo and the rodeo family. Some of the innovative things started in rodeo was done by Steiner Rodeo Company, including the electric eye for timing the barrel races, and instead of having the barrel racing event next to steps and retired from steer wrestling shortly after winning the World title. This family is totally family-first and admit they don't like being away from home. Son, Shane, is a musician and although he has played in numerous venues he enjoys his life performing at Steiner Ranch Steakhouse down the road from his home. Now the grandchildren are making their marks in bareback riding, barrel racing and wake-boarding sports.

When doing this interview with Joleen, Bobby stuck his head in, and made this statement, "I may not have been the best bull rider, but I sure got the best looking barrel racer!"

By the way, Joleen's mom became a major fan of Professional Bullriders and knew all the cowboys competing as well as the bulls. I guess she decided bull riders weren't so bad, after all. 🐾

GOD, A GIRL AND HER VILLAGE

Thomas's Road to Recovery]*

story by Beth Ann Thomas

Jacee Beth Thomas had spent the morning of May 24, 2016 working in the hay field with her daddy. After a quick stop home, she was headed to town to get some lunch. Crossing the railroad tracks just yards from her home was a part of her daily life in rural Hoboken, Ga. It was not uncommon for her to cross these tracks numerous times a day. However, this time would change the course of life for not only her, but her entire family.

Still a mystery today as to what and how it happened, she and her Honda Accord and a CSX Train collided, neither seeing the other. It wasn't until through the crossing that the conductor and engineer realized something was wrong and looked out the window to see that they had struck a car, pushing her over 1700 ft down the track before coming to rest. She was transported from the scene to just down the road to the Schlatterville Community Ball Field where relatives and close friends were already gathered around in prayer and support. Her mom and dad made it to her just before she was loaded on life flight and flown to UF Shands in Jacksonville, Fl. Unconscious, but alive, they were able to touch her and tell her, as

She not only made it to watch him, but watched he and Junior tie the arena record in the 9th round. the gurney kept steadily rolling toward the helicopter, that they were there, they loved her, and to be strong and hang on!!

Hang on, be strong, push hard, dig deep, keep going, and many other phrases suggesting strength and perseverance are common in the Thomas household. Jacee comes from a hard working family that also has some deep roots in the rodeo world. Not only her immediate family were/are competitors in the sport, but many relatives as well. Her dad, John Thomas, divides his time these days run-and resume her life. Little did the family realize what a traumatic brain injury really meant, especially one of the most severe with 90% never regaining consciousness. The family was told from the beginning that she may never wake up, or breathe on her own again, and that if she did, the recovery would be a marathon, not a sprint. As time went on, mom and dad realized that she wasn't going to just wake up, do a few weeks of therapy, and make the summer run of the Roy Cooper Roping, the IFYR, and the High School been, and continue to be there for the Thomas family and many other families experiencing similar tragedies.

The journey has been long and is far from over. Jacee spent six weeks in Jacksonville in the trauma unit developing a severe right lung issue. She was flown to Shepherd Center in Atlanta where she spent eight months. Then, determined to NOT take her back to their rural home where medical and rehab options are extremely limited and take a chance on losing her to medical complications, ning a hay business and helping care for Jacee. Mom, Beth Ann, an educator, retired early to focus on the care and therapy of her daughter. Brother, Colt Hartt, holds an IPRA card and enjoys entertaining rodeo spectators. Jacee has grown up in the arena watching not only her mom, dad, and brother, but many talented relatives and friends as well as being able to grow up watching and learning from some of the top calf ropers, barrel racers, and barrel horse trainers in the industry. The family contributes her strength, determination, and fight to recover to God first, and her everyday life and experiences.

Jacee sustained a broken left clavicle, a small cut in her hair line requiring three stitches, and the whopper...a diffused axonal brain injury with brain shearing. To look at her it seemed she was just sleeping, and would soon start coming around

National Finals. Scared, confused, and just lost about what the next step needed to be, or even needing a next step, friend Reggie Jones of Triumph Over Tragedy Foundation made contact with the family and got the ball rolling to get Jacee to a facility that could help her medically and therapeutically. He and his family have mom, dad, and Jacee moved to Conroe, TX for more medical and therapy help. John would come home every few weeks to check on his business and take their granddaughter, Tegan, to her Junior Rodeos, but after fifteen months Jacee and Beth Ann finally made it home. However, there was no way mom and dad were going to quit pushing Jacee's brain and body to recover, so more traveling and more facilities is what they did. In their journey God has also lead them to TIRR Memorial Hermann in The Woodlands, TX, CNS in Ft. Worth, Cerebrum Health Centers in Dallas, Brooks Rehab in Jacksonville, and NeuroLife in Marietta, Georgia, and so many dedicated medical and therapy staff along the way. A percentage of Jacee's medical and therapy has been covered by insurance, but much has been private pay and the family has been able to continue with her therapy because of the support they have received since the beginning of this journey.

“The journey has been nothing short of beautiful even in the midst of the tragedy” said Beth Ann. “No doubt God has been with us the entire time, guiding us, placing the most loving, caring, dedicated people in our path, and blessing us daily even when we didn’t realize it”. The Thomas family continues to be overwhelmed at the love of God, family, friends, some of which they have never met, and there loyal and loving community. The “Village” is huge, global in fact. They receive support and prayers from places all over the world..... England, Australia, South Africa, and Brazil just to name a few. “Life as we knew it stopped instantly and our family and friends just swooped in and took over,” stated John. “I’ve got good employees and great family and friends that worked the farm and hay fields while we were away. If it weren’t for them, I couldn’t have stayed with Beth Ann and Jacee, and honestly, it took us both, and many more to care for her and keep her safe for a long time.” Family and friends stepped in and took care of Tegan, as well as horses, cattle, and dogs. None expecting it to be such a long journey, but never faltering to do whatever it took to help,

How is Jacee doing now? Well, two years ago she was on many heavy medications, had a trachea tube helping her breathe, feeding tube, baclofen pump, not communicating in any way, couldn’t stand up, sit up, or even hold her head up, constantly throwing up, couldn’t swallow, and having severe brain storming. Today she is on NO medications, just vitamins and supplements, eating and drinking anything and everything she wants, talking non stop, sitting up for hours, standing and walking with assistance, and the trachea tube, feeding tube, and baclofen pump are history. She has made HUGE progress, but she wants and prays for much more. Her goals... complete the three classes she needs to graduate, to walk independently, to drive, and to run barrels and rope competitively again. At the time of her accident, Jacee was in the top 10 in the IPRA Breakaway and Barrel Racing standings. She, her family, and village pray for the day that she will be back on the rodeo trail doing what she loves, and can use that to share her personal testimony. 🙏

Meet the Member McKylee Brown

story by Lily Weinacht

It's McKylee Brown's rookie season in both the NLBRA and the sport of rodeo, and the 13-year-old from Gunnison, Utah, is leading the junior girl rookie standings by more than 800 points. "I never thought I'd get this far, and now that I have, I couldn't have done it without my horses or my mom and step-dad," says McKylee, who started riding three years ago. She's qualified for the NLBFR in all of her events—barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying, and trail course—and is excited for her first trip to Oklahoma. She and her parents, Bobbie and Kirk Dahl, have also traveled beyond their local NLBRA Blackhawk Winter Series Rodeo to the Wild West Little Britches Rodeo Association in Pahrump, Nevada, and even into Colorado. They learned about the association from their neighbors, Paul and Tiffany Peterson, who are also helping McKylee with breakaway roping.

"McKylee has a pretty solid connection with both the horses she rides, and we honestly spend every spare moment we have practicing, either at home or taking the horses to the hills for trail rides," says Bobbie, McKylee's mom. "Her step-dad built a full trail course in her home riding arena and she loves that. Sometimes we can't get her to come into the house—she's constantly out there with the horses." McKylee rides Hollywoods Golden Girl "GG", a 9-year-old palomino paint mare, in barrel racing and pole bending, and Fergie Firewater "Fergie" in goat tying and trail course. "Fergie is 8 and she's a buckskin, and I'm starting her on breakaway. She does barrels too," says McKylee. She also travels to rodeos with her Miniature American Eskimo dog, Bella.

Along with Little Britches, McKylee competes in 4-H rodeos, doing barrel racing, pole bending, and flag racing, along with western pleasure, showmanship, and reining. This summer she's on the Revolution Flag Team for the first time, carrying the American flag while performing a drill at rodeos. Drill practice is once a week, and McKylee rides her horses every day and practices her rodeo events three times a week. "I just love it, and I don't really ever want to quit. I set goals for each rodeo, so I'm excited to see what I can reach. My horse hasn't been turning the top pole as tight as I want, so I'm working on turning the top pole tight and getting about a 27 in trail course."

McKylee is equally at home in her dance shoes as her cowboy boots, and takes jazz dance lessons, doing solo dances, team dances, and competitions around the state. She also does tumbling, a form of gymnastics. "She's a pretty dedicated kid,

and she loves her animals," says Bobbie. "She gets up and feeds in the morning and stays up late at night to scoop pens, and she tries really hard to be the best at everything she does."

While McKylee loves summer break, she also enjoys school and will start eighth grade this fall at North Sevier Middle School. Her art class is a favorite, particularly drawing. She plans to spend the bulk of her summer rodeoing, however, and never leaves without a special feather in her hat. "It's one of the things that reminds me to stay calm and do my best. I found it at my first rodeo. I really want to accomplish going to Nationals, and I want to do my best and not be down if I don't. I want to think of it like another run in my home arena." 🐾

As the 2017-2018 NLBRA youth board President I've experienced more than the average person experiences in two years. When I chose to run for the youth board in 2017 I had no idea what to expect. My rodeo career started when I was 5 and I had been to the Little Britches Finals 3 years. My events had me competing at both ends of the arena, I thought I knew a lot about a rodeo. Being on the board, I've learned so much about the planning, organization, rules and what it really takes to run and association this big. I have been to Oklahoma for meetings and to watch the Timed Events Championship which the NLBRA picks five of the top athletes in the all around standings to represent. We had our winter board meeting during the NFR and our team went to the Thomas and Mack to sell raffle tickets for the NLBRA scholarship fund. I saw a lot of people I knew and met many as well. I have enjoyed being apart of such a big association. Along the journey I have learned responsibility and also how to set up conference calls. Being apart of the board has made me into a better contestant and a better person as a whole. I am so thankful to have had this opportunity and be an alumni of the National Little Britches Rodeo Association.

Jake Joekel

Hi Everyone, my name is Kash Cattoor and I am from Hurricane, Utah. I just finished my junior year of high school at Hurricane High and I am ready to kick off the summer! I have been a rodeo athlete for 13 years of my life and enjoyed it to the fullest. I am blessed with 3 sisters that love me dearly and parents that have worked very hard to help me achieve my goals. Throughout the years of my small rodeo career there have been many fun memories. The bonuses have been the saddles, buckles, and titles that I have won. The memories that I have made are what has really mattered to me because I will take them all with me throughout my life and continue to add more as I go forward on my journey. Meeting new people all over the country has shown me just how small the world really is because there are really great people in all walks of life! Rodeo is a great sport that keeps us very busy day in and day out but no matter what goes on, never forget what matters most, being true to God, yourself, and your family.

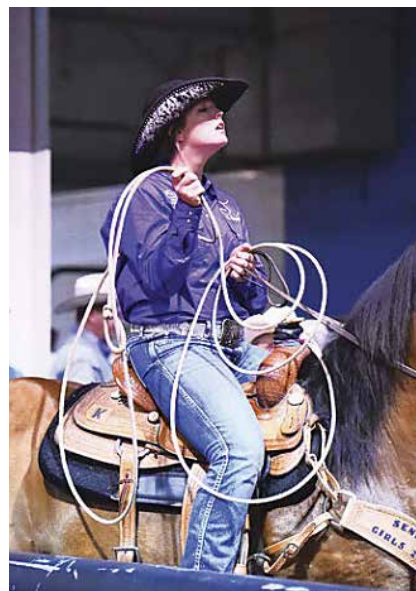

Kash Cattoor - JenningsRodeoPhotography.com

Everyday make a difference for the better. Always be willing to give a hand to help another. Kindness is a good choice that you can never go wrong with! Being on the NLBRA Youth Board this past two years has been an experience that has taught me to have courage to stand up for the things that are important. It has been a growing experience that I am proud of. I wish everyone safe travels this summer and best of success in achieving your dreams. Have a fun summer!! God Bless

Kash Cattoor

I started rodeoing with Little Britches about 4 years ago. Although I have been riding horses all my life, starting out with cutting horses and moving into barrel racing, I truly found my passion when I started rodeoing. My family choose NLBRA because of the "rodeo family" that comes along with this organization, and it has truly given us the most amazing friends/family. Due to the amazing experience that I have had with NLBRA, I decided to run for youth board at the 2017 NLBFR. This past year has been everything I could imagine and more. From traveling to Colorado and Las Vegas to designing all-around saddles and the events for nationals, this year has been a blast. Through the last couple months I have learned things that I never would have imagined. From helping create a website to learning all about the business side of the rodeo industry that most of the time, we don't see. Not only has this experience given me the chance to hopefully make a difference in the rodeo but this has helped me grow into the person I always wanted to be. As this year is coming to a close I want to say thank you to not only the people who have influenced me throughout everyday life but to all the NLBRA members because if it wasn't for you none of this would have been possible.

NEW NLBRA Members

The 67th season for the National Little Britches begins on July 16, 2018, making it one of the oldest youth rodeo associations in the United States. With the beginning of the new year we would like to reflect back, tell you a little about the NLBRA and encourage all to become a member of the association that prides its self on making legends.

The NLBRA is considered the standard of junior rodeo in the United States. This year, we are anticipating nearly 3000 kids from 33 states to compete in over 500 Little Britches rodeos. There are over 40 franchises across the nation that host the rodeos that ultimately provide an opportunity to qualify for the National Finals. The age date begins the day after the finals which for the 2018/2019 season is July 16, 2018. Athletes ages 5-19 compete in 33 events that vary by age group and gender. The level of competition at NLBRA events is second to none.

Many collegiate rodeo athletes and a large number of rodeo professionals began or furthered their careers at the NLBRA events. One of the most favorite claims to fame the NLBRA owns is the family atmosphere. Multiple generations have competed in and remain involved in this organization. The competitors have an opportunity to win buckles, saddles, gift certificates, and most importantly college scholarships. These oppor-

One year ago I never would have imagined the impact that the NLBRA would have on my life. The friends I would make, the opportunities I would be given, the horses I would ride, the memories I would create, or the lives I would touch were just a dream. I am thankful for every single person who had an impact in helping me leave mine on the NLBRA.

The greatest lesson I learned this year was this: The more you bless others without seeking recognition, the more you teach others to leave their legacy, and the more you push others to reach their full potential, is when you will receive the most joy!

Thank You Mama, Daddy, Ginger, Dusty, Papa Mark and Miss Carrie for encouraging me to reach my potential this year and Thank You Jesus, for giving me one more day to witness for You and live the life I love.

