Regular Feature | From the Chief Cook and Bottle Washer

Help Wanted: Social media partners for Rodeo News summer run. Partners will receive compensation of money, western attire, assorted paraphernalia, and, of course, the famous Rodeo News hat! If interested, contact me for details at info@rodeonews.com

I don't think we've ever had 12 association finals in the same issue of Rodeo News in all the years I've been the chief cook and bottle washer. It's impressive to watch the staff gather the information and work with the secretaries and photographers. Remember as you head to the rodeos this summer the hard work of the committees and secretaries go through to help you chase your dreams!

We have an error in the June 1 issue on the Deer Trail article (pg 20). It states that the first rodeo was July 4, 1969. It should be 1869 - and for the life of me I can't figure out how that happened. Gail Woerner, rodeo historian, compiled that article and the date read 1869 in the editorial to proof folder, which is where we place the articles from ... my apologies to you, Mom!

We received a note from a young man that we featured in the Rodeo News:

I just wanted to check in and share a little. If you remember in my interview my goal was to sing at the NFR and rope in the perf. Well I just got offered my first small step in that direction. I got an offer to sing at the Tuffest Jr World Championship in Vegas this year! Now if I can just put my roping together maybe I can rope in it too. Thank you and Rodeo News for taking a chance on me and giving me this great exposure!

*Your friend,
Garrett Talamantes*

It is so wonderful to see the growth and goals of the people we write about - whenever I'm proofing the magazine and reading the stories, I am humbled by the gift God has entrusted me with in this magazine. To share the stories of hope and encouragement - that by reading them, someone might be touched - that is truly a blessing.

For those of you that have Dads in your lives - give them some special attention this Father's Day ... I hope to see you down the road sometime this summer - the cameras are cleaned and ready. The car is ready ... and so am I!

CASEY TIBBS MATCH OF CHAMPIONS

JUNE 1, 2019 • FT. PIERRE, SOUTH DAKOTA

story by Siri Stevens

The 26th Annual Match of Champions was held Saturday, June 1 at the Stanley County Fairgrounds in Ft. Pierre, South Dakota. It was a beautiful night, an outstanding crowd, and a great set of bucking horses. “In an interview at the end Wade Sundell told the crowd he might change his address to Ft. Pierre as he loves the event and coming here,” said Levi Garrett, one of the board members on the Casey Tibbs Foundation. “We are a board of 13 who put a lot of time and effort in for this fundraising event and it’s truly a group effort we are proud of.”

After three sections and 30 bronc riders, eight came back in the short go. All eight made scores in the 80s. Wade Sundell from Boholm, Iowa, won it with 86.5 on Maria Bartiromo from 3 Hills. Lefty Holman, from Visalia, California took second with 85 on Korkow’s Onion Ring. Spencer Wright from Milford, Utah took third (84) on Sutton’s South Point. Stetson Wright took fourth (83) with Korkow’s Meat Cracker.

“The funds we raise at this event supports the Casey Tibbs Rodeo Center and Hall of Fame which we are very proud of,” said Levi, who lives on the 137 year old family ranch 30 miles north of Ft. Pierre. “Ranching and rodeo is in our blood. My dad (Jim) rodeoed and was a state high school rodeo director. My mom (Sandy) was a Badlands WPRA Barrel Racing Director and judged Miss Rodeo America. My brother, Leon, was a PRCA steer wrestler. My Grandpa was a founder on starting 4-H Rodeo in South Dakota so as you can see rodeo is in our blood. “

Each year the Center has an Annual Tribute Dinner in November where they recognize people and animals from the sport of Rodeo. It’s always a sold out event. The Match of Champions allows the Center to raise funds to keep the Museum doors open and to continue to honor deserving people who have accomplished great things in rodeo from South Dakota! The Center will celebrate 10 years in Au-

BEFORE COLLEGE

article by C.J. Aragon

What parents need to teach their kids before they send them to college. We spend so much time in the practice arena and we ignore some of the basic skills they will need in college. Spend some time with them on the skills they will need in college outside of the arena.

Driving a truck and trailer. This one seems like a no brainer but it is amazing how many students show up to college and they have very limited experience driving a truck and trailer. Many accidents can be avoided if the kids simply knew how to drive a truck and trailer.

How to do laundry. I have had a few students that you would have to remind them to do their laundry. When they get to the point that you know they are at practice because of the smell, it is probably past time. I wish I was exaggerating.

Where to get feed for horses. Also seems like pretty trivial. Just because the feed is cheap does not mean it is quality. I have had students who thought they were being smart buying very cheap hay, the vet bills the paid made it much more expensive. Show them what quality feed is and where they can get it before you leave them on their own at college.

How much to feed daily. Many kids go to college and unfortunately their parents have handled all of the feeding for them in high school. They get to college and their horses get really thin or they get a buffet. Make sure they are capable of feed management before you leave them on their own.

How to enter a rodeo. If you have entered them their whole life you have not done them a favor. Teach them how to enter a rodeo or rodeos.

How to back a trailer. It is sometimes fun watching students learn to back their trailer. It is amazing that students will show up to school with a nice truck, trailer and horses and have no clue how to properly navigate any of them.

How to change a tire. For the past twelve years I have had to help change tires for students who have never learned how to. Just a side note, you don't have to have a flat to teach them how to properly change a tire. It is worth your time to teach them before they truly are in a bad situation.

When you need to shoe your horses. In most cases mom and dad have handled the shoeing scheduling and when the student gets to college they just expect it to continue to magically happen. Help them out a little here.

Hooking and unhooking a trailer. I have had students have trailers come unhooked going down the road because they didn't know how to safely hook a trailer. I also am experienced in wiring trailer plugs because not many know that is a key part of unhooking.

Basic vet care. A small cut shouldn't be a major emergency. All students who are sent to school should know basic vet care for their horses.

Time management. This may be the most important. For them to be successful they will need good time management skills. There are probably a lot I missed on this list but I hope it helps. 📌

THE FUN IS BACK

ABOUT MEN

article by Mark Eaton

I have spent the last two weekends with men. These were good men. Single, married, divorced. Some had children and others never did. Most were gainfully employed and a few of the younger, still in school.

Among us were law enforcement professionals, business owners, large equipment operators, a legendary tattoo artist, teachers, a personal trainer, a manufacturing maintenance professional, attorneys, an aircraft manufacturing manager, a security guard, a commercial building contractor, a federal explosives and weapons expert, a mayor, a business consultant, rodeo cowboys, a National Finals champion, pastors, a corporate pilot, a body builder, a dentist, a chiropractor, Marines, a DJ, a few truckers, a doctor, sailors and architects to give you a sampling. You get the idea. Diverse groups.

Here are four observations from my last 15 days.

Observation #1: Most men have similar themes.

- We long to be deeply connected and engaged with our spouse. Often the longing is unrequited or there is a seemingly “too much mutual hurt” to try.
- Betrayal, loss, deceit, crimes, fear and loneliness are common.
- Most use posing, posturing, pretending at some level or the ever-popular “strong-loof-silent” game to hide and avoid being known.
- We have successes, missteps, hopes, aches, insecurities, dreams and superpowers and gifts that are similar.
- A few of us are locked in habits of self-righteousness, Bible quotation addictions and judgmental attitudes about others who seem less-than or more-than us.
- At a not-so-buried level all, want to be known and understood.

Observation #2: Men generally love to talk. Not just about sports, politics and our boat. We talk about the time we lost our faith and regained it. About the time our wife had a crush on someone else. About our best friend’s death, our parents’ divorce, our Dad’s supportive words or the mockery from an uncle. About our struggle having friends beyond hobbies. About a wife who is cool to us but warm to the dog. About being a ‘tough guy’ when our heart is really kind and tender. We talk about the best fishing trip ever and that it was not about the fishing. How we miss our Dads. We talk about awkwardness and helplessness to offer anything of substance to our teenage daughters.

Get us together, provide a little self-disclosing leadership and the mature ones will pick up the ball and start talking and listening in a way that surprises even the women who witness it. These last two weekends we went into the morning hours, around a fire or on a porch, several times with meaningful conversations.

Observation #3: Some are terrified of talking. Shame still has us. We think we are alone or that our ‘stuff’ is too disgusting. We insist on keeping or finishing with a ‘positive’ tone. Every hard story we insist ends with a “happily ever after” sentence. We can shun any conversation that isn’t “positive”. Sadly, sometimes our faith leaders can be the most locked up in this regard. Understandably so. As a pastor I know the pressure to present the right image. I generally reject the notion. My congregants seem to appreciate it.

Those who have never heard another man tell the shameless truth of their story were uncomfortable early on. Scared to death actually. A few bailed to the local coffee shop or decided their wife needed them home early. The majority, with the nerve to hang in there, found a new way of doing friends, relating and grace.

The stoic-macho crowd, still locked in shame-cuffs, can get squeamish here. Overcoming decades of a “suck-it-up-dry-it-up” voice can take years to unwind. Some might even give that hollow speech about “I don’t need this crap” as internally, they are slowly dying on the vine.

However, after years of acute unresolved loneliness, all things eventually come to light. Our best friend becomes our job, a horse, a computer, the shop, busyness, fantasy women, silence, the truck, our phone and the prison of being locked inside our own head convincing ourselves that Epicureanism equals a rewarding life. Depression, image management, hedonism, disconnection from spouses, alcoholism, and anger can haunt us. We can be impeccably honest except with ourselves. We long to know and be known without knowing how to get there.

Observation #4: Growth accelerates when we own our story. This is a strange and counter intuitive truth. To own one’s story with just anyone is for fools. But to honestly journey with trusted others who know their story is a fabulous catapult into maturity. Humility happens. Angry outbursts, once a tool for action and manipulation, decrease. Fear dissipates. Image compulsions fade. Grace and deep contentment becomes the authentic norm. Life gets thick, weighty and rich regardless of income, zip-code, looks, abilities or toys.

Get good men around you. Keep them. Grow with them. Trust them.

RESISTOL ROOKIE

DAWSON HAY

article by Lily Weinacht

Dawson Hay put more than 100,000 miles on the odometer last season to win 2018 PRCA Resistol Saddle Bronc Riding Rookie of the Year. The 20-year-old from Wildwood, Alberta, traveled throughout the USA and Canada competing in nearly 90 PRCA rodeos while also qualifying for the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association Finals.

"My dad, Ron Hay, made the NFR 20 times in the saddle bronc riding, and I watched it my whole life growing up," says Dawson, who also watched several rounds of the 2018 WNFR before he accepted his rookie award. "That was always super cool cheering him on in the crowd, and watching it now when I'm older and actually riding broncs made it a little more realistic that a guy could be there. I'm going to work really hard to try and make it myself. There's so many cool bucking horses and cowboys getting on the best of the best, and if I could get a chance to do that it would be a dream come true."

With a fire lit beneath him since the WNFR, Dawson is currently sitting 16th in the world standings with $31,556, even after sitting out three months due to knee surgery. He jumped off a horse this winter and landed wrong on his knee, but came back by the end of May and placed in several rodeos. Last season he finished 29th in the world standings with $39,604, often swapping the lead with Ross Griffin of Tularosa, New Mexico. "There wasn't ever a moment where I could've said he couldn't have caught me. It was a rookie race for sure." Dawson traveled last year with Colt Gordon, and having traveled for CPRA rodeos throughout Canada in the past, the summer run was challenging but fun for him. "You really have to cooperate with your traveling partner and surround yourself with people who want you to do good and you're wanting them to do good," he explains. "That and having a comfortable vehicle to travel in." He turned his cargo van into a small motor home, complete with beds, TV, couch, and shower.

Their travels took them to the United States Open Extreme Bronc Match in Faith, South Dakota, where Dawson got on Burch Rodeo's Lunatic From Hell and went 92.5 points, his high score of the season. He also got on Calgary Stampede's Wild Cherry at the Calgary Stampede. "He bucked me off both times, but I really like that horse, and it would be really cool to get him covered."

This season, Dawson is traveling with Zeke Thurston and Jake Watson. He always enjoys the winter stock show rodeos like Houston and San Antonio, and he's looking forward to entering Cheyenne Frontier Days again. His parents, Ron and Shelly Hay, come to as many of his rodeos as they can, while his younger brother, Logan Hay, just embarked on his own rookie year in the PRCA. They're the third generation of their family to ride broncs, starting with their grandpa Brett Hay, who competed in the 1960s. Dawson rode steers for several years, then got on his first bronc when he was 16 and even rode bulls for a time. "You get to go down the road and see a lot of things you never see, and be with your friends. It's just a great sport. My dad taught me everything I know about saddle bronc riding, and so have a lot of the guys I rodeo with. I try to take a piece of everyone's bronc riding. There's lots of guys I look up to like Dan Mortensen and Billy Etbauer, who rode so good for so long, and the Wrights for sure. I really idolize most of the things the Wrights do and how successful they've been in this sport."

When he takes a break from the rodeo trail, Dawson works on his family's ranch, running cattle and farming. "I build pipe fence and just do general farm and ranch work. I like to go snowboarding in the winter, and I like fishing," says Dawson. "I go to the Canadian Pro Rodeos and I definitely want to do more of the American pro rodeos. Last year I qualified for the Canadian Finals, which was always a goal of mine. I wasn't satisfied with the way it all went, but it's a big learning process in this sport. There's a lot of things I would've changed from last year, but there's also a lot of things I've learned from and I can move forward from there."

A goal setter since childhood, Dawson achieved both his goals for last year, winning Rookie of the Year and qualifying for the CFR. Qualifying for the WNFR is at the top of his list for 2019. "Sometime I'd like to say I'll win the world championship, but for now, making the NFR is what's in my vision." ■

Remembering those we lost

story by Kendra Santos

Chad Nicholson packed a lot of life and love into his 50 years. Though his happy, full life was suddenly cut tragically short by an unimaginable accident, it surprised no one who knew Chad that his last act here on earth was helping others.

"I've met a lot of people in my lifetime, but I've never met a man who was always more concerned about everybody else around him than he was about himself," said ProRodeo Hall of Fame announcer Bob Tallman. "Chad Nicholson was a giver, not a taker. I used to tell Chad he worked too cheap. But being raised in Texas, he had a lot of Southern gentleman manner about him. And Chad was just so satisfied when he was helping other people gain ground.

"No matter how fast he was going or how busy he was, Chad always made time to stop and visit, and he always took the time to help all the people around him before he helped himself. Chad had a special way with young people, and he took my suggestion to put an announcing school together. He held it in Fort Worth, and used the Fort Worth Stock Show & Rodeo as a teachable moment. That rodeo was a field trip, and by watching us work, those students learned how every aspect of announcing is done.

"I referred people to Chad's announcing school (Chad Nicholson's Rodeo Announcer's Training Seminar, which he started in 2005 and has since graduated more than 130 students from the U.S., Australia and Canada over the years) all the time. Sometimes people didn't have the money to attend. When that happened, I'd pay for half and Chad didn't charge them the other half. That was Chad. He was very good at convincing people they had worth, because he found value in everyone around him. Above all else, Chad Nicholson was a nice man."

Chad Edward Nicholson was born September 10, 1968 in Carrollton, Texas, the son of Gerald and Sharron Nicholson. He attended Tarleton State University in Stephenville, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in agriculture. Chad was a passionately patriotic American who proudly served his country in the United States Marine Corps. In 2005, he married the love of his life, Jennifer Welch Nicholson. Together, they formed an unstoppable bond and unwavering partnership, which was based at their home ranch in Three Rivers, California.

"Chad and I were really good together," said Jennifer, a founding member of the contract act Riata Ranch Cowboy Girls. "We were perfect life partners. I've been amazed by the outpouring of love for Chad, but I can't say I'm surprised, because Chad was always sincerely happy for other people. He had a gift for championing others. He was a great friend to so many, and he was so proud of all of his rodeos. The rodeo world lost a true sportsman with Chad’s passing. It’s impossible to say how much we all will miss him. He truly loved life and always lived it to the fullest. Chad was a good man, and he was great for rodeo.”

Jennifer and Chad’s Riata Ranch International was a home, safe haven and training ground for many lucky little girls who grew up to be accomplished young women while in the Nicholsons’ care. Talented trick rider Brandi Phillips was only 13 when she became a Riata Ranch Cowboy Girl in 2003, and spent 13 years in the program.

“Chad and Jennifer met at the Woodlake Rodeo in May 2003, and I started with them that summer,” Phillips said. “That October, when we were getting ready to work at the Senior Pro Rodeo in Woodlake, Jennifer told us a rodeo announcer was coming to the ranch to watch our rehearsal. That’s when Chad and Jennifer first got together, and they were a great team from the start.

“I became a team leader, and lived on the ranch full time from when I was 18 to 26. Chad was such a leader in our program. He wanted us all to be successful. Chad was really the reason that my generation got to go out and have a career in the big rodeo world. He used his connections and introduced us to people like the Franzens and Powder River Rodeo, and people up in Canada. Chad guided us to set goals, then helped us go reach them.

“Chad became a father figure for some of us, and because he was helping raise us, he wanted us to experience everything we possibly could when we were on the road. When we were working a rodeo in South Dakota, he took us to Mount Rushmore. He took a couple of us to our first Sturgis Bike Rally. He wanted us to see Yellowstone, and took us to our first Jimmy Buffett concert. That was just Chad. While we were working hard all summer, he wanted us to experience the world. Chad was a very proud American, and he wanted us to see as much as we possibly could about all the things that make the United States great.”

Chad’s powerful delivery of his signature rodeo-opening tribute to the American flag—“If Old Glory Could Speak”—was a crowd favorite at rodeos everywhere. A former rodeo contestant, he actually fell into his rodeo-announcing career by complete accident. While working for a radio station when he was in college, Chad was asked to announce a local junior rodeo. That’s all it took. He was hooked. Chad went on to announce rodeo and prestigious Western-world events in 39 states, Australia and Canada.

Chad worked more than 100 performances at Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association and Professional Bull Riders events each year, and earned many accolades along the way. He announced 13 PRCA RAM Circuit Finals Rodeos in the California, Mountain States, Turquoise and Wilderness circuits. The 2002 RAM National Circuit Finals Rodeo announcer and 2015 Women’s Professional Rodeo Association Announcer of the Year emceed the ProRodeo Hall of Fame ceremonies and Wrangler National Finals Rodeo Welcome Reception during his colorful career, and last year was honored to be the voice of the 2018 PRCA Awards Banquet in Las Vegas. In the early going, Chad was the California Cowboys Professional Rodeo Association’s Announcer of the Year three years running, from 1994-96.