One year. To some, that may seem like a long time. But in all actuality it's over in the blink of an eye. One year of memories to be made, dreams to come true, and new friendships that will last a lifetime.

To some, this was just another year, but to me this was a year of growth, memories, and LOTS of hairspray! As I reflect back on my year as your National Little Britches Rodeo Association Princess I can't help but smile. One year ago, this dream became a reality for me when this beautiful Montana Silversmith crown was placed on top of my hat. Now, here we are one year later as my year has come to an end, I just want to thank God for choosing me for this amazing adventure.

To my Mom and Clint, thank you for always believing in me and loving me. Dusty, Ginger and the rest of the National Little Britches Rodeo Association, thank you for everything you have done to help make this year the best. To all of my friends, new and old, this isn't the end, it's only the beginning! To the new National Little Britches Rodeo Association Princess always remember to dream big and live every moment to the fullest! May god bless and keep you all, see you down the rodeo road.

Thank you so much for the opportunity to represent you as your National Little Britches Little Wrangler Princess. This has been the best year of my life! This year I was able to meet a lot of people who were strangers to the sport of rodeo and help them understand why we do what we do and represent NLBRA across the country. I traveled across Montana, and to South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Nevada and Oklahoma. I sang the National Anthem, carried the American Flag, made a Grand Entry lap or talked to other kids and adults about the great sport of rodeo.

The highlights of my year were the Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame induction in Colorado Springs, CO, the Western Equestrian Sales Association (WESA) meetings and National Western in Denver, National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas, NV, the Black Hills Stock Show in Rapid City, the Cinch Timed Event Championships & Junior Ironman in Guthrie, OK, and the World Famous Miles City Bucking Horse Sale in Montana.

I will never forget meeting a little girl who struggled with an auto-immune disease and her one wish was to be a rodeo queen. She made me realize how blessed I am. I will always remember all the little girls I met this year that dreamt of being a rodeo queen and I hope I inspired them to set a goal and work for their goal. My goal was to represent NLBRA in a very positive manner and show that we reach from Canada to Texas and everywhere in between and that we truly are "Where Legends Begin."

I met many legends along the way such as Lisa Lageschaar, Tuff Hedeman, Jess Lockwood, Charmayne James, Billy Etbauer, Dale Brisby, Fallon Taylor and Dakota Eldridge. And thanks to our amazing sponsors like Montana Silversmiths, I was able to hang out with Dakota backstage at the South Point the night he won his round buckle.

The opportunities I had this year and the friends I made, I will treasure my entire life. Shiloh, Jentri and I made a lot of memories together and I love my Sash Sisters. I can't thank Dusty Sagers, Ginger Wallace, Annie Walter and all of the board members for everything they do to make our organization great. We also have the best sponsors around! I am so grateful for the priceless opportunities NLBRA has given me. It such an incredible experience to represent the sport of rodeo and NLBRA and I hope I can one day say that this is where my legend as a rodeo queen began.

GO HIGHER

article by Crystal Lyons

Most people (for very good reason) would NOT want to teach their horse to rear, but that is not the case for me. A good rear at the appropriate moment is a perfect touch to what I do horseback. Soooo, how do you go about getting a horse to elevate that front end? The first time I had this done, was during a John Lyons clinic when his son Josh was just a teenager. We went out where we couldn't get snitched on, because as Josh said, "Dad would kill me if he knew I was teaching a horse such a bad habit!" But my begging wore down his resistance and the adventure of the challenge seemed to outweigh his fear of the consequences.

Josh had never even attempted to teach a horse to rear but his "horse savvy" was obvious even at that young age. Josh began to place my horse in a position where the right response was the one that released the pressure. Standing beside "Max", Josh asked him to walk forward by gently tapping him on the hip but at the same time restraining him from moving forward. You could see the wheels turning in Max's head as he was desperately trying to figure out what we were asking of him. "Go forward....no, you can't". How frustrating! I would've given up in the space of 15 minutes....seriously. But not Josh. He quietly and patiently kept putting pressure on Max to move forward while preventing him to do so. Josh made it so that the ONLY way for Max to move, was UP and that is what he eventually did. If my memory serves me right, it took about 2 hours. In the end Max was rearing on cue much to our GREAT delight! We were SO excited about it, we happily spilled the beans to John who playfully acted as if his son had gone off the deep end and I was the villain who led him astray.

Although this might be a fairly bad example, the way Josh taught my horse to rear is sometimes the way God uses to get US to go HIGHER. We can be pressured to move forward while at the same time restrained to do so. What's the response? Go UP. What do I mean by going higher? Sometimes when we feel "stuck" in life, it's an invitation to step out of the rut so to speak and make some changes.

Change usually doesn't come without PRESSURE. We innately resist change. It usually takes us getting utterly frustrated with things as they stand to make the appropriate moves to elevate our life.

In some instances going higher can mean an improvement in our character. God WANTS to bless us, but the challenge is, can we be trusted to not use our blessing against Him? A person begins to prosper greatly in their business and after awhile, the gorgeous bass boat has them spending more time at the lake while ignoring the One Who GAVE them the power to attain wealth. How many really beautiful women do you see who's beauty eventually causes them to enter a lifestyle that drives them away from God? There's a correct saying that goes something like this: "A person's gift can sometimes take them where their character cannot sustain them."

Interpreted means...sometimes you simply cannot go where you are CALLED to go until your character arises to the place where it can sustain the blessings and handle the pressures that the calling will bring.

Sometimes we can no longer move forward until we go HIGHER. 🐾

The Josey Ranch hosted more than 110 calf roping and barrel racing summer school students during their week long June clinic. There were approximately 300 family members from 12 states plus Ireland/Brazil. After six great days of practice and instruction to hone their skills, they showcased their talent the final day for a barrel race and calf roping match. The final day of the weeklong event concludes with the Parade of States Grand Entry followed by the Barrel Race Championship and the Tie Down & Breakaway Calf Roping School Championship competitions.

This was the 51st year of schools put on by RE and Martha Josey, both multiple World Champions and Hall of Famers in each of their respective events. Instructing children and adults alike from around the world has been the driving force in this passionate couple's longevity and made them one of rodeo's most recognizable power couples.

Not only do the students benefit from the experiences and talents of the Josey's, the instructors that work each of the schools consist of various NFR qualifiers, NBHA champions, High School and College Champions who all believe in the "Josey Winning Way". Throughout the years many of rodeo's current and former champions have crossed the cattle guard at the Josey Ranch to learn how to become a champion. 🐾

Meet the Member Kaiden Ayres

story by Lily Weinacht

Kaiden Ayres makes her debut at the Junior NFR this December after qualifying at the KK Run for Vegas race held in June in Red Bluff, California. The 16-year-old from Woodlake, California, was one spot out of qualifying for the Junior NFR last year in Reno, but secured her place in Las Vegas this spring when she won the senior division at Red Bluff with a 14.3. “The horse I ran is Shes A Brisco. I call her Angel Darlin and she’s probably the biggest blessing I’ve ever gotten as a barrel horse,” says Kaiden. “She never wants to do anything less than her best. I’d never actually run as small of a pen like that (Red Bluff) before—I’m used to big outdoor pens like Oakdale. I knew as long as I helped Angel out with the three points and didn’t get in her way, she’d be fine. Bailey Nahrgang is Angel’s previous owner, and I want to thank her so much for all her support and giving me the opportunity to run such an amazing horse.”

[“I call her Angel Darlin and she’s probably the biggest blessing I’ve ever gotten as a barrel horse,” says Kaiden. “She never wants to do anything less than her best.”]

Smaller pens have worked to her advantage in the past as well, such as qualifying for the NJHFR in Des Moines, Iowa, in barrel racing and pole bending in 2015, where Kaiden went home the NJHFR World Pole Bending Champion. She recently qualified for the 2018 NHSFR in goat tying after placing third in the state and tying the fastest time of the week with a 6.56 at the CHSRA finals. “I honestly love smaller pens more than bigger pens, because things come up quicker and it feels faster,” Kaiden explains. “In big pens I have time to over think things, but in Red Bluff I didn’t have time to, and Angel was right there with me.”

Also close by are Kaiden’s parents, Jay and Jenny Ayres, who haul her to all of her rodeos and barrel races. “They’re definitely my biggest supporters. They’re at every run before, during, and after. My mom is yelling in the stands and my dad cleans my horse’s feet before I run. They were really big high school rodeo competitors and my mom was a college competitor.” Kaiden’s parents ran a team roping business for a while, training and selling team roping horses, which is how Kaiden got her start riding and roping. She entered her first rodeo when she was 6 and the rodeo grounds quickly became her second home. “I just don’t think I could ever see myself doing anything different. I like going to different places and trying new things on horses—I love all the excitement. I think everyone is a big family in the rodeo community and we want what’s best for each other. I appreciate every single person who’s done that for me because they’ve played a big role in my life.”

Along with Angel Darlin, who is known to stick her tongue out when she’s happy, Kaiden runs barrels on Pistol, a big buckskin gelding she won state on in seventh grade; and Cash, who came to Kaiden’s rescue in eighth grade. “The barrel horse I was running at eighth-grade finals fell on top of himself and broke his neck. We’d brought Cash as my pole horse and I’d never ridden barrels on him, but I jumped on him and made a run and we won the short go,” says Kaiden. She is also training and seasoning several young horses in barrels, given more flexibility in her schedule during the school year since she started doing independent study this year. A junior this fall, she’ll go in to her school two days a week and do the rest of her work from home. She also hopes to college rodeo in the future, while her older brother, Brendan, plays college baseball.

“My biggest focus this year has been on my little black horse, Bert. I love tying and roping on him, and he got me to Nationals. I’m going to try to get Angel in the best shape I possibly can to make sure she performs her best at the Junior NFR. When Angel’s happy, I’m happy.”

Meet the Member Brannan Allen

story by Lily Weinacht

Before Brannan Allen and his family pulled into the South Dakota state fairgrounds in Huron for the NJHFR, he was already a state champion, winning the all around, tie-down roping, chute dogging, and ribbon roping with Josie Roselle in the CJHSRA. The 14-year-old from Loma, Colorado, was also the reserve state champion in goat tying and team roping with heeler Trey Huwa. His third qualification to the NJHFR earned him one of his greatest buckles yet when he won 2018 NJHFR Reserve Tie-Down Roping Champion. "I didn't know I did that well until the last kid went," Brannan recalls. "It was sort of crazy that I came back from fourth and hit second place!" He also made it back to the short go in the team roping with Trey. The pair of ropers, who just started roping together at the start of the season, finished eighth in the world standings, while Brannan took sixth place in a tie-down roping jackpot at Nationals and won scholarship money.

"My (reserve champion) buckle is sitting on my shelf right now, and I don't know that it will ever come off. I might wear it for a special occasion," says Brannan. "I was up in every performance at Nationals, so I stayed busy the whole time, and my tie-down horse, Jake, did really awesome. My team roping horse is Fritz. I've ridden him for probably three years, and he makes it pretty easy for my heeler to rope behind. He's a seasoned horse and does everything, and my goat horse, LB—Little Bitty—wasn't a goat horse until about six months ago when I got off on two goats with her at a junior high rodeo. She's my dad's heel horse, and I just decided to try her out and she did pretty dang good."

Brannan and his family have 18 horses altogether. His sister, Gentry, is entering sixth grade and the CJHSRA this fall, and their brother Clayton will be a third-grader and competes in the NLBRA. "Clayton helps me out in my events and we team rope all the time at the house," says Brannan. "Tie-down roping used to not be very fun because I didn't know how to do it very well. Practicing a lot and buying a lot of calves and getting off in practice helped. I practice every morning and my mom runs the chutes."

Along with his mom and step-dad, Tammy and Jon Goza, Brannan looks up to Kyle Hayes, Ace Slone, Josh Peek, and Kasen Brenneise. "Kyle has helped me out a lot in the calf roping and I got my calf horse from him. I met Ace through Josh when I went to one of Josh's calf roping clinics, and I met Kasen through junior high and high school rodeo. There's always something to work on or get better at to make my runs a little faster."

Brannan also enjoys hiking some of the trails around his hometown and going into the mountains, or Mount Garfield and the Colorado National Monument. He plays basketball on Fruita 8/9 School's basketball team, where he also likes P.E. and math. Before he starts ninth grade, however, Brannan is off to compete in the NLBRA finals in the team roping, ribbon roping, flag racing, goat tying, and breakaway roping. "This is my last year of breakaway roping, so I'd like to win that. I'll be in high school rodeo this fall, and I think the calf roping will be a lot tougher, so that will be a new challenge, and I'm looking forward to the team roping." 🐾

CARL MURPHY

Oct. 4, 1936 – June 18, 2018

[Remembering Those We Lost]

Carl Murphy passed away on June 18, 2018 from complications while battling cancer. Carl was born on October 4, 1936 in Denver, CO to James and Kerry (Ohman) Murphy.

Carl grew up on a ranch in Fraser, CO where he developed a love and respect for animals. He was active in 4-H, livestock judging, sports and Rodeo, with Rodeo being his real love. After graduating high school in 1954, Carl attended Colorado State University, but soon came back to Grand County and worked for the Hinman Ranch. Later, Carl went back to school at Casper College where he was on the rodeo team. Many good horses were rode and lifelong friendships were developed during his early years and throughout his entire life.

For many years you could typically find Carl at a rodeo entered in the team roping, bulldogging or bull riding. It was at a rodeo in Estes Park, CO where he met Anita (Misse) Writer who he would marry in 1966. The couple had two children, Paula Anne and Michael James. Along with competing he became involved within the industry by producing and judging rodeos. Carl was well-respected and was asked to work all over the western part of the country where he judged rodeos like Cheyenne, Denver, Phoenix, the National Old Timers Finals as well as the College Finals. He was a lifetime member, and gold card holder, of the Pro Rodeo Cowboy Association. Carl loved to talk about his travels across the US on the Rodeo trail, and he had the wonderful ability to tell a good story.

When Carl wasn't at a rodeo, he was working around cattle or sheep, even until recently when he helped two of his granddaughters with their small cattle herd and all of his grandkids with their show livestock. He was a "good hand" with an eye for livestock. Carl always cherished his time with his family and friends and later in life he found great joy in passing on his knowledge of picking and feeding the "good ones". He thoroughly enjoyed getting to watch his grandkids compete in 4-H, sports and all the other activities they were involved in. He was and will always be their number one fan.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

He is survived by his daughter Paula Murphy, her daughter's Sydney and Taylor Buckley; his son Mike Murphy, wife Misty, daughter Gabrielle (Brie) and son Brayden (Murph); his brother Leigh Murphy, wife Deane, daughter Sabrina (Murphy) Ketcham, husband Justin, son's Bridger and Pike; son Andy Murphy, wife Paige, son Dustin.

A memorial service will be held at Ahlberg Funeral Chapel and Crematory at 326 Terry Street in Longmont, CO on Friday, July 20, 2018 at 11:00am. A reception to celebrate his life will immediately follow at the American Legion Post 32 at 315 S. Bowen Street in Longmont. 🇺🇸

In honor of Carl, memorial contributions can be made to the Middle Park 4-H Scholarship Fund, C/O Grand County Extension Office, PO Box 475 Kremmling, CO 80459

Rr to The Douglas County 4-H Foundation, 410 Fairgrounds Road, Castle Rock, CO 80104 or to your favorite youth Rodeo Association.

Meet the Member Braxton Corman

story by Siri Stevens

Braxton Corman is a team roper and calf roper that just finished his junior year in high school. His year was not how most juniors spend their days though. His life changed last November when he was diagnosed with Rhabdomyosarcoma (RMS), an aggressive cancer that develops in the body's soft tissues, including muscles and connective tissue. The junior from Burlington, Colorado, found a lump the size of a grape while taking a shower, and when it didn't go away, he mentioned it to his parents. His percentages of overcoming it was definitely increased by his early detection. He went through five surgeries, 22 chemo treatments and 23 radiation treatments. His family and rodeo family were behind him all the way. His mom and dad (Juhree Stowe Corman and Greg), and his older brother, Stetson and older sister, Cheylin, all did what they could to help. "It was pretty hard on my family, both my sister and brother were both down in Texas, my brother has moved back and has a different job – working for Zoetis Animal Health, he's a rep for them. Cheylin is studying Ag business in Lubbock."

Seven months later, he is in remission; he will be considered cured in five years if there is no reoccurrence. For now, he's ready to get on with the summer. When he first heard the diagnosis, he really didn't think about. "It took me awhile to believe it. Once I did, then I realized that I needed to get through the treatments and have faith in God that He's going to help me through it."

"The first week was tough; I didn't know what to expect, it's been pretty good after the first week," said the 17 year old. "Even when I got really sick, I got through it by pushing through and knowing there would be an end to it." Born and raised in Burlington, Braxton started rodeo when he was five. Currently he is just competing in the team roping, he used to compete in calf roping. The treatments kept him from doing the normal things kids do. "I don't like to be stuck in the house – I like to be out – so that was the most challenging part – but I kept my head up because I had to stay inside because the blood counts weren't good."

He made the trip to Denver (three hours one way) once a week, every Tuesday, where he would sit in a small cubicle for two hours of chemo. "Then we went home." His class schedule was shortened to three classes, and the school set up a Google classroom so he could get his assignments when he was unable to get to class. He not only finished out the year, he made it to the Colorado State High School

Finals, where he finished third in the team roping heading for Trevor Singleton, and they are heading to Nationals in July. He plays football in the fall and played comeback, coming into the Finals fourth.

After he enjoys his summer, he plans to enjoy his senior year and then go to Universal Technical Institute in Dallas, and study their diesel program. "I've always liked using my hands and tinkering with things and I help a guy in Burlington who has a diesel mechanic shop and we've got our own equipment." He will go for regular scans to make sure he is cancer-free, and those will lessen with time.

The end result is a much more mature Corman, and the knowledge that his rodeo family is truly family and his God is mighty; he never got mad at God for his condition. "If I got mad at God, He wouldn't be able to help me through it. He's given me guidance and hope and strength and an incredible support system. Never take anything for granted – live life to the fullest." 🙏

story by Lily Weinacht

Sage Kohr nearly didn't compete in the WHSRA this season. The 18-year-old senior from Gillette, Wyoming, tore her ACL playing basketball last fall and was told it would take 4-6 months for her knee to heal before she could ride again. Sage didn't play basketball over the winter, but she recovered from reconstructive knee surgery and was back on her horse by April for the first of the spring high school rodeos. Despite missing several fall and winter rodeos, she qualified for the NHSFR in barrel racing, breakaway roping, and pole bending, and she was given the Governor Award as the senior with the most year-end points. "I've been so much more grateful to be at all the rodeos, because you realize how quickly that can be taken away from you," she says.

Having competed in her first barrel race when she was 17 months old, Sage is right at home in the arena, especially working alongside her mom, Lynn Kohr. Lynn started her rodeo career in the 1980s and trains barrel and pole horses, along with competing in futurities. "I love my horses and the friends that I've made doing rodeo, and I love doing it with my family. All of us go—my mom, Lynn, dad, Marshall, and my sister, Cedar, and brother, Stratton. Cedar is a junior and Stratton is a freshman. They're both in high school rodeo with me, and we usually take eight or nine horses. We take two trailers—I drive one and my mom drives the other.

"My mom has been an inspiration for most of my life, and Curt LaDuke has been essential in my roping. He's taught me everything there is to know about a rope, and about horsemanship in the box and how important that is," says Sage. "Barrels and breakaway are my favorites. Barrels I've done my entire life, so it's very comfortable for me, and in breakaway, I love the adrenaline rush."

Sage didn't start high school rodeoing until the end of her sophomore year, when she decided to forego cross country and track to focus on rodeo. "At the time it was a really hard decision, but now I know I made the right decision, but I do miss them," says Sage, who was the state cross-country champion her freshman year. She was also the state champion in track and field her sophomore year, and her school's basketball team was the reserve varsity state champion her junior year. Rodeo is her main sport now, and Sage practices daily with her siblings and their mom, who runs chutes for them and coaches. "Both the horses I'm riding this year have been a blessing from friends. I lost my really good horse a year ago in the spring, and since then I've been jump-riding everything that came my way. Then one of my really good friends, Karen Gleason, gave me her good barrel horse, Blackie, and he's awesome. He only has one eye but he's great about it. Callie and Lori Robinson have leant me their breakaway horse, Cervo, and my pole horse, Raindrop, is one that we raised."

Sage graduated from Thunder Basin High School in May as valedictorian, and she's attending Montana State University on a rodeo and academic scholarship this fall to study pre med. "I'm really interested in becoming a doctor, and I will do barrels and breakaway. I've always loved Montana, and when I went up to visit the school, I fell in love with it." Before the next chapter of school starts, Sage plans to enter futurities this summer, and she and her mom and brother went to New Mexico for the first time in June to compete in the Best of the Best Timed Event Rodeo. "I'd love to win a national championship," she finishes, "but I'm just really blessed to be able to compete at Nationals!" 🐾

Seth Glass at the NJHSRF in Huron, SD
- Acentric Rodeo

Meet the Member Seth Glass

story by Siri Stevens

Seth Glass is going to be a freshman this fall at Sidney High School, but this summer will be one to remember. The 14-year-old left Huron South Dakota as the reserve champion in the chute dogging. He made it to Huron in four events; team roping, goats, chute dogging, and tie down. He came back in the short go in goats, chute dogging, and tie down. He got his calf tied down in 12.07 in the short go, which put him at tenth in the average. In goats, he placed 12th overall with 32 flat on three. He finished up 8th in the boy's All-Around standings.

But he's most proud of his second run in the chute dogging. His first steer in the second wouldn't come out of the chute, so with his second one, he had no choice but to coax it out of the chute and that's not always easy. "I had to be patient with the steer and basically pull him out." Unofficially his time of a 1.29 broke the record. It was the fastest time of the finals. "I stayed shocked for a couple hours and then it finally set in and we celebrated with my whole family. We made s'mores."

Seth started his rodeo career in the Colorado Junior Rodeo Association and National Little Britches. He started rodeoing by roping with his dad, something they still do together. He started out as a header, but likes to heel too. "I rope with my dad at the CJRA rodeos and I snagged up doubles all three runs at the last rodeo."

He has an older sister, Brooke, who is now a sophomore on a rodeo scholarship at Eastern Wyoming College in Torrington. His mom, Candi, and his dad, Stuart haul him to all his events. "I thank God and I'm happy that my family is willing to take me everywhere."

["Rodeo has taught me to be humble and stay loyal and stay dedicated to it. Things don't come easy."]

He will spend the rest of the summer rodeoing, showing horses in 4H, jackpotting, and helping his neighbors brand. This fall he will join the cross country team at his school, play basketball, and continue to rodeo. "I like the cross country coaches and this will keep me in shape for basketball and rodeo."

He spends quite a bit of time practicing for rodeos or taking care of the family's array of animals, including seven horses, two dogs, two cats, roping steers, calves, and goats. "Rodeo has taught me to be humble and stay loyal and stay dedicated to it. Things don't come easy." 🐾

Meet the Member Morgan Darnell

story by Ruth Nicolaus

This spring, Morgan Darnell has been in the branding pen a lot. The Gordon, Neb. cowgirl, a member of the Nebraska High School Rodeo Association, helps with her family's branding and with the neighbors' as well. Usually she's roping and dragging calves, but at her grandparents' branding, she's running a branding iron alongside her grandpa.

The family uses propane to heat the irons, putting the branding "fires" in the middle and dragging calves on both sides. She also runs a vaccination gun when needed, and for their branding, they ran 350 calves through in a morning.

Roping in the branding pen is nothing like roping in the arena, says the breakaway and team roper. The branding pen is more relaxed and if you miss, people laugh and joke about it. In the arena, if you miss, "you try to figure out what you did wrong so you don't do it on the next one," Morgan said. "Roping in the arena takes a lot more technique and you have to do a lot of things correctly."

But one of the best parts of branding is the meal afterwards, and Morgan heads straight for the mashed potatoes. She loves any kind of mashed potatoes, even instant. For her grandparents' branding, she helped her grandma make the potatoes.

She is a 2018 graduate of Gordon-Rushville High School, where she had a 4.0 grade point average and was valedictorian of her class. Being tops in the class does have its disadvantage: "I wasn't really excited to give a speech for graduation," she said. She was president of her school's FFA chapter and her ag demonstration team earned sixth place at state. She served as secretary of her school's chapter of the National Honor Society and was a member of student council.

[In the arena, if you miss, "you try to figure out what you did wrong so you don't do it on the next one," Morgan said. "Roping in the arena takes a lot more technique and you have to do a lot of things correctly."]

When she was 14 years old, Morgan was diagnosed with osteochondritis dissecans, also known as OCD bone disease. It affected her right knee, and she has had four surgeries to correct it. Then, her sophomore year of high school, Morgan was diagnosed with hip dysplasia, which took three more surgeries to correct, including a total hip reconstruction.

For the breakaway roping, she rides a 13-year-old sorrel named Jesse. The mare was supposed to be a finished tie-down horse "but had a lot of quirks we worked out," she said. For the heeling (she heels for Clayton Symons), she rides a six-year-old paint horse named Sis. Sis was her third string horse last year until a mountain lion ran two of her horses through fences last year, causing them to get cut up. She and Sis clicked, and now Sis is her primary horse.

This fall, Morgan will attend Laramie County Community College in Cheyenne, Wyo., where she will graduate in five semesters with a physical therapy assistant degree. Then she has two choices: either attend physical therapy school or get a job as an assistant and work her way through her schooling. As of now, she's leaning towards the second choice.

For fun, she and her family love playing card games like pitch, hearts, and cribbage.

She has qualified for state finals in Hastings the past four years. She has an older brother, Cody, who is in college. She is the daughter of Buddy and Stacey Darnell. 🐾

Meet the Member Cody Rieker

story by Lindsay King

Close to home, Lexington, Nebraska, is where all of Cody Rieker's best memories are made. The NSRA and M-SRA calf roper and sometimes header grew up ranching and roping. It was all he had time for. "My dad rode bulls for 20 plus years and passed the sport of rodeo on to us. We started riding sheep and calves, then we started roping." Just by working on the ranch and roping, Cody and his brother, Tyrel, decided they wanted to rodeo. "We probably started roping and riding when we were three. I just liked it and have not quit. Our parents have always been helpful, taking us to rodeos when we were little."

In both high school and college rodeo, Cody also bull dogged. An independent cowboy, Cody likes being responsible for mistakes in a run rather than relying on someone else. "I just try and have fun, act like it is another calf in the practice pen. I don't worry about the calf I draw, I do the basics and rope the best I can on every one of them." A member of the NSRA since high school, Cody only drives a few hours for rodeos. "Most rodeos are no more than two hours from my doorstep, that is why I bought my card in the first place."

One summer, Cody went to work for Roger Kraus. "He taught me a lot about roping calves because he won a lot of saddles in the M-SRA. He was one of my biggest helpers, aside from my dad who always kept me on good horses, roping solid cattle." A 2015 Colby Community College graduate with a degree in farm and ranch management, Cody met his wife Elle in an animal science class. "She is pretty awesome to put it simply. She is starting to breakaway rope and I am hoping to get her to compete at a few more rodeos than she did last summer." Cody and Elle are the proud parents of Reatta Ann, born April 30.

The last three years, Cody has appeared at the NSRA finals and spent the last two at the M-SRA finals.

["I just try and have fun, act like it is another calf in the practice pen. I don't worry about the calf I draw, I do the basics and rope the best I can on every one of them."]

"I am actually a director for the men's timed events and calf roping. It has always been good, everyone is always super nice. All the rodeos that NSRA co-sanctions are some of the best in the state. All the members and directors are good people and the stock is great." After buying his PRCA permit this spring, Cody is working to make the KPRA finals just like he did two years ago. "I will probably just go to a few close rodeos in Nebraska and see how the PRCA treats me. My goal in the next few years is to get my card and go to some of the bigger rodeos: Cheyenne,

Pendleton, not rodeo real hard but hit the neat ones."

Unafraid to be a little biased, Cody's favorite rodeo is in his hometown. The rodeo he grew up watching and competing at. "I would also say Eddyville. My dad was the president of the rodeo club there for over 30 years. They had their final rodeo just last year." To put it simply, Cody just likes roping. Luckily, his career choice adheres to the activity daily. "Dad and I still have cows together. I work for the Walking Cattle Company since we don't quite have enough cows yet to satisfy two families."

A love for roping, rodeo family and the rush, this year Cody is working towards sharing the stage at the NSRA finals with his traveling partner, Patrick Martin. "He won the saddle last year, but hopefully we can come out as the top two this year." Over the fourth, his summer took a turn as Cody's good horse pulled up lame. "It killed my summer, because I did not have another horse ready to go. I got the B-team horse out and now he is ready to go. I have two good horses ready for the summer and it should be a great season." 🐾

We are working on Solutions but in the meantime, we ask for everyone's cooperation to refrain from setting up pens until AFTER the 7:30 Friday evening perf. Also a reminder, there will be NO horses on the north side of the north road. This is posted and the City & Parks Dept are becoming increasingly adamant regarding this. Please be respectful of the postings. Thank you in advance!!

Meet the Committee O'Neill Summerfest

[July 20-22, 2018]

story by Lindsay King

“I did not grow up around rodeo, I became a fan years ago. I am fascinated by the silent communication between the contestants and their horses. The relationship between man and animals are unique and personal,” said Lauri Havranek, O'Neill Chamber of Commerce President and CEO. She serves as the secretary and treasurer for the O'Neill Summerfest Rodeo Committee. Responsible for the mass influx of paperwork bringing in the personnel, contestants and insurance, Lauri has helped the Nebraska hometown rodeo go off without a hitch for the past six years. “We are in the heart of rodeo country in this part of Nebraska, many of the fans follow M-SRA contestants across the circuit.”