Outside of professional rodeo, Chad did voice-over work for radio and television commercials worldwide. He is the voice of the talking dog on FarmersOnly.com TV commercials—Chad’s voice is featured in the “horseback riding date” and “fishing date” spots—which continue to air. In 2010, Chad co-announced the World Equestrian Games Opening Ceremonies in Lexington, Kentucky, and also worked at major NASCAR tracks announcing monster truck shows.

Far beyond the rodeo arena, Chad announced various equestrian show productions, including the Del Mar Night of the Horse at the Del Mar (California) National Horse Show, and the Spirit of the Horse in Perth, Australia. In 2012, Chad worked alongside Jennifer on the Riata Ranch Cowboy Girls crew that participated in Her Royal Majesty Queen Elizabeth II’s 60th Diamond Jubilee Celebration—All the Queen’s Horses—at Windsor Castle in England.

Chad was a worldly cowboy. And he was cowboy to the core. No one appreciated that fact more than the cowboys Chad introduced to rodeo crowds themselves.

“I first met Chad when I was in high school and he was announcing our (California High School Rodeo Association) state finals in Red Bluff,” said five-time World Champion Steer Wrestler Luke Branquinho. “In all the years I knew him, what stands out the most to me about Chad was that contagious smile of his. He always had a smile on his face, and when you saw him, that smile had a way

On the Trail WITH THE

HINRICHS FAMILY

[ "...it's more about making good horses, learning from our mistakes, and helping each other get better. " ]

story by Michele Toberer

The National Little Britches Association was founded in 1952, and sanctions rodeos in over 33 states, giving children 5 to 18 years old opportunities to compete in rodeo events across the country. For kids in the central part of the country, NLBRA is one of few choices they have when it comes to being a rodeo competitor, and they couldn't be more grateful. The Hinrichs family from Ellsworth, Minnesota have only been involved with the NLBRA for a few years now, but much of their time is now centered around the rodeo schedules in both the Dakota Prairie Little Britches and Minnesota/Eastern South Dakota Little Britches rodeos.

"The Big Deal Land & Cattle Company, that's what everyone likes to joke about and call me around Minnesota and South Dakota," laughs Steve, patriarch of the Hinrichs family, who supplies all the timed event cattle and goats for Little Britches rodeos across Minnesota and South Dakota. The fact is, the busy family hasn't slowed down enough to give the stock-contracting business an actual name since they started rolling along three years ago. Not only do Steve and his wife Bridget work jobs outside of the family's horse training business, but all three of their children, Paige, 18, Tanner, 15, and Kiana (Bubbles), 8, compete in the Little Britches Rodeo Association with quite a bit of success. In 2016, the Hinrichs children became more involved in rodeo and started in the MN/Eastern SD Little Britches Rodeo Association. Word spread that the family kept stock for the kids to practice on and train horses, and it wasn't long before the requests started coming to bring livestock to the rodeos. "A contractor backed out right before a rodeo a couple years ago, so they asked if we could bring some stock. People were happy with what we brought, and it's grown to full-time from there. We bring stock to rodeos in both states and will supply cattle and goats at approximately 50 rodeos this year."

Paige competes in all 7 rodeo events available to a senior girl competitor; breakaway roping, ribbon roping, team roping, barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying, and trail. She recently graduated from Adrian High School, and will be attending the Southeast Technical Institute, where she'll be studying Invasive Cardiovascular Technology. Besides maintaining a 4.0 GPA, which helped her obtain a full-ride scholarship to the school, Paige has worked for two years as a CNA at Parkview Manor, a nursing home in Ellsworth. Paige also helps with farm chores and attends the Salem Reformed Church in Little Rock, Iowa with her family on Wednesday nights. "I've enjoyed competing in the Little Britches Association. I really like the leadership role I can have as a senior in the association and cheer on and mentor the little ones." Paige favors roping the most, "At home I normally break in the tie-down calves, so the kids often ask me how they're going to run at the rodeos. It's been nice competing with Tanner and we're fortunate we can practice together." Paige hopes to continue roping in the future and looks up to Trevor Brazile as a competitor, although she doesn't get much chance to keep up with his career. "We don't have time to watch much television because we're always outside. Friends will talk to me about something that was on television and I'll tell them 'I have no idea what you're talking about,' we just live a different lifestyle than most people do."

Tanner, a sophomore at Adrian High School, likes math and playing guard for the school basketball team. He competes in calf roping, and as Paige's partner in both ribbon roping and team roping.

He spends time watching rodeo runs on YouTube and especially likes to watch his favorite calf roper, Cory Solomon. He agrees with his dad that he lives in a rodeo paradise and appreciates the opportunities he has to practice whenever he wants. "I can tie goats or rope when I need to, and if it's raining, I can rope in the indoor arena. I'm pretty competitive, so it's great being able to have the tools I need to get to the top of my game." Tanner enjoys hanging out with his friends at the rodeos and has learned a lot seeing the backside of rodeo production through the family's involvement. "Being involved in the Little Britches Association has been great, my family enjoys the time together and everyone in the association has been so good to us." Tanner likes getting to drive within a 20-mile range of the farm with his newly acquired farm permit but looks forward to turning 16 in July, so he can have more freedom on the roads. "It's not bad having all the chores on the farm; my dad says if you love what you do, you'll never work a day in your life."

The youngest of the Hinrichs crew, Bubbles, may have been born with the name Kiana, but since her dad started the nickname after noticing she blew little bubbles laying in the hospital bassinet, Bubbles is what she's gone by her whole life. As a second grader, her favorite school subject is reading, and she especially likes to read stories in the Biscuit series. She loves to compete in barrel racing and pole bending the most and likes practicing at home with her siblings. Bubbles likes riding Henny Penny, her 13-year-old black mare in all her events. "The Little Britches rodeos are giving Bubbles a great environment to grow as a competitor. She was a little hesitant to go too fast at first, but her confidence is growing, and she's getting faster at each rodeo. She recently won the flag race and that used to be the event she dreaded the most." Her favorite chore to help with in the afternoons is bottle-feeding the baby goats and calves.

The family's settling into their new home at Hinrichs' Arena, on land where Steve grew up as the youngest of four children belonging to George and Leona Hinrichs. The farm is in the southwest corner of Minnesota, just one mile from Iowa and 30 miles from South Dakota. "My parents were very involved in showing horses and my mom was the secretary and treasurer of the Southwest Minnesota Trail Riders' Club where we showed horses in halter, pleasure, and game events. When they passed away, I bought their 80-acre farm, and we're raising our family here." The farm has an outdoor and indoor arena that Steve used after he graduated from Ellsworth High School in 1989, to train outside horses while helping operate their dairy cow business. Bridget, graduated from Ellsworth High in 1997 and is grateful she's just three miles from her childhood home, where her father, who remarried after her mom passed away, still farms and raises stock cows. Steve and Bridget have been married since 1998 and appreciate raising their family in their hometown with so much family history surrounding them.

Currently, Steve works for a neighboring farm managing 4,000 head of swine. Besides that daily work, he spends three days each week riding horses at the sale barn, sorting and bringing livestock up for auction. "I work at the Sioux Falls sales barn on Mondays and Wednesdays, and the Sheldon, Iowa barn on Thursdays. I ride horses I have in for training while I work at the auctions and it gives me great opportunities to train horses for my clients." Bridget who team roped, and barrel raced before family responsibilities took over, also works at the sale barn with Steve on Thursdays but spends much of her time managing the family and farm, where she takes charge of raising bottle calves and goats.

The family keeps approximately 25 head of roping cattle, 30-40 goats, and 50 calves ranging from those still on milk, up to 350 pounds. "Right now, we're bottle feeding 20 calves and get new calves in from the dairy twice each week. We use lots of Jerseys for the Little Britches rodeos; people thought they'd be too weak and wouldn't run, but we feed them heavy and they work great for the kids. The cattle we use give each of the competitors a chance to win and we work hard to keep them as even as possible. If one of the cattle or goats don't work well, we don't bring them back again. We can't always predict what they'll do, but we want to bring the most user-friendly stock we can to the rodeos. I'd much rather see the kids beat each other on times rather than beat another contestant just because they drew better."

It's said that a family that plays together, stays together; and for the Hinrichs that's what their life is about. When they aren't taking care of business, they like to take their dogs out for coon hunts and go bow-hunting for deer. They enjoy their time together on the road; Tanner shared, "On the way to rodeos, Paige and I put in the aux cord and get jamming with dad to get pumped up. We mostly play old country music that dad will recognize, and he gets crazy with all that stuff." One of the family's pre-game traditions is the kids all praying together before the rodeo competition gets started. Steve explained, "It's not all about blood and guts, of course we all want to win, but it's more about making good horses, learning from our mistakes, and helping each other get better. We're glad that the Little Britches association gives us a great opportunity to watch our kids grow in rodeo and enjoy the members and the comradery we share. If we're not having a good time while they're competing, what's the point in doing it?" 🐾

Back When They Bucked with FRANKLIN MANKE

[ For 61 years, the only South Dakotan to have won a bareback riding title at the National High School Finals Rodeo was Franklin Manke. ]

story by Ruth Nicolaus

The Edgemont, S.D. cowboy was the 1952 National High School Rodeo Bareback Riding champion, and it wasn't until fellow South Dakotan Shane O'Connell won it in 2013, that the drought was over.

Manke not only competed in the bareback riding, but also as a steer wrestler, cow cutter, wild cow rider, and occasional calf roper.

He was born in 1935 to Alfred (Allie) and Dorothy (White) Manke, who ranched twenty miles south of Edgemont. As most country kids did in those days, he rode the three miles to the country school every day.

By the time he was ten years old, he was riding calves at local county fairs, and as a freshman in high school, he got on his first bareback horse.

High school rodeo wasn't as prevalent then as it is now, and there were fewer rodeos to go to. But Franklin went to several, one of them being the Harrison, Neb. rodeo in 1952, when he won the bareback riding, calf roping, second place in the cow riding, and the all-around.

That same year, his senior year, he won the S.D. state bareback riding and calf roping titles and split first in the cow cutting.

Back then, if a high school finals rodeo contestant qualified for the National High School Finals in one event, they could enter a second event, and the all-around winner could enter as many events as they chose. He finished his high school rodeo career with not only the national bareback riding title, but the all-around as well, having competed at Nationals in Augusta, Montana in the tie-down roping, too.

After high school, he came home to ranch with his parents. They owned two ranches, one south of Edgemont and the other about twenty-five miles away, in southeastern Wyoming.

But he continued to rodeo, this time in the Northwest Ranch Cowboys Association (NRCA) and at local county fairs.

In 1955 he went to a rodeo that was lacking steer wrestlers. The committee told Franklin they would pay his entry fees if he would bulldog. He'd ridden his rope horse in high school to bulldog, but the horse didn't work out well. "I'd go to get off and he'd stop," he said. "That left a lot of air between me and the steer." But he borrowed a horse, rode him at that rodeo and all summer, finishing the year second in the steer wrestling for the NRCA.

His dad, Allie, team roped when he was older, but as a young man, his hobby was race horses. He had a string of thoroughbreds he'd take to the county fair races, and some of them Franklin rodeoed on. It wasn't a perfect situation, but back then, they made do. Every now and then the race horses didn't know when to quit. "Sometimes it wasn't very pleasant when you rode a race horse and you went to turn a cow and the horse just kept going," Franklin chuckled.

Franklin continued to rodeo in the NRCA. In 1956, he won the bareback riding, was second in the steer wrestling, and won the all-around. In 1957 and '58, he won the steer wrestling both years. He competed in 1959, but injuries slowed him down.

In '59, he broke his riding hand while riding barebacks. As the pickup man approached, he worked to get his hand out of the rigging. Before he had it out, the bucking horse stopped, throwing Franklin's body weight over the top of his hand and breaking a bone.

The same year, he tore ligaments in a knee while bull dogging. There was no surgery for torn ligaments then; the only cure was time off. Franklin built a brace and wore it to bulldog, but his bulldogging days were coming to an end.

After 1959, he quit rodeo for a few years, continuing to ranch on the family operation, which included mama cows, yearlings and sheep. His dad passed away in 1972, and by this time, Franklin and his wife Audrey had bought another place, between the Edgemont ranch and the Wyoming ranch. Without his dad's help, it was too difficult to run both places, and he didn't want to hire help. They also had a grazing lease that had expired, so it made sense to sell the S.D. ranch.

Franklin's parents owned and managed three motels in Edgemont, and after his dad's death, his mom ran them for three years. It was more than she could handle, so Franklin and Audrey bought them from her, with the intent of running them for three years and then selling them. Two of them were side by side and shared an office, and one of them closed during the winter. They ran them for 22 years, before selling them in 1997.

In the mid-1960s, when dally team roping became popular, Franklin began rodeoing again, at jackpots and a few rodeos close to home. He never ventured far from home, choosing to rodeo at NRCA events, local county fairs and jackpots in South Dakota and Wyoming. He didn't go full time, believing it was difficult to do both well. "You either have to be a rancher and a part-time rodeo cowboy, or a full-time rodeo cowboy. That's how I look at it."

Franklin team roped in the Old Timers Rodeo Association (now the National Senior Pro Rodeo Association.) He headed for a while, then switched to heeling, often partnering with Bob Stoddard of Douglas, Wyo. He enjoyed the jackpots the NSPRA held before the rodeo. He doesn't brag, but "I guess I claimed my share of the money in the ropings." He quit roping in 1994, after having a hip replaced.

Franklin and Audrey first met when they were in country school. He had had his eye on her, he says, and asked her out on July 4, 1953. They married later that year and celebrated their 65th anniversary in October of 2018.

And the rodeo gene didn't end with Franklin. The couple's daughter, Janie, was the 1971 Wyoming High School Girls All-Around champion, and their son, Jay, was the 1976 S. D. State High School Team Roping champion. Janie and her husband Butch Tinint live in Valentine, Neb., and both of Janie's daughters competed in rodeo. Jay's daughter and son, Katie and Ty, have also done well. Katie and her husband Jeremy Langdeau have three children who ride and compete, and Ty, who is married to Trista, has won the saddle bronc riding average at the Badlands Circuit Finals Rodeo twice. Franklin started Ty in the saddle bronc riding while in high school, buying him his first saddle. "In fact, I think he still owes me for that saddle," he joked.

Franklin and his great-grandson Jackson Langdeau goat rope together. On foot, Jackson heads and Franklin heels, and Franklin loves it.

The couple sold the ranch in 1989, when the work with the motels became too much. They fully retired in 1997, when they bought forty acres and built a house on the east side of Edgemont. They stay busy: Franklin, traveling to rodeos to watch his grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and Audrey, who paints. Her artwork is excellent, Franklin said, and jokes that they'll have to build longer walls to hang her work.

He loved his days in rodeo. He and Audrey made it through the bad times, of which there weren't many. They lost a granddaughter, Jay's daughter Jayme, when she died in a car accident, but life is still good, filled with children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. "We've never really had any downs in life." ■

Meet the Member Riley McKinnis

stories by Lily Weinacht; photos by JenningsRodeoPhotography.com

A highlight of Riley McKinnis's summers the last two years was competing in the NLBFR in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and she's returning to the Lazy E for the third consecutive year this July. The 15-year-old from Lone Jack, Missouri, has competed in all of the girls events except team roping, but this season she's focusing on barrel racing, breakaway roping, and pole bending. She also ribbon ropes on occasion, the event she won her first NLBRA world title in last year in the junior division with her partner Ty Scott of Vinita, Oklahoma. "Last year at the beginning of the season was my first time ever ribbon roping. Both of our partners didn't show up at the rodeo, so that's how we got paired up, and we ended up doing really good that weekend," explains Riley. "We kept going to the same rodeos and stuck together. He's an amazing roper and I was really thankful to be there. I never expected to do as good as we did!"

Along with the performances, Riley loves having a week to spend with her rodeo friends during the NLBFR. "My rodeo friends and I always make sure we reserve our stalls and camping spots together, and we love getting to compete in the same performances and cheer each other on." At the local level, Riley won the year-end in breakaway roping in the ArklaHoma Little Britches in 2018, while she's won all-around weekend awards in the Southeast Kansas Little Britches and an NRS Little Britches rodeo. She also takes her competitive skills to the NBHA, BBR World Finals, Bonus Race World Finals, and the Missouri Kansas Youth Rodeo Association.

Prior to joining the NLBRA, Riley—the first in her family to rodeo—started out riding in 4-H and showing horses. She began barrel racing at fun shows and started rodeoing when she was 10, joining the NLBRA soon after. "I think what drives me the most is how much I love to compete and how much I love to work with the horses. There's no feeling like after you've put so much work in to a horse or hours roping, and having it pay off in the end."

Riley also attributes her success to the many people who have helped her, including Brittany Nevius. "She's my trainer but also like my big sister. She helped me with getting my barrel horse going and being a better person. Danielle Lichte taught me how to rope and helps me at the rodeos with doing my best there, and Maggie Everson taught me to ride my first horse and really gave me the drive to do everything that I love. I also want to give a big thank you to my parents, Randy and Robin, for supporting me in everything that they do and giving me all their time," says Riley.

In tow are Riley's horses. Spiderman is her barrel horse, while she runs poles on Hitman. She also has her trusty rope horse, Eddy, and a new rope horse, Bayou. "Hitman is like Brittany Nevius's baby, and she trusted me with him and I've started working with him on poles since this last winter. He's done really good so far, so I'm hoping to make it back to the short go this Finals," says Riley, who is also an avid soccer player. She played on the Lone Jack High School varsity team this spring and won districts in May. "I really want to make it to the short go this year with the horses I've been working on. Long term, I really want to do something bigger with my horses and maybe make it to the NFR along the way. Hopefully they'll have breakaway roping there by the time I'm able to go." 🐾

Meet the Member Ty Scott

Ty Scott finished his 2018 NLBRA season qualified for the Finals in all four of his events, and went home to Vinita, Oklahoma, the Junior Ribbon Roping World Champion. The 14-year-old cowboy won his first world title alongside ribbon runner Riley McKinnis of Lone Jack, Missouri. They teamed up at a rodeo early in the 2018 season when neither of their ribbon roping partners could make it and decided to finish out the season together. "It was pretty amazing—I was pretty happy," Ty says of their win. "We were setting pretty good in the world standings. It's challenging trying to rope fast and watch the barrier and all that." He also competed at the finals in breakaway roping, goat tying, and team roping with Rydin White, placing in the top five in all of their team roping runs.

This season is Ty's last in the junior division, and he's qualified for the 2019 NLBFR in breakaway roping, team roping with Carlee Boots, and ribbon roping with Rydin White. "Team roping is my favorite—I like being with my partner and talking about it. I heel at a lot of bigger US Ropings, and I heel for Carlee and head for Rydin," Ty explains. He competes in the Arklaoma Little Britches, where he was one point away from winning the year-end all-around in 2018, and the Southeast Kansas Little Britches, where he was the reserve year-end champion in all of his events last year.