Celebrating 34 years of rodeo excellence, the O'Neill Summerfest is a weekend tradition full of activities for all ages. From a kid's carnival and drive-in movie, to parking lot parties and an art show, there is something for every kindred spirit. Catch the rodeo action at Carney Park starting at 7:30 p.m. July 20 and 21 with the festival action continuing through July 22. “Aside from our central location in the middle of the rodeo circuit that weekend, we have a great facility and places for the contestants to stay comfortably overnight.” Some of the contestants even make a “temporary headquarters” in O'Neill for the weekend to hit as many rodeos as possible.

Known as the Irish capital of the state, O'Neill knows how to host big groups as they boast a massive blowout for St. Patrick's Day every year. “The rodeo originated as one avenue for the local businesses to say thank you to their patrons. The revenue from this event has a large impact on many businesses in town. From people staying over at Carney Park to those who come and support the businesses who sponsor the rodeo.”

[“We were named Small Purse Rodeo of the Year by the M-SRA last year, an award we hope to continue getting year after year.”]

Thanks to the sponsors and patrons, O'Neill is one of the higher paying rodeos for the contestants. “We were named Small Purse Rodeo of the Year by the M-SRA last year, an award we hope to continue getting year after year.” This has brought in contestants from all corners of the state for the annual event.

“We normally draw the top M-SRA

contestants to our rodeo along with some local entries who are also competitive.” Thanks to the hard-working committee, the event is well-advertised and goes off without a hitch. “The Summerfest Rodeo Committee is a small group that works hard to make the rodeo a success. But the volunteers from the chamber groups, businesses, civic groups and community are the real backbone of the rodeo when the gates open. They all help out wherever they are needed to keep the weekend running smooth.”

Contracting with McKay Rodeo Company since the very first M-SRA rodeo in O'Neill, contestants compete in the Carol McKay Arena. “It was named after the previous owner of the stock company. We like using McKay because they are from O'Neill and are so great to work with year after year.” O'Neill is known for bringing in top clowns from all over Nebraska and other states, the most notable being Junior Young before he retired. “Junior used to travel thousands of miles every summer to entertain rodeo fans of all ages. We are fortunate to now have him as a member of our rodeo committee.”

One stand-out event at the rodeo started last year, pitting local teachers against each other in the inaugural Inflatable Horse Races. "That Friday night we had teachers bouncing across the arena for the title of Jockey of the Year. On Saturday night community members rode the horses through the course for the title. Everyone found out it is much harder to ride them than it looks." Though there will be no inflatable horse races this year, the committee is bringing in a clown from Minnesota. The committee would like to invite rodeo fans of all ages to spend the third weekend in July with us this year in O'Neill. They will enjoy exciting rodeo action along with great small-town hospitality!" 📷

2018 WSRRA Nelo Mori Heritage of Ranching Award

by Naomi Loomis, WSRRA Association Representative

The American cowboy has been a worldwide icon since the early 1800s. Today the heritage, values, and traditions of the working ranch are still alive and well. Ranch cowboys are out there living the lifestyle – calving, branding, gathering and doctoring cattle – keeping our ranching traditions alive.

In 2017, the WSRRA established a special honor, the Nelo Mori Heritage of Ranching award, to honor cowboys and/or cowgirls whose unparalleled devotion to land and livestock has earned them notable respect and admiration from their peers. This prestigious award also emphasizes the humanistic, scientific and technological contributions of the ranching and livestock industries to our society.

At the 2017 WSRRA National Finals Ranch Rodeo, WSRRA President Marc Page presented Nelo Mori with the first annual award in front of a large crowd of friends, family and admirers. He said, “We wanted to give the award to a pioneer and someone who blazed the way for the ranching industry. We want to give back and make this award an annual honor for our industry’s most respected people. We don’t live forever. When Nelo passes, the award will become the Nelo Mori Memorial Heritage of Ranching Award.”

Do you know of an individual and/or ranch that we need to spotlight? The

WSRRA is accepting nominations for the 2018 Nelo Mori Heritage of Ranching Award. For more details contact the WSRRA at info@wsrra.org

[“I have achieved the American dream, not because I am terribly rich or have tremendous amounts of cattle or land. I am rich because of my family. My son, daughter, grandchildren and great grandchildren are really good cowboys, good ropers, and upstanding citizens.”
- Nelo Mori]

Kade Madsen

For the second year in a row, Kade was able to walk away with the title of national champion bareback steer rider. In preparation for nationals, Kade practiced hard on the bucking machine and steers to ensure that he was mentally and physically ready. He enjoyed many experiences in Huron, South Dakota, but especially going to church in a new place. He is grateful that he was able to stay calm enough to ride and compete at his best so he could take the championship again. Next year, he would like to go back to nationals and has set a goal to not only win the barebacks again, but also the bull riding and all around titles.

Braylee Shepard

Practicing morning and night, Braylee was determined to make nationals feel like any other rodeo. When she hit the road for South Dakota, she hit it running. During the week long finals, she enjoyed hanging out with her friends and being able to compete with the best of the best. She competed in the goat tying, pole bending, and barrel racing, especially excelling in goat tying. In the first round, she finished third. In the second go, she was tenth and she walked away with the win in the short go. Taking second in the world Braylee made her family and state proud.

Byron Christiansen

After a successful state finals, Byron began preparations for nationals. Through workouts and daily practice he built up his strength. He focused on his goals and strived for a winners attitude so he could be mentally ready for the challenge of nationals. In South Dakota, he enjoyed spending time with his friends on team Utah during the volleyball tournament and talent show. Qualifying in three events, he had set his sights on the All Around title. Staying on every steer, he finished third in the saddle bronc steer riding and seventh in the bareback steer riding. He wishes they had bucked a little harder, but he was proud to represent Utah when he walked in the winners circle. This year, as he starts high school rodeo, he hopes to qualify for the nationals again and is sure to put up a fight, even as a freshman.

Macklee Larsen

When Macklee began to prepare for the National Junior High School Finals Rodeo, she knew that her horses and her mind had to be in tip top shape. With a lot of practice and focus under her belt, she headed to Huron. She enjoyed competing against other states and had fun participating in the water fights and dances with other contestants. During the first go of barrel racing, she finished second. In the second go, she came out fifth and was second during the short go finishing fifth in the world for barrel racing. During the upcoming rodeo season, she hopes to stay consistent and compete to the best of her abilities.

JP English

Headed to Huron in chute dogging and ribbon roping, JP prepared with a whole lot of practice. He spent time setting up his mental game and preparing for different scenarios. When he reached South Dakota he was greeted with good weather and beautiful rodeo grounds. In between performances, he spent time with his friends at the movies or bowling. In the first round he had a solid chute dogging run with a time of 4.7. He had a 3.7 in the second go round and finished fourth in the short go with a 3.2. He hopes to move into the next season with lots of practice under his belt and a hard work ethic. He also wants to help those around him to improve so that he in turn can improve in turn.

MaRynn Moody

Tying goats every morning and working barrel and pole patterns every night, MaRynn worked hard to be ready for nationals. In Huron she was impressed by the nice facilities and beautiful weather. She enjoyed spending time with awesome friends and competitors. Finishing in the top ten every round of goat tying, she ended up sixth in the world. As she moves on to high school rodeo, she has set a goal to make it to nationals as a freshman.

Brett Milner

In order to prepare for the hard competition at nationals, Brett rode her horses everyday. She practiced having a positive attitude and picturing smooth runs and she made her way to Huron. While there she loved competing against other states and meeting new people. She is proud of her horses who placed her eleventh in the first go, fortieth in the second go, and eleventh in the short go. She finished as the tenth best Jr. High barrel racer in the world. Moving forward, she hopes to continue riding everyday and always do her best. 🇺🇸

story by Riata Cummings

Alyssa Hopper is a recent graduate of Stansbury High School and resident of Tooele, Utah. The nineteen-year-old may be quiet, but she is a fierce competitor in the rodeo arena. She was just nine when she started competing in rodeo, and she was scared of the horses and the competition. Since then, rodeo has become a passion of hers and she now competes in barrel racing and pole bending. Her favorite is the barrel racing because of the indescribable feeling that comes from turning a barrel at full speed. She competes on a bay horse named Rocky, whom she acquired just last year.

[She would advise any rodeo athlete to remember that rodeo is a team effort and taking care of your horse should be your first priority. She has learned that, especially on rodeo days, her horses should eat before her and always receive the proper care.]

During the latest season of the Utah High School Rodeo Association, she qualified for the state finals rodeo in pole bending. Her favorite rodeo during the season was the rodeo's hosted in Hurricane, Utah, known as the Dixie Six. The weather is ideal for fast paced rodeos and the Association organizes a special dance for contestants known as Cowboy Prom.

Alyssa is oldest of three children, all of them adopted. Their parents are Robby and Julie Hopper, who strive to support their kids in all their endeavors. As a family they enjoy time in the outdoors; riding, hunting, fishing, or camping. Although Alyssa is on the shy side, she has an adventurous streak. She hopes to one day compete in the PRCA or other professional circuits, and would also like to become a brand inspector.

The movie Spirit contains a song by Bryan Adams entitled, "Here I Am". For Alyssa, who grew up watching the movie, the lyrics, "here I am, this is me" strike a chord everytime. She hopes to leave a legacy of independence and individuality, and the song portrays her feelings.

High School rodeo has taught her many things, including the valuable lesson that everything is not about her. She would advise any rodeo athlete to remember that rodeo is a team effort and taking care of your horse should be your first priority. She has learned that, especially on rodeo days, her horses should eat before her and always receive the proper care. After all, what would rodeo be without our four legged friends? 🐾

Meet the Member

Madison Davenport

story by Riata Cummings

Madison Davenport is an eighteen-year-old rodeo athlete from the tiny town of Neola, Utah. The small community near Roosevelt has a very secluded and quiet environment, and Madi loves it there. Madi takes classes online, which she enjoys. Madison has a twin sister, Taylor. She also has an older brother Austin, and two younger siblings, Sage and Holden who are also twins. Her mother is Staci Schneider, but she has also been raised by her grandpa Kim.

[Just like many rodeo athletes, Madison battles her head. Despite good productive practices, it can be hard to keep your head right at the rodeo. She knows that if she can relax, have fun, and do what she knows how to do she will be able to rope at the top of her game.]

Madi grew up in the rodeo community and has competed at local shows since she was a little girl. She now competes in the Utah High School Rodeo Association as a breakaway roper and pole bender. She enjoys roping more than the speed events though, and practices hard to get better at it. She likes to stick to rodeo, but some of her other hobbies include boating and snowboarding with her family. She also started her own beading and leather work company and enjoys seeing the product of her hard work.

Hard work is a frequent for Madi, and she tries to rope four times a week. She is proud of the improvement she has made in her roping. Just like many rodeo athletes, Madison battles her head. Despite good productive practices, it can be hard to keep your head right at the rodeo. She knows that if she can relax, have fun, and do what she knows how to do she will be able to rope at the top of her game. Madison loves that rodeo is such an individual sport where it can just be her and her horses. She rides two bays, Egypt and Rango. Egypt is her breakaway horse, and the sometimes grumpy Rango she uses for barrel racing and pole bending. The atmosphere of rodeo is a unique and special feeling. The sense of hospitality and community make things that much better. Madi hopes to compete in the Rocky Mountain Professional Rodeo Association in the future. She also hopes to start a few young horses and maybe make it to the NFR one day.

Madison hopes to leave the legacy of always being her own person. She strives to make others happy, which in turn gives her the same reward. Madi would advise rodeo athletes to have fun and enjoy the moment. Don't worry so much about winning, just go out there and have fun. She can't live without her animals and would spend her last five minutes with her family, given the chance. With those priorities, its easy to see the Madison is going places. 🐾

Meet the Member Molly & Adam Hamilton

story by Lily Weinacht

“Rodeo is a lifestyle we absolutely love and where all our free time is spent. Even in the off season, we’re riding young horses and training them,” says Molly Hamilton. She and her husband, Adam, are both ropers—Molly breakaway roping and Adam tie-down roping—and they are equally interested in making their rodeo horses as competing on them. “We started a few outside horses, and then decided I would go back to breaking our own colts. It’s more worth our time to start our own young ones from scratch than buying older ones. We had three 2-year-olds last year and we’ve sold two of them,” says Adam.

Originally from Minnesota, he grew up showing cutting horses, then spent his summers in Wisconsin learning how to train horses from Shelly Mueller and her family. “Their son, Adam Mueller, got me into roping my senior year of high school, and my sophomore year of college, I rodeoed. I also give credit to Molly’s family, the Bates. She and her dad have really helped me out, and Cole Wilson has been helping me since we got to Kansas. I’m transitioning from roping smaller calves down south to bigger calves up north. I like the adrenaline and the speed.”

After Adam and Molly met through a mutual friend in Molly’s home state of Iowa, the couple got married and moved to Arizona for Adam’s work as an agriculture lender at a bank. They were there for a year and competed in the GCPRA before moving to Holton, Kansas, for new career opportunities and to be closer to family. When they moved, Molly was sitting in the top five in breakaway roping and Adam was competing in the incentive tie-down roping. They hope to compete in the GCPRA rodeos held in Colorado this summer, and qualify for the finals. “The arenas were really nice, with bigger, sandy pens with a little different setup each time. They paid well, and that definitely drew us, and we met some really good people that we enjoyed,” says Molly.

She grew up team roping, coached by her parents, Rick and DeeAnn Bates, who both team rope. In college, Molly competed in breakaway roping, goat tying, and team roping for Northwestern Oklahoma State University in Alva, but settled on breakaway roping after school. “I like the individual aspect of it, and that the more effort I put into it, the more success I get personally,” she explains. “And I like fast horses that stop hard! Growing up, my dad was a major influencer, and he helped me with horsemanship and being able to confidently train my own horse and be able to compete on it. My best friend, practice buddy, and hauling partner, Kate Hansen, has always been great at finding the positives in runs and helping me pick apart what I could do better. Even though we don’t live close now, we still send our runs to each other and help dissect them.”

Molly’s main mount is a 12-year-old gelding named Scrap, whom she trained for a client when he was 3, then bought him the next year. He’s been named Horse of the Year in several rodeo associations, and Molly considers training him one of her greatest accomplishments. “He has the biggest heart and gives you everything on every run. I have another horse that’s 4 this year and he’s coming along really well. He and Scrap are both Shining Spark bred, and they both crave it.” Adam rides a 7-year-old gelding named Louis, a Cats Quixote Jack son. “He was started by Budge Herbert out of Heavener, Oklahoma, and he makes the same run every time,” says Adam. “I’ve never had to run a jerk line on him, and he’s just a nice, honest horse.”

Since moving to Kansas in June, Molly and Adam have yet to build their arena, but are already back to training horses. After Adam breaks the colts, Molly gets them started roping. “We still both have full-time jobs, but we try to spend most of our evenings and any free time doing something horse related. In Arizona, we were close to the mountains and we took our colts trail riding a lot to get them out of the arena. Out here, there’s a lot more cattle work for them.”