Watching professional rodeo athletes inspires Ty to work hard. "I want to grow up to be like them one day, and go to the NFR. I look up to Trevor Brazile and Jake Barnes. They rope fast and they're gentlemen," says Ty. "I got to meet Jake Barnes at the sale barn where my dad works." He also looks up to his dad, Don Harlan; his uncles; and his older sister, Jacey Harlan, who breakaway ropes in the ACRA. "My dad still ropes a little bit, and he helps me with watching my steers and making good runs."

Ty travels to rodeos with his dad and mom, Mindy, while his 11-year-old sister, Bailey, travels with them occasionally and enjoys playing sports. They haul one to two horses, including Mouse, the ribbon roping horse who carried Ty to his world title. "He's a really good horse and I've gotten along really well with him. My head horse, Cisco, has taught everyone in our family how to ride, and he's retired now. He got hurt a week before Finals last year, so I rode one of my buddies' horses. My other head horse, Hoss, is younger, and I mostly ride him at bigger ropings like All Stars and USTRs." Ty's family also runs 300 head of cattle, numerous horses, and helps their neighbor run 1,000 head of feeder steers. "My job is feeding and doctoring the cattle," says Ty. "My dad works at the sale barn in town and I help a little bit."

He recently finished seventh grade at Vinita Union Middle School, where Ty played football, wrestled, and ran track. Roping with friends and going fishing with his uncle keeps Ty busy during summer break, along with competing in the All Star Team Roping Finals, and the NLBFR for the third time. "We go around Oklahoma City and the water park, and I like seeing a bunch of friends and meeting new people," says Ty. "Someday I want to try to go to the NFR, and have little kids look up to me." 🐾

Meet the Member Montana Barlow

story by Michele Toberer

Family ties have fueled Montana Barlow's drive for riding saddle bronc horses in the Colorado Professional Rodeo Association, and the lessons he learned as he recalls every little detail of watching his father, Eugene Barlow, step over the chutes on to broncs when Montana was just 5 years old, are helping him with his own rides now. "I always enjoyed going with my dad and hanging out at the bucking chutes when he was riding. I learned so many little things about how to get a measurement, set a saddle, or pay attention to how a horse was acting to know how they might hold their head when you rode. I didn't realize how much I was learning when I was watching him, but I recall so many lessons from what I experienced with my dad."

Montana's dad was 28 before he started riding broncs, with a brother, and family on his wife, Irene Littleben's, side that rode broncs as well. "My dad leaned about bronc riding the hard way, he didn't really get taught the basics, he just kept getting on broncs and tried to figure it out himself. He obviously loved it, because he tried for 6 years, with multiple broken bones and injuries, before he even made his first full ride." Eugene wanted an easier path for Montana and his younger brother, Leegene, and made sure to share his hard-learned lessons with them, as well as setting them up with the best instruction he could. "When I was 16 and Leegene was 14, we went to Aces High Rodeo Academy in Tucumcari, New Mexico with horses provided by Circle I Rodeo Company, and we received instruction from professionals like Taos Muncy and Cody Taton. We've run into them over the years at different rodeos, and it's nice because they're still supportive of us when we see them. I especially appreciate that my dad has always guided a path for us and given us the right equipment and support as we go."

Montana graduated from Rock Point High School/Community School and competed in the Arizona High School Rodeo Association before attending Lamar Community College, where he recently graduated with an associates of applied science degree in construction trades and competed on the college rodeo team in the NIRA Central Rocky Mountain region. He was recently accepted to the Colorado Mesa University/Western Colorado Community College rodeo team, where he will begin their lineman program in the fall. Leegene recently graduated from Rock Point High and is currently leading the AHSRA saddlebronc standings. Leegene will be rodeoing for Utah State University next year. "My brother and I travel to rodeos together and we're like two of a kind. We help each other and feed off each other. We watch each other's rides and help each other fix little mistakes we're making, so we can correct it on the next horse we ride."

Montana and his dad both work in the

construction industry in Telluride, Colorado, and travel between work and home in Arizona, where his mom makes authentic Navajo rugs, and cares for his 11-year-old sister, Oodessa. Oodessa is an all-around cowgirl who will start AJHSRA next year and compete in multiple rodeo events. Although Montana just started competing in the CPRA, he looks forward to competing in the association his dad competed in during 2008 and 2009. Montana also hopes to follow in his father's footsteps and qualify for the Indian National Finals in Las Vegas, Nevada one day. He fondly recalls his family going out to support his father at the INFR in 2010, 2011, and 2012.

To stay in shape, Montana likes to snowboard in the winter, and works out daily; focusing on pushups, sit-ups and crunches each morning to keep his core strength at its best. "My dad's body finally won over his mind, so he retired at 47 after making a little comeback last summer. Out of 10 rodeos he placed in 8 of them and won 4 buckles." Montana is grateful for the support he receives from his family and the ties that bind the Barlow family together through the sport. 📷

Heidi's Notes

by Heidi Geesen

I can't believe that July is right around the corner. What happened to the month of June? If you haven't quite figured out your plans for the Fourth of July run, please make sure you look close at the schedule as some of the entry dates are earlier than usual.

Please take note no outside alcohol will be allowed at the Deer Trail Rodeo and coolers will be checked at the gate so please keep that in mind prior to getting there. We have 5 Colorado first rodeos along with co approved rodeos during the fourth and I must have updated membership lists turned in prior to entry dates. So, if you are planning on entering please get your memberships submitted in plenty of time.

Our schedule is posted with everything that I have received as well as co-sanctioned rodeos. Please keep an eye on the website for changes as well as updates to the schedule.

We have entry tutorial videos available on our website as well as our Facebook page. All non-members must call the State Office to get a non-member number prior to entering a rodeo. A credit card number must be on file to secure your entry. Please note that the credit card will not be charged.

Until Next Time,

Heidi Geesen

Meet the Member Danny Goold

story by Lily Weinacht

“Rodeo’s not like any other high school sport. It’s more fun with the agriculture involved, and it takes so much time to be great. No matter where you’re at, there’s always someone better than you, and with four kids in my family, you always want to be the best no matter where you go,” says Danny Goold. “I look over the travel and the price of everything, and I know a rope costs fifty dollars, but that rope can make you so much more.”

The 18-year-old from Douglas, Wyoming, started roping in fourth grade, following after his dad, who rodeoed through high school and qualified for the NHSFR. Danny is working hard towards his own Nationals qualification to cap off his senior year in the WHSRA. He’s currently fifth in the steer wrestling, and also competes in tie-down roping, and team roping with header Shelby Peterson from Douglas. “Technically, calf roping is my favorite because it’s all on me, and bulldogging is my second favorite. It’s fast and there’s no room for you to think—you’d better be ready because it’s coming.”

Danny also competes in jackpots and plans to join the Wyoming Rodeo Association this summer. He practices with fellow steer wrestlers Garrett Henry and Payden McIntyre at the state fairgrounds in Douglas, and in the winter, they set up a chute and alley at a friend’s arena and haul their calves and horses over to practice. “It’s lots of travel,” says Danny. “I look up to Jim Baker—he was a multiple-time qualifier for the NFR in steer tripping. I tied steers with him and his stories made you want to do it like he did. I really look up to Troy Pruitt. I’ll go practice with him, and he and Riley Pruitt are both really cool guys. Fred Larson from here in Douglas is a heck of a bulldogger, and just talking about it with him can help you out a lot.”

Danny and his 14-year-old brother, Thomas, often travel to junior high and high school rodeos with their parents, Matt and Laney Goold. “We have a freightliner with a bunk bed in it, and a stock trailer, so we scoot to rodeos and scoot home.” Danny and Thomas also have two sisters, Kari, 20, who is a student at University of Nevada, Las Vegas, and Carlee, 16, who will be a foreign exchange student in Iceland next year.

The Goolds also manage a ranch near Douglas. “We’re calving right now, and I want to go into AI-ing,” says Danny. “I have my certificate to AI, and I farm a lot. We’re finishing miles of fence every year, and irrigating. There’s always something to do.” Danny also stays busy riding his horses. He steer wrestles on a 22-year-old bay, Buzz, ropes calves on an 8-year-old buckskin, Buck, and heels off a 14-year-old sorrel, Hank. “They all know their jobs and

I couldn’t ask for anything more. They are pretty top-notch horses in my opinion.”

A senior at Douglas High School, Danny enjoys science, particularly plant and animal science. He played football and wrestled, but wanted to focus more on rodeo and starting colts. “I haven’t signed on anything yet, but I’d like to college rodeo, and major in aviation with a minor in business. I’d like to go to Nationals in bulldogging this year and hopefully continue my career into college and the pros,” Danny finishes. “I’d like to thank all the guys who helped me with my horsemanship—Kevin Meyers who is a horse trainer here in Douglas, and Troy Brandemuehl. And I’d like to thank my family, who supports me in everything.”

Meet the Member Blasius Steffen

story by Lily Weinacht

Blasius Steffen has won the SDH-SRA all-around cowboy title in all of its forms, from rookie of the year in 2016 to reserve all-around, and finally, the year-end all-around in 2018. The 18-year-old cowboy from Gregory, South Dakota, competes in team roping and tie-down roping, and he's qualified for the NHSFR once in reined cow horse and twice in cutting. His favorite event varies from day to day, and he practices frequently, making the 30-mile drive to his uncle's ranch almost daily to practice with his uncle Frank Kenzy and his cousin Myles. "They're basically my coaches. I spend every day at their place riding and roping and helping out on the ranch. They help me with horsemanship, and doing whatever it takes for getting better and staying dedicated," says Blasius. "My parents (Mike and Sandy Steffen) are big motivators. They're pretty good about videoing my runs, and if my events are back to back, they get horses saddled and make sure I have whatever I need."

Blasius's parents grew up around horses, though they didn't rodeo, but his uncle Frank put him on a horse one summer and Blasius was rodeoing by the time he turned 9. "Just the atmosphere of the rodeo, and the people we meet, and the competitiveness (drives me)," explains Blasius, who is working toward a third NHSFR qualification and making the short round. "There aren't too many rodeos that are local, so I end up traveling quite a bit. I like Belle Fourche. It's cool to be there, and they have great volunteer people that keep the grounds good. One year, it rained and they tore the whole arena up and made it good for the kids—that was cool to see." Blasius also competes in the SDRA and several team roping associations, while he just purchased his PRCA permit this year. He's team roping at pro rodeos with his high school partner, Beau Dean, as well as his cousin Myles.

Blasius hauls four horses to high school rodeos. He calls Paint, his 18-year-old cow horse, the coolest horse he's ever owned, while he heads on Scooter, ropes calves on Roan Dog, and rides a 5-year-old mare, Sugar, in the cutting. "My uncle trained Paint and his daughter showed him for most of his career, and my calf horse I basically trained myself. It's pretty fun when you do that. I try to practice about every day. We try to work cutting as much as we can, and we have a big barn where we can work the flag."

Before his summer rodeo season kicked off, Blasius graduated from Gregory High School. He is attending Frank Phillips College in Borger, Texas, this fall on a rodeo scholarship, competing in team roping and tie-down roping. "It was the opportunity to go somewhere different. I'm going there for farm and ranch management—it's a two-year degree." In the meantime, he plans to spend the summer rodeoing and enjoying time with his family and friends. "We like hunting and fishing—I like to deer hunt quite a bit, or coyote or pheasant hunting. We have a big variety of things. My dad and sister, Brett, like to hunt too, so sometimes all three of us go."

"My goal is to just have a good year and not let rodeo take over. I want to remember to have fun and take it one step at a time." 📷

Meet the Member Stannis Hoffmann

story by Lindsay King

The first of her family to rodeo, Stannis Hoffmann grew up in the show pen while her dad spent most of his childhood on the race track. "I showed in 4-H and the AQHA, I even did some English jumping for a while," said the Dunlap, Iowa, M-SRA competitor. She started a life-long rodeo career on a mare bought from a sale barn that "did everything pretty well." It wasn't until high school that Stannis got her first real rodeo horse. "It was nice to have a horse that did not take quite as much effort to go fast. I have never really looked backed after that." Stannis pursued a degree – first in cosmetology and then in business – at Northeast Junior College in Sterling, Colorado, on a rodeo scholarship. She had such great barrel horses at the time that she took a shot at the pro circuit for a few years. Stannis still runs barrels, but she spends most of her time chasing calves.

"I have just always put more focus on breakaway, it clicked the best when I got into high school. It has probably been ten years since I roped a steer, but if we came across a horse I would get back to it." With several colts moving up the ranks in the barrels, Stannis is getting busier every year. In 2014, Stannis bought a palomino mare she calls Reba. "At the time, I had been struggling to keep an older horse I was using sound. We bought Reba right after the fourth of July. By the end of the summer she had won me almost $4,000." The day after Stannis bought Reba, they won a rodeo in the breakaway together. Two years ago, Reba was diagnosed with EPM, but the strong-willed mare wouldn't succumb to it. "We did treatments on her and I rode her quite a bit last year. Usually she is pretty good, but my go-to is Jose now."

Prior to Reba getting EPM, a calf horse came into Stannis' life. "I hated Jose from the beginning, he has a big motor. When Reba got EPM, I had to ride him. We are getting along a lot better now." Joe, her husband, found Jose for Stannis. An avid horseman himself, Joe showed horses in western pleasure for quite a few years. "He would like to learn how to rope, but for now he just helps me keep the horses in shape." In December, Joe and Stannis will celebrate their nine-year wedding anniversary. It was also nine years ago that Stannis moved to Iowa from Colorado.

"I still go back to Colorado for an entire week every month to service my clients." Working as a cosmetologist for Secret Serenity in Harlan, Iowa, gives Stannis flexibility to rodeo. She used to get home in the early morning hours just to go to work for a few hours and head out to another rodeo that afternoon. Her weekend schedule has changed enough that Stannis doesn't have to keep this up anymore. In 2000, Stannis was the breakaway rookie of the year in the CPRA. She has competed at the CPRA finals six times in the breakaway. "I have been to the IRA finals a few times and the IRC finals twice. I have never quite made the M-SRA finals. The first year I had Reba, I was really close. I roped a front leg at Johnstown and that kept me out of the finals." Her sights are set on finally making the Mid State finals this year as well as the IRCA. "The M-SRA has great rodeos: they are run well with good added money. The ground, pens and stock are always great also."

BAREBACK RIDERS ARE BULLISH ON THE WCRA

story by Kendra Santos

Some are household names in the rodeo world. Others haven't been heard from quite as much before now. But all eight of the bareback riders that advanced from the $500,000 World Champions Rodeo Alliance Semi-Finals, held May 18-19 at the Lazy E Arena in Guthrie, Oklahoma, to the next $1 million WCRA major is making a name for himself. And they're all busting with anxious anticipation about being Green Bay bound.

Nebraska's Garrett Shadbolt and Wyoming's Seth Hardwick bested their respective pools in the finals at the Semis to lead the charge to the $1 million Titledown Stampede, which will headline at the Resch Center on June 1 in Green Bay, Wisconsin. Joining Shadbolt and Hardwick in cashing checks on Sunday at the Lazy E were Canadian cowboy Mike Solberg of Sunnynook, Alberta, North Dakotan Ty Breuer, Nebraskan Nate McFadden, Californian Clayton Biglow, South Dakotan Shane O'Connell and Montanan George Gillespie. Wyatt Denny of Minden, Nevada, also got in on the Semi-Finals dough, but already had a bye into Green Bay by way of both Salt Lake City and Chicago.

The leaders of the Semi-Finals pack in every event will do battle at the Titledown Stampede alongside the exemption-earning champs from last summer's Days of '47 Cowboy Games & Rodeo in Salt Lake City and January's Windy City Roundup in Chicago. The 2018 International Professional Rodeo Association champions also earned byes into Green Bay, where they'll ride, rope, wrestle steers and run barrels for $50,000 checks.

Shadbolt, who had the 88-point, high-marked ride on Championship Sunday, is a ranch-raised 23-year-old from Merriam, which Wikipedia classifies as "a village in Cherry County, Nebraska" of about 100 people.

"I'm really making a big push this year," Shadbolt said. "This is my first year going at it. I've been going to some of these WCRA rodeos. I hadn't done any good before, but I turned that around this weekend. I'm going to keep going to these and making the most of this that I can.

"Finishing right there on the (top 15) bubble is hard on a guy's wallet," smiled Seth, who's 30 and lives in remote Ranchester in Sheridan County, Wyoming. "This money might not count toward the world standings, but it counts in your pocket. Rodeoing is not cheap. You have to spend money to have a chance to make money, and what we win here helps get us down the road.

"Anytime you have a chance to win some good money, it makes your life a little easier. It lets you be a little more picky and choosy about where you go, to fly more and get to more rodeos. It also lets you afford to stay home to heal up when you need to watch your health. I'm pretty stoked about all of it. Now we get to go to Green Bay. Having a one-day rodeo

It amazes me how many people are still on the fence about the WCRA. It really shocks me, because cowboys have looked for this kind of opportunity that wasn't just for the pros—an opportunity of this magnitude that's equal for everybody.

where you can win 50,000 bucks is pretty cool. This is history in the making.”

The diversity in the contestant crowd in every event was obvious, and cowboy and cowgirl camaraderie does not discriminate based on how hard you choose to travel or much of anything else.

“There are a lot of different kinds of guys who end up here in the WCRA,” Hardwick said. “There are some college kids, NFR guys, amateur rodeo guys. The cream of all associations comes here, and they all ride great.

“And in our eight-man final round today, there were mostly horses that have been to the NFR. It makes a big difference when we get on horses that buck hard. They’re very capable of bucking guys off, but they’re the kind you can also be 90 points on. Nobody likes going to rodeos where you get on lesser-quality horses. That’s no fun. These horses are tough, but if you ride well, you win. That’s how it’s supposed to be. (WCRA President and four-time World Champion Bareback Rider) Bob Mote knows everything there is to know about bareback riding, so there’s no better person to put this together so it’s fair for the cowboys and good watching for the crowd.”

Mike Solberg is from a Southern Alberta “hamlet” they call Sunnynook. Solberg made his way to the WCRA Semi-Finals by nominating a few Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association rodeos this winter and spring, such as Odessa, Texas, Rapid City, South Dakota, and Red Bluff, California.

“I saw (fellow Canadian bareback rider) Jake Vold and all my buddies getting to come here last year,” said Solberg, an eight-time qualifier for the Canadian Finals Rodeo who at 34 is on the older side of the average-age spectrum for this very physically demanding event. “I didn’t know what the WCRA was, but another buddy of mine got to go to Days of ’47 last summer. The WCRA is a great deal for a guy like me, who can stay mostly up in Canada, then come ride at big-money rodeos. Green Bay, here we come. I can’t wait.”

Breuer was the blink of an eye away from missing the bareback riding money boat at the Lazy E. His horse blasted out of the chute so fast and furiously that judging the mark-out was basically like analyzing a blur. Enter instant replay, which the WCRA uses as needed to make sure the money ends up in the right hands. Upon further review, Breuer’s 87.5-point ride was the second highest of the championship round.

“I never question the judges anywhere I ride,” said four-time NFR qualifier above: The ride that earned Breuer a trip to Green Bay. - Bull Stock Media

Breuer of Mandan, North Dakota. “The mark-out happens so fast that it’s easy not to be sure, and it’s often a pretty close call. It was cool that they reviewed it, and made sure they got it right. Us cowboys appreciate everything these guys are doing to try and get it right and keep it fair.”

McFadden’s hometown of Elmer is “an unincorporated community in Southeastern Cherry County, Nebraska” that’s also home to saddle bronc rider Cort Scheer. Nate grew up ranching and rodeoing, and is all about the WCRA.

“I think the WCRA is cool,” McFadden said. “It’s just such a good opportunity, and anybody can nominate and get into it. Then when you do get here, it’s such an even playing field. They bring such good horses and good stock. They do their best to give everybody a chance, and they bring in horses that give us all a shot at winning. It makes it a riding contest, so you can go out there, show off your skills and do what you love doing.”

Biglow has ridden at the last three NFRs. “Little Big” travels with Denny, who would make the perfect poster boy for the life-changing money being offered by the WCRA.

[ “This atmosphere helps us cowboys relax. And when we can relax and just do our jobs, we ride that much better.” ]

“The WCRA gives everybody a chance to go to great rodeos,” said Biglow, 23. “Some guys stay closer to home to help take care of kids or a ranch or whatever. Some guys have a different job during the week. With the WCRA, they can go to a few rodeos and nominate them, then from a handful of rodeos find themselves riding where they can win $50,000. It’s not a year-long commitment, like trying to make the NFR is.

“Guys who don’t have the chance to rodeo full time for whatever reason can actually make a living going to a few WCRA rodeos if they ride good. You see a little bit of everything here at a rodeo like this. There are high school and college kids who are still in school—kids in some events don’t even have their driver’s license yet. It’s good for them and helps get their name out there. The horses here are great. They picked the cream of the crop for stock contractors at this rodeo. Bob Mote knows who has good horses, and how to give everyone a chance to win money.”

Biglow pointed out that you can pick your pace when you rodeo in the WCRA.

“We’re all here because we’re trying to make a living one way or another,” he said. “Your WCRA season is how many rodeos you want to make it. This is just as good a deal for a guy who just wants to circuit rodeo as it is for a guy like me. That’s pretty cool. The WCRA gives everybody a chance.

“I’m here to try to win that $50,000. I’ve never been to Green Bay before, but I’m super excited to get to go. Every rodeo that pays $50,000 is a once-in-a-lifetime kind of rodeo. And you usually have to spend all year and a bunch of money to get to ride at that big of a rodeo. Nominate, people. If you’re a cowboy, this is a good deal. And that’s a no brainer.”

There’s naturally a lot of buzz about

We’re not pressured or rushed. The production is still run on a strict time schedule, but you aren’t getting yelled at for things that aren’t in your control. At a lot of rodeos, you might get in trouble for not having your riggin’ on fast enough, but it was because the horses maybe weren’t loaded in the back fast enough. It’s nice that that stuff doesn’t happen here.”

Like his traveling buddy, Biglow, Denny has ridden bareback horses at the last three NFRs. The 2015 Resistol Bareback Riding Rookie of the Year was the 2016 National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Bareback Riding Champion, the year his and Biglow’s Feather River (California) College men’s team also won the national men’s team title.

“Everybody at these WCRA rodeos knows what’s going on, because they’re cowboys,” Denny continued. “This atmosphere helps us cowboys relax. And when we can relax and just do our jobs, we ride that much better. Rodeo is how we make a living. So when you’re talking about millions of new dollars, a guy’s got to try and get in on some of that. Everybody’s going to get on board with what’s going on here, because it’s progress and it’s a good deal for the cowboys.” 🤠 the $1 million majors, like Salt Lake, Chicago and Green Bay. But the $500,000 up for contestant grabs at the WCRA Semi-Finals isn’t exactly slim pickings. Denny didn’t need to be at the Lazy E for last week’s Semis. He punched his ticket not once, but twice, with wins at both the Days of ’47 and Windy City Roundup. At those two rodeos alone, Wyatt won $102,400.

“If you ride good at any WCRA rodeo, it’s going to put good money in your bank,” said Denny, 23, of Minden, Nevada, of why he entered the WCRA Semis. “And you’re going to get on good horses here. I like coming to these rodeos because it’s just an awesome atmosphere. It’s so laid back and cowboy friendly.

Rodeo Spotlight Sutherland

story by Lindsay King

Few rodeos can say they get a good turnout for the slack, but that's exactly what the Sutherland NSRA rodeo boasts. Known as the Fourth of July rodeo, Sutherland is traditionally the third and fourth with slack on the second. "It depends how the holiday hits and when people have to go back to work, but we usually figure anywhere from 1,000 to 2,000 people are in the stands every night," said long-time volunteer and committee member Janet Mueller. The holiday event might not be listed as a festival, but it sure runs like one. "We have three days of activities going on in addition to the rodeo each night. It kicks off with a hamburger feed with our local grocery store followed by slack on the second."

Mueller has found many families plan reunions and other events around the rodeo weekend. This has made it imperative for the 82-year-old event to remain both family and community oriented. Those 82 years only account for how long the event has been held at the rodeo grounds in town. "The rodeo actually started sometime in the 1920s at a ranch just north of Sutherland. They held it in a canyon and then used Model T's as the rest of the arena fence. It started at a ranch just like most rodeos did, we have just been able to maintain it."

In the spirit of keeping the Sutherland rodeo going strong for another 80 years, the committee is continuing to make improvements to the event and the facilities. "Last year we put up an open-air pavilion to put the beer garden and picnic tables under. We are in the middle of putting up a 30x72-foot building that will have restrooms, a new concession stands area and a conference room." Though the building won't be complete by this year's rodeo, it will be done by the end of the summer. The committee hopes it will be used for other events throughout the year. "Last year the guys worked really hard to move the roping boxes to the south end of the arena, this makes our set up much more suitable for all the timed events. We have also put in a new sorting alley and are putting even more of those in behind the bucking chutes." Mueller said this will make it easier for Phillips Rodeo Company to move their stock through.

If the facility improvements and full stands isn't enough to get a contestant to Sutherland, then the added money certainly should be. "This is one of the largest NSRA rodeos of the year and we are very proud of that. We usually have around 600 entries and have paid out over $52,000 in the last two years." The mixed team roping is not just a slack event in Sutherland, they are also featured in the performances. The committee has $1,200 added to every event, including that amount per person in the team roping.

Spectators will also be privy to one of the toughest amateur rodeo queen contests in the state. Also a committee member of the Miss Rodeo Nebraska pageant, Mueller said she has anywhere from six to 12 contestants every year for the Sutherland queen contest. It is actually only open to contestants 15 years old and under. "We have had many girls win this title and then go on to be Miss Rodeo Nebraska." Before the rodeo starts kids are invited to participate in the boot race and later get back in the arena for the calf scramble. Co-sanctioned with both the NSRA and M-SRA, the Sutherland rodeo is also sanctioned with a few other state associations. "The committee just wants to thank everyone that has ever attended or been part of the rodeo, because without them we would not be where we are today. We are proud to put on a rodeo of this size." 📷

AUTUMN WOODRUFF

Autumn Woodruff is a 17-year-old barrel racer from Granbury, Texas, that just won the 26th annual 2019 Josey Reunion Championship Title. “My horse has not been an outside horse. He has never ran in outdoor arenas before. This is a pretty big pattern but he has a big stride so it worked out. We qualified with a 16.8 in the 2D in the first go. In the second go we ran a 16.4 – it was a great run. In the short go, Buck fired really hard. I knew it was going to be fast.” Autumn has had Raw Firepower, a 7 year old gelding by Firewater Ta Fame out of a proven Jody O Toole mare, for over three years. “Buck is kind of a butt to deal with, but he is worth it.”

Autumn started barrel racing at the Josey Ranch in 2012. “I went to Martha’s clinics and bought two horses from her. I’ve been to three or four clinics since then. Those first ones taught me the basics, and there is always something new to learn. Miss Martha is the sweetest lady ever! Josey Staff are amazing people. Everyone is so supportive and cheers you on. You have a great time with people who have a good attitude. That’s hard to find these days.”

Autumn got introduced to barrel racing through her dad’s (Chris) work. “He produces two big shows during the WNFR: the Cowboy Marketplace and Country Christmas. I was always going to the WNFR. I was that little girl who loved the barrel racing, but I was allergic to horses. Eventually, I wanted a horse so bad that I was will to take shots or medicine to have one!” Luckily, her allergies are held in check with over-the-counter allergy medication. She got a horse when she nine. She started by learning the basics and western pleasure. I rode bareback a lot because I was too weak to lift the saddle, later learning that I had a condition called ligament laxity.” She moved from that to barrel racing.

“We just started the All In Barrel Race four years ago. My dad started it because of my interest in barrel racing. This years race is $700,000 crash payout guaranteed. We have three races spread out over a week and a half in Las Vegas at the Orleans Arena.” Autumn is homeschooled by her mother to allow her enough time to ride and train her horses.

She will graduate high school this month and she has quite a few futurity colts coming up that she will be working on. She currently has no plans to go to college. “If I take time out to go to college, that would take time away from working with my young colts and competing.” She learned how to train horses by trial and error. “We bought Buck as a four year old. We did fine for a while, but then we starting butting heads. I gave him to Mickey, who works for us, to ride because I was ready to sell him. After six months, Mickey brought him back to me and told me how to ride him. We’ve been good ever since! The hardest thing I had to learn is that I cannot be the boss with Buck. I have to trust that he will do his job and let him work. It has been a learning process for us both.”

Autumn has slowly built up her horse operation over the years. She is partial to the Firewater Ta Fame and Jody O Toole bloodlines. “I haven’t been disappointed with any of the foals from our Jody O Toole mares. I have three JOT mares bred back to Firewater Ta Fame, so I’m pretty excited about that!” The horse operation and the whole family are moving to Tolar. “My dad works constantly on his business, Group

W Productions, and hauls me to races when he can. He pays for a lot of the entries and other expenses. As far as the care taking, vet appointments, day-to-day manual labor, and putting time on the horses, it’s up to Mickey and me to do all that.”

Autumn’s mom, Annette, chose to stay at home in order to school Autumn and her 9 year old brother, Andrew. Annette has always put her kids in a place of top priority while putting her own dreams of musical interests on hold. She’s now on the worship team at their church but her main goal is to raise Godly children and attempt to create calm in a crazy environment. “She’s really amazing.”

Andrew has no interest in horses, the western lifestyle, or anything country. “He will come and support me though,” she said.

Autumn’s plans for the future are to continue training horses and find a career in the horse industry. “I’d like to get into the futurity part of the industry, that’s where the big money is right now. Raising babies and selling them is what I’m looking forward to.”

“God is amazing – He’s my rock and I wouldn’t be anywhere here without Him. He gave me a great family and people surrounding me to get me here. What more can you ask for?” 🙏

Kami Klepac at the KK Run for Vegas Qualifier in Bryan, TX
- Kenneth Springer

I was proud of myself," adds Kami, who has qualified for the Junior World Finals at the Brazos County Expo arena in Bryan before.

Kami's rodeo résumé also includes running barrels at The American Semi-Finals this winter after tying for first place at the 2018 All In Barrel Race in Las Vegas to qualify.

She's grown up in the shadow of the arena, accompanying her aunt and older cousin, Jessalyn and Paisley Pierce, to rodeos until she was old enough to start competing herself.

"She was destined to be on the back of a horse," says Morgan. "We heard about KK Run for Vegas going on and thought it would be neat, but we never dreamed she would make it. It's 28 hours to drive. Her dad and uncle drive the horses and my sister and I fly out with the kids. It's such a prestigious event. Kelly sets up autograph sessions for the kids and a back number ceremony and really tries to mimic the NFR. To have that at such a young age is awesome."

Kami competes in the Texas Youth

Rodeo Association, Elite Barrel Racing Productions, and WrapN3 barrel races, where Kami was the 2019 Youth Super Stakes Champion. Beyond barrel racing and pole bending, she competes in goat tying, ribbon roping as the runner, and figure 8s. During the 2018 TYRA Finals, Kami set the arena record for figure 8s with an 8.5. She uses part of her time driving to rodeos to watch videos of previous runs, which her dad, Dale Klepac, takes for her.

"I look up to my Auntie (Jessalyn). She cheers me on and helps me get better. She rides and barrel races," explains Kami. "My favorite event is the barrels, because it's easy and my horse is good. I practice about three days a week and my mom and dad help me with exercising and tuning my speed horses, and with tying goats." Along with the horses she's taking to the Junior World Finals, Romeo and her barrel horse Zoey, Kami has a pony, Cowboy, whom she ties goats off of; King, her retired pole horse; and a mare named Bella. "I have a dog, and another horse, Sassy, who's at the trainer for barrels, and I have chickens and two goats."

Having recently finished fourth grade at Van Vleck School, where Kami enjoys studying math, she plans to spend her summer rodeoing, as well as showing steers in 4-H. She also competes in various barrel races through the summer, and the Polk County Youth Rodeo Association in Livingston, Texas.

"Kami's dad has a red stag he had shoulder mounted and made into a buckle shelf with a backboard, and all her buckles are on there. Her saddles are in our dining room," says Morgan. "She's made the (Junior NFR) short go the past two years in the barrels, so she would really like to win the championship title this year."

Meet the Member Kami Klepac

story by Lily Weinacht

Kami Klepac of Van Vleck, Texas, qualified for her first Junior World Finals when she was just 7 years old. Today, the 9-year-old is making her third trip to Las Vegas, not only in barrels for the third consecutive year, but also pole bending for the first time. She won the junior division barrel racing at the KK Run for Vegas qualifier in Bryan, Texas, in April, stopping the clock at 15.4, and placed second in the pole bending. "Kami had a goal to qualify in poles because her favorite horse, Romeo, is her pole horse, and she was determined to take him with her to Vegas," says Morgan Klepac, Kami's mom. "It was good, and

Bowen Shields - John Golom

Meet the Member Bowen Shields

stories by Riata Cummings

Bowen Shields is the son of Casey and Laura Shields of Delta, Utah. He enjoys living in Delta where he is close to the mountains and has “the freedom to go hunting, riding, or shooting whenever I want.” He is a senior attending Delta High School, and his favorite class is his CTE or work release class where he receives credit for going to work at D/M Quarter Horses where he starts rope horses. Bowen is a talented athlete and has wrestled competitively since he was very young. He recently became the 3A State Champion wrestler for the 195-pound weight bracket. Bowen has one older brother, Tanner, and two younger sisters, Allie and Swayzie. He enjoys hunting with his dad and brother, as well as hanging out with his friends and helping at various ranches in his area. After high school, Bowen is planning to go to a farrier school in Oklahoma.

Bowen first became interested in rodeo when he went to work for Dan, a friend of his father. While working with the horses, Bowen learned to rope and steer wrestle. He now competes in the team roping as a header for Hyrum Morley, and in the steer wrestling. He especially loves the adrenaline rush of throwing a steer in the bull dogging. “My ability to throw an opponent on the wrestling mat translated pretty easily into being able to throw a steer. Learning new techniques and trying them out came naturally because that is a lot of what we do in wrestling practice.” He borrows a horse named Digger for the steer wrestling, and the horse is consistent and easy-going. His head horse is a stallion named Arnold who is “bulky, gentle for a stud, and has a funny personality.” Over the summer, Bowen won a saddle at a ZD Cattle Co. roping, and he is qualified for the Utah High School State Finals Rodeo in both of his events. He has set a goal to be in the top 10 in both of those events before state finals.

[ “Learning new techniques and trying them out came naturally because that is a lot of what we do in wrestling practice.” ]

Working with horses and competing in rodeo has taught Bowen patience, which is now one of his greatest strengths. “With training horses I have noticed that they don’t learn everything or anything in just one day. Getting them to do what you want takes time and patience, and people are the same way. I am learning to be more understanding and patient with the people around me because you have to be that way with horses.”

Bowen has heard the saying, “kill or be killed,” his whole life from his family and coaches on the wrestling mat. To him it means “be great or don’t do it.” That mentality is part of the reason he has worked so hard in the wrestling room and in the arena. He knows that he wants to be the greatest and doesn’t let the fear of a challenge stop him from accomplishing those goals. His hero is Kyle Snyder, the youngest Olympic gold medalist and youngest World Champion in American wrestling history. “I have watched him my whole life. Just like him, I want to be a champion but humble.”

Bowen would like to thank his parents, grandparents, great grandparents, and siblings for their constant support of his dreams. He is grateful that they are always there for him and always have his back, even in the hardest of times.

Meet the Member Dylin Ahlstrom

story by Lily Weinacht

Dylin Ahlstrom is sitting fourth in the RMPRA team roping heeler standings. The 21-year-old cowboy from Genola, Utah, is in the middle of his third season with the association. He joined his senior year of high school, ready to take the next step in his roping career and enjoy it alongside his friends, who also compete in the RMPRA. "They're a lot of fun, and I love Tooele. There's a lot of people there and you have to rope really fast, and it always pays good," says Dylin. He's qualified for the RMPRA Finals twice, roping with header Jake Jarvis, while this year he's primarily roping with Taylor Winn and also enters with Brodi Jones.

Roping is dalled around Dylin's family tree, and he can't recall a time growing up when he didn't rope. Following after his dad and grandpa, he started competing as early as he could, later joining the junior high ranks and qualifying for the NJHFR all three years. He won state in ribbon roping and tie-down roping his eighth grade year, then qualified twice for the NHSFR and won state in the team roping his senior year. "I calf rope every once in a while, but team roping is mainly my event," says Dylin. "My thing is I've always wanted to succeed, and I want to do it for a living. I love to rope—that's my favorite thing to do—and I love traveling and I like the competitiveness."