Along with making it back to several GCPRA rodeos, Molly and Adam are competing in the United Rodeo Association and Interstates Rodeo Association this summer. They also enjoy spending time with their families and going to the lake. “Breakaway is a sport on the verge of really growing. There’s a new roping in Vegas, Rope for the Crown, that I’d like to qualify for, and it would be amazing to rope at The American as well,” says Molly. “But those take mini goals and taking the summer rodeos one at a time, and continuously working on the mental aspect of rodeo.” Adam adds, “Making the URA finals is a pretty big goal of mine, and to always have colts coming in. It’s pretty fun to watch them come up from ground zero.”

Meet the Member Dylan Reed

story by Lindsay King

The first in his family to rodeo, Dylan Reed from Melrose, New Mexico, wouldn't trade his saddle bronc rides for anything. "My family found junior high rodeo and we decided it would be a good thing to try. Rodeo was kind of out of the blue for my family, it is mostly my thing really," said the 16-year-old. His brother Tristen, 19, gave rodeo a try but it did not stick for him. Favoring the classic event of rodeo, Dylan is a bit leery of the other rough stock events. "Those other events are kind of for the crazy guys in my opinion. Saddle bronc riding has always been more interesting and seemed more fun to me."

The biggest influences in rodeo for Dylan have come from the bronc riding schools that taught him the trade. "I have gotten a lot of help from Oklahoma Panhandle State University in Goodwell, Oklahoma, they let me get on some of their practice horses. I have also gotten a lot of help from the Etbauers." Dylan is a senior at House High School with plans to continue rodeoing in college. "I would like to get a rodeo scholarship either to New Mexico State University or OPSU. There are coaches and friends who have gone there so I would have people who could help me settle into school and a higher level of rodeo." Dylan tried his hand at reined cow horse the first year it was in New Mexico, but just sticks to riding saddle broncs and colts now. "I ride some colts and barrel horses for a lady close to school. I just help keep them in shape and a bit calmer for her."

Dylan started this job just after football season ended last year. He played on special teams last year in addition to running the 800 and mile in track the following spring. "We have to coop sports with Sumner. My favorite sport is football hands down. I like hitting people, it is fun to put them on the ground." He is also a member of FFA, judging horses and floriculture last year at state. "I also like to weld, something I learned in FFA. But mostly, I like to ride and train on horses when I get the chance." Dylan is close to his teachers, because his high school is so small. "I look forward to getting to school so I can visit with my teachers. A lot of them are like parents basically, they want to see us succeed and do well in life."

The support from other parents in the NMHSRA is one of Dylan's favorite things about competing. "Everyone here is family, we all treat each other like siblings without all the squabbling. I am very thankful for all the parents who have been there for me in high school rodeo. They have helped push me even though they have their own kids to support, they still want me to do well in rodeo also." Dylan is especially thankful for everything his mom Joelle Reed has done to support his passion for rodeo.

"I have always looked up to Preston Ogle, he has always helped encourage me in everything that I have tried to do. I have always looked up to him since he is a year older than me and because he has always helped me with anything I have needed." Once a shy new comer to rodeo, Dylan silently watched the veterans in his association to find his place. "As the years have gone by, I have learned to be humble by emulating what I see other competitors do." He used to get himself amped up before a ride but has realized keeping his cool brings him more success. "Now I just show up and talk to my friends, keep myself relaxed like I am at the practice pen. I try to keep cool, calm and collected." This strategy helped Dylan take the reserve champion saddle bronc title at state this year, sending him to nationals. 🏆

Texas Bronc Riders Association

Texas Bronc Rider's Association & Fort Worth Stock Show & Rodeo Open Books for Texas Bronc Scholarship Shoot Out

story by Lori O'Harver

Three short years ago, Daryl McElroy's dream of a 'for bucking horse riders only' association took it's first baby steps. The vision focused around raising funds for and offering scholarships to recent high school graduates, incoming high school seniors and juniors. It's a goal they've succeeded in hitting since their first finals rolled around and one that's steadily grown along with the association.

"The TBRA mission is all about increasing the number of bucking horse riders by developing systems to make bronc rides accessible and increasing their value and interest to young contestants," Daryl McElroy said. "Of equal concern to us is being sure that these contestants have educations and skills to employ when their career in the arena is over."

"With our gratitude for the support of the Fort Worth Stock Show & Rodeo, TBRA will be awarding a total of $15,000 in scholarships at our 2018 finals in Glen Rose, Texas," McElroy said. "It's beyond amazing to see the number of young contestants who are taking advantage of this program."

Scholarship eligible candidates are 2018 high school graduates, and 2019 incoming juniors and seniors who compete in the bareback and bronc riding. No TBRA membership is necessary to be considered for entry in the Texas Bronc Scholarship Shoot Out being held on September 28, 29 and 30.

Average winners first through fourth place at the end of the three-round contest will receive $4,000 scholarship for winning, $2,000 scholarships for second, $1,000 scholarships for third and $500 scholarships for fourth in each event (bareback and saddle bronc riding.)

TBRA will choose fifteen (15) contestants for each event based on short essays submitted by eligible candidates on the topic of why they should be chosen and their academic aspirations. Entries are open by emailing essays to daryl@txbronicriders.com

In other TBRA spotlights, be sure to catch TBRA Ride TV Cowgirls during opening festivities at Cheyenne Frontier Days' Frontier Friday starting at 2 p.m. Mountain Time on July 20, 2018. The ranch bronc riding ladies will try their luck during a special exhibition.

"We are excited to have the women return to ride broncs," said Nicole Gamst, Cheyenne Frontier Days Marketing Director. "They have been such a great part of our history and this will be a fine way to celebrate this event and kick off Cheyenne Frontier Days 2018."

Tickets are on sale now at www.cfdrodeo.com or stream it live through your Ride TV Go subscription available at www.RIDETVGO.com.

Meet the Member Laramie Warren

story by Lindsay King

Laramie Warren from Adair, Oklahoma, comes by his bull dogging skills naturally, but needed a little push in junior high to get him started. "I am not a little guy by any means, so my dad, the late Lane Warren, pushed me to bull dog growing up. But I was scared to get into it because I did not know anything about it," said the 20-year-old. In the seventh grade, Lesleigh Cash, his mom, signed him up for the chute dogging at a rodeo. "After I was done roping, she sent me back down to the chutes to find Roy Duval who gave me a crash course in the event. I threw my first steer that day, it was not fast at all." Laramie and his sister Bayleigh, 23, grew up going to the Claremore PRCA rodeo where his mom was the vet. "I got to meet the stock contractors and meet some of the pro rodeo guys. I did the mutton busting and all that, but I always had a passion to anything with a rope." In addition to bull dogging, Laramie is a header and a calf roper.

The Northeastern Oklahoma College recent college graduate will be taking his associates in agricultural business to Southeastern Oklahoma State University in Durant to pursue his bachelor's in business and rodeo. He has been competing for NEO the past two years. "I won the bull dogging in Weatherford and at Panhandle State University this spring. My goal is to make the CNFR next year. I ended up fifth in the region this year." Bull dogging has not been easy for Laramie, but he has a natural talent for the event. Help in the event has come from many of his friend's dads, including: Jeff Carney, Mike Bush and Just Lankford.

Laramie Warren - Nate Bailey Rodeo Photos

"This year I lived with Joe Bell and he has helped me a lot. As has Brady McFarren. There are too many people who have gotten me where I am to list them all."

In this day and age, a role model is an important person to choose carefully. That is why Laramie looks up to Trevor Brazile. "I have entered some pro rodeos: those guys don't know who I am. But I have gotten to talk to Trevor briefly. I don't know the guy by any means, but he was real nice to me. I think the attitude he has towards every event he competes in and his achievements really speak for themselves." Last year was Laramie's rookie year in the ACRA. "I live in Adair and every one of those rodeos is no more than an hour from me. I have made a lot of friends growing up and met a lot of people through the association. They pay well, and the stock are usually good. It is a stepping stone for me in my rodeo career at this point." A short memory and confidence are the keys to his mental game. "I try to have as much confidence no matter what happened in the arena five minutes or even the day before." His goals for this year are to make the ACRA finals and the IFR in 2019.

His favorite rodeo to date was the Garden City Pro Rodeo last spring. "It is the first place that I ever entered that was just a wide open outdoor pen. It was an experience for me I guess you could say." He is looking forward to competing at the NFR and Pendleton one day. "Just the stories and experience of Pendleton is a draw for me. You sit down with some of the guys who have been there and the stories of it all and how the mentality of your event changes with the set up." Laramie is especially thankful for the role his mom has played in his rodeo career. "Mom always encouraged my sister and I to ride and rodeo when we were little. I did not need much encouragement after I was about six years old, it was just something I did on my own. Mom has played a very big part in me being able to compete at the level I am today." 🐾

Meet the Member Jaylee Young

story by Siri Stevens

Jaylee Young came back from Huron, South Dakota, with the Girls All Around Championship, Rookie of the Year, and World Champion Pole Bending title. This is her first year competing in the Oklahoma Junior High Rodeo. "We knew people competing and they were telling us to come and compete. We decided to go this year – I'm very glad I did," said the 14-year-old cowgirl from Rattan, Oklahoma. "Rattan is really really small – we have a school, store, post office, and that's about it." Jaylee spends her time rodeoing, playing softball and basketball.

She started competing when she was very young. "We did play days locally and then I moved to the TJRA (Texoma Junior Rodeo Association), and moved to the OYRA (Oklahoma Youth Rodeo Association)." Now she competes at OYRA and the junior high. She learned the sport of rodeo from her parents (Kim and Frankie) and grandparents. "Pretty much my whole family rodeos."

She won the pole bending title on Dandy, a 9-year-old gelding. "I bought with my own money when he was 2 and brought him home." She was 8, and he was a wild horse. Her dad tried to sell him to anyone but Jaylee didn't want to sell him and eventually she got him broke. "We sent him to my neighbor who heels and ever since then, I started breaking him on barrels and poles and that's how he came along. He's one of the most special horses I've ever had. I think he just needed time to mature." She's proud of the way her horse has turned out. "Everything I do it's him – he's easy to ride and amazing."

This was her first trip to South Dakota. "There's no humidity," she said of the state. "It wasn't hot and sticky – it was great. At night sometimes I had to wear a jacket." She met people from all over and had a great time.

- Acentric Rodeo

She made it to Nationals in barrels, poles, and goats and came back in the short round in two of the three events. The first round in poles, a 20.2 was winning it – and she knew she needed a solid first run. She was a 20.8 and 8th in the first round. "My goat got up in the first round and that put me in a mood of not being happy. So I had to let that go and realize I couldn't change it. I figured after that I had no shot for the All Around." Her barrel run was pretty good and then round two started.

"I came up here ready for poles – I knew I had a good horse and a 20.2 won the first round, so I knew I had to step it up. I went in and made a run 19.9 – that was the first time I was under 20. Barrels I ran in a 16.1 and I got my goat tied in 8.3 and that won the performance. So I knew my second round went well. Then I got to thinking – I got moved up and maybe I had a chance to win poles. The girl beating me was just beating me by a tenth of a second."

She made it to the short go in both barrels and poles. "I wasn't nervous, but I knew I had to go in and not mess it up." Barrels came first. "I didn't have that good a run, but shook it off and got ready for poles. I run the same horse, so I was getting ready for poles, and I ran a 19.6. I could hear my mom and my sister screaming. I could barely breathe when I came out."

She will spend the rest of the summer going to rodeos, starting with the IFYR, where her older sister, Lexy, will compete on Dandy. "I'm going to hit some rodeos around here and hang out with my family."

She came back from South Dakota with two saddles, five buckles, two coolers, a lot of supplements from Platinum, horse blankets, hats, CINCH certificates for clothes, and close to $4,000 in scholarships. The scholarships she will put towards going to college, where she plans to college rodeo and pursue a degree in something that will help kids or people, the things she likes to do.

"I want to thank the Good Lord for blessing me with my horse, my family and everything I get to do," she concludes. "And I also want to thank everyone that is behind the scenes making this possible." 🙏

FAILURE: A PART OF THE JOURNEY TO GREATNESS

article by C.J. Aragon

It is the time of year for a lot of the finals in rodeo; State High School Finals, the College National Finals, and the National High School Finals. This is one of my favorite times of the year; we get to watch champions get crowned for their efforts. But for every champion crowned, the majority of contestants leave the arena disappointed for failure to reach their goals.

I see it every year at these finals events, students walking out of the arena disappointed or upset with the final outcome. And if you have a goal that is meaningful to you, I almost expect this reaction when you come up short. However most of the time the effective completion of your goal will depend on how well you can rebound from failure. Championships are not meant to be won easily, and to achieve great accomplishments you must learn to channel the lessons of your failures.

Rodeo athletes deal with failure in different ways. The majority who come up short at these year-end events start to mentally beat themselves up. They allow all of the negative input from their performance to dominate their thoughts. They then begin to make excuses and place blame in other areas. It is hard to improve and grow with this attitude.

Those who will be improving and competing for championships in the future have a totally different approach. To these future champions failure is just part of their journey to greatness. Their losses and disappointments are nothing more than part of their learning process. These athletes are rational about their performance, they can tell you exactly what they did wrong and how they plan on improving in the future. They learn from their experience.

C.J. Aragon - Courtesy

If you truly want to be a champion, one of the biggest secrets to success is learning and improving from failure. It is what truly separates the winners and losers. You heard me right—it you want to be great you have to learn to deal with failure better than your competitors. You can and should learn more from failure than winning. You gain experience from failure. You can be motivated by failure. A lot of good can come from failure if you allow it to.

As a competitor you need to understand this, failure is one of the best opportunities for you to improve. Falling short of your goals allows you an invaluable source of feedback. First you know what you did well. Then you know what you need to improve on. How you can adjust your practices. How you can improve your preparation both mentally and physically. You can make greater advancements when you know there is room for improvement and failure provides just that opportunity.

Make no mistake, I am not telling you that you have to like failing. Absolutely not! I have never met a successful person who likes failing. Most athletes who win hate failing, but they also embrace the experience, knowing that they can learn more by failing than by winning all of the time.

C.J. Aragon was named the 2008-2011 Grand Canyon Region Coach-of-the-Year, 2014-2015 WJCAG Coach-of-the-Year, 2016 Southwest Region Coach-of-the-Year, and 2010 National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Coach-of-the-Year.

Meet the Member Garrett Koester

story by Lindsay King

“What you do in high school does not really determine what you are going to do later in life,” said Garrett Koester from Wellston, Oklahoma. “Trevor Brazile was not the best in high school, but he progressed through college and pro rodeo and just kept getting better. High school does not define who you will be in the future. If you want to work hard at it and get better, then you determine your own future.” The Wellston High School graduate has everything going for him as he heads into his freshman year at Southeastern Oklahoma State University in Durant, Oklahoma, this fall. “I will major in occupational safety and health, so I can become a safety inspector in the oil and gas industry.” Once Garrett reaches a level of seniority in his career, he aspires to rodeo in the PRCA. “Everyone’s dream is to make a living at rodeo, but that is not always realistic. I like the security of having a good paying job so I can have my own ranch with a decent cattle herd, a good roping arena and a nice house for my family.”

Professional rodeo is a family tradition for the Koester family. Both his parents Rex and Dawn rodeoed professionally and his sister Hollee, 21, was a star breakaway roper in high school. “I have been roping calves since I was seven, that was the event my dad did too. He did not want me to start heading steers until I had my calf loop down really well.” Garrett started team roping just four years ago after mastering his calf score and horsemanship. “My dad wanted me to focus on one event and he didn’t want me to cut my thumb off, so I didn’t team rope until I started to get pretty handy with a loop.” His dad helps him practice every night after work and school are over. “We rope more calves than steers, but I’ll saddle all the horses before dad gets home. Everything is loaded so we can practice until dark.” Garrett puts all the animals up, does his homework only to wake up and do it all again.

“I am blessed that my dad is a talented welder, he built us an indoor calf roping lane when I was in junior high. There is not really a day when I don’t practice. Usually we give the horses a break the day after a rodeo weekend, but even then I am roping a dummy.” There is a tie for Garrett’s favorite rodeo between the IFYR and anything held at the Lazy E Arena. “Shawnee is such a big venue and the IFYR pulls such a great crowd. And then to compete against the best in high school from around the world is something else.” Coming out from under the same awning as so many greats before him, is the draw for the Lazy E.

Garrett will spend his summer and fall competing at as many IPRA and ACRA events as he can. “Competing at IPRA events is neat because a lot of top competitors, who have made the IFR, are there. And it feels good to make a solid run and

beat some of those guys.” His proudest moment in rodeo so far was when he first tied a calf in eight seconds at a small jackpot. “A good friend of my grandpa always tells me to string the toe before you go. If you don’t string the toe, then you speed jam and you waste more time than if you slowed down and were smooth.” The hardest part of rodeo for Garrett in the team roping is not having any control over how his heeler ropes. But in the calf roping he simply competes against his calf instead of the other contestants. Garrett took his passion for rodeo and applied it to FFA, winning the state star in agribusiness award in his district. “I did mine about the companies I represent, my rodeo sponsors. After state, I did an interview with Ron Hayes. I was able to mention my sponsors and thought it was a cool avenue for my sponsors to be represented. More than just the patch on my arena shirts.”

WHERE PASSION

& Quality MEET

Meet the Member Lucy Richards

story by Lily Weinacht

Lucy Richards from Hereford, Texas, is sitting in the top five in the AJRA standings in all five of her events: barrel racing, pole bending, ribbon roping, goat tying, and breakaway roping. The 12-year-old started her rodeo career when she was 4, following in the boot prints of her older sister, Madalyn, who also competes in the AJRA. "My favorite events are probably breakaway or goats. In breakaway, my dad and my sister are the ones who started me, so it's one of the events we work on the most," says Lucy, whose fastest breakaway run is a 2.6. "In goat tying, I like the speed, and if you work hard, you're successful."

Lucy and Madalyn practice together, often joined in the arena by their parents, Joe and Brandi Richards. "I look up to my dad. If we go in the alley, he's there, and he ropes at the house sometimes and tunes the horses up," says Lucy, who's the third generation in her family to rodeo. "Mom helps us with goats when we're doing ground work, and opens chutes when we breakaway at the house." Lucy's grandmother, Cherokee Charlesworth, is also very involved in Lucy and her cousins' rodeo careers, traveling to many of their rodeos and videoing their runs. Her sewing skills are also on display every time Lucy and her cousins make a run in one of their grandmother's handmade rodeo shirts.

Along with competing in the AJRA, Lucy recently finished her first season in the TJHRA, where she was the Region 2 Reserve Breakaway Roping Champion and Reserve Rookie of the Year. She placed seventh in the first round of goat tying at state finals, and was pleased with her barrel racing and pole bending runs. Just two weeks before state finals, Lucy's breakaway horse Cactus passed away from colic and her family bought a 17-year-old gelding named Mickey Mouse, who carried her through state finals. She also ribbon ropes off Mickey Mouse, and runs barrels on Rowdy. Her mare Molly can do any event, but Lucy rides her in pole bending and goat tying. "We take seven horses to rodeos, and I put all my saddles and headstalls in the trailer and make sure I have all my rodeo clothes, plus put our Back on Track boots on the horses and putting feed in the trailer." They also bring along their goats to practice tying before rodeos, and never leave for a rodeo without Boots, their three-legged rat terrier.

vorite AJRA rodeos of the year. "Most of the time there's basketball tournaments at the finals, and we get to play with all our friends and go swimming. I play basketball in Canyon and Amarillo year round, and next year I'll play school basketball. Shooting and following through in basketball is like roping, and it keeps me in shape, and staying low in goats is like playing home defense in basketball," Lucy explains. Madalyn plays Varsity basketball with her high school, and the sisters enjoying shooting hoops together on their back porch.

Before she starts seventh grade at Vega Junior High School this fall, Lucy is visiting her cousins, who also junior high rodeo in Texas, and she's attending her first basketball camp in August. She also enjoys writing fantasy stories and going swimming. "My goal is to make it to Nationals, and I want to get faster in my goat runs and breakaway runs. And in the AJRA, I'd like to win the average in breakaway and the all-around." 🐾

article by Youthaning Team

Navigating the supplement aisle at your local health food store can be frustrating. What probiotic is best for my family and me? Why do I need magnesium? And what's up with Zinc, anyway? How can it help my hair grow and increase my immune system? To preempt your desperate real-time shopping difficulties, here's a little intel on the minerals and supplements women should consider.

Of course, this road map is only an essential guide to supplements and minerals. They are utilized for different reasons and, therefore, the recommended amounts will differ from woman to woman. Check with your healthcare provider for more personalized guidance. Youthaning.com's motto is "beauty and health start from the inside out."

Meet the Member McKayla Miller

McKayla Miller put her town of St. John, Kansas, on the map at the 2018 NJHFR, winning Reserve All-Around Champion Cowgirl and finishing in the top ten in the nation in three of her events. The 13-year-old represented Kansas at the 2017 NJHFR as well but truly found her stride this year, returning home with a Slone Saddle, six buckles, and other prizes such as a therapy sheet for her horse, gift certificates, and scholarship money. Fortunately, she had just won a buckle holder at state finals a few weeks before, though some of the buckles may go on belts they hang in their house. "I really like it (Nationals) because everybody there is good and you have to step up your game and do good," says McKayla. "It's always fun hanging out with everybody for more than just two days, and a few of my friends and I went to a water park in town."

Going into the NJHFR as the 2018 KJHSRA All-Around Cowgirl and Barrel Racing Champion, and reserve state champion in goat tying and ribbon roping with Cash Fuesz, McKayla finished fourth in the world in goat tying, and eighth in ribbon roping and breakaway roping. She and Cash have been ribbon roping partners the last two years, McKayla running and Cash roping, while she also team roped this season with Peyton Blank. Though she enjoys all of her roping events, breakaway roping is her favorite. Her parents, Mark and Denise Miller, have both roped and taught McKayla. Mark continues to team rope and Denise runs barrels, while McKayla's aunt Sandy Sherwood and cousin Carly Strobel taught her to tie goats. Her 11-year-old brother, Mace, also ropes, and McKayla enjoys entering jackpots or USTRC ropings with her dad on occasion.

McKayla Miller at the 2018 NJHFR - Acentric Rodeo

Following the NJHFR, McKayla and her family stopped at a lake in South Dakota on their way home to camp for several days, kayak, fish, and go for trail rides. The horses she took to Nationals, Willie, Hidalgo, and Tadpole, also enjoyed the change of scenery. "My barrel horse, Willie, is usually pretty consistent and he takes care of me really well, especially considering that he's blind in one eye. I tie goats on my Paint horse we call Hidalgo, and I head on him too. Cash tied goats on him too—he won state in goat tying and 17th in the nation, and we were up the same nights. My breakaway horse is Tadpole. I trained him myself and started to ride him when he was 4, and we learned together. He's my favorite—he's pretty goofy and I feel like we have a special bond."

Before the fall rodeo season starts, McKayla is spending the rest of her summer playing in basketball tournaments and going to a volleyball camp. She also plays on her school's basketball team, and starts eighth grade this fall at St. John Junior High School. Several of her friends that live nearby enjoy riding as well and they get together and ride bareback. Although she competed in Little Britches rodeos this spring, her main focus is on junior high rodeos and a third qualification to the NJHFR. "Just being successful and having good teachers makes rodeo a lot more fun, and the great horses," says McKayla. "My new goal is to win the all around next year at Nationals." 🐾

Meet the Member Sidney Chapple

For as far back as she can remember, chasing cans and the goals that go with them have been a part of Sidney Chapple's life. The 18-year-old from Newton, Kansas, achieved one of those goals this year when she signed onto the Pratt Community College rodeo team. The rodeo scholarship will get her started on her animal science degree, which she plans to finish at Kansas State University, followed by their veterinarian program.

Barrel racing set many of Sidney's goals in motion. Her grandmother Marlene Gleason ran barrels and trained horses for many years, and continues to give Sidney advice and encouragement. Sidney's mom, Amy Chapple, also runs barrels and trains horses, and Sidney caught the fever for the sport when she was 10. "I enjoy barrels so much because I love horses in general. Also, with school sports, you're a team, whereas with any rodeo event in general, you're competing for yourself, and you also have the responsibility of caring for your horse." She competes in numerous jackpots and the Kansas Central 4D Barrel Racers association, and she joined the KHSRA as a junior. "High school rodeo has been a big eye opener for me in a good way. It's way different compared to jackpots and a lot tougher, but you just have to raise the bar up to be just as competitive."

Raising the bar helped her win second in the barrels at Canton last summer. The August heat and a sore horse tested Sidney's mental game, but the pair prevailed and ran a 16.75. "My motivation is just the joy of what I love to do. I go to school, go to work, and do homework and exercise horses. I've never thought of what else I would do—it's always been a joy of mine. I definitely look up to my mom, because any problem I have, I'll ask her what I can do to fix it. We always bounce ideas off each other of what to do next." Sidney and her mom travel to KHSRA rodeos and all their barrel races together. "What makes it so fun is that my mom is my best friend, so taking a road trip every other weekend or every weekend together can be pretty fun."

Sidney's main barrel horse is Trixie, a mare that her mom trained. Sidney's grandpa Ted Gleason broke all the colts that Sidney's mom has trained. "His training establishes a great foundation with the horses in order for them to have a great disposition," says Sidney. "I started to need more competitive horses and I ended up getting Trixie, and she's just clicked and been the most fun thing to ride. This summer she had surgery, so I've been riding some of Mom's colts. I also ride Juice and Snoopy, who are backups. I help my mom wherever I can. She'll always critique me, which is helpful, because I'm always trying to learn." Sidney also helps her dad, Wesley Chapple, with the family's small cow/calf operation, and she has a younger brother, Carson, who loves to hunt and is interested in entering the rifle shoot in the KJHSRA.

Since graduating from Halstead High School in May, during which she also spent several hours of the school day working at a vet clinic, Sidney has been competing in jackpots this summer. She also competed in the KHSRA state finals in June and finished 17th in the state in barrel racing. "They take the top 15 for the short go with the most points collected throughout the whole year. That was disappointing and rewarding all at the same time. I was proud that I was close considering I didn't go to all the rodeos in the spring," says Sidney. Her latest focus is college rodeoing for PCC this fall. "I definitely want to college rodeo as long as I can. If it works out, I really hope that I can barrel race for as long as possible because it's my main hobby that I just love to do." 🐾

Meet the Committee Top of Texas Rodeo

by Siri Stevens

Pampa, Texas is 60 miles northeast of Amarillo, Texas, and this is the first year Top of Texas Rodeo is first approved KPRA rodeo. "I've rodeoed for a long time, and I am watching the KPRA grow and really try to help the cowboys," said Tanner Winkler, current president of the board. Tanner competes in steer wrestling and will be one of the contestants. "I am cracking out again," said the 39-year-old who works in the gas field. He is married to Amy and they have three daughters. "This is our 72nd rodeo and we've been everything from a pro rodeo to UPR. And the rodeo

- courtesy of Top O' Texas Rodeo Association has switched from the end of July to the second weekend of August. This helps the cowboys get to as many rodeos around here as they can."

Top of Texas has added $600 per event. There is a free barbeque on Friday, which starts at 5:30 before the rodeo. There is mutton bustin for the kids, and that is a big draw for the area.

Farm and ranch and oil field is the industry around the area.

We've got free style bull fights coming in this year and we are going to be the first amateur rodeo to do that this year.

We are also going to have a celebrity bull ride—actually for the business people. Our mayor and our police chief are going to ride a bull on Friday night. "They've already agreed to it," said Tanner.

NIRAA Inc. to Award $30,000 in Scholarships at the 2019 College National Finals Rodeo

By Merrill Ellis

The National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Alumni, Inc. (NIRA Alumni) announced today that they will award $30,000 in scholarships to collegiate rodeo athletes at the College National Finals Rodeo (CNFR) in 2019.

"To date, this is our largest scholarship contribution in the 27 year history of the NIRA Alumni. We are both excited and proud to make this announcement," stated Butch Bratsky, NIRA Alumni, Inc. President.

The $30,000 educational support was decided upon at the NIRA Alumni, Inc. Summer Board Meeting which was held at the Ramkota Conference Center in Casper, Wyoming June 14.

The NIRA Alumni, Inc. scholarship program is funded solely by former NIRA champions and NIRA Alumni contributions. Recently, the group awarded $11,500 at the 70th Annual CNFR in Casper. The scholarship recipients were recognized for their rodeo achievements at the CNFR awards ceremony June 16.

Currently, the alumni give two $1,000 scholarships and 19 $500 awards. These scholarships include: the fourth place CNFR men and women's team, the Stan Harter award, Jerry Beagley rough stock and timed event all around, Jerry Beagley and Martha Josey go-round barrel race winners, the Thurston short go winner in goat tying, and each rookie of the year in all of the eleven NIRA events, plus two all around rookies.

Dick Claycomb, NIRA Alumni board member was appointed as head of the scholarship committee to allocate where the additional $18,500 will be awarded. These new scholarships and the award amount will be announced at the December alumni board meeting in Las Vegas.

NIRA Alumni, Inc. membership and scholarship contributions are the cornerstones of being a NIRA Alumni, Inc. member. The group is a 501 (c) (3) organization.

"We are excited to support students to ensure undergraduates have a positive collegiate rodeo experience," stated Butch Bratsky, NIRA Alumni, Inc. President.

YOUNG HORSE

article by Dale Woodard

I have told stories in previous articles about going to brandings. When I go to a branding I'm going for a couple of reasons. One is for my horses, I think it's good for them to do something different than just warm up and then team rope in an arena day after day. And the second reason is for me. I want to prove to myself that my horses and I can cur it as an outside cowboy as well as in the arena.

Recently I got invited to a branding, oh and by the way I only go to brandings where they rope their calves. If they use a calf table I politely decline the invitation. Well anyway, I spend all week preparing for this branding. I have a five year old horse that is coming along well in the arena and I thought this would be good for him. The fellow that owns the cattle mentioned if I came a day early I could help with a small roundup on my horse to get a little bunch of cattle closer to the corrals. And then the next morning we would make the big circle to gather the big bunch. It sounded good to me so off I went.