While he college rodeoed for a year at Cochise College in Douglas, Arizona, Dylin also worked in Texas and helped his employer put on team roping jackpots. "There's so much money to win in team roping, even outside of rodeoing, like at jackpots. Heeling is difficult and I like the difficulty—it makes it fun. I rope at a couple of people's places, and I rope every day. I'm always working on stuff, and Brodi Jones and I rope together almost every night." Dylin also roped with his brother, Wyatt (18), at the winter RMPRA rodeos, while their sister, Kaycie (18), breakaway ropes in the association. Their parents, Griff and Amy Ahlstrom, continue to rope as well. "My dad has always been my biggest inspiration. He's always seen my potential and pushed me to be the best I could possibly be. We're going to the World Series Finale in Vegas in December, and we're roping together in the 12."

Dylin's horsepower is an 8-year-old gelding, Slim Shady, he purchased from Quinn Kesler this spring. "I think he might be one of the better ones I've ever owned. He's a little horse, and to some people he might not be special, but we sit really well together," says Dylin. Slim Shady has also carried him to PRCA Wilderness Circuit rodeos this year, and Dylin has qualified for the circuit finals the last two years with Jake Jarvis. "Genola is very central to rodeos for the RMs and pro rodeos on our circuit—I don't think you can get any more central—so traveling isn't a big deal."

In between ropings, Dylin works for his grandpa at Cedar Valley Farms, running cattle and growing crops. Any free time finds him right back in the roping pen. "Everybody's wanting to make the (NFR) Finals, and that's my big goal hopefully one day," says Dylin, who also has three runs at the WSTR Finale and hopes to secure one more. "I entered the BFI this year in Reno, and I'm entered in a lot of those bigger ropings this year that I want to knock off the bucket list. I'm wanting to go harder to pro rodeos next year, and I want to win the (RMPRA) year-end really bad. I came in sitting good this year and that's my goal to win it one of these years."

Sponsor Spotlight

Protect the Harvest and Lucas Oil with Shawn Burtenshaw

by Naomi Loomis,
WSRRA Association Representative

Our Mission: Inform. Protect. Respond.

• INFORM and EDUCATE Americans about the activities of animal rights groups, anti-agriculture groups and other non-governmental organizations that threaten agriculture, animal welfare, our traditions, and way of life.

• PROTECT our freedoms and way of life by supporting agriculture, land use, hunting and fishing, animal ownership, and animal welfare.

• RESPOND to laws, regulations, or misinformation that would negatively impact animal welfare, animal ownership, restrict our rights, and limit our freedoms.

This mission statement of Protect the Harvest can be found on their website.

In 2018, Protect the Harvest and Lucas Oil was our Presenting Sponsor of the WSRRA. We are honored to have such great companies sponsoring our association. Protect the Harvest is a non-profit organization committed to informing and educating the public about how animal rights and environmental extremist groups are working to influence our government and legal system. These groups and their activities are threatening agriculture, animal ownership, and land and water use – our very way of life.

I sat down with Shawn Burtenshaw, he is one of their volunteers.

Shawn was raised in farming and ranching in Idaho. His family was highly involved in livestock marketing. He spent most of his youth, backgrounding calves in feedlots in the winters and taking care of grass yearlings in the summer. He talks about his involvement in the rodeo arena, "I've always been involved with horses and rodeo. In high school rodeo I was the All Around Champion. Saddle bronc was my favorite event." He also managed some cattle ranches in Nevada for several years. Then in 2013, he moved his family to Wyoming, where he leased a ranch and ran cows and a few yearlings. Shawn has three daughters and two sons.

Shawn currently lives in Idaho, where he is in the middle of restoring an old cabin in his spare time. "Hopefully by winter my cabin will be completed."

On behalf of the WSRRA, we would like to say "Thank You" for all your work in protecting our way of life, in the rodeo arena and in everyday life. "Thank You" Shawn, for all your hard work as well.

LUCAS OIL and Protect The Harvest have been highly involved with WSRRA as a sponsor and promoter of their events.

Folks, please head over to their website and check out what they are doing to help all of us out: <https://protecttheharvest.com/> or find them on Facebook. 📷

THE SOURCE OF PEACE

article by Crystal Lyons

As I write this, there's a toad strangler going on outside, a virtual downpour of precious rain for us in the Texas Hill Country. It started around 3 am and now coming up on 9:30 am it still shows no signs of letting up. My dog, the ex-military Dutch Shepherd that I have to tie up when setting off fireworks because he joyfully runs TO them...is afraid of storms. Go figure. He's the reason I know the thunder and lightning started around 3 am because that's when he jumped up onto the bed in the neck of my trailer, laying as close as he possibly could to me.

Duke who is as brave as any dog I've ever known is afraid of storms. When fear arises in him, he finds me. Why? Because I have become his source. I am his peace. Peace is not the absence of turmoil, war, noise or danger. Peace is also not some euphoric feeling regardless of our surroundings. Peace is actually a Person, the "Prince of Peace" Who is Jesus. Peace for us is therefore a relationship with the ever nearness of Peace Himself and the choice we make to lean into His presence. Taking this a little further, we carry the tangible essence of what we allow to overshadow us. As someone so wisely said, "what we focus on, we give permission to exist". Therefore, if my focus is full of negativity and fear, I by my own choosing have given permission for those negatives to continue to rule over my life. I can pray for peace till I'm blue in the face, but until I shut the door where I've been mentally feeding on turmoil... peace, by my own volition has no right to invade.

Jesus said in John 14:27, "I leave the gift of peace with you—My peace. Not the kind of fragile peace given by the world, but My perfect peace. Don't yield to fear or be troubled in your hearts—instead, be courageous!" (The Passion translation) Notice right in the middle of His promise for ever abiding peace, we're given the right to CHOOSE whether or not we will yield to fear? Fear is a choice. Courage is a choice. But how can I choose something that I have no belief in its faithfulness to uphold me? Therein lies the problem. Jesus IS the Prince of peace, but His peace will not envelope me simply because He exists. It's not some magic formula that I can invoke just by saying His name. His peace comes through a walk with Him where I become convinced of His power and faithfulness to uphold me through any situation. Simply put? It's relational. Peace is an ever maturing relationship with the Prince Who IS, Himself... peace.

Remember when Jesus was asleep in the boat that was sinking in a raging storm while His disciples were freaking out in fear? How could Jesus simply say the words, "peace be still" and the elements obeyed? Because He was God? NO...He did everything as a man. Because what we carry inside we have authority to release! He was filled with peace therefore, He could release it! Simply put...we carry the essence of what we soak up. People often ask to be prayed over to have peace. I do it but I know that unless they CHANGE what their mind feeds on, they will only have peace for as long as they're under the influence of someone else's authority. Now you know why Duke jumped on the bed at 3 am.... such a smart dog! 🐾

Meet the Member Tom Bill Johnson

story by Lily Weinacht

Tom Bill Johnson of Kirkland, Arizona, is the 2018 GCPRA Open Team Roping Heeler. It's his second title—Tom Bill took home his first GCPRA champion saddle in 2016—won alongside his friend Trey Blackmore, who was the open team roping champion header last year. “I like to get away from the everyday grind of working all day, and being able to go and relax. I like hanging out and having a good time, and practicing—and it's always a plus when you win,” says Tom Bill, who trains horses for a living. “(Roping) is really not about making money. It helps my business, and I enjoy seeing all my friends that rope and rodeo too.”

Prior to joining the GCPRA around 2000, Tom Bill lived in Laredo, Texas, for five years and worked for the King of Country, George Strait, training horses. A friend of Tom Bill's, Cliff Davis, worked for George Strait, and Cliff's parents told Tom Bill about the job opportunity, even offering to fly him to Texas for a week to visit George Strait's ranch. “I broke colts, and then I'd break the horses and bring them up until they were old enough and turned them into rope horses,” says Tom Bill. “It was awesome. George is a great guy and he's one of my good friends now.”

Tom Bill also competed on the PRCA Texas Circuit while he lived there and made the circuit finals several times roping with Chuck Doeblar. “When I moved to Texas, I thought I was one of the better ropers in Arizona, and then I moved over there and I was the bottom of the barrel, so I had to learn to rope better,” he says with a laugh. “I started roping with Rube Woolsey—he's been to the (NFR) Finals four or five times. They have a big match roping in Prescott, and Rube and I were matched against Jake Barnes and Clay O'Brian Cooper in 2007, and we beat them.”

When Tom Bill and his wife, Melainie, started their family, they moved back to Arizona and he joined the GCPRA soon after. He also joined the Turquoise Circuit, where he continues to compete with Nate Singletary, a fellow GCPRA team roper as well. In 1992, Tom Bill won the team roping at the CNFR, representing Arizona State University and heeling for Cutter Holt. He also rode broncs and roped calves, but after graduating with his associates degree in Ag. Business, he chose to focus on team roping as his main event.

Along with training horses, Tom Bill runs cattle on a ranch outside of Wickensburg and shoes horses. He also had a Driftwood stud and bred and raised horses for several years. He recently retired his roping horse of 14 years, Twister, and now ropes off of Roxanne, a mare he trained and rode at the 2018 GCPRA Finals. Both of Tom Bill's daughters, Haley (19), and Taylor (17), enjoy roping, as does their mom, who is also a school teacher. “Taylor is finishing up high school and she enjoys going to ranch rodeos. Haley just went through basic training and now she's in the National Guard,” says Tom Bill. “We bought her a horse and she's learning to head. We practice together and I rope with my wife a lot—she heads very well.” The family also loves fishing and big-game hunting together when they're not roping. Tom Bill is sitting in the top 10 of the GCPRA open team roping standings, and is working toward further qualifications to the GCPRA and Turquoise Circuit Finals. “And I just want to do the best I can for my family,” he finishes. 🐾

Meet the Member Kenny Wright

story by Lindsay King

Kenny Wright nonchalantly recounts the time a bull snapped both of his femurs nine years ago, it's just how he looks at most things really. "I was at a pro rodeo in Crazy Horse, South Dakota, when I got hung up in my rope. It was a young bull and he took off running. He stepped on one of my legs and that tripped him up so he fell and that broke my other one," said the Edgewood, New Mexico, resident. Kenny grew up in South Dakota where riding saddle broncs was simply a way of life. "We ride colts and we ride bucking horses, that's just what we do back there." This third-generation rodeo cowboy followed in his dad's footsteps in the roughstock events. "I used to go to rodeos with my dad and if I wasn't mutton busting then I was just riding around with him in the arena."

The rodeo bug hit long before Kenny strapped onto his first bull or bronc. "I have always been a roper actually. I would saddle my pony and rope the dog then get off and tie him up. I was horseback before I could even walk, that's home for me really." To this day, to clear his head Kenny will go for a ride or toss a loop at the dummy. Even though Kenny has not ridden saddle bronc since before he broke his legs, he is gearing up to get back to it this summer. "My bronc saddle got stolen after I broke my legs and I never really wanted to get back into it that badly until now. I just mainly stuck with bulls because there was less gear to haul around."

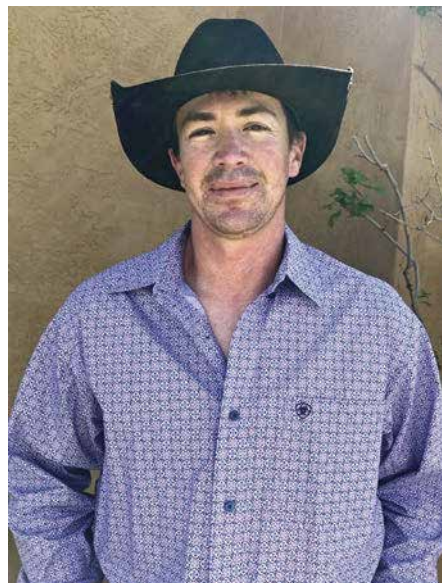

After graduating from Dodge City Community College in Kansas, Kenny started school at the National American University in Rapid City, South Dakota. Before heading to Kansas, Kenny completed a year at Sitanka Huron University in Huron. He was on rodeo scholarships to all three schools. After breaking his legs, Kenny went to physical therapy and then jumped into the working world. "I have been working alongside my dad since I was probably fourteen. He was a carpenter so I just got into that field." Now a superintendent for a construction company, Kenny has done everything from frame and remodel houses to putting on roofs. "Everything I know today I learned from my dad, from rodeo to working. He always taught me to just work hard and it will all pay off in the end."

This is the second year Kenny has been in the NMRA where he now serves as the bull riding director. "This association is for the working cowboy, the guys who only rodeo on the weekends. Everything is fairly close to home so I can be back for work on Monday morning." Kenny has been a longtime competitor in the Indian Rodeo Association. However, he isn't a big fan of the long drives some of those rodeos require.

[ "This association is for the working cowboy, the guys who only rodeo on the weekends." ]

Back in 2009, he made the INFR in the bull riding. He was also the Great Plains Indiana Association year end bull riding champion in 2009. "Making the INFR is still one of my greatest accomplishments. But rodeo is not really about how I do, it's about trying to help others be their best." Kenny seizes every opportunity to help his fellow competitors out behind the chutes. "If a guy needs some pumping up I will do whatever I can to boost his confidence or if a new guy looks like he needs some help then I try to be that for him."

Kenny Wright

It really comes as no surprise that family means the world to Kenny. "My sons are the most important part of my life, they keep me going. I want them to be able to look back and say they are proud of their dad for what I do and how I do it no matter what that is." 📷

Meet the Member Glenn Jackson

story by Lindsay King

Glenn Jackson - Emily Gethke

Glenn Jackson has found himself attempting just about every event in rodeo at one time or another. The flanking and tying stuck with him the most and he's been an avid calf roper for the last 20 years. "I was born into a rodeo family. My grandpa was a stock contractor and rodeo promoter, so it [rodeo] was kind of like the family business," said the Pawnee, Oklahoma, native. Even though he's a roper, Glenn appreciates the roughstock events also. "If I had to pick a favorite event it would have to be bull riding. Watching good bucking stock reminds me a lot of the time I spent with my grandpa growing up."

That growing up happened in south Texas and put Glenn in close proximity to some of the world's top cowboys. "I could go on and on with a list of guys that helped me, but I was very blessed to spend time with Sedgwick Haynes and Calvin Greeley." They were the first two people Glenn hit the rodeo trail with back in the day. As a teenager, Glenn moved in with Jimmy Canton, further solidifying his life-long pursuit of rodeo excellence.

Living in central Oklahoma makes it easy for Glenn to hit plenty of ACRA rodeos. It's a no brainer in his mind based on where he lives. "I've been a member of the ACRA for the last ten years and I'll buy my card every year that I am able to compete. The association reaches out to everyone, from the kids stepping up into the amateur circuit to the everyday working competitors." Since most ACRA rodeos are co-sanctioned, Glenn is also a frequent competitor in the IPRA, CRRA as well as jackpots and open rodeos. "I have been lucky enough to win some of the bigger ACRA rodeos over the years. Last year I left the finals with the average buckle. I was extremely proud of that because it was in memory of my buddy's (Blake Ash) grandpa."

Even though Glenn has won Rodeo Miami three times, his favorite ACRA event is held in his now hometown. "I love Rodeo Miami, but I am partial to the Pawnee Bill Memorial Rodeo held every August." Historically, the hardest part of rodeo for Glenn was getting out of the driveway. "I have gotten better over the years, but there was a time that I had a very high percentage of turn outs." If getting to the rodeo is the toughest aspect for Glenn, then once he gets there things get much easier. "I like to refer to myself as a 'preformer.' When I ride into the box, it's game on. My mental game is one of my strongest points. When I turn around and back into the corner, I focus on going slow enough to be correct but fast enough to win something."

This sharp focus will hopefully help Glenn break into the top 50 calf ropers in the PRCA – he wants another shot at Rodeo Houston. "At the end of the day, I just enjoy spending time with my friends that have become like family and helping the younger guys rope. Having the opportunity to see some of the people I have helped completes my rodeo career. Everything else is just a bonus." This top-notch support system consisting of family and friends also includes Glenn's girlfriend (Julie Williamson) and her family. "The guys at Willard Ropes and Tres Rios Silver have helped me tremendously as well. All this success would be impossible at any level without a support system in my opinion."

Meet the Member Wimberlee Elliott

Chasing cans and chasing dreams are one and the same for 8-year-old Wimberlee Elliott. The AJRA competitor from Paradise, Texas, is also becoming an avid roper, working to add to her buckle shelf, which holds numerous barrel racing buckles. She was the 2018 AJRA Reserve Barrel Racing Champion in the 8 & Under division, while she took third at the Ogden 8 & Under World Champion Barrel Race in 2018. When she was just 6, she won the all-around in the KJRA and took home a two-horse trailer that frequently tows her horses.

"We wanted to be in a little bit more competitive association, so we decided to try the AJs out this year and we loved them," says Sammie Elliott, Wimberlee's mom. "The girls get to go to a bunch of different arenas and we think that's good for the girls to travel. Wimberlee was in the top three all year so we knew it came down to the Finals. They give good awards and we were excited for her. She was very consistent, and it's super fun that the whole family gets to do it."

"I like going to different rodeos and riding my horse," says Wimberlee, who is sitting 10th in the pole bending and 13th in the barrel racing 9–12 standings. "My favorite is the Sweetwater Finals. We got to go swimming and we had a dance for the rodeo kids." She also competes in goat tying, and is learning to breakaway rope from her dad, Derrick Elliott. "We're working on going into the roping box, and tracking the calf," says Wimberlee. Derrick and his brother and dad all team rope, and Sammie also rodeoed through high school and college. Now Wimberlee and her sisters, Oaklee (4), and Knoxlee (7), love horses as well. Knoxlee also competes in the AJRA, and the sisters ride throughout the week and practice a specific event each day with their parents. I want to get better, and I have fun with my friends." During rodeos, Derrick helps the girls with their horses, while Sammie braids manes and videos runs. She also sews all of Wimberlee and Knoxlee's rodeo shirts.

Wimberlee trained her 11-year-old pony, Dusty, for goat tying, and rides 26-year-old Chip in barrels and 25-year-old Zapper in pole bending. "Chip can bow and lift up his feet—he wants to do it all the time when you clean his feet," says Wimberlee. She and Knoxlee like to train ponies together, and hope to sell the ones they don't fall in love with someday. Their Labrador, Julz, also accompanies them to rodeos.