My young horse got a little stirred up while we were gathering the little bunch the night before but he calmed down as we got closer to the corrals so I thought he would be fine the next day. Wrong. Man when all of those riders left the trailers on a long trot headed for the back end of the ranch my horse lost his mind. I mean, I tried to long trop with everybody else but all he wanted to do was gallop. I figured when we got to the other end of the ranch (about three miles) and started gathering cattle heading for the corrals he would calm down. Wrong again, man I mean he was stirred up, prancing, dancing, trying to go sideways and he even reared a couple of times. I did all I could do to communicate to him that I wanted him to slow his feet down but nothing I did seemed to have much effect. But as they say, there is always a ram in the bush. Once we got the cattle gathered and started dragging calves the boss called me over to the side and gave me new directions. He said, "These calves are bigger than I thought and harder on our ground crew than we need so when anybody brings a calf in by the neck I want you to heel them." That sounded good to me and that is where my colt had had the most work. After I heeled about twenty-five calves my horse was much better.

Dale when he used to clown, at Oakdale in 1993
- Fred Nyulassy

Once we got all of the calves worked of course we went back to the ranch house for a big lunch. During lunch the boss mentioned that if anybody wanted to rope more they were going to meet at his arena and team rope some steers after lunch. I had brought two horses and I had planned on riding my second horse for the team roping but I figured that if my young horse wanted to act like a fool gathering maybe he needed a little more work so I roped another fifteen steers on him.

To say that I was disappointed with my horse and embarrassed at his performance while on the big roundup is an understatement. So I made a plan. Instead of giving my horse a break I rode him every day for ten days straight after the branding and then took him to a jackpot. My plan must have worked because at the jackpot they had one hundred and forty-four teams entered and I placed on my colt. After the jackpot he got one day off and then back to work. I love being nice to my horses and pampering them but when they act like fools I'm not opposed to pouring the work to them.

This experience at the branding was embarrassing mentally and a little hard on my body physically but I think it was really good for my young horse so I'm willing to pay the price. When my wife and I go on an adventure apart or together we always ask each other on our return home, would you go again? My answer this time was yes, it helped my horse but I think next year I will take a different horse to ride on the big circle. 🐾

*Thanks for the visit,
Dale*

Mia Manzanares has come a long way since being on the cover of the Rodeo News in August of 2012. Six years later, the 21-year-old cowgirl has achieved her goals she set at that time. She will be a senior at McNeese State University and will graduate with a degree in pre physical therapy. She will continue for an additional three years to become a physical therapist.

She was in pre law for a year and half way through, she tore her ACL. After surgery with Dr. Tandy Freeman, and extensive physical therapy, she realized that what she wanted to do is help others recover from injury and get back to the sports or activities they love to do. "I made the college finals that year even though I was out for a few rodeos, but I decided not to go because of my ACL."

She sat out for four months, the beginning of her sophomore year, and didn't make the finals. "There's lots of things I could have done better, but that was a rebuilding year for me. I had to trust myself again. Stacey Martin, my goat tying coach, worked with me more on the mental than physical," she admits. "I competed for so long with it torn that I was over protective of it." Dr. Tandy told her it would take a year before she felt 100% and he was right. She worked with some great physical therapists that helped her with workouts and machines to strengthen her leg and get her ready again. "That's another reason I want to pursue that." Time is what she attributes getting past the mental part of goat tying. "I stepped off a lot and stepped off the dummy a lot. Stacey and I watched videos and really time and repetition."

She came back her junior year, made her goal sheet, and accomplished all three of her goals, winning the Goat Tying, Breakaway Roping, and All Around titles at the 2018 CNFR. "From the beginning of the rodeo season, it was different – I'm super blessed I was able to achieve all three of those goals."

She is spending some time relaxing in New Mexico with her horses. "We are fly fishing and hanging out." Then she will head back and ride some colts and start all over again. "I want to break arena records – I tied an arena record this year – and hopefully next year I'll be a 5.6 in the goat tying and break that one again and win everything I won this year. I also want to graduate and pursue my doctorate in physical therapy."

roper and goat tyer."..]*

Neither of her siblings compete. "After hauling with me when they were little, they had no desire to do it themselves. They love to watch me, but they don't compete." Her brother, Micah, just got accepted into a computer college and her little sister, Emma, is going to be a sophomore in high school. "I can't believe she'll be driving this year." Both her parents, Pancho and Kathryn, support her and she is quick to attribute her success to them and her goat tying coach, Stacey. 🐾

Meet the Member Josie Conner

story by Michele Toberer

Setting goals and achieving them has been a significant part of Louisiana cowgirl, Josie Conner's life; and she can now check obtaining a world champion title off her goal list. The 14-year-old, homeschooled, 8th-grader is basking in the glow of her newly acquired National Junior High Champion Breakaway Roper buckle that she just earned in Huron, South Dakota. Josie came to the NJHSFR with confidence after recently being crowned the 2018 Louisiana Junior High School Rodeo Association State Champion Breakaway Roper but knew the stakes and level of competition were going to be even higher at the national competition. However, preparing for the national finals was no different than the preparation she puts in for rodeo every day. Practicing for rodeos is a part of the Iowa, Louisiana cowgirl's daily existence, as she is always getting ready for the next rodeo, whether it is for junior high rodeo or one of the many association rodeos that she competes in. Josie is currently one of the top 10 breakaway ropers in the LRCA, CPRA, and UPRA, and is determined to reach her goals of making the season finals for each of those associations. Her sights are also set on qualifying for the RFD-TV American Rodeo, as she competes at the Roy Cooper Open Breakaway roping qualifier in July.

Josie's parents are both LHSRA alumni; Wendi, a Pfizer Pharmaceutical sales rep, was a LHSRA All-Around Champion Cowgirl, and Jade, a clinician and rancher, was a LHSRA calf roper and team roper. Jade has turned his focus from his own PRCA rodeo career, to his daughter's rodeo ambitions and he and Wendi proudly support their only child in all that she does. "If it wasn't for my dad, I wouldn't be who I am as a roper."

In Huron, Josie roped her first calf Monday morning, winning the round with a 2.19 second run. "I was anxious to rope my second calf on Friday night. I was glad I had knocked my first round out, but I still needed to rope good." Josie roped her second calf in 2.69 seconds, which kept her in the number one spot in the aggregate coming into Saturday's short-go. Although Josie was feeling a bit anxious as she watched the final few cowgirls before her, she knew that she had prepared for this exact run. "I had been watching the calves I had drawn and knew that I drew good all week. I had Winston Frey pushing my calf, my dad was right there in the box with me, and my horse is special. I knew that whatever happened was meant to happen." Her dad's final advice was much like his advice before any calf, "he says, score sharp, be ready and just do what you can on this calf, attack it."

Josie's horse Pipee, an 11-year old black mare, put her in the perfect position to rope her final calf in just 3.3 seconds, clinching the championship title. "Pipee is sassy and thinks she owns everything and that it always needs to be her way, but I love roping on her, she makes it so easy." Once Josie knew she had won the title, a smile didn't leave her face. She was grateful she was able to see her dad for a hug before being whisked away for interviews and photos, celebrating the national champion cowgirl. She looks forward to making the most of the opportunities this national title will offer, including competing at the JR NFR in December.

Josie had a great experience at nationals all the way around. The Louisiana team not only earned several national and reserve national titles, but also grew closer through activities like the volleyball tournament. She enjoyed participating in the Cinch academic scholarship process and was grateful to receive a $500 academic scholarship. She plans to use her scholarships to obtain a business degree while she college rodeos for McNeese State University, with the goal ultimately being to work in the equine industry.

"I want to thank my parents for all they've done for me, and all of my friends for their support, including roping mentors, JJ Hampton, Lari Dee Guy and Hope Thompson." Josie also appreciates Charlie One Horse for giving her amazing hats all season, Lonestar Feed for keeping her horses looking great, Equine Catalyst and P&P Trailer Sales. 🐾

Luke & Grace Dubois

story by Michele Toberer

Luke Dubois has been taking on rodeo with a focus and determination like never before; despite the diagnosis he received in December that he has a low-grade glioma brain stem tumor, he has chosen to go full-steam ahead, doing everything he normally would do and more, until something prevents him from being able to. This drive to make the most of every rodeo opportunity has resulted in incredible results for the 15-year-old, Church Point, Louisiana 8th grader, and his 13-year-old sister, Grace. The two just earned world champion status as the NJHFR National Champion Ribbon Roping Team, finishing three rounds with a 25.5 second average time. “The tumor has made me come into the perspective that every day is a blessing, and every day that you can do what you want to do is a blessing from God. I’ve been trying to not take anything for granted. My dad and I talked about it, and we said we’re not going to let off the gas until something major has to happen.”

Luke and Grace are the two eldest children of parents, Jeanne and Shel Dubois, and they are a great example of determination and resolve for their four younger siblings, Faith, 11, John David, 9, Gabe, 6, and Clay, 4. The close-knit family owns Cajun Custom Saddles, Tack and Horse Training, where their dad makes a living training rope horses and starting colts, and their mom is busy keeping all of their children on a schedule of homeschooling and rodeo practice. This was Luke’s third year competing in the LJHSRA, and Grace’s rookie year. Grace was grateful to not only be Luke’s ribbon roping partner this past year, but his team roping partner as well. They were just one spot out of qualifying for nationals in team roping, but were the LJHSRA 2018 Reserve Champion Ribbon Ropers, and Luke was also the LJHSRA 2018 All-Around Champion Cowboy, qualifying for nationals in ribbon roping, goat tying, tie-down roping and chute dogging.

Luke’s parents have been determined this year to give Luke every opportunity to rope that they could, and it has proven to have paid off. He won a Dodge truck at a Fire It Up Productions Roping in May, had much success at the state finals, and besides his ribbon roping title at nationals, he also won the National Reserve Champion All-Around Cowboy title, missing the champion title by just 5-points. Luke won a round in the tie-down roping and came into the NJHFR short round in 2nd place in the aggregate, but his calf ran through his loop knocking him down in the average, still ending up 17th in the world. He was also in the short round in chute dogging, where he ended up 4th in the world.

The horse that Luke rode, Smart Jack Lena, is a 13-year-old, blaze-faced sorrel that he and his dad have both trained. He was Shel’s heel horse before they started training him to be a calf horse for Luke 3-years ago. “Jack runs hard, stops hard and is good for fast set-ups, but when he’s not working he’s like a puppy dog, I let my youngest brother ride him all over, he’s a really good horse.”

Grace and Luke watched each of their calves they had drawn and came to the arena with a game plan of how Luke would try to rope each calf. Shel pushed their calves, and Eric Aymond stood with him in the box while Luke focused on roping sharp and getting to the calf as quickly as possible, so he could hold it still for Grace to grab the ribbon. When the final team finished, and the siblings knew they had won, Luke said there was a hundred things going through his mind, but he was glad to see his sister so happy as they high-fived in celebration. “This was the first saddle Grace has ever won, I was pretty excited for her, I was pretty excited for us!”

Both Grace and Luke look forward to college rodeo one day, and while Grace hopes to become a veterinarian, Luke hopes to make a living as a professional roper, one day earning titles at the NFR.

Grace and Luke both appreciate all the help they get from their family, Jeremy Landry, and Uncle Polo Bacque. Grace finished by saying, “None of this would be possible without my mom, dad, and God.”

Meet the Member Kylie Conner

stories by Michele Toberer

High school rodeo has been a family affair for the Conners, as both parents Andree and Kyle Conner and their daughters, Kylie, 15, and Allie, 17, have been Louisiana High School rodeo members. These longstanding LHSRA ties made it even more rewarding for the family when Kylie won the LHSRA 2018 Champion All-Around Rookie Cowgirl buckle as well as the LHSRA 2018 Champion All-Around Cowgirl title and awards. "Now that finals are over, I'm both excited and nervous to get out there and go at nationals. It's a little nerve-racking since I'm a freshman and don't know exactly what to expect."

Kylie competed in the LJSRSRA all three years, and this first year of high school she competed in barrel racing, breakaway, goat tying and pole bending. She's been riding horses her whole life, adding more rodeo events as she went along. Although she only qualified for nationals in barrel racing, winning the 2018 LHSRA Champion Barrel Racer title, her season finishes in each of her other events are what put her on top in the tight all-around race this year. "It was really exciting to win those titles, I'm really grateful."

The Conners reside in Welsh, Louisiana, near where Kylie's mom also grew up, and Andree and Kyle now operate a directional drilling company. Kylie and Allie are both homeschooled, and during the school year, their weeks are filled with school lessons at their homeschool program classes three days per week, while they do schoolwork on their own two days each week. Kylie's favorite subject is math. Once the school work is completed each day, the practice pen is where you will find Kylie. She is either practicing at home or getting help from several rodeo mentors for her different events. Kylie is grateful to Jade Conner and KC Murphy for their help in breakaway roping, and Kyla Richard for her help with goat tying. As she prepares for nationals, her main focus is now on barrel racing, so she has been spending time at trainer, Talmadge Green's home, working to prepare herself and her horse, Fancy. Kylie's been riding her 9-year-old palomino gelding for 4 years and enjoys riding him because he is so fun to ride.

"Talmadge has been helping tune on him some and has been tuning on me some. We have been going to pens with a longer first barrel to rate down and prepare for the big pen at nationals. I'm trying to get my ducks in a row, so that I'm ready."

With a passion for rodeo, Kylie doesn't claim to have many hobbies, but enjoys time with family and going to watch Allie play basketball when they are not rodeoing. She hopes to continue rodeo after high school, and has her sights set on staying close to home, attending McNeese State University, and would like to be on the college rodeo team. She wants to obtain a degree while she is there, but her dreams are more focused on being a professional rodeo cowgirl than anything else. "I like to watch the pros, I learn a little from all of them, but mainly it makes me want to strive to be where they are."

Kylie believes that it is very important to believe in yourself, "You have to believe to achieve." Before her runs, she has a routine that includes giving Fancy a treat, and her mom gives him a kiss on the nose, leaving her lipstick mark for good luck. What makes a run even more perfect for

Kylie, is when the announcer plays the song Fancy, by Iggy Azalea. After his good runs, Fancy gets another treat, unless Kylie's mom sneaks him a few more.

"My friends and family are trying to calm my nerves, they tell me not to get nervous because it's just another rodeo. My goal if to go to Wyoming and make two good clean runs, and if that gets me to the short round, that's good. I hope to win, but if I don't, I still have three more years to go."

Kylie appreciates the LHSRA for putting on great rodeos and keeping the LHSRA going, recognizing that they all put in so much work. She is also grateful for the support of all her family and friends. 🐾

Meet the Member Gavin Soileau

Gavin Soileau, of Bunkie, Louisiana is no stranger to what it takes to win a national title. Gavin's older brother Gabe was the 2015 National High School Rodeo Association Steer Wrestling Champion. Gavin has competed in the LHSRA since he was in 8th grade, and just finished his senior year as the 2018 Champion LHSRA Steer Wrestler, and 2018 Champion LHSRA All-Around Cowboy. Although he didn't qualify for nationals in team roping, the points from heeling helped him clinch the all-around title. He is now on a mission to follow in his oldest brother's footsteps and bring another national steer wrestling title back to Louisiana.