Wimberlee recently finished second grade at Paradise Elementary, where she made a family tree for a final school project. She also played volleyball, basketball, and softball on her school's teams. Attending several basketball camps is a highlight of Wimberlee's summer break, as well as roping, and competing at the AJRA Finals. "I play with my sisters, and I like riding my ponies too," she adds. "I want to keep competing as I get older." Wimberlee is also looking for another barrel horse who can take her to the next level and compete at bigger barrel races. Her main focus now is breakaway roping, followed by learning team roping so that all of the family can rope together. 🐾

NEW SENSE OF LOVE

story by JR Vezain

May 17th at 2:20 am, I witnessed a miracle like one I've never witnessed before. Overwhelming feelings of happiness, joy, and love raced through me all at once like never before. It is a day that will forever be etched in my memories as my wife Shelby and I welcomed our perfect little baby boy, Ryatt Boyd Vezain into this world. There for a minute the world stood still! Nothing else mattered, it was pure bliss. I couldn't stop smiling when they laid the little man on his mother's chest and she just held him ever so gently. Then, they put him in my arms and it melted me. I didn't know a person could love something so much. As I looked at him and his dark blue eyes, his full head of slightly red tinted hair, his button nose that looked just like his mom's, his itty bitty fingers and toes, I couldn't help but notice how perfect he was. I just wanted to hold him forever. It was the proudest moment of my life. Words can not even explain how proud of my wife I was. After carrying the little guy for nine months and then watching her in the hospital that day I couldn't help but just be admired by her strength and beauty as she birthed the perfect little miracle that God had so precisely knitted in her womb. I was so proud of her, feelings I can't even explain have been born inside of me that I didn't even know were possible.

As we brought Ryatt home and began taking on this new responsibility a new sense of love has swept over me. Actually, to be honest Shelby does most of it I just do the fun stuff like rock him to sleep after feeding and play with him while he's awake, Shelby does all the hard chores. She is such a great mother! But, as Ryatt turned two weeks old the other day I have noticed a change in both of us. Since he showed up he is the first and foremost of our attention. His mother and I would do anything for the well being of that kid. As a new parent I would go to the deepest depths and not even second guess it for my child. I would give up everything to make sure our boy has everything he needs to succeed. I know from here on out will be a learning experience like none before and there will be times that I will make mistakes but for the most part I have a completely new sense of unselfishness to where I would do and give anything for our kid.

Although I will never completely understand the depth of the Lord's love, nor will I ever be able to love like the Lord loves us, I have a new sense of the love he has for us. As I love my wife and my child more than anything in this entire world, it doesn't even come close to how much God loves each and every single one of us. The way I looked at Ryatt the first few minutes of his life and how perfect he was, is how God sees us every single moment of our lives.

Psalms 139:13 "You made all the delicate, inner parts of my body and knit me together in my mother's womb." Psalms 139:16-18 "You saw me before I was born. Every day of my life was recorded in your book. Every moment was laid out before a single day had passed. How precious are your thoughts about me, O God. They cannot be numbered! I can't even count them; they outnumber the grains of sand! And when I wake up, you are still with me!"

The Lord loved us before we were born and every day we wake up he still loves us just as much. In John it tells us that there is no greater love than to lay down your life for your friends. What did Jesus do?

JR Vezain with his son, Ryatt Boyd Vezain
- Courtesy of the family

He laid down his life for each and every one of us. John 3:16 "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life." I am forever grateful for this love.

No matter what hardship you are facing. No matter how far off the deep end you think you have went. When you feel like there is no way God will accept what you have done. When you feel like there is no way God can love you because of the storm you are in, remember that he made you a miracle. He knit you together in your mother's womb. He loved you enough to make all your delicate parts. He knew you before you were even born. And, the precious thoughts he has about you can't even be numbered! He loved you enough to send his Son to die on the cross so we could have eternity with him, and it is never too late to accept his love!

Ephesians 2:10 "For we are God's masterpiece. He has created us anew in Christ Jesus, so we can do the good things he planned for us long ago." 📖

Meet the Member Ty Jameson

story by Lindsay King

Ty Jameson wasn't a fan of riding horses at first, it took a little convincing before he figured out it's where he was meant to be. "We had to bring this bull in and I didn't like riding horses at the time, so my dad (Rance) chased me down with a rope," said the 12 year old. Ty turned to run and hit the trailer door instead. His dad almost laughed himself off his own horse. Once Ty got on his horse and rode a few miles, it was all he wanted to do from then on. That was two years ago, and the rest is pretty much history for the fourth-generation rodeo competitor. "After all that, I started roping with my dad. This is the first year I have really rodeoed hard."

A short six months after Ty started swinging a loop, he discovered a rope wasn't what he wanted to be throwing after all. "I want to be a bull dogger someday. I was watching Yandy Yarbrough and Clayton Stokes practice and decided I wanted to try it. Those guys helped me get started in the chute dogging and they continue to coach me today." Throwing a steer might be where his heart is at, but Ty still ropes as a heeler and in the breakaway. Ty said

- courtesy of the family

Rance is to blame for his bull dogging affinity, he's the one that drove him to the arena where he first saw the event. Rance helped Ty learn his events from day one, from throwing a steer to catching a calf's neck. "My mom (Theresa) helps in the PR department," he laughs, "She takes video and is always yelling for me when I do well. She also helps run the chute at home."

Looking up to someone is a bit of a feat for Ty who stands at 5-foot, eleven. "Ty Erickson is my role model. We have the same name and we are both tall. He is strong and always positive, plus he won the American this year in the bull dogging." The first OKJHSRA event Ty competed in was at the Lazy E. He figured none of the other arenas would be inside. "There are a lot of nice arenas in this state, both indoor and outdoor. That has surprised me a lot in this first year." Without hesitation, Ty proclaimed the Lazy E as his favorite rodeo destination. "It's so big and it's nice that they can have different arenas for everything."

Ty learned early on to develop a short memory between events. It's something his parents have preached for both rodeo and other sporting events. "As soon as one event is done, you have to be ready for the next one. You can't get down on yourself if you don't do well because then you won't do well all day." Ty started his sixth-grade season strong by winning the chute dogging at his very first junior high rodeo. "I was pretty nervous, but excited. At the first two rodeos last fall I team roped and placed in the top five in points. I had only been doing it for about a month at that point." A strong foundation in the NWOJRA prepared Ty for this season and gave him the confidence to dream big. "I've already won a couple of rodeos in the chute dogging. I am planning to make it to nationals. I just have to keep getting times at every rodeo."

With plans to become a professional rodeo competitor, the Elk City Intermediate School sixth grader has a back-up plan to become a vet. He spends his "off time" practicing with his school's football team as a defensive end or offensive lineman. Although, his other love is baseball. Ty plays first and third base for the Elk City Outlaws, a traveling team. "Last year I hit four home runs, they went all the way over the fence." 📺

Women's Ranch Rodeo Association

Meet the Board Members Jacie Brown Wetmuka

stories by Billie Franks founder and board member

Jacie Brown Wetmuka, Oklahoma cowgirl got hooked at the Battle in the Bluestem Women's Ranch in 2015 at Pawhuska, Oklahoma after experiencing the comradery between the teams. Captain of the J Bar Cattle Company, her favorite event is the Muggin/Stray Gathering. If you rodeo together enough you have the advantage in competition you can "read" each other's next move. She joined the board of directors in 2016 to be a part of the growth of the WRRA. Her favorite part of the association is the friendships she has made and how the WRRA brings the girls together. 🤠

Raelyn Gilmore

President Raelyn Gilmore of Nebraska resides in Prairie View, Kansas. Being an adrenaline junkie, the challenge, competing and showcasing skills as cowgirls was fun, she was hooked after her first rodeo in Hyannis, Nebraska. The mugging/Stray gathering is her favorite event, sometimes it goes just like you plan and sometimes it gets real western! The advantage she believes the team has over other teams is there is no drama, no super stars, they win as a team, lose as a team and they leave it all in the arena every time. Her favorite part of the association is the lifelong friendships she has made, we compete hard against each other, but also cheer each other on just as fiercely! She joined the board because she saw a few passionate women trying to get things done. 🤠

LeAnn Parsons

Treasurer LeAnn Parsons of Texas has been a member of the association for 8 years. She grew up ranching, broke and trained race horses for 12 years and rodeo has always been part of her life. Some of the greatest people she has met has been in the WRRA arena. She will be producing the rodeo in Lone Oak, Texas June 1 and 2.

Meet the Member Rylan Stephens

story by Siri Stevens

Rylan Stephens rides bulls in the senior division of the IMRA. This is his first year and he is excited to be part of it. "It looks like a good opportunity for me," said the 15 year old from Shelbyville, Illinois. Rylan heard about the association from Keith Whooten, who produces Cowden Illinois Pioneers Day. "That's the rodeo I grew up watching," he said. "All it took was me jumping on a sheep one time doing the mutton busting at 5 years old to know I wanted to be a bull rider when I grew up." This is his third year riding bulls. "I've been working on my own in the practice pen – I go to 3C practice pen and those guys help me."

Rylan will be a sophomore next year and plans to play football. Along with rodeo, he likes to fish and spend time on the river. He works at the family snow cone shop, Tropical Snow. His mom, Nina, and step dad Matt Clark, bought the shop this year. Rylan has six siblings, one full brother, two foster sisters, one step brother and two step sisters. There are a handful of rodeos close by, but Ryan has to travel for the bigger ones. His grandmother, Marlow Stephens, takes him. "My parents both work and I spend a lot of time with her, so it works out great."

He has his mind set to make the trip to

Rylan Stephens - Courtesy of the family

Oklahoma next January to compete at the IMRA Finals, held in conjunction with the IFR. "When I turn 18 I want to buy my PBR Membership and go to some little events and work my way up the bigger PBRs. I appreciate my grandma Marlow Stephens, my dad Randy Stephens, my mom Nina Clark and my step dad Matt Clark and everything they have done to help get me where I am today."

Meet the Committee Wolf Creek Rodeo Company

story by Michele Toberer

The Wolf Creek Rodeo Company started out close to three years ago, after Justin Russell and his wife, Jessica, bought some broncs to give their son Taylor an opportunity to practice for his new high school rodeo event, saddlebronc riding. In a short time, the requests for the family to provide broncs at high school rodeos and other local events started coming in, and the stock contracting business has grown from there. Justin who also works in the oil fields with his trucking business, was originally from Oklahoma, and had spent most of his life rodeoing, so was familiar with the scene. He competed as a team roper on a rodeo scholarship at Southwestern Oklahoma State University, and graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree, with a minor in manufacturing. He and Jessica met in college, and have been married for nearly 21 years, with two children, Taylor and Loclynne. Jessica is a financial director for the Economic Development Corporation, besides her many duties in all aspects of the stock contracting company. The family has been based out of Texas for over two decades, and Lipscomb, Texas is where they've called home the past 3 years. "We keep about 35 to 40 head of horses, 10 to 15 bucking bulls, Corrientes we use for team roping and bulldogging, plus some beef cattle. We're fortunate that God has blessed us with enough land to hold all the stock we want to keep for the business."

Last year was the first year the Russell's have worked with the Kansas Professional Rodeo Association, and they are looking forward to a continued partnership on quality rodeos. "The KPRA is growing exponentially and a lot of people are noticing that. It's a good, clean organization with several wonderful stock contractors. They are a great group of people that are easy to get along with and all do a really good job. The organization is strong, with a good base membership of cowboys and cowgirls, and they do their best to take care of business." This season, the Wolf Creek Rodeo Company will be providing stock at several rodeos, starting with the 4th of July rodeo in Canadian, Texas, then going to Fairview, Oklahoma, and Pampa, Texas. "We all do this because we love it. I love watching the animals and watching the cowboys and cowgirls make good runs on them. I just have a passion for rodeo and the stock we use for it."

The Russell's son Taylor, 19, has just finished his freshman year at Clarendon College, which is approximately two hours from Lipscomb, and his rodeo team won the men's team title for the first time in the school's history. Taylor not only rides broncs for college rodeo but is also a KPRA cowboy. Loclynne is an extremely active 12-year-old who attends a small school in Follett, Texas and divides her spare time between softball, basketball, cheerleading, and showing calves and pigs. The business is a family affair and each of them help where needed. "It's nice because sometimes we're driving down the road and we'll be talking about what stock we're going to use for a rodeo coming up and which nights we'll do what. Jessica knows the stock as well as I do, and any cowboy could come ask her what kind of trip their bronc is going to take and how much rein they need."

"We take it all very serious, and I applaud these cowboys competing for what they go through, they are tougher than boots. What keeps drawing me to it is watching this stock raised to perform. I don't necessarily plan to raise stock to go the NFR, I just do it for the sheer love of what it is. I love to watch guys make good rides, watch them get off safely, and then do it all again tomorrow. All the guys entering also work for a living, and it takes a lot to put out the entry fees with many having a family at home too. I want to make sure every one of them has a legitimate shot to win, that's always been my deal." 📱

Meet the Member Bob Penfield

Cowboy, Bareback Rider, Army Veteran, Auctioneer, Writer

story by Don Reichert

Bob Penfield at the Jackrabbit Stampede in April
- courtesy of Don Reichert

In 1951, Bob Penfield, Lemmon, South Dakota and Guy Ham, Rapid City, South Dakota met with the president of South Dakota State College (now University) Brookings, South Dakota to pursue starting a rodeo club. "He didn't throw us out, but he might as well of because he did hold the door open for us so we could walk out easy. And his last words to us were 'As far as I'm concerned, rodeo isn't even a sport!'"

In the fall of 1952, Penfield was a senior Animal Husbandry major and a new college president, John W. Headley, was in place. Bob made an appointment to meet with the new president about establishing a rodeo club. "He was very surprised we didn't already have a rodeo club." With Headley's blessing, Penfield put up notices around campus and held the first meeting as temporary chairman and the rodeo club was founded. At the second meeting, he was elected president of the 40-50 member club that first year.

Penfield said, "The first rodeo team was myself, bareback rider Zack Word, Kadoka, South Dakota; and calf roper Dave Strain, White River, South Dakota". They competed at Ft. Collins, Colorado and Laramie, Wyoming where Penfield, won 6th place in the bareback riding to win the first points ever won by a South Dakota State team at a National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association approved rodeo.

On May 8 and 9, 1953, the SDSU Rodeo Club held its first NIRA approved college rodeo. Bob helped organize that first Jackrabbit Stampede at the Crystal Springs Ranch rodeo grounds near Clear Lake, South Dakota. Ranch owner, Elbert Wiesel, had started having rodeos in 1946 in a natural bowl on his ranch using his own livestock, "The Devil's Herd". Penfield and his dad had connections with Wiesel from the 1930's when he hauled hay to the drought stricken Lemmon, South Dakota area. Wiesel also bought saddle horses and bucking horses at the Lemmon Livestock Auction owned by Penfield's family. Because of this connection, the SDSU cowboys were able to practice at the ranch on the weekends and have Wiesel put on the rodeo for half the gross gate proceeds. At their first home rodeo, South Dakota State College took third place honors. Except for 1955, SDSU has held a rodeo at Brookings, South Dakota every year since then.

Bob was drafted into the US Army and sworn in at Ft. Riley, Kansas on December 2, 1953, his 23rd birthday. After basic training he was assigned to a medical unit at Camp Richmond, Virginia. He said "I learned to properly position a bed pan under a person so you didn't have to change the sheets right away." After several weeks of bedpan duty he was transferred up to the research department at Walter Reed Army Medical Center cleaning animal pens, a job he had experience with after being employed at Lemmon Livestock.

Bob took advantage of being close to rodeos on the east coast. "There were a lot of rodeos over the summer put on by a producer named Radie Evans. There was also a promoter over there by the name of Milt Hinkle that put on some big rodeos and of course there was Howard Harris at Cowntown, New Jersey." Bob won the Maryland State Championship Bareback Riding buckle that summer and was shipped to Okinawa in the Far East that fall.

In Okinawa he served in the Ryukyu Hospital Veterinarian Section as an Animal Technician in the Ft. Buckner Animal

Clinic. He met Roger James, Joe Gayette, and Tom Thomas who with the help of the US Army Special Services, put on a series of four rodeos in 1955 with three qualifying rodeos and a finals rodeo. Bob worked three events and announced all the rodeos held at Naha, Okinawa. Bob won the 1955 Okinawa Bareback Riding buckle at the finals. The contestants flew in from all branches of the service from all over the Far East for the rodeos. The Army team won a nice pair of fancy spurs that are still hanging in the Ryukyu Command Army Headquarters with information about the 1955 rodeos held there.

When Bob was 6 years old, his dad, Earl, graduated from the American Auction College in Kansas City, Missouri. "I guess from the first time I heard Dad do his auction chant, I wanted to be an auctioneer." In 1958, Bob and his wife, Winona, bought Home Base Auction in Bowman, North Dakota. At 27 years of age, Bob became the youngest owner/operator of a Livestock Auction Market in the United States. He attended his first National Auctioneers Association Convention in 1957 and went on to serve on their board of directors and as president beginning in 1968. Over the years, Bob served on many other auctioneer boards and received many honors from county fair boards, auctioneer associations and 4-H for his many contributions.

Bob is a member of the Western Writers of America and has written 5 books about his friends in the Lemmon area and rodeoing in Okinawa. His wife, Winona, was active in the auction industry, working alongside Bob in their auction business as head auction clerk and office manager at Home Base Auction and Penfield Auctions and helping edit his books. Winona was called to Heaven in 2015. They raised one son and four daughters: Bert, Patty, Laura, Joan, and Sam.

Bob now lives in Spearfish, South Dakota near his daughters, Laura and Joan, who brought him to the Jackrabbit Stampede in Brookings, South Dakota in April. He continues to be an active SDSU Rodeo supporter. 🐾

Meet the Member Curt Johnston

story by Lindsay King

Coming off a world title high in the breakaway in 2018, Curt Johnston is truly loving every minute of his time competing in the NSPRA. "I just love to rope, so that is what we do. We travel to about 18 rodeos every year, spread all across the west," said the Eaton, Colorado, roper (calf, breakaway, team and ribbons). As a kid, Curt learned how to rope more out of fun than for sport. His dad had horses and they team roped, but they didn't compete much outside of their local jackpot or two. "I was always interested in rodeo, but never did rodeo in college or as a professional. My son (Chase) got interested in roping as a kid, so I hauled him all over Colorado." From 2007 through 2011, Curt coached the Colorado State University rodeo team while Chase was a member of the team.

Until Curt started in the senior pros (2011), he had not roped calves for more than 35 years. He has not missed a day of it since then. "I have enjoyed the social aspect of rodeo. I have met a lot of good people." Curt jokes that everyone is just "trying to stay young at their age" in the NSPRA. It wasn't until the last couple of years that Curt got back into the groove of things. He not only won the men's breakaway at the 2018 NSPRA finals, but he was also the champion heeler and placed third in the all-around race and ribbon roping. "My wife (Rose) was my ribbon roping partner until she tore her ACL last year. A calf mucked her at our home rodeo (Greeley) and that was pretty much the end of her rodeo career."

Curt has served on the committee for the Greeley NSPRA rodeo for the last five

Curt Johnston
- Pounding Hooves Productions

years. He is also the ribbon roping director for the association. "The NSPRA is the perfect venue for older folks to still compete and enjoy the western way of life in a competitive nature. The thing I really enjoy about it is that we aren't just sitting around all day at a team roping." Most rodeos are followed by a pot luck or just fellowship among friends new and old. "It is a good organization and we are looking for ways to get the younger folks involved." Traveling to and practicing for rodeos is the perfect mental break for Curt from the family business.

"I used to work for a large ag lender as an appraiser and I went out on my own 14 years ago to establish Pro Ag Appraisal. Chase graduated from college and came into the business about 12 years ago." Covering both Colorado and Wyoming, Curt and Chase appraise anything and everything that has to do with agriculture. "It is good to have a family business. My wife is the office manager, so everyone is in one building and we all still get along." His daughter (Kara) is also a horse enthusiast growing up but never caught the rodeo bug. Curt and Rose are the proud grandparents of Chase's twin boys Qwade and Carter.

"It seems like I have had a horse since I was five years old and now I have four of them." The 23-year-old gelding Curt calls Leroy was on the professional circuit with Chase for several years. "They won the circuit finals and even went on to compete at the RNCFR. Once he was done with my horse I figured I should learn how to calf rope." Leroy doesn't get that many practice runs anymore, he mostly just gets hauled to the rodeos nowadays. "Rodeos are our social life in the summer time. We have a lot of friends from all over now. Good times, good people." 📷

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM THE BOX!

By Jerry Martin
Cowboy Connection Ministries!

The other day I went back to check my cows, most of which had already calved. But as I got closer to the heard this one cow took off in a different direction. I could tell she just had calved not long before I got there, she was trying to lead me away from her new born calf. The protective instinct can be strong, whether their trying to hide their calf or coming after you if you get to close to their young. Let me assure you of this. God is protective of His children as well. The Bible tells us in Zechariah 2:8, That if anyone touches His own they touch the apple of His eye. Also in 1 Peter 3:12, The eyes of the Lord are on the righteous and His ears are open to their prayers. This promise is for ALL who made Jesus Christ their Lord and Savior. He knows the dangers that are around you and He is aware of your every step. That is why it is so important to pray everyday and seek His direction so He can guide us through this life. And if you've never called out to Him before do it today He's waiting, He so loves you.

STYLING

article by Dale Woodard

Dale Woodard - Emma McWhorter

One of my friends just got back from a World Series roping in Albuquerque, New Mexico. My friend was telling me how proud he was of his rig. He said that his Dodge 3500 pickup is only one year old, and he has a fairly new living quarters four horse trailer. They arrived in the evening, they put their horses up and went to bed. He said when they got up the next morning, they were surrounded by high dollar rigs. We guessed most of the motor homes were valued at two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and then there was the fancy multi horse aluminum trailers that they were pulling. My friend said that his rig they were so proud of looked like they had just picked it up from a used car lot compared to the rigs around them.

When I heard this report, it took me back to our first camper. I was ten years old so it was 1956. My dad had a red 1950 GMC six-cylinder pickup. We made a camper out of 2x4's and half inch plywood. The 2x4's went into the stake pockets on the corners of the bed. We bolted the plywood to them. The roof was a pitched roof. Dad was a 7-Up delivery man, so the company gave him two old tin 7-Up signs. We put the paints side down on our roof and the shiny side up. We nailed that tin down with roofing tacks. The pickup was red so we got a can of matching red paint and painted our camper with a brush. The back door has two hinges at the top. To get in you just raised that piece of plywood up, got in and let it flop down behind you. Once we got her done, we just put the tailgate up to lock down this back-door flap, put a strap over the top so she wouldn't blow off and away we went.

We were headed to Red Bluff, California. My dad was going there to ride in the relay race so we didn't have to pull a trailer. Back then it was a five hour drive, one way. But speaking of trailers the first time I saw Virgil Green (Rickie Green's dad) he and his brother, Everett, were pulling a homemade horse trailer. This trailer was a single axle with metal ribs that went over the horses. The canvas skin that was meant to go over the top was gone so the ribs were exposed. The year was 1965. Virgil's head horse was named Old Sorrel and he weighed 820 lbs. Everett rode another sorrel named Big Red and he weighed 710 lbs. They say good story tellers never let the facts get in the way of a good story but these are facts. Virgil is still alive and living in Stephenville, TX. I called him to make sure my facts were straight. He said, "Those two horses were little but they worked like they weighed 2,000 lbs. on the end of the rope." Anyway, back to the rigs. Wouldn't it be cool to get an old pickup with a homemade plywood camper on it? Find a homemade single axle two horse trailer with exposed ribs to haul your horses in and then pull it into a World Series roping. Park in the middle of all of those high-priced motor homes and fancy trailers and then place in the roping. Wow, now that us styling.

As I'm reading this article to my wife she is giving me two thumbs down. I guess when she goes to a roping with me she wants comfort instead of style. I still think it would be a cool thing to do. But I guess styling is just a guy thing. 🤠

WHERE EVER YOU GO, THERE YOU ARE

article by Lacey Stevens

I think humans are very instant gratification and I believe our society has created it over time. Going into summer there are always more ads about losing weight and getting toned and if we buy a certain product we'll lose ten pounds and have a six pack the next day. There really isn't a quick fix to anything because if there were we'd all be doing it. It takes work, and dedication day in and day out. You can really sum up any diet plan to eating less and moving more and the other favorite is gym time won't fix a bad diet. It starts with what we put in our bodies that determines how we look and most importantly how we feel. I know in Arizona this winter I fell off the wagon, I ate awful and quit running all together. I have no one to blame but myself.

The same is true with roping. Whatever we put in to it, is what we get out of it. We can't improve or get better if all we do is talk about it. Since I have gotten back from Arizona I've roped twice. In my mind I know what I need to do and that's go rope. Excuses are like elbows, we all have a couple... summer is a busy time of year for me however there is always time to rope or just go rope the dummy a handful of times in the evening. I pulled up Facebook the other day and it's full of people I know that won this or that and I started feeling sorry for myself. You know what? Shame on me, if I want it bad enough I'd better start getting after it again. Whether it's training myself to be able to run a couple miles every day again or hit a golf ball consistently to the same spot, the choice is 100% mine.

I'm in control of what I chose to do with my time and it's up to me how much effort I put forth. I realize we all get a little burned out of anything we do every day and it's nice to take a break, but if that break starts breaking you, it's time to get back after it! It can be the smallest change in your routine, like drinking more water, or getting up from your desk and walking around for a couple minutes. We are creatures of habit, which can be beneficial or it can be detrimental... the choice is ours. 🐾

GARRETT TONOZZI

article by Siri Stevens

Garrett Tonozzi just won his second WCRA event, adding $50,000 to his check book, aboard Fulton Ranch raised mare, Streakin Disco. Heading for Joe Mattern, the team also won $62,500 a man at the $1 million Windy City Roundup in Chicago on January 11. On Sunday, June 2, the duo roped for the win at the Title Town Stampede at Resch Center in Green Bay, Wisconsin. "I've been around rodeo my whole life and I haven't seen this opportunity ever," said Garrett about the WCRA. "The crowd was amazing – you can tell Green Bay is a rodeo town."

Garrett, who has been rodeoing professionally for 15 years, is mounted on an A Streak of Fling-sired mare named Streakin Disco, who was born and raised at Fulton Ranch in Todd County, SD. The beautiful, stout bay roan was sold in the Fulton's 2012 sale to Monica McClung who started her on the barrels and at the futurities. She was then sold to Justin and Jordon Briggs, who started her in the heading and eventually sold her to Garrett. "He had taken her to a few jackpots and had won some money at the World Series Finals on her," explained Garrett. "Brittany was talking to Justin's wife and mentioned I was looking for a horse."

"We call her Disco and she is one of the fastest horses I've been on. She lets me win everywhere I go from Cheyenne to Green Bay. Every time I nod my head I know she's giving me 110%," he said. "When you have a horse like this, it makes rodeo a lot more fun." Disco is Garrett's number one horse, but he also has two others that he hauls with him. "She's the most trainable horse I've ever owned. If she makes a mistake and you correct her that day, she's over it." Disco fits into the Tonozzi breeding program as well. "We didn't have a Streaker in the lineup, so we pulled two embryos from her, one is in the recip mare now and the other foal is a yearling."

Brittany, Garrett's wife, has been building the breeding program for years, and the couple now has more than 50 horses in their care; training, breeding, and continuing to improve their line. "It's hard with this many horses. We don't have a lot of help, so it's just me and Brittany with Tinlee (their two year old daughter). There will be days Brittany and I will ride 8 to 10 horses each, switching when we ride so we can watch Tinlee." They just bought a place in Lampasas, Texas, one hour north of Austin, Texas, and home to the world's largest spur! They spend their winters there and head to Monument, Colorado, for the summer. "We are heading back to Colorado soon, taking 18 head with us."

They will begin the summer rodeo run from there, starting with Reno, the BFI and going on. They recently purchased a toterhome to make family travel easier. "Tinlee was moving too much and it's easier on her to do this. She can hang out in the back." Garrett wouldn't have it any other way. Growing up in Fruita, Colorado, Garrett started roping at his granddad's (Tony Tonozzi) jackpots when he was 8. He competed in CJRA, CSHSRA, went to college for a couple days and decided he wanted to rodeo, and he's been doing it ever since. He married two time World Champion Barrel Racer Brittany Pozzi in 2015 and the couple have been traveling together ever since.

At 34 years old, Garrett and Brittany have no plans to slow down. "We both agree that when it's time to haul Tinlee, we will focus on that, but for now, this is how we make our living, rodeo and horses." 🐾

BEN GAMBRELL

article by Michele Toberer

With an incredible amount of determination, Smarty Pro Team member, Ben Gambrell, of Stephenville, Texas, is taking his life by storm. Since his early days, being raised in West Union, South Carolina by his grandfather, Truman Owens, "Papa T," he's taken on every project in his life with a spirit of excellence, and although many in his shoes might feel they'd achieved their success, Ben won't stop until he becomes the world champion roper he knows he's destined to become. "I don't want to be the pit crew anymore, I'm ready to be the driver."

In South Carolina, Ben grew up training horses to trade with his Papa T, the local go-to guy for those that wanted to ride and rope. "He didn't set out to teach people, but if someone wanted to do something with a horse, he was who they went to for help." Ben roped so he could make rope horses and started out as a header originally. However, when he stepped in to heel for a high school rodeo partner midway through his senior year, he became intensely enthralled with roping two feet. "I fell in love with heeling and became obsessed with getting better at it. I heeled all the time, and completely wore out a roping machine in two months because I roped it nonstop." Ben mainly jackpotted and trained horses once he was 18 and went from a number 4 heeler to a number 9, in just 2 years. That's when Jason Tucker and Cory Kidd noticed him at a jackpot and asked him to partner up, so Ben spent the next few years heeling for them and finding a passion for rodeos. At 23, Texas was where he was certain he could make his dreams of being the best roper in the world come true and he rolled into Stephenville in his black Dodge dually with a camper on the back, pulling a red tag-along trailer filled with his belongings and his horses, Frog and Bo.

Pulling into his new apartment, the first person he saw in the parking lot was Kayla, and the couple has now been together 8 years, with their first child due near their three-year wedding anniversary in October. Although he found true love right off the bat, making a living roping did not happen as quickly as he'd envisioned. Ben sold his sorrel horse, Bo, to Patrick Smith to get money to keep roping, yet that sale brought him down a different path. Patrick had fairly-instant success on Bo, (who he renamed Red Bull) and Ben's name became the buzz in the professional roping world. Soon he was getting calls from many of the world's top ropers for his training services. "All the sudden I had over 20 horses to train and had 2 guys working for me; it went from nothing to something huge, fast."

Three years ago, still determined to follow his dream, Ben met with Allen Bach, "It doesn't take a genius to figure out whoever gets helped by Allen ends up a world champion." Ben left his first session with Allen with Smarty equipment, "On a handshake, he let me take $12k worth of roping dummies to sell." Within a week, Ben had it all sold. "I hustled so that I could get back to rope with Allen again."

A magnet for positivity, when Ben needs motivation, he goes to the notes on his phone, labeled "The Good Stuff," filled with positive affirmations, scriptures, and thoughts he uses to keep himself going.

Ben's determined to do whatever it takes to improve and become a world champion. "I believe the drive I have comes straight from God. He has given me a gift, and I may come off a little intense to some people, but I'm confident in what God shows me. I make a conscious decision every day to be what God has called me to be. I want to be the best husband, father, horse trainer, and roper I can be. You get recognized as a world champion, and I won't stop grinding until I am one. Once I'm a world champion, I know that I'll use that platform to share God's gift and help people that maybe nobody else could." 🙏

PROFILE: THE BULL RIDING HALL OF FAME

[ Inducts Class
Number 5 ]

story by Siri Stevens

The 5th annual Bull Riding Hall of Fame induction ceremonies took place Saturday, May 18th, 2019, in the historic Fort Worth Stockyards. More than 250 were in attendance to celebrate the Class of 2019 which included bull riders Charlie Sampson, Cody Custer, Butch Kirby, Bobby Steiner, Jerome Robinson, Ken Roberts, and Bobby Berger. The Bull Fighter inducted was Leon Coffee. The Legends category welcomed Beutler Rodeo Co. and Jerry Gustafson. The Bull inducted this year was Ol' Speck "There was an electricity and energy in the room which is the nature of the sport of bull riding and it brought back the energy of when so many of us were riding – the adrenaline was there. It was a lot of fun and certainly exciting," said BRHOF co-founder, Bill Putnam. "As a student of the sport for over 55 years, which includes a 26 year riding career, I love it today as much as ever. It's still the ride of my life! We're glad to be a part of it and see it come to fruition and with the response and attendance we feel we are on a great course." Bill along with his wife, Tammi, founded The BRHOF in 2012 with the inaugural class of inductees and ceremonies in 2015.

Bill started the process with a little nudge from the Lord. "The message came to me from God in a prayer time. It was time to have a bull riding hall of fame and we began the work. Once we started putting one foot in front of the other, others saw the mission and we grew. It's been a labor of love for those that love the sport and share that passion." Ft. Worth was chosen as the home after the first bull inducted, V61, was selected. Billy Minick owned the bull was in attendance at the first inductions at Tejas Rodeo in Bulverde, Texas. "At that time, The BRHOF had no home. We knew we had to have a home, but we had to put the inaugural class in place first. Billy Minick made the comment that Ft. Worth would be a good location for The Hall. Following that first event, we came to Ft. Worth to discuss the possibility of having The Hall located here. The Cowtown Coliseum director Hub Baker also took an interest and we received the invitation to come to the Coliseum. With the history of the Stockyards and the history of the sport it was a great match." The BRHOF Hall is housed in the west concourse of the Coliseum. “We recently added our 2019 inductee plaques and some additional displays. Like any Hall of Fame, exhibit hall or museum, it’s ever growing and evolving and that’s part of our goal is to keep improving.” The first three induction ceremonies in Fort Worth were held on the Cowtown Coliseum arena floor. This year the ceremonies were held at Billy Bob’s Texas 81 Club. “It was a beautiful venue for the live audience and the television production for the Cowboy Channel for the lighting and audio for filming,” said Bill. “The big screen on stage played very well and it was perfect for slideshows, photos and graphics.” Pam Minick and Don Gay have been the commentary personalities and masters of ceremonies at every BRHOF Induction

Ceremonies beginning with the inaugural in 2015. “Everybody had a blast,” said Jerry Gustafson, legendary Rodeo photographer and one of this year’s Inductees. “Charlie Sampson gave a great acceptance speech which included lots of compelling stories. I got to see lots of cowboys I hadn’t seen in 30 years.”

Bill’s bull riding career began in 1967, starting in Oak Hill Texas. During his career, he competed in the TYRA, AJRA, RCA/PRCA, open rodeos and bull ridings across Texas and six other states. “I competed primarily here in Texas,” he said. “I got on my last bull in 1993. He has made his career out of a variety of talents including ranching, the Paint horse business including breeding, boarding and training, hosting bull riding events at his ranch in Dripping Springs, Texas, construction work, and even ran a horse-back riding program at a youth ranch for ten years and more recently he and wife Tammi have owned and managed several online retail businesses. Bill’s wife and co-founder Tammi, has worked diligently to see that the Hall of Fame succeeds. “Nobody has worked harder or done more for The BRHOF than her. She has been instrumental in the growth of The Hall. Her dedication and work ethic are incredible.” As a 501c3, The BRHOF depends on the memberships, partners and attendees of the events to fund the operations and annual ceremonies and reunion. There have now been five classes and 54 inductees. Every inductee has been selected as a result of the same system. Beginning in September, nomination forms are sent out to active members, which includes the inductees, who receive a lifetime membership. For two months those nominations come in and they go before the induction committee which creates the ballot. The ballot goes out to the members in November and voting concludes December 31st. The votes are tallied and the new class is announced in early January every year. The Induction Ceremonies are scheduled in May.

“We are truly a sports Hall of Fame – we are not an association or regional hall of fame, we represent the sport of Bull Riding and we recognize the legends and the all-time greats regardless of affiliations or eras of competition.” You can learn more about The BRHOF at BullRidingHOF.com and at The BRHOF social media pages. 📺

Matt Walsworth - Randy Reel

Meet the Member Matt Walsworth

story by Michele Toberer

Matt Walsworth of Valparaiso, Indiana has a lifetime of riding horses behind him, but it wasn't until he was in high school that riding bucking horses became a passion. His mom, Teresa Walsworth, barrel raced, and Matt also competed in barrel racing before they started training their own horses. "We were learning about how to start and train our own horses, so I got on some bucky colts and thought it was a lot of fun. I thought I might as well start riding broncs and if anything, I'll learn how to ride a buck." Matt went to practice pens in Jacksonville, Illinois with Ray Cox, and at 17, he met Marty Barnes at a county fair and went to his ranch in Iowa where he rode several broncs with his guidance. "I loved it, and I've stuck with saddlebronc riding ever since."

Matt competed in the Illinois High School Rodeo Association for three years before graduating through his homeschool program in 2006. "We lived in the northwest corner of Indiana, so the Illinois high school rodeos were closer for us. I qualified for national finals in 2005 and 2006." Matt was the 2005 IHSRA Reserve Champion Saddlebronc Rider and the 2006 IHSRA Champion Saddlebronc Rider. Matt's younger sister, Jenifer, also competed in IHSRA as a barrel racer. Matt spent his freshman year of college at Trinity Valley Community College in Athens, Texas on a rodeo scholarship before stepping into the professional ranks and riding on a PRCA permit for a couple years. "After competing in the PRCA I went into the permit program at Three Hills Rodeo, then took a year off before starting to compete at rodeos again."