Gavin is the third-oldest son of his parents, Kent, and Sadie Soileau, with his sister, Laney, 24, leading the pack. Garrett is 22, Gabe, 20, Gavin, 18; and Grant, 16, was named the 2018 Reserve Champion LHSRA Steer Wrestler and will be heading out to Wyoming to compete alongside Gavin. Kent keeps busy farming rice, corn, sugar cane, soybeans, wheat and cattle on the family's 10,000-acre farm, while Sadie keeps everything in the household running as it should for their family. Kent is a LHSRA alumni team roper and has tried to give his sons every opportunity possible to fulfill their rodeo dreams. He and Gavin's uncle, Matt Stagg, have helped Gavin and his brothers with team roping, also bringing them to Ricky Green clinics to fine tune the young ropers' skills. When the boys showed interest in chute dogging and steer wrestling, Gavin's parents brought them to Tom Carney's ranch in Bernice, Louisiana to attend his Steer Wrestling 101 clinic.

Gavin is grateful for the help of professional steer wrestlers like Rowdy Parrott, Tyler Waguespack, and Tyler Pearson. The Parrott family helped the Soileau brothers with horses and anything they needed as they got started. "I get to see how they practice, their intensity level and the work that they put in to make it to the NFR." Gavin has been competing on permit at PRCA rodeos, and after competing in steer wrestling in 13 rodeos so far this season, he's currently sitting 2nd in the permit-holder standings, racking up over $9,000 in winnings. Gavin also competes in UPRA, CPRA and LRCA rodeos on a regular basis.

This will be the second year Gavin has competed at the NHSFR. He's spending time with Tom Carney, fine-tuning little moves, running steers on horses, working on the dummy, and going back to basics so that he is as sharp as possible before he leaves. "Last year I got nervous and made simple mistakes. This year I am more prepared. I'm just going to make my runs and do what I can on my steers, and not worry about what everyone else is doing."

Gavin and Grant will both be competing with the bulldogging and haze horse they share. Slingshot is a 14-year-old bay gelding, born and raised on their farm. They found that he worked better as a bulldogging horse than head horse and have loved using him on that side the past 4-years. The haze horse they use is a 17-year-old black gelding named Ace, that Tyler Waguespack used when he was in high school. "Slingshot stands in the corner solid and leaves flat so I can see what I want on the barrier, getting a sharp barrier is so important."

Gavin will be attending McNeese State University in the fall, where he will compete on the college rodeo team while getting a degree in agricultural business before moving up to the pro-rodeo ranks. 🐾

Meet the Member Haven Wise

story by Michele Toberer

Arkansas Cowboy Association member, Haven Wise has just finished her senior year at Arkansas State University, graduating with a bachelor's degree in elementary education. Although she has enjoyed her time at ASU, as well as her internship at Greene Valley Tech, she is excited to start her new career, and ideally would like to secure a 4th grade teaching position right away. She wants to start a fresh new school year, on the other side of the teacher's desk.

Haven has lived in Arkansas since she was 5-years-old, when her dad's job took the family from Missouri to Jonesboro. Once in Arkansas, Haven's love of horses emerged as she was influenced by her uncles in two different arenas of the horse world. Haven's Uncle Greg Schaaf, who is a team roper, would put her on his team roping horses, letting her ride them around the roping pen between runs. Her Uncle Winred Saffell was involved in smaller horse shows around Jonesboro, and at 6-years old, she started entering barrel racing and speed events at local playdays. Her family didn't have much of a horse background, and were more involved in sports, questioning Haven's desire to jump into the horse world at first. "We all kind of learned together, and now every rodeo we go to, you can see my dad, Reg Saffell, right there."

The Saffell family has a long-standing presence in Arkansas, with a background in cattle and farming. Haven has fond memories of spending weekends at her grandparent's house, located in small-town, Saffell, Arkansas, with family, and family land, surrounding them. When Haven was a young teen, her friend Cayla Cory introduced her to the rodeo world, and her rodeo love affair began. "I fell in love with rodeo after the first one I went to. It is so much fun when you can compete and make some money when you win. I just love the atmosphere, it just gives you so much hype when you go out there." Haven began going to the Wednesday night, Ash Flat rodeos held each week from May until August, at the Hall Rodeo Arena in Ash Flat, Arkansas. When she turned 18, she bought her IPRA and WPRA member cards, in addition to her ACA card, and ran barrels in all of them.

Another love affair that came along with rodeo, was with her husband Garrett Wise, whom she met at the Ash Flat rodeos, and after dating for a couple of years, they were engaged and then married three years later, in October, 2017. Garrett is a bullfighter that is also on the ACA Board of Directors, serving as the labor director. He works with Hall Rodeo Company putting on rodeos, when not working as the assistant manager for a seed and chemical company, MFA Chemical.

Haven competes in barrel racing on Fame, a 13-year-old sorrel mare that she's owned for 7 years. "She has so much personality, when she walks in the barn you can tell her mood when you look at her. At rodeos, she is very consistent, and I know she's going to give me the same run every time." Four years ago, Haven purchased Fame's full sister from Gay Self in Missouri; a 9-year-old palomino named Keeper. "Keeper has good and bad days, you either like her or you don't, my dad and husband don't. I have fallen in love with her though, and I am hopeful to get her going in her rodeo career this next season, hopefully starting her in some IPRA rodeos."

Haven enjoys being an ACA member and looks forward to a future filled with rodeo. "It's so important to have a strong mental game when you rodeo, and to have family and friends that lift you up and encourage you, Garrett really helps me, bringing me up when I'm down, and is always positive. The ACA is awesome because it's such a competitive group of girls, top to bottom in the standings, any girl could win on any given night. Lord willing, I'll still be going well into my 80's."

Meet the Member Ethan Wheeler

story by Michele Toberer

Crossing state lines is a regular routine for team roper Ethan Wheeler who lives in Pisgah, Alabama, rodeos on the East Mississippi Community College rodeo team, and competes with a Tennessee college header. He and partner, Ross Mitchell have been friends and roping partners since high school, and although they attend colleges in different states, they are in the same NIRA Ozark region and ended up as 3rd place team in the region and Reserve Champion Team Ropers at the national college finals in 2017. This year, Ross and Ethan took 4th in the region and although the two didn't have the finals they hoped for, they are ready to go at it again next season as Ethan joins Ross at the University of Tennessee at Martin next year. While Ethan has been studying business in his Mississippi Community college classes, he intends to obtain a bachelor's degree in farm and ranch management from UTM, staying involved in raising beef and Longhorn cattle as his family has been for generations. Because Ethan takes all online classes from East Mississippi Community College, he has been able to still live at home in Alabama with his parents, Alan and Rhonda Wheeler, but will be moving to Tennessee to attend UTM in the fall. Ethan has been a member of the SPRA since he was in high school, but last year was the first year he attended most of the season rodeos, which payed off well for him as he won the 2017 SPRA Champion Heeler title, heeling for Jake Wells.

Roping was a big part of Ethan and his older sister Taylor's upbringing. Ethan remembers riding in the front of his parents' saddles with them as they roped and turned slow steers in the practice pen. Because his dad was an active team roper, attending many USTRC ropings, Ethan competed in many of the dummy ropings held at the USTRC events, winning his first dummy roping buckle when he was 5-years old. Ethan has been blessed to have family from both sides surrounding him as he and his family live on the family land his dad grew up on. Alan works for a cement plant out of Chattanooga, and Rhonda is the principal of the high school Ethan attended. "I liked having my mom there as the principal, I wasn't out trying to get into any trouble, everyone expected me to be doing the right thing. I actually had a lot of freedoms because of her being there."

Ethan is grateful to have many good ropers in close proximity, and if he's not practicing at his home arena, he has several arenas to practice at nearby. Although many ropers have influenced his roping style, he mainly attributes his skills and success to the help from his dad, and his dad's roping partner, Stacey Peek. "Stacey has heeled for my dad for years, and they are partners on equipment and cattle besides being roping partners." As for pro ropers to emulate, Ethan looks to his favorite roper, Clay O'Brien Cooper, "Clay is very consistent, he's always the same whether he catches or misses. I try to have a good attitude like him." Having a good attitude was important when his good rope horse died from Tetanus a few months ago. He had to quickly adjust to roping on his 7-year old bay roan gelding, Mayhem. "We call him Mayhem because he gets into everything, I've had him 6 years but mainly practiced on him, so I hadn't hauled him much and he wasn't really seasoned yet, but he's doing really well now."

Future plans for Ethan after college include building chicken houses to manage on his family farm so that he can have a steady income. He plans to continue rodeoing in the SPRA, while he works to save enough money to one day, go out west and take his shot at making his WNFR gold buckle dreams come true. 🐾

"Nothin' but Rodeo"

Meet the Member Chelsie McDade

story by Lily Weinacht

“I know there’s so much that goes into rodeo, and life would be a lot simpler without the animals, but I know I could never actually be happy without horses and rodeo in my life.” Chelsie McDade, a member of the APRA for six years and counting, found her passion in grade school, taking riding lessons from a family friend. That rapidly expanded into rodeoing, first in youth rodeo associations, followed by high school rodeoing for Pennsylvania and then college rodeoing for Northeastern Oklahoma A&M University and the University of Tennessee at Martin. Her junior and senior year of college, Chelsie punched her ticket to the CNFR in breakaway roping and goat tying.

“I was the first one in my family to rodeo. I have a younger sister, Alainie McDade, who competes as well, and we picked it up pretty quick,” says Chelsie, 28. “We made a lot of friends, and they were more than willing to help us out. Bill and Wendy Wenrich helped tremendously with roping and using their horses, and so did Dale Smith.” While she also competed in barrel racing in high school, Chelsie’s first love in rodeo has always been breakaway roping. “I like the difficulty and challenge of it, and that you have to count on something more than just your horse or your skill.”

Chelsie qualified for AFR 39 in the breakaway roping, which was her first qualification to the finals. She’s long appreciated that the APRA sanctions breakaway roping, one of the reasons she joined the association in 2012. “There’s a decent amount of their rodeos around my area, and especially in the past, it was a struggle to find rodeos that had breakaway roping. It’s becoming more popular now, thankfully. I like Benton because it’s close to home, but I also enjoy Attica. Two years ago they started holding the multiple rounds up there, so instead of everyone competing and then going home, everyone camped out and had a good time, kind of like we did in high school or college.”

Chelsie bought her main rope horse,

Fancy, while she was going to school in Tennessee, and finished and hauled her. “She’s definitely a quirky mare, but I wouldn’t have her any other way. When we’re walking into the box, I let her do her own thing. My parents bought me another horse, Jiggs, when I was a junior in high school, and I used her all through college and breakaway roped and tied goats off her. I just had a baby out of her, Jewel, who turned a year old at the beginning of June. I’m working with her and training her now.”

When she’s not hauling to the next rodeo with her sister, or fellow breakaway roper Paige Pursel, Chelsie works for an electric company as their accountant. She took the job six years ago when she was living in Tennessee, and was able to set up an office to work in from home when she moved back to Selinsgrove, Pennsylvania, several years ago. “I fly back down there two to three times a year. I’m so very blessed to have come across such a wonderful family-owned business, and I enjoy working with numbers,” says Chelsie. She’s also planning her wedding, which is set for November of 2019. She and her fiancé, Justin, met through a mutual friend, and they enjoy kayaking and tubing in the summer. Chelsie has introduced Justin to the rodeo world, while he’s cultivated her interest in football, particularly watching Pennsylvania State University play. “Justin doesn’t ride, but he’s very supportive of what I do. My main goal is to continue to compete and get better, and make the AFR. I’m planning on training Jewel completely on my own, so my goal is to have her as a finished breakaway horse eventually.”

Cassie Vaughan

story by Lindsay Whelchel

Cassie Vaughan's life is steeped in rodeo history and tradition. Her grandparents Kenny and Debbie Vaughan were heavily involved in the International Professional Rodeo Association in the organization's early days, with Kenny working as a pickup man and Debbie as an IPRA photographer.

And as all family traditions are, rodeo was passed down through the generations for the Vaughan family.

Cassie's dad became a calf roper in the IPRA, and originally from Ottawa Lake, Michigan, Cassie grew up playing as a child on the many rodeo grounds her family traveled to throughout the year. IPRA stock contractors and contestants became like a second family to young Cassie. It was inevitable she would join in the sport in some way. Because of her dad, she picked up a rope. Because of the IPRA's induction of breakaway roping as a regular event in the professional rodeo season, Cassie has been able to take her passion to the next level in the same association as her family.

Cassie went through the high school and college rodeo ranks after her dad taught her how to rope, competing for Rogers State University and Southwestern Oklahoma State University on the rodeo teams. She also enjoyed the barrels and goat tying, but there was no denying her heart was in the breakaway roping.

"The whole event just draws me in. I really take the horsemanship part that's my favorite part about it. I've gotten to ride with some guys that have trained horses and taught me a lot about the way that the horse should work," Cassie describes.

A few years ago, just as Cassie was coming out of college, where she studied education, the IPRA added breakaway roping, and Cassie's future as a professional in the sport was catapulted.

["the IPRA is kind of like a family to me. I'm very close with a lot of the people in the organization, and it just means a lot to me...."]

But she is also now a school teacher at Burcham Elementary in Weatherford, Oklahoma teaching kindergarten, so she isn't able to travel to some of the far rodeos during the school year, putting a tighter window on her competition efforts. Her first couple of years in the IPRA, Cassie missed qualifying for the International Finals Rodeo by as little as five and fifteen dollars.

"When I made it to my first [IFR] it was a huge accomplishment to me because of course being a teacher I have to spend a lot of time at home, and it's hard for me to get to go to some of the bigger rodeos," Cassie says, and adds sentimentally, "the IPRA is kind of like a family to me. I'm very close with a lot of the people in the organization, and it just means a lot to me, this association does."

Now, Cassie is a multi-time IFR qualifier, and she's seen the sport of breakaway really take off in the IPRA over the past few years.

"We are very, very fortunate; us breakaway ropers are. It's wonderful when a rodeo adds breakaway. We know we're a new event, and we really appreciate the event being added," she enthuses. "To me, every summer has gotten busier and busier. We have a lot more options on where we can go, because more committees are adding breakaway to their rodeos, so I feel very blessed and fortunate to be able to keep busy all summer. Rodeo to me is kind of like my vacation almost, because I'm getting to go all the time and see new places, and I really enjoy being on the road."

And no doubt, being on the road in the IPRA is only natural for Cassie. After all, she's just carrying on the family name...

Cassie would like to thank her family for always standing behind her and doing everything they can to help her, along with her boyfriend, IFR qualifier Cody Goertzen and IPRA traveling partner Jenna Lee Hays, and the Hays family for their support, as well as her sponsors, Tres Rios Silver and Watson's Welding and Fabrication Services LLC. "Just anybody down the road who has ever helped me get where I am today, I'm very very appreciative of everybody, she says." 📞