Matt's been a member of the Mid-States Rodeo Association for three years, and appreciates being able to compete at quality rodeos in close proximity to home so that he can also focus on building his business, Matt Walsworth Performance

Horses, where he starts colts, and trains roping, barrel, and ranch horses for clients. "I've done really well in the Mid-States rodeos. They have good stock contractors in the association, and they haul lots of good broncs to the rodeos." Matt didn't start his run for a season title until mid-June last season but despite a late start, he finished strong as the 2018 MSRA Champion Saddlebronc Rider. "I drew really good all summer and when I decided I wanted to try to win it, the ball started rolling and I just tried to roll with it." Matt traveled to Swanton, Ohio for the MSRA season finals and drew nice horses all three rounds. "I missed the mark-out on the second round so I was disappointed because I hoped to win the average. But Trace Houston won it and he's a real handy cowboy so losing to him is nothing to be ashamed of." Matt wasn't certain what his placing was going into the finals, "I didn't want to put pressure on myself going in, so I didn't look at the standings. I had won quite a bit, so I figured I was looking pretty good, but I just went into finals riding one horse at a time, jump for jump, just like it was practice. I was really stoked to win the title at the end, it was a really good feeling of accomplishment because there were lots of good bronc riders in MSRA last year."

To stay at the top of his game, Matt goes to the gym three times each week, "I try to do a lot of core workouts and deadlifts, and I run two miles to warm up and for cardio. I think working out helps with my balance, flexibility, and reaction time when I'm riding." Matt also works helping a friend that runs about 1000 yearling cattle, and enjoys ranch roping and doing ranch work.

One of Matt's goals for the future is to win a title on one of the horses he's training. He's very grateful to his dad, Rick Walsworth and sister for always supporting him and helping him at his ranch. Although Matt's mom passed away in 2014, she remains a source of inspiration for him in his rodeo career. 📺

NOTES FROM ITALY

article by Denis Faccioli

Denis and Anna Lisa Faccioli - Courtesy

Hi my friends. I'm back with another piece of my rodeo's dream tour! This time I want to tell you about how we set up our trip. Our main goal from the beginning was to being able to meet all the Americans we know, but the list is very long and the US are so big! So we decided to stay away from the colder states in the north, and going to Oklahoma, Arizona and Florida. But when our good friend Siri Stevens asked me to come for the American in Dallas we said yes! (stay tuned for my full story about this great event).

We wanted so bad to go to Arizona and Oklahoma and rope with our longtime friends Kenny Zamora and Paul Bogart and so we book the flights and some hotels too.

I remember that one evening by looking at the calendar I found out that the Cinch Timed Event Championship was going on at the famous Lazy E Arena in Guthrie Oklahoma the same weekend we were flying from Arizona to visit our friend Paul Bogart and his family at their ranch in Inola Oklahoma. They invited me many times but it has not been easy due to his singing and roping career but we organized everything pretty good. The original plan was to end our vacation in Tampa Florida with our special friends Pat and Vicki that we didn't see for 15 years but we added something more before that! I wanted to go to Houston for the final weekend of the Houston livestock show and rodeo and Cody Johnson, Brad Paisley and George Strait concerts!!! It looks like that all the biggest events were lined up in front of me to give me the best experience ever. I was at my last rodeo in Elizabeth Colorado in June 2013 and since then it has been a long waiting.

But now with all these events on the list my batteries are ready to be recharged of pure rodeo's energy to keep me fired up for at least one year, maybe until I book my flight ticket for coming in December for the NFR in Las Vegas! 🍴

Jesse Cook at the 2018 SPFR
- Mike Goodall Photography

was a national finals qualifier his junior and senior year and finished his senior year as the AHSRA Reserve Champion Steer Wrestler despite having his knee out of commission at the finals, causing him to lose places in the standings. Jesse also competed at the IFYR in Shawnee, Oklahoma, and in 2008, his junior year, he ended up 7th place in steer wrestling. Jesse suffered several injuries during his young steer wrestling career, resulting in three knee surgeries between the ages year, where he helps Jessica trade horses, and he also works cattle, does ranch work, and cuts hay with Jessica's family. He has started heeling this year on a 7-year-old buckskin gelding he purchased in October. "He's a Dual Spark son, and I call him Bucky. He had only run 20 steers when I bought him, but we're doing really good. I'm heeling for several different headers this season and so far, I'm sitting first in the SPRA standings. Jesse is also sitting in fifth place in steer wrestling and is determined to keep working towards his goal of winning it all this season. "I might rope calves at the end of the season if I'm looking like I have a good chance at winning the all-around title. I want to prove that I can come back and compete at a high level like I used to."

"I appreciate my family. My mom sends me inspirational quotes to keep me up and motivated, and I call my dad before every run to get his advice. He breaks down what I should be thinking about and reinforces the fundamentals. It helps me slow things down and focus, and it's been like a good luck charm. And my granddaddy, Billy Cook has backed me since day one through everything, and he cooks the best beefaroni ever."

Meet the Member Jesse Cook

story by Michele Toberer

Coming back to his roots has been at the forefront of Jesse Cook's life the past couple of years. Growing up in Prattville, Alabama with a family deep in rodeo traditions, Jesse was riding horses by himself at two years old, roping off a horse when he was 5, and chute dogging his first steer at just 7 years old. "My dad is Ricky Cook and he was a big ACA and IPRA cowboy. He calf roped and team roped but is mainly known for his bulldogging. My mom, Jessie Cook, rodeoed also, so rodeo was always a big part of my life." After taking some time off from rodeo, Jesse is grateful to be on the road back, and his future is looking bright.

While he was a student at Autauga Academy, he competed in junior high and high school rodeo for the state of Alabama. He placed 6th in ribbon roping, 15th in chute dogging and 10th in all-around as an eight-grade competitor. Competing in high school for AHSRA he of 18 and 23.

"I started team roping with Randall Pringle and Zack Hester a couple years ago, and it felt good to get back to rodeo. They really helped me get back to it and get my mind back where it needed to be and got me on a better track." Jesse bought his Southeastern Professional Rodeo Association card last year, and met his girlfriend, Jessica Grace, who he credits for really helping him get his life together and back doing what he loves to do. While at the rodeos as a header, Jesse started gravitating towards the bulldoggers, "It just runs in my genes, I get more excited about steer wrestling than team roping." Jesse appreciates bulldoggers like Zack Varner and Gus Maraman, who brought him under their wing, letting him ride their horses all season, and encouraging him to get back to his passion. Jesse qualified for the SPRA season finals last season, finishing in 5th place as a header and 15th place in steer wrestling. "I had a bad finals in steer wrestling but I made it there; it was the first finals I had tried to make since high school, and I'm 28 now, so I was just grateful I qualified."

This season is a new chapter in Jesse's life. He moved to Jasper, Alabama last

Meet the Member Alan Coley

story by Lily Weinacht

As rodeo athletes meet and contend in the arena, APRA photographer Alan Coley takes on the challenge of capturing their grit and effort. The Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, resident shot his first rodeo three years ago at the APRA rodeo in North Washington, Pennsylvania, then caught the rodeo bug and purchased his APRA card in 2018. "It was a challenge, and the challenge was not only capturing the action but trying to get the right moment," says Alan. "Having attended rodeos for a couple of years, I had a decent idea of what types of shots people were interested in. When I started taking pictures, I would show them to people and get feedback, and that would show me exactly what they were looking for."

After retiring from his career in law enforcement with the Postal Service, Alan revived his hobby of photography and joined a local photography club. When he turned his lens to rodeo, he shot Pennsylvania youth rodeos to familiarize himself with the sport. Western Pennsylvania Youth Rodeo Association photographer, Ray Urksa, and APRA Photographer of the Year, Wendy Davis, gave him valuable advice.

Alan grew up working on relatives' farms, though he didn't spend time around livestock. He's learned about rodeo through some of his photography subjects, as well as rodeo judges. "Some of the good photographic positions are also the same position for judges, so I'm able to strike up conversations with them. Another part of rodeo I really enjoy is the people in and around rodeo that you meet. I talk to judges and clowns and announcers, pickup men and stock contractors. I'm able to pick up more information from that than just observing the events," he explains. "I got lots of good advice on what positions to take, particularly in the bull riding events. If I have a pickup man I know out there, he'll know which of those animals are livelier than others. And I've become a pretty good fence climber."

Alan shot eight or nine APRA rodeos last year, while his goal for the 2019 season is a dozen performances. Although he prefers daytime rodeos, he's learned to appreciate a well-lit evening rodeo, where he can stay in one position and not have to move because of the sun. "I also learned that if one of the events you're shooting is in front of aluminum bleachers, the sun flashes off of that. So it's learning the events and being familiar with the camera, and putting yourself in a place to capture the action without too many distractions."

Alan also enjoys woodworking and has built several pieces of furniture for his home, but says the hobby has taken a backseat to photography. He has a small home studio he works from, and as he enjoys all aspects of photography, his goal is to start working with local businesses to promote them and their products. "It was nice to be published in Rodeo News, that was certainly an achievement," he finishes. "And I certainly appreciate the customers who make it possible for me to come out and take more photos." 📷

Meet the Member Jesse Keysaer

story by Michele Toberer

Jesse Keysaer has capitalized on every opportunity his parents have provided him and is grateful to have a bright future in rodeo ahead of him. The 18-year-old all-around cowboy recently graduated from Culleoka Unit School in Culleoka, Tennessee and although he's currently preparing for his final NHSFR competition while steer wrestling at IPRA rodeos and working full-time as a warehouse worker at Wiremasters; he'll soon join the college rodeo ranks while attending Sul Ross State University in Alpine, Texas to study Kinesiology. Jesse has looked to his parents, Blain and Carolyn Keysaer, for direction on his rodeo path. Both parents were once heavily involved in rodeo; Blain competed in all the timed events through college, narrowing to team roping after a bad steer wrestling accident. "My mom was a really great team roper also, but once I started competing my parents focused on my rodeo dreams. My dad is a high school ag teacher and my mom teaches middle school English, so it wasn't feasible for all of us to rodeo on teachers' salaries. I am so blessed to have parents that decided to focus on my goals and give me every opportunity that they could."

Competing in Tennessee Junior High School Rodeo Association, Jesse qualified for national finals in both 7th and 8th grade. In 2015, he qualified for nationals in team roping as a freshman, and in 2016 he qualified in steer wrestling, finishing in the top 20 in the world. Jesse's junior year he represented THSRA at nationals in team roping, steer wrestling, and calf roping, and brought back the gold, with the 2018 NHSFR Champion Steer Wrestler title. Jesse's team roping partner since 5th grade, Zane White, loans him a head horse and calf horse to compete on, and Jesse shares his steer wrestling and haze horses with Zane in exchange. Jesse bought his bulldogging mare, Money, from Justin Shaffer in 2017, and he fondly refers to the 12-year-old sorrel as 'Mare.' His haze horse is a 14-year-old sorrel gelding named Skeet, that used to be his rope horse before he transitioned him into a hazing machine.

- Pixel Worx

Coming home with a national title in July, Jesse was grateful that he handled the intense pressure the NHSFR competitors are under when battling it out for world titles. However, this past March, Jesse found himself in an even higher-pressure competition at the AT&T stadium while competing at the RFD-TV Junior American rodeo. "At nationals you have mostly high school competitors and families there watching as you make your runs. It was the most nerve-induced thing I've ever done at the American. I knew it was being televised so there were a lot more eyes on me, and there were some of my professional rodeo heroes there watching me make my runs. Once I was in the box, I could focus on what I was doing, but leading up to that I was pretty nervous." Jesse proved once again that he could handle the spotlight and wrestled his way to the 2019 Junior American Champion Steer Wrestler title.

Jesse bought his rookie card with the International Professional Rodeo Association this season, and although he's entered some local IPRA rodeos the past couple years, this is his first season he is making a run for the IFR in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Currently he's sitting 2nd in the rookie standings and 8th in the world standings. He appreciates the start in steer wrestling that Tom Carney of Steer Wrestling 101 gave him and tries to keep the techniques Tom coached him on. On a regular basis he practices at home with Jordan Thresher, Hunter Lewis, Troy Orr, and TJ Kremling, and is grateful for their support. He looks up to bulldoggers like Tyler Waguespack, Tyler Pearson, and Will Lummis, "They are all so good both in and out of the arena." Jesse hopes to add an IPRA World Champion title to his list of accomplishments one day soon, but they say the apple doesn't fall far from the tree; and with teaching in his blood, Jesse's ultimate goal is to become a college rodeo coach.

Tyler is grateful for his sponsors' support, American Hat Company, Cactus Rope, Cactus Gear, and Kinetic Bits. 🍷

Meet the Committee Alexander City Boys & Girls Club

story by Michele Toberer

Each year, the Boys & girls Club of Alexander City, Alabama looks forward to one of its three signature fundraisers for the year, the rodeo held at the Alexander City Horse Riding Arena. On July 5th and 6th, they will entertain the Lake Martin area with rodeo action for the 13th consecutive year. This is their second rodeo sanctioned with the International Professional Rodeo Association; and the partnership with IPRA-sanctioned stock contractors, J Bar K Professional Rodeo Company, owned by Joe Don Griffin and Kim Stewart, has brought a fresh new face to the event. Attendance has continued to grow, and the Lake Martin spectators have enjoyed cheering on the top IPRA competitors that travel to lay their best runs in the Alexander City arena dirt. The gates will open at 5:00 p.m. each night with gate fees of $10 for adults and $5 for children. At 5:30 p.m., both Friday and Saturday, guests can enjoy a musical pre-show with Tina Marie Hosey, a local singer from Dadeville, Alabama, covering Patsy Cline music; as well as Tyler Meadows an up-and-coming country music entertainer. The rodeo gets underway at 7:00 p.m. each night at the arena located at the back of the Charles E. Bailey Sr. Sportsplex Park.

J Bar K Professional Rodeo Company will be bringing long-time IPRA announcer, Tony Sewell to the announcer's stand to share the rodeo action with the crowds. Besides some of the best livestock for cowboys and cowgirls to compete on, they will also be featuring rodeo clown and barrelman, Marshall Greene at the Boys & Girls Club Lake Martin Area Rodeo as their specialty act. Marshall was the 2014 IPRA National All-Region Finals Barrelman, 2017 and 2018 SPRA Barrelman of the year, and 2019 Coors Barrelman. He will entertain the crowds all weekend long with his trick shooting acts and more.

The executive director of the Alexander City Boys & Girls Club, Melissa Reynolds, has been heading the rodeo committee since she took the reins in 2011 after leaving a legal career as a degreed paralegal. "It is one of the easiest fundraisers we do each year, and we look forward to continuing to watch it grow." Besides her work with the Boys & Girls Club, she stays extremely busy as a member of the Elks club Lodge 1878, and volunteering for many local causes as well as serving as a preliminary judge for the Miss Alabama pageants. Melissa was also a past candidate of Tallapoosa County Judge of Probate. "I decided I wanted to get into the non-profit world, and I had already been on the board of directors for the Boys & Girls club for 7 years before taking over as executive director." There are over 42 clubs in the state of Alabama, and the Alexander City club serves over 1800 children in their outreach and has close to 200 children involved in their youth development programs. "We change lives for children, helping them become successful so they can change their lives after school. We serve every kid regardless of their background, and because of wonderful fundraisers like the rodeo, and supportive local donors, we're able to help families with program fees if they're not able to afford them. We never turn a child away." The club offers academic, religious, and healthy lifestyle programs for children 5 to 12 years old, as well as many field trips and fun activities. "Our summer program, Summer Brain Gain, focuses on reading and literacy to help children continue keeping their mind going while they are having fun and on their summer break from school."

The rodeo appreciates wonderful support from the Alexander City community, and their major sponsor, Bice Motors Chrysler-Dodge-Jeep-Ram supports the event annually. Bice Motors' sales executive, Jason Tapley, coordinates with the rodeo each year, "I've helped with the rodeo for at least 8 years and we bring Dodge Ram trucks out to the rodeo to be used as barrel trucks or whatever they need. Bice Motors looks forward to the rodeo each year and we are grateful it gives us an opportunity to do our part for the Boys & Girls Club as well as Alexander City, it's a great event."

of transferring over to your face, too. I always made a point of going to talk to Chad when he was at a rodeo. He just lifted everybody up. That smile is what I'll never forget about him. Chad never knew a stranger, and he was a special friend to us all."

Jennifer was working the Rowell Ranch Rodeo in Hayward, California, when she got the shocking, May 17 call from her 86-year-old dad, Dennis Welch, that the unthinkable had happened and Chad was gone. As Chad and Jennifer have been longstanding pillars of their community, Tulare County Sheriff Mike Boudreaux had come to the ranch personally to relay the stunningly sad news. Randy Corley was announcing Hayward, and was the first person Jennifer ran to tell.

"A few years ago, Michelle (Randy's wife) and I started what we call The GAG, which is short for The Getaway Gang," said ProRodeo Hall of Famer Corley. "We go somewhere special with special friends, and we have a big time. Chad and Jen went with us to Maui a couple years ago, and we had a blast. That's also when Chad, who's always such a real doer for others, became my hero for his masterful mixing of business with pleasure.

"Chad loved to golf. He golfed every single day when his schedule permitted. If we wasn't behind the microphone, he was either golfing or in that Jeep he loved so dearly. Chad made a daily golf-a-thon out of our trip to Maui—36 holes, minimum. I got the biggest kick out of him. Chad was always giving and helping others. It's hard to believe he's gone, but that he died helping someone else is no surprise at all."

Besides his soulmate, Jennifer, Canadian rodeo clown Denny Halstead was as close to Chad as anyone.

"Chad and I had a chemistry very few rodeo announcers and clowns have in our business," said Halstead, who works 140 rodeo performances a year, so has plenty of perspective for comparison sake. "We took that working relationship outside of the arena, too, and became best friends out of it. My mentor was Lecile Harris, who had a chemistry with (the late) Phil Gardenhire that was like no other. That's what Chad and I had. There was never a script at any of our shows—we just rolled.

"There were times I had Chad laughing so hard he couldn't speak. I would hold a chicken up to my microphone before my act, so that chicken would be clucking into Chad's ear. We were a team, and the fun we had and the friendship we shared were fun for rodeo crowds. We weren't just an announcer and a clown. We were a lot more than that, and it showed.

"When I think of Chad, the biggest thing that stands out in my mind is his kindness and how great a friend he was to all of us. When Chad walked into a room, he made a point to know everybody before he left that room. There was no prouder American, and Chad knew how to live it up. I saw Mount Rushmore because of Chad, and I woke up in Sturgis with a tattoo because of Chad. I got to do so many fun things I never would have done if it wasn't for him. I'm going to miss traveling with him, and I'm going to miss him in the arena. Chad Nicholson had a heart of gold." 🐾
